CANNOT YIELD SUCCESSION DUTIES—ILSLEY

DR. MAY GIVEN 10 YEARS BY BRITISH COURT

Pleads Guilty To Spy Charge In London Court

Young Physicist Employed In Canada on Atomic Energy

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 1 (CP Cable) — The defence of Dr. Alan Nunn May, 34-year-old physicist who today was sentenced to 10 years' penal servitude for communicating information "which might be useful to an enemy," brought the first direct mention of Russia into the trial of the scientist.

Defence counsel Gerald Gardiner, in asking clemency for May, said flatly that the information the defendant was accused of disclosing was given to the Russians and that at the time of the offence—in February, 1945—the government had offered all possible technical or economic assistance to Russia.

"Rightly or wrongly," Mr. Gardiner said, "Dr. May felt full indignation that these promises of technical assistance were made one hour and ignored the next."

Gardiner told the court that May considered giving the information "the only contribution he could make to the safety of mankind" because he felt that the more people knew about atomic energy the more seriously they would take it.

Plea Reversed

May, who formerly was employed in Canada in connection with the development of atomic energy, had reversed his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to the charges of communicating information "to some person unknown" which might be "useful to an enemy."

Attorney-General Sir Hartley Shawcross, acting as prosecutor, replying to Mr. Gardiner's defence statement, said:

"There is no point in suggesting that the Russians are enemies or potential enemies. The offence was in giving information which might eventually have reached enemy hands."

At May's hearing March 19, Mr. Gardiner had made an indirect reference to Russia which the court had ordered ruled out of the evidence.

At that time Mr. Gardiner had asked during cross-examination of a witness: "In February last year, Russia was a gallant ally, was it not?"

Asks Why Russia Mentioned

The prosecution then asked "why Russia has been mentioned at all" and the Magistrate ordered Mr. Gardiner's remarks ruled out.

May had returned to Britain last September from Canada and was arrested March 4 as he completed a lecture at King's College in London where he was an instructor.

Recommendation Dumps Palestine Problem on U.K.

London, May 1 — (CP) — The explosive-packed recommendation that 100,000 persecuted Jews be admitted to Palestine as soon as possible ticked away ominously today on Britain's doorstep.

In dropping it there, the official Anglo-American Committee on Palestine held at the same time that the strife-torn Holy Land must become "neither a Jewish state nor an Arab state."

Immediate reaction to the committee's proposal for the British mandate ranged from qualified Jewish approval of the emergency immigration plan to a blistering indictment from Arab leaders.

In Jerusalem, where there long have been repeated outbreaks of violence, the Arab office said the report would intensify this strife and drive "the entire Middle East into the bosom of Soviet Russia."

The Arab statement termed the recommendations "high treason to democracy and a grave betrayal of justice."

In London, the Jewish agency for Palestine pledged co-operation with the plan to admit 100,000 Jews now but protested that the document left untouched the central peoples of stateless Jews in Europe. The number of these has been placed by Jewish spokesmen at more than 1,000,000.

The problem presented by the report—which climaxed a four-month investigation—is primarily one for Britain to handle since she has held a League of Nations mandate over Palestine since 1922.

There was no provision in the joint inquiry committee's instructions making its recommendations binding on either Britain or the United States. But the report's official status assured it—before acceptance or rejection—or full dress airing in the House of Commons and United States Congress.

The committee said that if its report is accepted, Britain and the United States should:

Make it clear "beyond all doubt to both Jews and Arabs that any attempt from either side, by threats of violence, by terrorism, or by the organization or use of illegal armies to prevent its execution, will be resolutely suppressed."

Helped Save Farmer From Robbery, Veteran Inherits Large Fortune

Saint John, N.B., May 1—(CP)—A young Canadian war veteran, Bud Lloyd, has fallen heir to more than $100,000, bequeathed by a Maine farmer he helped to save from robbery several years ago.

The 30-year-old Lloyd was visited by a Bangor, Me., lawyer at his radio repair shop and was informed the lawyer had full authority to turn over the assets of the estate of Fred Streed. Lloyd was named the sole beneficiary.

The veteran who served in the Canadian Army five years recalled today he and his brother aided Streed when the 70-year-old, Finnish-born farmer was attacked by a gang of men several years ago. Streed gave Lloyd a job on his farm at the time and they became close friends, greatly aided by the fact the younger man could speak Finnish.

After leaving Maine, Bud married and later joined the army. He had not heard from Streed for several years, he declared, and, after the initial surprise of his unexpected fortune had passed, he said he planned to expand his radio repair business and buy a home in the country for his wife and five children.

STALIN URGES SOVIET TO EXCEED 5-YR PLAN GOALS

Says That Forces Of International Reaction 'Hatching Plans of New War'

London, May 1 (CP)— Prime Minister Stalin today warned Russians celebrating their May Day holiday against forces of "international reaction" which he said are "hatching plans of a new war," and urged strengthening of the Soviet's armed forces "to guard the peace."

He declared in an order of the day broadcast last night by the Moscow radio and recorded in London, that "our armed forces are faced with a task . . ." "Vigilantly to guard the peace which was won and the constructive labor of the Soviet people; to be the reliable bulwark of the interest of the Soviet Union.

"The successful accomplishment of this honorable task is possible only on condition of further growth in military culture and military skill of the officers and men of our army, our navy and our aviation."

Stalin urged Russian workers to reach and even exceed the goals set in the new five-year plan.

"Developing peaceful socialist construction," Stalin's order declared, "we should not forget for a minute the intrigues of international reaction, which is hatching plans of a new war. It is necessary to remember the teaching of the great Lenin to the effect that after switching over to peaceful labor, it is necessary to be constantly vigilant, to protect as the apple of one's eye the armed forces and defensive powers of our country.

Improve Military Art

"The armed forces of the Sovient Union must daily improve their military art on the basis of experience of war, on the basis of the progress of military science and technique. Beyond any doubt, our army, our navy and our aviation will accomplish all those tasks facing them.

At another point in the order, he said:

"In the vanguard of the struggle for peace and security marches the Soviet Union, which played an outstanding part in smashing Fascism and fulfilled its great mission of liberation."

Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer Brought to Canada Now in Dorchester 'Pen'

By JOHN LANGLOIS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, May 1 — (CP) — So tight was the secrecy surrounding the transfer to Canada aboard the Aquitania of S. S. Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer, sentenced to life imprisonment for responsibility in the shooting of Canadian prisoners of war, that workers in the ship's hospital, just a few yards from the cells, were unaware of his presence during the crossing.

Meyer was taken off the vessel under his heavy Provost Corps escort last night and immediately whisked off to the penitentiary at Dorchester, N.B.

Witnesses who saw him disembark said at the time he was wearing the uniform of a Canadian Army private.

Members of the crew and storekeepers on "F" deck, deep in the hold of the vessel where the cells are located, told The Canadian Press today few passengers on the vessel knew of Meyer's presence. Even employees closest to the ship's jail knew only that one prisoner — "a brigadier or a general" — was being carried across.

The theory was advanced around ship that Meyer was kept so closely guarded for his own protection, as well as the fact he was a prisoner.

The closely-guarded secret of Meyer's arrival in Canada broke only early this morning — hours after the four-funnelled liner Aquitania had docked here last night.

Among her passengers were over 1,000 dependents of Canadian servicemen. Also aboard were Sir Gordon MacDonald, Governor-designate of Newfoundland, and Maj. John Weir Foote, V.C., returning from England where he was formally invested by the King with the Victoria Cross.

Meyer was kept under the closest of confinement during the Aquitania's five-day crossing. No one aboard the ship had seen him with the exception of his guards.

It was believed he was kept in his cell continuously with his six-man Provost Corps escort. It was thought possible he was taken out for a stroll on deck "very late at night when everyone else was gone to bed," a member of the ship's hospital staff declared.

Dorchester, N.B., May 1 (CP) —Arrival of Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer at the Maritime Penitentiary here this morning was cloaked in the strictest secrecy and prison officials were reticent about the German S.S. General's admittance to the institution. Meyer, sentenced to life imprisonment for responsibility in the shooting of Canadian prisoners of war, arrived in Halifax last night on the liner Aquitania.

Officials declined to comment on Meyer's arrival, except to say he would be treated the same as other convicts in the prison. He would appear before a classification board where he would be assigned to the type of work in the prison best suited to his qualifications, they said.

No special quarters or any other special consideration will be tendered the Nazi prisoner, officials said. Officials would not say whether the German General's stay in Dorchester would be permanent.

ALLIES THANKED FOR NEW FREEDOM OF JAP MASSES

Message is Sent to Gen. MacArthur by Workers, Farmers and Others

By FRANK L. WHITE

Tokyo, May 1 (AP)—Japanese May Day leaders thanked the Allies for the masses' new-found freedom and demanded a Socialist Premier today while police and occupation forces hunted the man accused of having plotted to assassinate Gen. MacArthur during the holiday celebration.

Armed American soldiers circulated through the surging crowds, looking for Hideo Tokayama, suspected of heading a conspiracy to kill the Allied commander with pistols and hand grenades. He was first named by a conspirator now in Allied custody.

A 13-man committee sent a message to Gen. MacArthur and members of the Allied council expressing "our deep appreciation that since the Allies began to control Japan, we workers, farmers and others of the masses have been given freedom. . . ."

The same committee met with retiring Premier Kijuro Shidehara.

"Let the Socialists take command of the cabinet," Secretary-General Kuchi Tokuda of the Communist Party told Shidehara.

"If you let the Liberals (a Conservative Party) take over, the people will be against it," warned Kanju Kato of the Socialists' executive board.

Demand Purge of War Criminals

The committee also demanded the complete purging of war criminals and asked that the people be given a hand in drafting the constitution.

As the group talked with Shidehara, American military police inarmored cars and more than 100 Japanese police guarded the Premier's residence against a recurrence of the demonstration against him April 7.

But the long columns of celebrants who marched past and the several hundred thousand who gathered to hear speeches before the Emperor's palace were orderly and jovial.

As the search for Tokayama spread throughout Japan, the Japanese was identified as a former member of the Kempeitai—thought police—and a suicide pilot in a Kamikaze Corps organized to repel invasion.

LOWER SUBSIDY PROTESTED BY MILK PRODUCERS

Order-in-Council Criticized Some Members Claiming Farmers Being 'Squeezed'

Toronto, May 1 (CP)—A telegram from Agriculture Minister Gardiner announcing that the usual reductions in milk subsidies for summer months would take effect today landed with bombshell effect on the directors of the Milk Producers' League of Ontario in session here and changed what was to have been a routine meeting into a full dress debate.

Mr. Gardiner's telegram said an Order-in-Council had been passed extending the subsidy on the same basis as last year. This was interpreted by milk producers as meaning that the winter subsidy of 55 cents a hundredweight on fluid milk would be cut to 35 cents, and the 30-cent subsidy on manufactured milk would be reduced to 15 cents.

The Order-in-Council was criticized and suggestions of a strike were heard. Several League members charged that the farmers were being "squeezed".

Following discussion a reply was sent to the Agriculture Minister insisting on behalf of 25,000 milk producers in Ontario that the present subsidies be continued if the government and people wish supplies.

"Farmers recognize that labor and industry have been permitted to increase their prices and with these increases, farmers' costs have increased, thus placing them in a position of being squeezed," the telegram read. "Failing prompt adjustment, this meeting instructs their members to take prompt and drastic action to remedy the situation."

Trainmen, Passengers Help Out Dog Family

Great Falls, Mont., May 1 — (AP) — For several days railway trainmen noticed a shepherd dog standing guard at an isolated spot on the plains as their train sped by. Now the mother dog and her pups get regular rations from trainmen and passengers.

CITIZENSHIP BILL SLOWED DOWN BY DISCUSSION

Question of Racial Origin Brought Up By an Amendment To the Bill

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 1 —(CP)— The Commons today was scheduled to proceed with detailed consideration of the government's citizenship bill after it slowed down yesterday on a clause-by-clause consideration.

After the commons adjourned last night it still had before it an amendment by Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto-Eglinton) which proposed reduction of the qualification period for citizenship by British subjects from five years to one year.

The amendment resulted in a temporary halt in the Commons consideration of the bill which had reached the tenth of 47 clauses.

The Commons yesterday devoted almost all day to the citizenship bill. The Senate held a brief session and then adjourned to enable members of the Upper House to attend a meeting of the flag committee.

At yesterday's Commons session State Secretary Martin, sponsor of the citizenship bill, said he had "every assurance" of United States immigration authorities that they would respect the provisions of the new bill.

Main snag of the legislation was the amendment proposed by Mr. Fleming.

The amendment opened the whole matter of racial origin. Some Progressive Conservative members expressed doubts that the citizenship bill would clarify the matter. They suggested that census takers still would question Canadians as to their racial origin.

Mr. Martin gave assurance he had discussed the matter with responsible officials and that such would not be the case.

Other Objections.

Schacht's Effort to Show Diplomats At Nazi Rallies 'Irrelevant'

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Nuernberg, May 1 — (AP) — Hjalmar Schacht, Nazi financial genius, told the international military tribunal today that all foreign ambassadors, except those from Russia and the United States, attended Nazi party rallies, but the court blocked his efforts to testify that the attitude of foreign countries was a factor in Germany's acceptance of the Hitler regime.

Attempts to insert this testimony provoked a vigorous protest from Robert H. Jackson, chief prosecutor, who contended that "foreigners are not on trial here, and if some of them were deceived by a regime which used Schacht for window dressing, that is beside the point."

Schacht's counsel, tall, white-maned Dr. Rudolf Dix, retorted that the attitude of foreigners and its effect on German opposition to Hitler was "of the utmost importance and I will fight for this piece of evidence as I see it."

After a short deliberation with his colleagues, Lord Justice Lawrence, British president of the tribunal, ruled that "an investigation of such facts is a waste of time and irrelevant."

Schacht, in his second day of direct testimony continued an elaboration of his main defence that "Hitler deceived the world, deceived Germany and me."

Asked by council to explain the prosecution's charge that he sat in the front row at Nazi party rallies, Schacht said he only attended the earlier ones as a cabinet minister and added: "Foreign ambassadors were there too—except the American and Russian—and also ostentatiously in the front row."

It was when Schacht attempted to "explain the presence of the diplomatic corps at this purely party function" that the prosecution first objected.

Regarding his financing of Nazi rearmament as President of the Reichsbank, Schacht said "I did this to obtain for Germany equal rights, a position I still think right. When the other powers broke their promises to disarm, Germany had no alternate but to rearm to gain equality."

Dominion Cannot Meet Provincial Demands, He Says

Parley Break Possible If Federal Plan Unaccepted

Ottawa, May 1 (CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley told the Dominion-Provincial Conference today that the Federal government cannot meet demands put forward by the Provinces, and he indicated that it now was up to the Provinces to accept the Dominion proposals or see the conference break up in failure.

After an hour and 40-minute review of discussions at the current public meetings of the conference, Mr. Ilsley said the Federal Government could not accept the Ontario counter-proposals. While it would like to meet the demands of the Provinces, it could not do so without increasing its commitments.

When Mr. Ilsley concluded, Premier George Drew of Ontario took the floor and said the Finance Minister's speech was a "bald statement to the Provinces to take it or leave it."

Mr. Ilsley said he hoped there would be agreement, and if such was possible the co-ordinating and economic committees of the conference could return to work for the drafting of the necessary legislation.

Cannot Vacate Field

"We cannot agree to vacate the field of succession duties," said Mr. Ilsley.

"We regard it as very much in the interests of Canada that that field remain with the Dominion. Since Ontario and Quebec have taken the stand they have we have modified our stand as has been outlined by the Prime Minister. But further than that we cannot go."

(Prime Minister King said Monday that if a Province wished to continue to levy succession duties, the amounts payable by a taxpayer to that Province would be treated as a credit to the taxpayer against amount due under the Dominion succession duty. The total annual payments to the Province by the Dominion would be reduced by the amount of such credits.)

Mr. Ilsley said that while succession duty was a smaller taxation source than some of the others involved, there were "powerful arguments" in favor of the Federal Government holding sole occupancy of that field.

Necessary in Administration

The Dominion had given the matter "very, very careful consideration" and had come to the conclusion that it was necessary that succession duties remain with the Dominion because their administration was essential to successful administration of personal income taxes.

One of the "great" advantages was that administration of succession duties resulted in the Dominion obtaining "far more" income taxes. The Dominion could not afford to make changes which would hamper its income tax administration.

MEAT SCARCITY CONTINUES IN BUTCHER STORES

Cattle Receipts at Livestock Yards Remain Less Than Half Normal Deliveries

Toronto, May 1 — (CP) — As the meat scarcity continued in Ontario butcher stores and cattle receipts at Toronto livestock yards remained less than half normal deliveries for this time of year, a meeting of 350 Toronto district butchers last night declined to give unanimous support to a pledge that they would not buy "black market" meat.

Mayor Robert Saunders was chairman of the butchers' meeting at which H. D. Anger of Ottawa, chief enforcement officer of the Prices Board, was a speaker. When the butchers were asked to "promise solemnly not to pay above the ceiling price for meat," only about half the butchers stood in assent. The others remained seated.

Mayor Saunders then asked for contrary votes, but no one moved. "I assume you all support the motion," said the mayor, but no one spoke, although smiles and nods were exchanged.

But the butchers jumped promptly to their feet to support a request to the Prices Board to place a ceiling price on live cattle. There was similar support of a demand for equitable allocation

Five of Crew Missing In U.S. Ship Explosion

Earle, N.J., May 1 —(AP)— The destroyer Escort Solar, its bow ripped off and twisted grotesquely over the 306-foot warship by the force of three explosions, lay blackened and a total loss today alongside the United States Navy's huge Earle ammunition depot pier in lower New York Bay.

Five crew members were reported missing and 150 injured, five critically, in the explosions yesterday which detonated an ammunition-laden railroad car on the pier, destroyed a pier-based warehouse, set fire to the pier itself and left a gaping hole in the concrete structure which juts 2½ miles into the bay.

A navy investigating board, headed by Admiral Paul F. Foster, navy inspector general, began an immediate probe of the disaster. An official naval statement said cause of the blasts was unknown.

The explosions occurred while the Solar was unloading ammunition at the pier — longest of its kind in the world.

Some eyewitness accounts said the first blast took place when a "hedgehog" went off in the hands of a seaman. (A "hedgehog" is a depth charge used against submarines. It weighs about 60 pounds and is a cylinder about 30 inches long and 4 to 5 inches in diameter.)

Queen's Hotel Staff and Commercial Travellers Honor Mrs. Ryan on Eve Of Her Retirement From Business Life

By "Observer"

The staff of the New Queens Hotel, Commercial travellers who have made it their second home throughout the years and many friends gathered on Tuesday evening at the Belleville Yacht Club to bid "Au Revoir" to Mrs. Ryan who relinquished the proprietorship on April 30. It was an occasion long to be remembered by all those present for it was a jolly evening tinged with sadness because of the breaking of the Power family's ownership of one of the best known hotels in Ontario. As from May 1st, Mr. J. N. Yanover of Belleville assumes ownership.

George Nicholls of the Quaker Oats Company proved to be an efficient and able Master of Ceremonies—and the festivities went off with a bang.

Gifts Presented

The highlights of the evening were the presentation of valuable and beautiful gifts to Mrs. Ryan, Mr. John Ryan and Miss Power.

On behalf of the staff, Miss Maude Parker presented Mrs. Ryan with a magnificent silver tray suitably inscribed. In a prepared address Miss Parker reminded the staff of the many kindnesses Mrs. Ryan had shown to all—she had rejoiced with them in their pleasure—she had grieved with them in their sorrows. She had on many occasions paid the hospital and doctor bills—she always remembered the kiddies—and she never turned a hungry person away. Mrs. Ryan could always command the loyalty of the staff, for she was not just an employer, she was a firm friend.

To Miss Power a lovely rose bowl together with a beautiful bouquet of red roses was presented and to Mr. John Ryan a solid silver cigarette case, suitably engraved.

A Home Away From Home

Dick Anderson, of the Davis and Henderson Company then presented to Mrs. Ryan on behalf of the travellers a table lamp of striking design and superb workmanship. In a moving address, Mr. Anderson quoted the lines:

Who e'er has travelled life's dull round
What e'er his stages may have been
May sigh to think how oft is found
His warmest welcome at an Inn.

"Every traveller who used the Queens," he said, thanked Mrs. Ryan and the whole staff for the comfort and goodfellowship there. Mrs. Ryan had a smile for all—and 'Welcome' was her password. A plaque in bronze was erected to the memory of her father, Mr. Tom Power—our memento to his daughter is inscribed in all our hearts."

Even the two airdales were not forgotten, the youngest bellhop, in a real witty talk gave to them each a unique drinking bowl.

Expresses Appreciation

Mrs. Ryan thanked the staff and travellers for their kind gifts—gifts she would treasure as long as life lasts—she would never forget them—for hers had been a pleasant experience because of the good people she had met at the hotel through the years.

Mrs. Ryan then introduced Mr. Yanover and asked for all to give him the same support in business which had been given her.

Miss Power, overcome by emotion, briefly expressed her thanks for their remembrance of her and Mr. John Ryan lifted the tension by delivering a very fine speech.

Songs by Jim Bankier, Joe McCann, Miss Clarke and tap-dancing by Miss Corradi and Scottish airs on the bagpipes by Jamie Clarke brought to an end the entertainment part of the program, after which dancing was enjoyed to an early hour.

POLICE BLOTTER

Despite the fact the end of gasoline rationing was seen almost one year ago, there apparently is one unprincipled motorist in the Belleville district who still labors under the impression that coupons are necessary, or else is presently out of funds with which to purchase his own "petrol".

For on more than one occasion during past weeks a Campbell Street resident has complained of gasoline having been stolen from the tank of his truck. Police have promised investigation into the matter.

Milk-bottle money also continues to disappear in various parts of the city, the most recent complaint coming from the Dundas Street district where money, and in some instances bottles included, have disappeared.

One slight motor accident was reported to police on Tuesday, when Nettie Ketcheson, 229 Albert Street, pulled away from the curb on Front Street striking the rear fender of another car with her left front fender and bumper The second car was driven by Carl Wesley of Point Anne. Damage to both vehicles was approximately $30, it was stated.

Dry Weather Benefited Spring Seeding Work

Whatever other characteristics are remembered of the month just past, April, 1946, will go down in the records as being entirely favorable for district farmers to get their spring seeding operations completed.

Precipitation during the month was below normal and considerably below the rainfall received for the same month in 1945 when precipitation was exactly 4.04 inches, including 3.60 inches of rain. Rainfall during the month just completed was only 1.06 inches with one fifth of an inch of snow being reported.

As against last year's records, however, the weather last month was comparatively "chilly" with a mean temperature of 42.5 degrees being reported. In April 1945 the "mean" was 47 degrees. High temperature for the month just past was 75 degrees with a minimum of 24 degrees. Last year the high was 77 and the minimum 26 degrees.

Frost Damaged Meadows Being Sown in Grain

Result of winter killing by frost conditions, several badly spotted old meadows in the Hastings district have been worked up by farmers and have been sown to spring grain, it is reported by H. Lynn Fair, local agricultural representative.

Seeding in Hastings is now practically completed in the south, early sown grain is through the ground but all crops need warmth and moisture. Some young cattle already have been turned out to ranches for summer pasturing.

In Northumberland county most cheese factories are reported to have opened but deliveries of milk are still small. Chicken hatcheries can sell more chicks than they are able to produce, while orchards are ready for the pre-pink spray. Promise of fruit varies.

In Prince Edward County American buyers are still very keen for springers and even fall calving cows and heifers are in demand.

As in Hastings county old meadows and fall grain are patchy and in some instances have been worked for spring seeding. Seeding is over 75 per cent completed and considerable oats and peas are up.

The delayed dormant spray was applied in many orchards during the past week.

Cereal Grasses For Animal Food And Human Pills

Wallaceburg, Ont., May 1 — (CP)— Cereal grasses—tender blades of oats, barley, wheat and Sudan grasses that have been grown scientifically, cut, blended and tested — contain energy, vitamins and minerals, grass expert Jack Appleton said today.

Native of Toronto and graduate of the Ontario College of Agriculture, Appleton attended a famous grass research institute in Wales. He is employed by a Wallaceburg firm which converts cereal grasses into livestock feed and manufactures pills from cereal grasses for human use.

"The expression 'go to grass' isn't as absurd as it sounds," Appleton said. King Nebuchadnezzar of ancient Babylon ate grass like the oxen, so we are told. He had the right idea —that is if he dehydrated it, ground it and blended the different cereal grasses. They said he lived to a ripe old age."

Present Briefs To Education Commission

Toronto, May 1 (CP) — The Royal Commission on Education in the second day of its resumed sessions Tuesday received briefs recommending extension of the use of audio-visual education aids and heard Rev. Harold G. Salton of Toronto suggest that religious education should start from points on which creeds find general agreement.

The brief on audio-visual education presented by the audio-visual education committee of the Toronto Board of Education urged that the Ontario Department of Education extend its audio-visual branch to include circulation of phonograph records, flat pictures, film slides and miniature color slides. The branch also should set up a circulating library of radio scripts, transcriptions of radio programs and books on the use of radio and other audio-visual aids in teaching, the brief said.

Other recommendations in the brief were that more literature in the form of printed or duplicated circulars dealing with the use of available aids be sent to teachers, that more information on broadcasts sponsored by the Department of Education be made available and that the Department sponsor production of motion picture films and other aids on topics included in the course of study.

Censorship of Motion Pictures

The brief also urged "that the Department of Education be delegated some degree of censorship over motion pictures shown in commercial theatres, at least with regard to their education content and suitability for juvenile audiences," and that commercial producers of audio-visual aids "be required to employ the services of qualified teachers in their planning departments."

A brief on visual and audio education techniques presented by Noel Bates of a Toronto film producing concern (Graphics International, Ltd.) said his firm had found executives of many private corporations willing to provide Ontario schools with films and strip films on subjects which are basic parts of the curriculum.

"We respectfully suggest that it would be in the interest of the Department to convene a committee to set standards which visual media of this type should meet, prepare a list of subjects which the committee would like to see sponsored privately, and act as a consulting and advisory service to the production units preparing this type of visual media," he said.

Mr. Salton in his brief on religious education suggested that teachers experiment first "in areas of general agreement before entering th areas of disagreements.... therefore in such controversial areas as creed and beliefs, whether directly stated or implied, the teaching should be done by the religious bodies concerned apart from the schools."

Marcel Desserres Sentenced to Be Hanged July 9

Cochrane, May 1 (CP)— Convicted of murder in a fatal shooting during a bank holdup, Marcel Desserres late yesterday was sentenced to be hanged on July 9.

Sentence was imposed by Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly at the Spring Assizes which convicted Desserres of the fatal shooting of John Dubinsky, a customer in the Bank of Toronto branch at South Porcupine when it was robbed of $8,300 by an armed bandit last November.

Several witnesses had identified Desserres as the man who robbed the bank, told the staff and customers to remain where they were, and then fired the fatal bullet at Dubinsky as the latter made a break for the doorway. Testimony was that Dubinsky was hard of hearing.

Desserres had nothing to say when standing for sentence except "I am not guilty, My Lord."

His Lordship declared: "You have had a fair trial and have been found guilty by a jury. I have no option in the sentence. Any clemency must be given by a higher court or by the justice department. I am not going to lecture you."

Convicted of Manslaughter

Mr. Justice Kelly then passed sentence of 10 years imprisonment upon Percy Labrash, who had been charged with murder in the rooming-house death of Fred Gauvereau at Timmins Sept. 16. The jury yesterday acquitted Labrash of the murder charge but convicted him of manslaughter.

Defence counsel Gregory Evans of Timmins contended that Gauvereau died as the result of a "freak blow" struck by Labrash in self-defence. Labrash had testified that he never saw nor heard of Gauvereau before the latter came into the kitchen of the rooming house and an argument started. Defence counsel argued that it was a case of "rough, tough characters" accustomed to settling quarrels in theirsown fashion.

Crown Attorney S. A. Caldbick pointed out Labrash had a criminal record dating back to 1928. His Lorship said in sentencing Labrash: "You are a disgrace to your family and a menace to the public. I could sentence you to life, and in view of the wave of crime now existing and your own record 20 years is not long enough." But he said he would give accused one more chance, and sentenced him to 10 years dating from the time of arrest last September.

Year's Romance Ends in Wedding

Kingston, May 1 — (CP) — A romance which started a year ago in Scotland led to the wedding yesterday of Sgt. Edward Baldry, 22, a patient in the Veterans Affairs Hospital here, and Roberta Stewart McBey, also 22, graduate nurse of the Royal Infirmary in Dundee, Scotland.

The couple met when Baldry was on leave in Dundee. Later he suffered chest wounds in fighting in Northwest Europe and Miss McBey visited him when he was in hospital.

Recently Miss McBey flew from Ireland to Boston, came on to Kingston by train, visited relatives in Vancouver and then spent some time with Baldry's parents in nearby Napanee.

WED ON PLATFORM AS TRAIN STOPS

Spartanburg, S. C., May 1 — (AP) — The train steamed into the station yesterday and news vendor Percy Wright, on his regular run, hopped off, was married to Virginia Trimmier who was waiting on the platform with Rev. J. B. Isom, then boarded the train again with his bride, en route to Washington where they will spend their honeymoon. A hadful of railway employees and travellers witnessed the ceremony.

Board Announces Maximum Prices For 1946 Potatoes

Ottawa, May 1 — (CP)—Maximum 1946 prices for new potatoes, imported and domestic, were announced by the Prices Board today. The announcement said practically no change from 1945 prices will result, with increases varying from a quarter cent to a half cent a pound expected in the prairie provinces, and Maritimes, Northern Ontario and Northern Quebec.

Maximum prices at the basing points — Harrow, Ont., and Vancouver — are the same as for last season. The maximum allowance of 40 cents a hundredweight for transportation from basing points has been eliminated, however, and this year's price throughout Canada will be the schedule price at the basing points, plus transportation costs to distributing centres from the closest point.

Imports from the United States are under specific import permit, subject to approval by the Wartime Food Corporation, and this approval will be limited "for the present" to those areas having insufficient supplies of 1945 production to take care of consumer needs, the Board stated.

Present indications point to a heavy crop in the United States and it is anticipated there will be ample supplies available at prices which will permit distribution in Canada at ceiling prices until domestic production is sufficient to take care of requirements.

EARLY IMPORT

Oranges were first brought into Europe from China by the Portuguese in 1547.

May Day in Peace

May Day this year is the first in years in peace time, although last year May was not far advanced when Germany collapsed and peace came to Europe. No one can forget the surge of emotion which went over the people on May 7th with the coming of the news that the war in Europe was over and that the official announcement would be made on Tuesday the eighth according to an agreement of the leaders of the Big-Three nations, Britain, United States and Russia. The coming of peace at any season would be the matter of the greatest rejoicing, but the coming of the end of the war in May, the loveliest of the spring months, was an appropriate setting in which the peoples of the world celebrated. No month of May ever will have such memories for those of this age as May of 1945 when the greatest menace to freedom in the world yielded to the true power and greatness of the United Nations.

So this month of May brings an anniversary of the greatest importance to the people of this era.

Another May has come and the world views with the eye of experience the path which has been covered in the twelvemonth. Problems of importance for the future of the world have pressed upon men's attention. First the world had to go on to smash the remaining tyrannous foe, Japan, destined to fall three months later. It has studied the anxieties of those who had in hand the preparation of the plans for the peace. Since last May courts have been held to try the docket of alleged war criminals of Germany and Japan, and work of making for the rebuilding of Germany into a responsible nation, so guarded that she shall never again find it possible to attempt aggression was undertaken.

This May finds the world still faced with vast problems but determined to see the way of security guaranteed. One of these problems is the food problem of which everyone thought little a year ago and not with such knowledge as the people of all nations now possess about the security of world food supply and the necessity for heroic and sacrificial measures to prove the food-producing nations their brothers' keepers by sending all the grain possible to feed the millions who face famine through the dislocations of war.

Men and women will look forward to the coming months and another May, the next one in 1947, will hope to see great steps made towards the settlement of many crucial issues and problems.

The Merry Month

That month for which the world looks forward in winter and in spring, has come, May, the month when leaves and flowers are first in abundance. It is the one of the twelve which has most earned the praise of every poet and the admiration of every man. In April the earth seems still laboring under the breaking of the restraints of winter though spring in all its freedom is first seen in March and June does lose something of that first touch of spring and takes on at its close something of the characteristics of the summer months.

May Day has been for ages an occasion in which man feels the full sense of relief from the fetters which have held in human beings since the late autumn. May Day was in olden days in Europe a time of rejoicing with dances on the green and while many of the old customs have disappeared the spirit that was May's in other times is still the spirit of the early part of May.

Return to Italy

When Arturo Toscanini left his native Italy eight years ago, as a protest against Fascism there and Nazism in Germany and Austria, he declared it to be "the duty of everyone to fight and help in this cause according to one's means." He has been unswerving in his determination. He refused to play the Fascist anthem at Bologna as early as 1931, or to conduct in Italy thereafter. When Hitler came to power he cancelled his engagements at Baireuth. When the Nazis took over Austria he refused to play at the Salzburg Festival.

Now Toscanini returns to the land he left in 1938. He will conduct a series of six concerts at Milan, the proceeds of which will be used to help rebuild the famous La Scala Opera House. It will not be the same Italy he left. Not only La Scala, but many other famous Italian buildings are in ruins. Italy is a land of hunger and frustration. But to Toscanini the air undoubtedly will be cleaner. The Fascism he hated has been destroyed. As an artist, and as a man, no one ever was more loyal to his principles. It will be a sad homecoming but a triumphant one for him.

Links of Empire

When Viscount Alexander, whose family seat is at Caledon, County Tyrone, settles down in Ottawa, it is possible that he will take an early opportunity of visiting the little Ontario town of Caledon. Here he will find a link with his grandfather, the 3rd Earl of Caledon, who served in Canada as an officer in the Coldstream Guards more than a century ago. It was from him that the Canadian town got its name. On the outskirts of the Northern Ireland village of the same name stands a lofty mountain in memory of this other great soldier.

Around this landmark Viscount Alexander used to play as a boy little dreaming that one day he would become Governor-General of the country in which his grandfather served with distinction. The first settlers in Caledon, Ontario, emigrated from the Tyrona village.

Old Rail Fences

They are one of the homely links that bind the regions of a vast, sprawling nation together. They zigzag along the sides of country roads that wind through river valleys, climb the brows of hills and dip through the hollows. They fence in farm garden plots, ramble beside deeply rutted lanes that lead from barnyards to pastures and meander along the edges of upland fields. Over them lean alders, sumacs and pines. In the many corners grow high-bush blueberries, clumps of gray birches, goldenrod and blue asters.

Chipmunks and red squirrels scamper along the top rails, stopping every rod or two to sit up and survey the terrain before dashing on to the next observation post. Song sparrows and bluebirds perch on the uprights in the angles and throw their rollicking carols to the landscape. In the weeds along the fence rows bob whites and pheasants build their grass-lined nests and bring forth their broods. Beneath the rails woodchucks dig their long-tunneled dens and make forays on the garden and clover patch.

Rail fences are gradually disappearing, giving way to woven wire and steel posts. They have served their purpose well through the long years since men and boys split the rails that marked the subjugation of land to the husbandman's purposes. Old, weather-grayed and splintery, traced with etchings of greenish lichens, they are memorials to the men of yesteryear who played their roles well in the nation's unfolding drama.

War Brings Back Dutch Windmills

You've probably always thought of Holland as a land of windmills, but for years before World War II, most of them had been abandoned. Electric power was more efficient and the whirling giants were kept for tradition's sake alone, says This Week Magazine.

And luckily, too. For when the Nazis overran the land, fuel disappeared. The Dutch resorted to their faithful windmills again. The payoff is that, through war necessity, they learned to run them with super-efficiency — so much so that engineers say they can now buck electric power. The windmill's back to stay.

MAY DAY

'Round the world this first of May
Has been welcomed in with laughter,
Song and dance and childhood's play!
Let what must, come following after!
Bud and bloom and fat bees buzzin',
Fairest month of all the dozen.

Free once more are brook and river.
Blue the heavens and green the grasses.
Wind that set the flesh a-shiver
Now leaves perfume as it passes.
Everywhere the world seems brighter,
All hearts just a little lighter.

Braid again the ribbon streamers;
Sing you children as you're dancing.
Here's the month when all are dreamers—
Month of beautiful romancing,
Month that care from hearts can cozen,
Loveliest month of all the dozen.

At a meeting of the city council the recommendation that half the sum due for taxes on the rolling mills be accepted in full payment, was not adopted. Present at the meeting were Mayor Sulman and Aldermen Marsh, Cooper, Panter, Knox, McCrodan, Vermilyea and Patterson.

Our citizens, we believe, want to see the rolling mills in operation and the remission of taxes by-law if submitted, would carry with few dissenting votes, but nobody wants to see the matter arranged in a slip-shod manner.

Christian Social Union Victory In German Voting

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The smashing victory of Germany's new political party, the Christian Social Union, in the County Council elections in the American zone, should be recognized for what it really is—a triumph of Christian principles over the evils of Hitlerism which still tear at the vitals of the Reich.

This political development is doubly important because Germany is not the only country in Europe which has lost its moral grip as a result of the war. The striking success of the Christian Social Union in Germany, which is the centre of the plague, gives hope that there may be a resurgence of morality in the affected areas of the distressed continent.

I encountered this politico-religious movement when I was in Germany two months ago. It was getting well under way then and represented the combination which its name indicates.

Moral Rehabilitation

The plague of Hitlerism can only be eradicated by moral rehabilitation. You can keep the malefactors quiet by armed might, and you may achieve the vital demilitarization of Germany through a four-power 25-year mutual assistance pact such as now is proposed, but you can't reform the Nazis that way. Reform must come through a change of heart.

The Christian Social Union represents people who subscribe to the tenets of Christianity. It isn't a question of denomination at all. Catholics and Protestants—and undoubtedly any others who subscribe to this code of right—have joined hands, and the whole emphasis is laid on the Christian principles.

Military authorities in both the American and the British zones are utilizing fully the efforts of these workers for moral rehabilitation.

Hitler deliberately set out to debase his people, and he succeeded with a huge section of them, but obviously there were many staunch citizens whom he did not corrupt, and they now form the nucleus of the army of moral rehabilitation.

Combinations of Religions

This combination of the religious for the eradication of Hitlerism does not mean, of course, that the denominational work has been suspended. We had, for instance, the announcement a couple of weeks ago by the American military government that Pastor Martin Niemoeller expected to lead a reform movement throughout German Protestantism to eradicate all vestiges of Nazi control. The Roman Catholic Church with its big German membership also is continuing denominational activities.

But for the purposes of political work these two great religious bodies are giving the world a fine demonstration of co-operation for the universal welfare.

Pastor Niemoeller has declared that he thinks delays by the Allies in determining Germany's future are the greatest obstacle to destroying the last of Nazism. He says some younger Germans "clinging to national socialism like a man in the open sea clings to a plank, not because it is a very strong plank but because it is all he has. The young people just do not see the other plank. They must be shown something which makes democracy alluring."

Cut-Wood Burns Better

(The Tweed News)

Fire which recently destroyed the pulpwood pile at The E. B. Eddy Company's mill in Hull drew widespread attention. To older people, it will recall the great fire of 1901 which swept across the Chaudiere bridge and engulfed portions of both Ottawa and Hull. Others will remember the fire of 1917 which destroyed the centre block of the Parliament Buildings.

Few will associate the blaze with the forest fires which annually claim one-third of all the wood taken from Canadian forests.

During the coming summer, careless smokers will destroy enough pulpwood to supply paper to every Canadian newspaper for three years. Campers will leave smouldering fires that will flare up and eat into an even greater area of forest. This is the rate at which the needless destruction of our forests goes on.

Fire-fighting services alone are not enough to curb this destruction. Much, if not most, of the task of reducing forest fires, belongs to the ordinary man who would not dream of flicking a lighted cigarette into the Eddy block-pile, but who thoughtlessly tosses one from the window of his car on the open road.

A SPADE'S A SPADE

My sister makes life miserable when we go out together. She won't sit down in a bus, subway or streetcar or even in a movie, for fear of getting some form of social disease. She insists you can contract such disease by touching chairs, door-knobs or in fact anything a person having the disease has touched or come into contact with. She even claims you can get social diseases from drinking out of glasses, cups, etc., at mountains or in public lunch places or cocktail places. I asked our doctor and he said of course in rare instances such infection may occur but he didn't think it was a risk one need worry about. But I don't regard him as an absolute authority. Please say something about this in your column. I suppose there are a good many people who share my sister's obsession.

(T. M. A.)

I believe your doctor gave you the right answer. All I can do is elaborate upon what your doctor said.

To prevent misunderstanding let me say first that the proper names for the diseases you probably have in mind when you use that wretched term "social diseases" are syphilis, gonorrhea and chancroid.

As your doctor said, it is possible to catch any one of these by just such casual contact with a surface or object a person having the disease has touched, but ordinary soap and water cleanliness is the best precaution or prophylactic against such infection that any one can use—and such simple cleanliness amply protects against the hazard.

It seems obvious that your sister suffers from mysophobia (morbid or unreasonable fear or dread of defilement from touching familiar objects) or nosophobia (morbid or unreasonable fear or dread of disease)—and that is not to be wondered at, in view of the shameful evasion of the teaching of hygiene in our common schools.

The best suggestion I can offer in regard to protection against such infection is this: Make it an inflexible rule to wash your hands with soap and water always before you eat or drink anything, and don't acquire the habit of licking finger or thumb with lip, or tongue when turning pages, shuffling or dealing cards and the like.

Plain soapy water, in my opinion, is the most efficient all-around antiseptic or disinfectant. Not nearly enough of it is used, and far too many public semi-public and private corporations, agencies and individuals are culpably negligent or at fault in failing to provide adequate facilities for such cleanliness.

In another talk we'll discuss the question of the spread of communicable disease by uncleanliness in hotels, restaurants, bars, soda fountains, lunch counters, soft drink vendors, not to mention that loathsome institution for the encouragement of juvenile delinquency the cocktail lounge.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Yankee Stomach

Would the taking of three large doses of the following daily for years be harmful. It is a prescription for stomach trouble and excess acid Bismuth subnitrate, heavy magnesium oxide, sodium bicarbonate, pancreatin. (B. W.)

Answer—It is a quaint old shotgun mixture with little rhyme or reason. Probably the saleratus (sodium bicarbonate) in it is the important ingredient. For prolonged use calcium carbonate and magnesium trisilicate is preferable, for reasons explained in the pamphlet "Yankee Stomach"—available on request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope. "Yankee Stomach" is my term for hyperacidity and gastric or duodenal ulcer.

Hay Fever Season Approaching

Express my thanks for your Hay Fever pamphlet. Gave my 10 year old son calcium as suggested therein and his misery was greatly alleviated, for the first time in three seasons.

Answer—Now is the time for hay fever sufferers to get set. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet on Hay Fever.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What do "Patagonia" and "Tierra del Fuego" mean?

The part of South America extending south of the Rio Negro to Magellan Strait was originally called Patagonia by the Spanish, and the archipelago and islands south of the Strait were called Tierra del Fuego.

While on his historic voyage around the world in 1520 Ferdinand Magellan explored that entire region in search of a southwestern passage to the East Indies.

Some of the Spaniards noticed very lage footprints on the beach. One morning a native of huge stature came down to meet the explorers, who were impressed by his exceptionally big feet. From this circumstance they named the region "patagon," clumsy big foot. Although the Tehuelche Indians of Patagonia are considered one of the tallest races in the world, their stature was greatly exaggerated by the early Spaniards. Antonio Pigafetta, who went with Magellan as a volunteer and who wrote an account of the expedition, referred to the native who camein down to greet them as so large "that we reached only to his waist-belt."

The Patagonian area was divided between Argentina and Chile in 1881 and its permanent boundaries determined in 1902. Patagonia in Argentina is nearly as large as Texas and has an area of some 259,000 square miles — about a fourth of the area of the republic.

During their winter's day in the vicinity of Magellan Strait the Spaniards never caught sight of a single native on the islands, but in the daytime they could see smoke arising, apparently from campfires, and in the night they saw flickering fires in the distance. Accordingly they called the region "Tierra del Fuego," Land of Fire. The natives there are among the most primitive people in the New World and some authorities believe that in the time of Magellan they kept their fires burning continually because they had not learned how to rekindle them. The Yahgans, a dwindling tribe Fuegians, are the southernmost people in the world. Part of the original Tierra del Fuego is now Argentina and part of it in Chile.

Arab Boycott Of Jewish Goods Fully Observed

Jerusalem, April 30 (Reuters)—The Arab boycott of Jewish goods in Palestine is not being fully observed but it is reported here that already it has hounded at least two Arab merchants to death.

The boycott was started in January as an economic weapon against Zionism The main difficulty in enforcing it is that there are not enough Arab manufactured goods available and an Arab shopkeeper who wants to stay in business must deal with the well-stocked warehouses in the all Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

Arabs still patronize Jewish-owned motion picture theatres and cafes. Educated Arab merchants who have had friendly and profitable dealings with Jews for years continue to trade with them surreptitiously. But they remember the "terror" of 1936-38, during which 133 leading Arabs, including police officers and civil officials, were murdered by Arab terrorists.

Recently an Arab broker, suspected of having sold land to Jews, was shot dead in daylight in one of the busiest streets in Jaffa.

Arab merchants who have failed to observe the boycott have received letters threatening them with death if they continue to deal with Jews. Now the so-called Arab "black hand" organization has turned its attention to Jewish merchants in an effort to make the boycott 100 per cent effective.

One Jewish merchant in Tel Aviv received a letter from the "black hand" group which advised:

"Be in safety, and cut all your relations with Arabs."

At the bottom a skull and crossbones and two guns were drawn over the words "the black hand of the Arab secret army."

The original "black hand," which emerged during the Arab rebellion of 1936 was believed to have been composed largely of boys under 18 "delegated" to kill because they could not be sentenced to death if captured and convicted.

Dean of Western Canada Journalism E. H. Macklin, Dies

Winnipeg, May 1 (CP)— Dean of Western Canadian journalism, whose name has become legend across the Dominion, E. H Macklin, 83, died at his home in Brentwood Lodge here Monday.

Known as the father of co-operative news-gathering in Canada, and President and General Manager of the Winnipeg Free Press, Mr. Macklin had been ill for some time.

After 56 years in newspaper work, he retired from the Free Press in 1935, and two years later announced his retirement from the Board of The Canadian Press, Canada's co-operative news gathering association of which he was one of the founders.

A striking figure, with his sweeping white moustache and small, pointed beard, and wide-brimmed black hat at a rakish angle, Mr. Macklin had an international association in journalism, widely known in Canada, the United States, and the United Kingdom.

Started in Toronto

He started his career in Toronto in 1879, and came to Winnipeg in 1900 when the Prairies were turning from the early ox-cart days, and with the late J. Wm. Dafoe, famed Free Press editor, shared in the development of the Free Press, bringing many innovations to western newspaper life.

Winnipeg had outgrown its youth as a frontier town when he came here, and he played a prominent part in a new era of western development.

A man of unusual vision, Mr. Macklin pioneered for a Dominion-wide news service, believing it would create a better spirit of unity between Eastern and Western Canada. The first fruits were in 1907 when the Western Associated Press was founded to be followed 10 years later by the establishment of The Canadian Press.

First Treasurer

He was the first treasurer of The Western Associated Press, built on the lines of The Associated Press, and later he became president. In 1924 in honor of his pioneer work, Mr. Macklin was made honorary president of The Canadian Press, and continued as a director until 1937.

In September, 1941, he was a guest of honor at a reunion dinner in Winnipeg, attended by editors and newspaper executives from all part of the Dominion.

M. E. Nichols of Vancouver, first president of the old W.A.P., termed Mr. Macklin "the inspiration and architect of the Western Associated Press."

His picturesque eccentricities and colorful language, described as combining vehemence, culture and ingenuity, were widely known, as well as his hobbies, golf and speed, and many famed newspapermen never forgot a ride in the Macklin automobile. He was one of the founders of the Pine Ridge Golf Club in Winnipeg, and was known on the links from Halifax to Victoria.

A son and daughter survive, Terence E. Macklin of Pine Falls, Man., and Mrs. Lorne Judson of Winnipeg. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

COLONEL SERVES SARGE BREAKFAST IN BED

The dream of a serviceman came true at the Hotel Astor in New York when Colonel Cecil Rutledge, commanding officer of Camp Kilmer, served breakfast in bed to former Sgt. Bass H. Lewis, Jr., of Columbus, Ga. Lewis, the millionth man to go overseas from Camp Kilmer in 1944, was asked at that time what he'd like to have most when the war was over. He replied: "I'd like to get a suite at Astor and have my colonel serve me breakfast in bed." He got his wish, thanks to sportsmanship of Col. Rutledge, who hails from Buffalo, New York.

London Letter

London, May 1—Time was when British street musicians were pitied by more affluent colleagues holding down salaried jobs in theatres, restaurants, movie theatres and dance halls.

Today, in London, the "Busker" often makes a better living from the coppers, shillings and sixpences tossed into his hat by passing pedestrians than does the resident musician. For one thing, his earnings cannot be taxed. For another he thrives on the generosity of a public that has plenty of free spending money and, at present, not very much to spend it on.

Some street musicians once held big-time jobs in London. They were perhaps thrown onto the street by the introduction of "talkies" in movie theatres or by general depression that followed. When times improved many had lost all inclination to return to regular work.

One of the "has beens" is often seen playing a violin outside the now empty Gaiety Theatre in the Strand. The only name he gives is Raymond, but musicians know him as the leader of a popular broadcasting band in the early days of radio. He has played on street corners and to theatre queques in the West End for seven years. Some weeks he earns as much as £12 ($54) a week. But takings vary considerably according to the weather and public interest.

Raymond is plainly but neatly dressed and he plays the violin with more than average skill. His repertoire consists of light classical and popular dance numbers, old and new.

Recently he refused an offer to join a theatre orchestra as fourth violinist at £9 ($41) per week. He considered the additional expense of evening clothes plus income tax reductions, made the chance uneconomical.

"At first," he said, "I flinched at the idea of playing on street corners. I went to a good school and was accustomed to playing in smart places. But the difficulty of earning a living during the '30s drove me to busking. You see, most establishments like young men as dance band leaders and at 45 I was considered too old."

Bert Palham—better known as "Jock"—has played his trumpet to theatre queques and to passers-by for the past eight years. He, too, earns more this way than he could in a resident job.

"The life suits me well enough" he said. "I never liked being tied to regular hours and this way I am able to work more or less when I feel like it."

"Jock" earns approximately £10 ($45) a week at "busking" but during VE-Day celebrations his takings rose as high at £15 ($68). His last resident post was in a theatre orchestra at £8 a week.

Elderly men in shabby clothes naturally attract sympathy from passing crowds. "Old Dave", as he is known to Shaftesbury Avenue—headquarters of London's theatreland—is well past 60. He sings to queques outside theatres in a thin, quavering voice and awakens old memories with such favorites as "Lily of Laguna," "Roses of Picardy," "Me and My Gal" and "The Man who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo."

He's too suspicious of strangers to tell them what he earns.

"I get a fair living," he said, "nothing out of the ordinary but it keeps the wolf from the door."

As a result, harmful wastes remain in the intestines, making the child listless, peevish and not feeling like eating. What may be needed is Children's Own Tablets. High Standard Of Kiwanis Revue Pleases Audiences

Definite proof that the 1946 edition of "Pack Up Your Troubles" the Belleville Kiwanis Club's sparkling musical comedy revue is a decided hit was apparent last night at the Collegiate Institute when a packed auditorium greeted the second presentation of the show.

While the cast gave an exceptional performance at Monday's opening night show, it excelled even that last night, and an appreciative audience greeted the offering with round after round of applause.

After-show consensus of Tuesday night patrons was to the effect that the vehicle is thoroughly enjoyable and one of the best amateur theatrical efforts presented in Belleville. Laudatory comment was heard on all sides as the crowd filed out of the auditorium, and members of the Kiwanis Club from President Mark Vanner down were the recipients of congratulations on the splendid performance given by the talented artists, chorus and orchestra.

"Pack Up Your Troubles" will be presented again tonight and Thursday night.

Questions and Answers

Readers may direct their questions, giving their name and address and mentioning the name of this paper to Information Branch, WPTB, 490 Sussex Street, Ottawa.

Q. There has been a school teacher boarding with me since Sept. 1945. I have given her much of my tinned fruit, but she never seems to have any canning sugar coupons. She is leaving in June. Am I entitled to any of her canning sugar coupons?

A. No....sorry, it is unlawful for anyone to take canning sugar coupons from a ration book, unless permission is granted by the bookholder.

Q. I rent a three roomed flat and would like to know if I am within my rights in taking a lady to board with me. Could the landlady raise the rent?

A. As you occupy shared accommodation there is no Board regulation which permits taking in another person. This is a matter which would have to be settled between yourself and the landlady.

Q. I have served 64 meals to transient labor on my farm. How many sugar and butter coupons can I obtain?

A. For this number of meals you would be allowed two sugar coupons, two butter coupons and four meat coupons.

Q. I have eaten at the same place for the past five years. About three weeks ago I noticed the price of certain meals had been raised 5c. Are prices allowed to change like this?

A. Restaurants are not allowed to increase their prices for meals unless permission has been obtained from the Services Administration of the Prices Board. As you have given us the name and address of the restaurant where prices have been raised we will turn your letter over to our investigation department.

Brig. Smith, R.M.C. Commandant, Describes Campaign in Italy And Deeds of Canadian Troops

"A remarkable feat of strategy was the campaign conducted by Sir Harold Alexander, now Governor-General of Canada, in Italy", said Brig. J. D. B. Smith, C.B.E., D.S.O., Commandant of Royal Military College at Kingston, in speaking to the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon held at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday. Brig. Smith gave a concise and interesting review of the strategy used and the execution of that strategy, that pushed the Germans out of Italy. He also ascribed great praise to the 1st Canadian Division for cracking the famed Hitler line and making it possible to drive on Rome. He illustrated his talk with maps of the territory covered by the Allied troops. He was introduced by Charlie Cawker and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Bill Stovin.

Meeting to be Held

A meeting of the Kiwanis Fresh Air Camp committee will be held at Roblin Lake on May 7th, when important business will be transacted and preparations made to put the grounds in shape for the reception of the children who will visit the camp this summer. Archie Harris is chairman of the committee. Jack McVeigh announced that Kiwanians and their wives and girl friends will gather at the Trianon on Thursday night to entertain the cast of "Pack Up Your Troubles", the Kiwanis vehicle now being shown at the Collegiate. There will be dancing and refreshments will be served at midnight. He also announced that next week's luncheon will be held at Kiwanis Centre and there discussions will take place as to the best use of the centre in the post-war era. The members will be privileged to freely express their views on the matter and fill out a questionnaire that will be available.

Fertile Plains at Foggia

Jack White requested that the members get out and put over the current show. Brig. Smith explained the topography of the country explaining that Italy was sixty miles wide at its narrowest point and that some mountains were 8,100 feet high and that they went from a plain to a plain in a distance of sixty miles. He showed there were fertile plains near Foggia and quaint rivers, which were dry till May and then became raging torrents until the end of September.

He started to describe the campaign in Italy at Ortona in December of 1943 stating that the battles were very grim with the 1st Canadian Division distinguishing themselves on this battleground. He stated Mark Clark landed at Anzio in January 22, 1944 and the purpose of the landing was to draw Germans from the main push. "This was a very bloody battle", said the speaker, "because the Boche launched many counter-attacks and lost 40,000 dead and 2,000 prisoners in this area. We were told that we must take Cassino and the monastery that sat on the hill, 1,600 feet up. The New Zealanders made the first storming of this fortress and the Boche was well dug in and at one time 1,400 tons of ammunition was dropped on one square mile of territory."

Went in Without Support

"The troops finally went into Cassino without artillery support because the town was a complete mass of rubble", continued Brig. Smith. The line had to be held and the Germans could not pull out any reinforcements from the Russian front and we knew that the best way to hold was attack. Here is where the strategy of Sir Harold Alexander came in. He thinned out the troops from Ortona to Cassino and deceived the Boche that the line was strongly held. He replaced his troops and when the push came the centre of the drive was at Cassino and it was given to the Canadians to punch a hole through the Hitler line which they did on May 15." Mark Clark at the same time drove from his bridgehead at Anzio and soon the road was opened to Rome. The talk was most interesting as some in the audience had taken part in the famous drive.

In conclusion he stated that the Italian campaign would rank with the great battles of the war and would have been a marvellous drive had not attention been diverted to the Western Front.

What This Dog Didn't Do

Burbank, Calif., May 1 — (AP) — The defence of Tony, the cocker spaniel, on a neighbor's charge of barking, rests. Fourteen of his neighborhood friends pointed out in a petition that Tony neither drinks, smokes nor swears and "we have never known him to utter a word of slanderous gossip about anyone in the neighborhood, patronize the black market, cuss anyone out on the phone, tout anyone on a phony pony, complain about over taxation or try to evade same." Tony went free.

BIRDS DELAYED BY COLD

St. Thomas, May 1 — (CP) — Local bird-watchers say the backward weather is delaying the usual spring arrivals of birds from warmer winter climes. Farmers who have been accustomed to putting cattle in pasture on may Day probably will have to wait for some weeks as there was little grass and clover growth this month.

Premier Garson Cannot Agree Provinces Have Priority In Field of Direct Taxation

Ottawa, May 1 (CP) — Premier Stuart Garson of Manitoba told the Dominion-Provincial conference he could not agree with Ontario and Quebec that the provinces have a priority in the field of direct taxation.

Resuming a speech he began Monday, Mr. Garson said the Ontario and Quebec claim of provincial priority in the field of direct taxaton was "contradicted by history," was "wholly incorrect in law" and was "unsound in economics."

The Manitoba premier said he was anxious to clear up the "fallacy" of provincial rights in the direct taxation.

"Suppose for example that Manitoba or any other province similarly situated taking this categorical statement at its face value, thinks that if we fail to reach an agreement the provinces still have an easy way out of its difficulties, that way being simply to make use of its priority in the direct tax fields," said Mr. Garson.

"If this priority really exists all that the provinces would need to do would be to insist politely that the Dominion repeal its direct tax legislation so that the provinces could step in with direct tax increases equal to the rates repealed by the Dominion, and the job would be done.

"If we think that this is what will happen if we fail to reach an agreement, we shall certainly delude ourselves. The test of whether the provinces have priority is whether we can successfully attack the federal direct tax laws in the court, upon the ground that they are beyond the powers of the Dominion to enact. Even those who say that the provinces have priority, know that this is impossible.

"Not only is there neither historical nor legal support for this proposition, but when the Dominion as a matter of custom or courtesy refrained from imposing heavy direct taxes and depended on sales taxes and the like the result was most unsatisfactory to all concerned. We produced a tax structure which was the exact reverse of what it should be. Our taxes fell to a disproportionate extent on consumption and sales and thereby tended to reduce living standards production and employment."

As a result of such a policy, recovery from the depression was retarded.

Mr. Garson said he could not agree that provinces would lose their fiscal autonomy by giving up personal income, corporation and inheritance tax rights.

ANDREW MERKEL OF 'CP' RETIRING

As Cub Reporter Covered Marconi's First Commercial Wireless Message

Halifax, May 1 (CP)—Andrew D. Merkel, Atlantic superintendent of The Canadian Press since 1919, retired today after 39 years as a newspaperman in the Maritime Provinces.

With The Canadian Press since its formation in 1917, he made CP Halifax an internationally-known news source in the days of pioneer Trans-Atlantic flights.

As a cub reporter on the old Sydney Record, he covered the story of Marconi's transmission of the first commercial wireless message. Two years afterward he recorded the first airplane flight in the British Empire when he watched J. A. D. McCurdy take off from the ice of Nova Scotia's Bras D'Or Lakes.

In later years he organized coverage of the Moose River mine disaster of 1936 and the international fishermen's races off Halifax.

He was head of the bureau here during six years of war when in most stories Halifax was known only as "an east coast Canadian port."

He contributed greatly to the advancement of The Canadian Press, particularly in the discovery and development of young newspapermen.

The son of an Anglican Minister, Rev. A. Deb. Merkel, he was born in Upper New York State 61 years ago and came to Nova Scotia when his father took charge of a parish in Digby.

Upon his retirement he will return to the scene of his boyhood where he has bought 300 acres of land at Lower Granville, N.S., near Champlain's first habitation.

In addition to his newspaper work, Mr. Merkel has written two volumes of poetry, "The Order of Good Cheer," about the first French settlers in Nova Scotia, and "Tallahassee," a story of Halifax during the days of the United States civil war.

Head Vital Position

According to the prosecution, May held a vital position in the nuclear research team sent to Canada in 1943.

He was said to have served on two committees which gave him access "to secret reports and the latest information on the production of uranium" although he was not working directly on the atomic bomb.

The "enemy" referred to in the charge against May was not specified. The prosecution said it might be any "potential enemy."

Attorney-General Sir Hartley Shawcross who was acting as prosecutor in the only case in Britain so far to parallel the Ottawa trial in connection with the disclosure of secret information to a foreign power, mentioned the progress of British-Canadian-American research into atomic energy and added:

Admonished by Judge

"There are some who rightly or wrongly believe that these discoveries should be shared among all nations of the world. What is not right is that an individual should so far set himself above the laws of his country as to communicate information which his government, in agreement with other governments concerned, had felt must at present be maintained as secret."

Sir Hartley told Mr. Justice Oliver who was presiding that May's was "the case of a man who, having been some years in the employment of the British Crown in connection with researches into atomic energy, thought it right to communicate with some persons whose identity he has refused to divulge, information as to the progress made in these researches and some specimens discovered in the course of the researches."

May Looked Stunned

May looked stunned as Mr. Justice Oliver imposed the sentence after saying he refused to accept the view that May had given the information regarding atomic energy to an unidentified foreign agent because he felt that such action was right.

Mr. Justice Oliver said he found that May had acted "not as an honorable but as a dishonorable man" and it appeared that May had taken money. The judge asked how May could have "the crass conceit" to set himself up above the authority of the British Crown which employed him at the time of his offence.

Defence Counsel Gerald Gardiner who followed the prosecutor argued that medical doctors take the view that if they discover anything of benefit to mankind they are under obligation to see that it is used for the benefit of mankind and not for that of one race of people.

Mr. Gardiner said that when May found out that international control of atomic energy was proposed, he ceased giving information.

Refused to Disclose Names

At his appearance in police court in March, the prosecution mentioned that May had refused to disclose the name or nationality of persons who had received the information from him.

The studious, fair-haired May had taken a position as a reader in the physics and science department of King's College last September on his return from Canada. As a junior to professors in the department, his duties involved lecturing in physics subjects similar to those taught university undergraduates in Canadian universities. His lectures were described by students as "interesting but not terribly brilliant."

May worked in Montreal under Prof. J. D. Cockroft, who now is head of a British atomic energy plant which is to be constructed near Didcot in Berkshire, England. May was in Canada approximately four years.

CITIZENSHIP BILL

While Mr. Fleming carried a large part of the Progressive Conservative criticism of the bill there was also objection taken by John Diefenbaker —(PC-Lake Centre) and by Jean Lesage (L-Montmagny-L'Islet) who criticized some of the provisions referring to preference for British subjects. Jean Francois Pouliot (Ind. L-Temiscouata) asked for a clarified definition of a British subject.

Mr. Fleming, in introducing his amendment was expressing criticism of the bill which already had been shown by other members of his party at earlier considerations of the measure. He said that under present legislation a British subject coming to Canada was entitled to call himself a citizen after one year. He also was entitled to such rights as the franchise and the holding of senior civil service positions. On the question of whether a British subject was entitled to call himself a citizen Mr. Fleming and Mr. Martin disagreed.

Mr. Fleming told the House that while he favored reducing the qualification period for a British citizen to one year he still would not oppose the deportation of a British citizen should he prove insane, unable to support himself, or otherwise violate the immigration act within the five-year period now provided.

Community or Junior Colleges Required in 23 Ontario Centres, Including Belleville, Says Brief

At Least Three More Universities in Ontario Recommended

Toronto, May 1 —(CP)— Provision of at least three more universities and of community (or junior) colleges in 23 Ontario towns and cities was recommended Tuesday in a brief on higher education presented to the royal commission on education by Edin C. Guillet of Toronto.

"The five chief universities of Ontario — at Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton and London — cannot possibly serve the population adequately," the brief stated. "At least three more universities, complete in all faculties, are needed to provide facilities for higher education now largely or entirely lacking.

"The Ottawa region requires a complete English-speaking university and the need can be met by enlargement and extension of Carleton College. Northern Ontario, with no higher education facilities whatever, must be provided with a university and Sudbury or North Bay would appear to be the logical site. The third new university can be provided at Windsor by greatly enlarging and extending the facilities of Assumption College, at present affiliated with the University of Western Ontario.

"A new conception of university extension is a natural corollary of the new education. Each state university — Toronto, Western Ontario, Queen's, and the new ones in Ottawa, Northern Ontario and Windsor—must have have a radio station in almost continual operation . . . What is needed is a balanced program of education and enjoyment, each university being responsible for the diffusion of culture in a 100-mile radius."

Community or junior colleges were "imperatively required in 23 towns and cities. These were Pembroke, Smiths Falls, Cornwall, Brockville, Belleville, Oshawa, Peterborough, Lindsay, Orillia, Barrie, Collingwood, St. Catharines, Welland, Brantford, Stratford, Sarnia, Goderich, Owen Sound, North Bay, Haileybury, Kirkland Lake, Sault Ste. Marie and Port Arthur-Fort William.

A number of other towns presented special problems, among them Fort Frances, Kenora, Kapuskasing, Cochrane, Englehart, Parry Sound and Iroquois Falls. Numerous other places such as Renfrew, Brampton and Guelph could be added if a comprehensive plan of community colleges were adopted.

LOWER SUBSIDY

League President F. McIntyre would not elaborate on an interpretation of "prompt and drastic action." He said he wanted the various league locals to discuss the matter first.

"We don't want to make any threats unless we can back them up," he added.

Commenting on the Toronto meeting Mr. Gardiner said last night in Ottawa that he had not yet had an opportunity to discuss with the cabinet the possibility of increasing the summer subsidy paid to milk producers. He said the Order-in-Council putting summer subsidies into effect had been passed yesterday because the winter subsidies would have expired last night. It did not mean, he said, that there might not be an increase later .

Dr. J. B. Reynolds, past president of the Toronto Local of the League, directed attention to the increase of $5 a ton in basic steel, and declared that farmers are not able to exist between rising costs and what they are allowed to charge for their products.

Ready to Line Up

Ken Betiner, Guelph, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said fruit, vegetable and beef producers were ready to line up with the milk producers in any action that would lead to equitable prices for farm products.

President McIntyre said the producers shipping to Toronto get $2.45 a hundredweight, plus subsidy, on an open quota, and $2.50 plus subsidy on a closed quota. In the rest of the province the price is $2.30, open quota, and $2.35 closed quota.

(On an open quota the dairies have to accept all milk delivered, while on a closed quota they have the right to reject.)

There is no surplus of milk this year, and through lack of milk many producers are reducing their herds or selling out completely, Mr. McIntyre said. Some of the province's best herds are being sold in the United States because of the high prices they command, he added.

MEAT SCARCITY

of meat among butchers by qualified officials of the Prices Board.

Bought Black Market Meat

On the black market resolution Fred Jones of suburban Long Branch declared flatly that he had bought black market meat and so had other butchers. "I did not want to buy it but I had to," he said, "and I'm going to have meat in my store this Saturday. I know where to get it."

John King, president of the Retail Butchers Association, declared that farmers now are getting more than double the price they got for live cattle in 1938. Customer pressure was forcing butchers to buy black market meat.

Mr. Anger appealed to the butchers to "stand together." He said the Prices Board had taken control of 80 carcasses of meat at an abattoir and would follow this supply all the way through, ensuring that only ceiling prices were charged retailers and a fair distribution would be made.

Mr. Anger said: "Tell us who is chiselling and we'll take action. Together you and we are unbeatable. You can get your share of supplies if you work with us."

Bill Hussey, a North Toronto butcher, asked that the Board take control of all cattle and "stop the black market at its source." He said butchers wouldn't complain about illegal prices because they did not want to be stool pigeons.

Mr. Anger agreed to pass on to chairman Donald Gordon of the Prices Board the suggestion that allocation of dressed meat be controlled. "But that won't bring any more supplies," he warned.

ANGLICAN ADVANCE APPEAL

A Call to Action

addressed to All Members of the Church of England in Canada by

THE MOST REVEREND DERWYN T. OWEN, D.D., D.C.L.
Primate of All Canada

NEVER has humanity been in greater need of the Christian Gospel, the inspiration and guidance of Christian teaching and the Christian spirit.

Today we give thanks for a physical victory over forces opposed to every Christian principle. But these forces must still be fought in human minds and hearts. The only new order worth building is a Christian order. At home and abroad, the Christian Church faces a renewed challenge.

That is why the Church of England in Canada is making an appeal to her people for rededication, self-sacrifice and constructive action.

This movement seeks to make Anglicans more truly Christian; to make them conscious of the historic mission of their church; to strengthen the spiritual, educational and social work of the Church at home and abroad; and to provide funds for additional Clergy, for the pension fund, for helping the Mother Church in England and the Churches in Europe in their work of rehabilitation, for providing youth training and leadership, and for assisting all Dioceses in meeting their local needs.

The Appeal was launched in our Churches on the Feast of the Epiphany, Sunday, January 6th, and will continue till May 19th. In its spiritual aspects it has already reached the homes of our people and its programme will continue over years to come.

During the week of May 12th to 19th, every member of the Church of England in Canada, so far as possible, will be visited by a fellow member, authorized to receive contributions to the $4,300,000 fund needed to carry out the financial program.

I bespeak from every one of our members and friends the earnest, prayerful consideration of this urgent need. I am confident that if every individual does his and her part, the combined objective of spiritual enrichment and financial support will be fully achieved.

"Ha, ha, me proud beauty," gurgled Al Von Schacht, Milwaukee mastodon, who tips the beam at well over an eight of a ton and can stretch his gargantuan height to the neighborhood of six feet five inches, when he heard that he was slated to spoil the otherwise untouched features of the Golden Boy of the wrestling ring, dapper William Watson, pride of North York, holder of the British Empire championship and known in mat society as the "Whippah." "I'll wipe that Ozark Ike smile off those patent leather features when I get this overstuffed school boy in the ring here on Friday night. I'll make him yell for his mamma, cause I think his Mammy done tole him not to have anything to do with a big bad man like me." But the Whipper tossed his sleek mane in the air. "And prithee, gentlemen," he smole, "dzooks and egad, what doth the big oaf expect Mrs. Watson's little boy to do. Sing him a Russian lullaby and feed him lollipops?" And that, fans is not what you will see when these two tangle in the main go Friday. The big Milwaukean is a punishing artist who doesn't know his own strength, and he'll probably prove the toughest nut the "Whippah" has been called on to crack in many a moon.

On the same card is the popular Brother Jonathan who will clash with Warren Bockwinkle, and this is definitely a main-go billing. It should be a dilly. The preliminary sees Brother Russel tangle with Jumping Joe Mazzati. Tickets are on sale at Cook's Tobacco Shop. The doors open at eight p.m. and the first bout gets under way at 8.45. And don't forget, it's Daylight Saving Time.

OPEN SEASON DATES FOR FISHING SET

Few Changes Made; Bag Limit for Pike and Pickerel Reduced

Most notable change in the newly published open season dates for fishing under the Games and Fisheries Act is the late opening date for black bass in the St. Lawrence River. Formerly set at June 16 to conform with American regulations, the opening date for catching them now has been set at June 29.

Other changes include a delay in the opening of the pike and pickerel season. Last year fishermen were allowed to keep their catches of these varieties from May 5; now the opening date has been set at May 15. The bag limit for pike has also been cut from eight to six per day, regardless of length, while only six pickerel may be taken per day with a minimum length of 13 inches.

The minimum length of maskinonge must now be 30 inches instead of the former 24.

The open season summary is as follows:

Maskinonge—June 29 to Oct 1.

Speckled trout, brown trout, rainbow trout and Aurora trout—April 19 to Sept. 15.

Lake trout—No closed season in Great Lakes, Georgian Bay, North Channel, Bay of Quinte and St. Lawrence River. Inland waters; south of and including the French and Mattawa rivers and Lake Nipissing, Nov. 1 to Oct. 4 next following.

Yellow pickerel and pike — No closed season in Great Lakes, Georgian Bay, North Channel and their intervening international connecting waters and St. Lawrence River. Inland waters; south of and including the French and Mattawa rivers and Lake Nipissing. Pickerel, May 15 to Dec. 31; pike, May 15 to March 31.

The bag limits are as follows: Black bass, six per day, minimum length 10 inches; maskinonge, two per day, 14 per season, minimum length 30 inches; yellow pickerel, six per day, minimum length, 13 inches; pike, six per day, regardless of length; perch, 25 per day; lake trout, five per day, rainbow, brown, trout, five per day, minimum length seven inches; speckled trout, 20 per day or 10 pounds in weight, minimum length seven inches; crappies, 20 per day.

EARL HARRIST DEFEATS BISONS WITH NO-HITTER

Syracuse Chief Moundsman Chalks Up First No-Hitter Since September, 1945

(By The Canadian Press)

The no-hit, no run fad which hit the major and the Pacific coast baseball circuits has spread to the International League with Earl Harrist, 25-year-old righthander of the pace-setting Syracuse Chiefs, the author of the loop's first classic of 1946.

Harrist yesterday held Buffalo Bisons hitless as his mates tallied five runs off Art Houtteman for a 5-0 triumph in the only International League contest of the day.

The six-foot, 170 - pound moundsman almost pitched a perfect game as he walked only two batters and fanned five in chalking up the league's first no-hitter since September 3, 1945, when Crip Polli of Jersey City Giants turned the trick against Newark Bears with an 11-0 epic.

The victory was Harrist's second of the season and he joined a select group of no-hit hurlers in the majors and triple-A minors that include Cleveland's Bobby Feller, who tossed a 1-0 hitless victory over New York Yankees yesterday, and Brooklyn's Ed Head, who set Boston Braves down without a safety April 23.

Harrist, released to the Chiefs March 24 by Cincinnati Reds, broke into organized ball in 1938 with El Dorado of the Cotton States League.

Last year he pitched for Cincinnati and won two and lost 4.

The Chiefs got only eight hits but they bunched them to score singles in the third and fifth innings and three in the sixth. Kermit Wahl and Hank Sauer got two hits apiece with Wahl batting in two markers and scoring another. The victory increased the Chiefs' lead over the runner-up Baltimore Orioles to a half game.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Things are up and coming in Foxboro enterprisin' village slightly to the north of us, in a recreational sense. It appears the boys in that community, not unlike those in other spots in the country are not averse to running their own athletic show, and providing some local facilities for the Joes and Janes at home.

So, the other night a few of the lads got together and after a lengthy pow-wow in which some discussion was held and decisions reached, it was decided by the lads to form an athletic club of their own. And in the true Foxboro spirit, no sooner said than done and the outcome was the formation of a sports organization.

But the lads went farther than that. They plan to have their own softball diamond, (reports have it that the "Foxes" have a smart mushball aggregation in the making) a horseshoe pitch for those gents of sundry ages, and ladies too, who revel in the summer delights of barnyard golf, and if things pan out according to plan, which they no doubt will, don't be surprised to see the Foxboro lads and lassies, caverting about a tennis court of their own some of these balmy summer afternoons and evenings.

The meeting, so we are informed, was a very enthusiastic one, and a large number of the villagers of all ages turned out to assist in teeing off the new proposition. Furthermore, the community as a whole has gone on record of being behind the venture solidly, and that is all that is necessary to put any civic project on a solid basis.

And with such energetic young fellows like Ralph Campbell, installed as president, Gordon Elder as vice and "Tip" Tummon, watchdog of the organization's purse-strings, at the head of things, the new recreation and athletic club should go over the top with several bangs.

The Eastern Ontario Golden Gloves Elimination Boxing Tournament will be held in the Armouries in Brockville on May 24-25 according to info received from down east. Scores of entries are expected ranging from 65-pound striplings to heavyweights, from this city to the Quebec border, including Ottawa. Previous tourneys were held in Bytown and the Victoria Day and May 25 classics will be the first affairs of its kind held in a smaller centre.

Local leather-pushers are agog over the news and it is expected that at least four promising boys from this city will participate in the tournament.

Something besides the grass is springing to life in golfing circles up around the Bay of Quinte Country Club way. It appears that the golfing bug has bitten several newcomers to the game, especially the youth of the city and new memberships this year will reach an all-time high, if the club public relations chap is correct. A number of veterans, including a few dubs have been out aswinging on the greens and fairways, and a lot of winter-locked joints are being shaken loose via the swing-and-walk treatment.

Charley Pittuti, the new pro has been using a lot of excess energy and muscle getting the greens in shape and 'tis claimed they look better now than they have in the past three years. Official opening of the club is scheduled for sometime during the middle of May, but beginners can start taking lessons around the first of the month. Looks like a big season for the cow-pasture pool addicts.

Dit Clapper, National Hockey League star and coach of the Boston Bruins, who will while away his leisure winter hours purveying sports equipment to Peterborough and district customers, will step out of character here on May 6. He will exchange his Bruins sweater for a neat civvy suit, mount the podium in the Masonic Temple and give forth words of wisdom to the up-and-coming brotherhood of young city business men who operate under the aegis of the Junior Board of Trade. Just what will be the subject of the Clapper discourse is not known as yet, but if Dit gives with a few personal experiences gathered during his long and eventful career in the N. H. L., it should be well worth the price of a dinner ticket.

There seems to be an air of veiled secrecy regarding the personnel of some of the teams entered in the Belleville City Baseball League. Managers are trotting around looking very wise and if questioned, assume an innocent look and don't-know-nuthin air. In fact some of the master-minds have an idea they know more about rival squads personnel than they do their own, for they shoot out verbal feelers as to what's cooking in enemy camps, then when told 'no soap' proceed to come forth with Dame Rumor's latest editions.

In fact some of the Four-Corners Happy Chandlers have it that the Stewart Warner entry is packed tighter than a well-known across-the-border cigarette and nothing short of a few of the Dimaggios will be seen caverting with Lefty Whitman's squad this summer. The Latta scouts, the "Happys" say, have not been idle and "don't be surprised if you see a few of the Mexican League castoffs, romping over the lush fields of Latta under the Empsonian guidance."

Frederick Von Schacht, who comes from the city in Wisconsin that made a famous brew famous, a 257 pounder on the hoof and a gent who can toss an elephant over his shoulder with ease, will be in the opposite corner to dashing Whipper Billy Watson, darling of North York, Toronto, and the boby-sox brigade in all hamlets where he has performed, at the Hume Arena here Friday night. The Milwaukee Mastodon, a scowling product of the pachyderm fraternity, has met the best of 'em and sent them down the dark dismal alley of defeat. His sole ambition is to change the Adonis-like features of Watson into something resembling a Notre Dame gargoyle, and that, it must be admitted, will be a nifty task of face lifting. Brother Jonathan, Mormon Mauler, who is rapidly gaining popularity here will meet Warren Bockwinkle in the semi-go and Brother Russel will joust with Jumping Joe Mazzati.

SEASONAL SHORTAGE

Toronto, April 30 (CP) — A seasonal shortage of oranges in Southern Ontario is expected to end tomorrow with the arrival of new shipments, wholesale fruit dealers today reported. The dealers said the new stock will go on sale at prices two to five cents higher, depending on size and grade, than prevailed during the winter.

The price rise comes in part from a price boost permitted by the United States Office of Price Administration, they said. Summer prices go into effect in both Canada and the United States May 1.

Victoria Dominoes One Game Up On Assumption College

Windsor, Ont., May 1 —(CP)— Living up to their reputation of having the deadliest shots in basketball, the Victoria Dominoes rang up a 53-35 victory over Windsor's Assumption College here last night in the first game of the best-of-five Canadian Senior "A" championship series. The score was 20-15 at half-time.

Before a capacity crowd of 2,200 fans the Western champions came bounding from behind a 9-3 first quarter deficit to go one up for the second game of the series here Thursday night. Both teams seemed a trifle off their game, with passes going all over the court and comparatively few basket shots going home.

Standout star for the Victorians was forward Norm Baker who rattled in six baskets and completed two foul shots for a total of 14 points. Also in a stellar role was Henry (Hank) Rowe, who came off a sickbed yesterday and played a sparkling game, firing four baskets and three fouls for 11 points.

Starry Gino Sovran, Assumption's sharpshooting forward, stood out for the losers with 14 points, made up from six field goals and two foul shots made good.

Freddy Thomas, Negro forward star who paced the Assumption attack during the regular season, opened the game with a pivot shot from close in under the basket. From then on the first quarter was all Assumption, with three counters by Sovran and another by Tommy White. Chuck and Art Chapman scored for Victoria.

Assumption clung to their lead until the midway point of the second quarter, when Dominoes started to roll in high gear, and in a few minutes Dominoes were out in front 14-11, a lead they never relinquished.

Vancouver, May 1—(CP)—For a while it didn't look like they'd make it, but the pucksters somehow managed to put the hockey season in mothballs before May set in.

Doubtless eastern fans were disappointed with the way the junior and senior divisions wound up, but with the exception of Vancouver, it's a good wager that few were sorry to see the end of ice hostilities for this season.

What the coast fans would like to have seen was a North America amateur senior series between their Vancouver Canucks, U. S. amateur champions, and Allan Cup winners, Calgary Stampeders.

The Canadian kings felt they had enough with 50 games, and while Canucks were still raring to go after coming through 75 tilts, it was not because they were not tired.

The team apparently felt it had missed a chance at the coveted Canadian laurels because of the Pacific Coast League playoffs.

In addition, the boys resented the feeling in prairie circles that they wouldn't have much of a chance against the Stamps.

Charmed, I'm Sure!

Both the Allan Cup and Memorial Cup series were good examples of superstition in sport.

Among numerous supposedly lucky manoeuvres, Winnipeg Monarchs pinned their main hopes on Betsy, the li'l elephant. It took them seven games to prove that if Betsy were facing east on the ice surface Monarchs would win the junior crown.

Then of course there were Hamilton Tigers' dirty sweaters. But their charms apparently gave out before the Calgary Stampeder series.

On the other hand, maybe the crystal gazers can see something meaningful in the names of the sleeping cars used by Calgary and Hamilton.

Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamin notes that in the first three game won by the Stampeders, the west erners rode in the sleeping ca "Naughton."

Tigers meanwhile rode "Nightingale". On their way the fourth game at Saskatoon th cars were switched, Tigers rod in Naughton," and scored thei only victory of the series.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 975
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Take it from me, Cookie. To properly learn this blooming game of bridge, don't try to see how many rules you can learn. Acquire a few sound basic guides. The fewer the better at the start.

Understand the few rules you believe in. Know them confidently. After that, each new step appears easier. From there on your bridge seems to improve almost of its own accord.

There are billions of different hands to lead from. One brief rule can handle them adequately. Providing, of course, you really and truly understand it fully.

The rule is: (1) Leads follow the order in tops, longies, shorts; (2) don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

If you are typical, doubts in your mind are hopping all over the place. Pop goes your quizzer with a thought like this: "Where do I find in that rule the time to lead a trump?"

Oh boy, oh boy. When I tell you the answer to that one, expect your funny bone to do a jig Armed with that knowledge, your chest will stick out a foot the next time you enter a bridge game.

♥K 8 3
♦K J 4
♣A 6 3 2

Your opening lead in this case is the trump seven. I'll tell you the reason in my next. You will marvel at the simplicity of it. You will like its efficiency. You will agree with its purpose.

After that, let Supercilious Smirk so much as start to say: "You shouldna led trumps." Or let Jinny Jabberpuss so much as open her yap to say: "You shoulda led a club."

A broad grin will spread over your puss. You will be saying to yourself: "Have I been letting these saps throw the book at me all these years?"

Any rule that you know is worth two that you blow.

Rumors Feller Lost His Speed Ball Stilled by No-hitter Thrown Against N. Y. Yankees

Works Out of Turn With Only Three Days' Rest; He Wins 1-0

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Bobby Feller's no-hit, no-run job against New York Yankees yesterday should still once and for all the springtime rumors that Rapid Robert had lost his fast one.

"My fast ball was my best pitch all the way," Feller said in the clubhouse after the game, "but I also used a lot of curves and sliders. I believe I had better stuff than when I pitched my other no-hitter against the White Sox in the 1940 opener."

Feller was amused and slightly peeved about reports he was "slipping" so he picked the big town and the slugging Yankees for his premium effort, working out of turn with only three days' rest to prove his point.

Just as he said months ago in Clearwater, Fla., Feller is after Hal Newhouser's strikeout championship this season. He now has 39 victims in four games, counting the 11 he whiffed in yesterday's 1-0 Cleveland victory over New York. His season record is 2-2 but the two games he lost were a 3-2 decision to Detroit in 10 innings and a 4-2 "toughie" to Detroit and his other victory also was a shutout.

Feller Walked Five

Feller walked five in chucking his second no-hitter, becoming one of the select group of 11 who have done the trick in the history of the majors. Two hurlers, Lawrence Corcoran of Chicago Cubs and Cy Young of Boston (both leagues) have three to their credit but even that mark is not out of Feller's reach.

It was the second such performance in a week as Ed Head, erstwhile Montreal Royal now playing for Brooklyn, had throttled Boston without a safety last Tuesday.

Feller's sterling job overshadowed a fine effort by Joe Dobson of Boston Red Sox who handed Detroit's Hal Newhouser his first setback, 4-0. Dobson allowed three hits in racking up his third straight decision.

Winning Performance

Ray Scarborough turned in a winning performance for Washington, outpointed Ed Lopat of Chicago, 3-2.

Philadelphia Athletics outscrambled St. Louis Browns, 12-8, in a wild affair in which eight pitchers saw action.

Chicago Cubs knocked Brooklyn Dodgers out of the National League lead, walking in a run in the 11th inning to take a 2-1 verdict.

Although rain and wet grounds forced postponement of their game with New York, the idle St. Louis Cardinals took over first place by a half-game. A Cincinnati-Boston series opener also was washed out.

Pittsburgh broke out with three runs in the eighth inning to win 4-1 over Philadelphia Phillies.

IKE WILLIAMS DEFENDS TITLE

Los Angeles, May 1 — (AP) — Ike Williams of Trenton, N. J., National Boxing Association lightweight champion, successfully defended his title last night by scoring a technical knockout over challenger Enrique Bolanos of Durango, Mexico, in two minutes 32 seconds of the eighth round of their scheduled 15-round bout.

The champion, at 134½ pounds, put Bolanos down four times during the fight.

Bolanos, 133½ pounds, started fast, piling up a slight point lead in the first two rounds, but Williams scored him for nine-count knockdowns in the fourth and fifth.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

The controlled transfer of Canadian players to British and European leagues will be one of the matters the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will consider at its annual meeting at Vancouver. Hanson Dowell of Milleton, N.S. and President of the C.A.H.A., said at Winnipeg last night. He said he expected a tremendous increase in the demand for Canadian players and Scotland already had requested 60. English league demands were still unsettled. It was learned England had been unable to send a delegate to the meeting and Secretary George S. Dudley of Midland, Ont., said he doubted if Russia would attend.

Standings were but slightly changed last night as the 43rd international six-day bike race at Chicago's coliseum neared the 48-hour mark. The only change occurred when the team of Torchy Peden of Victoria, B.C., and Jerry Rodman picked up two laps to move from third place to a tie for second with Bill Jacoby and Yacky Yaccino at 613 points.

Youthful Aloysius (Tod) Sloan, dynamic spark plug of the defeated St. Michael's College Memorial Cup finalists, signed a contract yesterday with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. Major Conn Smythe said the signing was the first step in formation of a colorful kid line but did not indicate who the others on the line would be.

The Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, rule-making body for all British golfers, decided last night to retain the small-sized ball for at least three more years instead of the American pellet. Both weigh the same.

Handsome Rippey moved to the front with other favorites for Saturday's running of the Kentucky Derby by splashing his way to a neck decision yesterday in the one-mile derby trial at Louisville, Ky., over the highly-touted Spy Song.

In the semi-final Jimmy Rizzo, 135½, of Hamilton, won an eight round decision over Teddy Swain, 127½, of Toronto. Rizzo's weight advantage was too much for the sharp-punching local boy.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 1 — (AP) — The transportation boys of the music world now offer "The Stanley Steamer."

The Steamer is featured as a song in M.G.M.'s musical version of "Ah Wilderness," and its authors are eminently qualified for the subject. The music man, portly Harry Warren, also composed "Shuffle Off to Buffalo," "Chattanooga Choo Choo" and "Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe." The words man, bouncy Ralph Blane, penned "The Trolley Song" and the forthcoming "Love on a Greyhound Bus."

Their song plugging doesn't end there. They extol the merits of the Steamer like a couple of used car salesmen.

"Why, you couldn't keep steam on for four minutes or you'd hit 120 miles per hour," said Warren. "And economical — all you need is a little gasoline and some steam."

The boys have just about covered the transportation situation, but there's always the helicopter.

If at first you don't succeed, keep on trying. That apparently is the philosophy of Rita Hayworth for she says she will get married again. Orson Welles was husband No. 2.

"Certainly I'm going to marry again," she says.

Who is the lucky man?

"I don't know," she said blankly. Pressed for details on what kind of a man he would be, she said.

"I haven't the slightest idea," she remarked. "I want it to be a surprise."

Rita said she also wanted a few more children. I asked if she didn't say once that she wanted 18.

"Oh no," she laughed, "that was Orson's idea."

Kinsmen Club Hears Wilson Woodside

Members of the local Kinsmen Club at their regular meeting Monday evening heard Wilson Woodside, CBC commentator, as he spoke to the Belleville service club regarding his experiences while attending the United Nations Security Council held in New York. Earlier in the day Mr. Woodside addressed the local Rotary Club, his talk being fully covered in another part of this edition.

Attracted in all probability by the speaker scheduled to speak, members of the club turned out in numbers to the meeting which was presided over by President Newt Wilbur. Very little business was conducted at the meeting with members hearing a brief discussion regarding their forthcoming club tag day. Jack Fenn, talented young local cornet virtuoso, provided entertainment at the meeting as he was heard in several numbers.

Study Ruling of P. M. On Liquor Case in Peel

Toronto, May 1 — (CP) — W. B. Common, solicitor for the Ontario Attorney-General's Department, said Tuesday he wished to study the judgment of Magistrate Kenneth Langdon, who ruled at Brampton Monday that provisions of the Liquor Control Act of Ontario apply in Peel County where the Canada Temperance Act is in force, before making any comment.

Magistrate Langdon convicted a man of having liquor illegally under the Liquor Control Act. The C.T.A., which is in force in Peel, Perth, Huron and Manitoulin, prohibits sale or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquor.

I'LL WAIT FOR YOU

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 14

"On the contrary," he said seriously, "I've a lot of very swell illusions about you, Edwina. You're the first real friend of your sex I've ever had. I value my friendships with men, men like Dick, for instance, but the friendship of a girl, of you, has been one of the most stimulating things that's ever happened to me. We've had fun. We've been honest. We've been wholesome. I don't care what you've done or what any one has said or is saying about you. I know you. I might have played at being in love with you and made love to you, but I thought we had something much better. Again, forgive me. I knew you liked me but I thought I was sort of time-killer for you during your summer at home."

A time-killer! Merciful heaven!

He went on, concerned and serious, "I thought we were pretty sophisticated people, Edwina. If I've done or said anything to make you believe I've thought of you as anything more than a swell friend, I'm sorry. That's a thin 'out' for a man, isn't it? Just to say he's sorry. I didn't know, I swear I didn't know that you were in love with me."

She clutched at a straw. "Don't you ever intend to marry?" She walked away from him then and with her back to him she said, "I guess I'm not sophisticated. Love makes sophistication drop from you like an old, ragged garment. I've thought of us, the kind of wife I'd like to be to you, the life we could have together. I've thought that our companionship was the finest foundation possible."

"I—I went mad for a time, did mad, crazy things, because I was young and hurt and defiant and rich, and because I thought I could get away with it. I never want to go back to that sort of thing. I'm heartily sick of it." This part of it was true, she thought, so true.... "I'm behaving badly and this is very embarrassing to you, Norman. I leave you nothing to say except you're sorry you can't be in love with me."

"I wish I were. I wish I were. Marriage? I don't know. When the summer is over, maybe before it's over, I'm going back and take up where I left off. To me marriage has always been like the proverbial pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, something wonderful to hope for and win."

He went to her and put his hands on her shoulders. "Edwina, you flatter me more than I deserve. You make me feel that I don't recognize the pot of gold when it's being offered to me. Some people don't know when I'm serious and when I'm kidding. I've never been more serious in my life than I am now."

"You've said all the nice things. Thanks. And now, if you don't mind, I'd like to be alone."

"Sure you'd like to be alone?"

"Quite sure."

"I don't like to leave you feeling low like this."

She gave a low, husky chuckle. "I always fight things out best alone. I'm that sort of person. Please...."

"If you say so...."

She heard his cushioned footsteps as he left her and knew when he paused that he was glancing back at her. Then she heard him go out and presently the purr of the motor.

She had failed. Failed! The plots and schemes, the pretenses were for nothing and it seemed to Edwina that she stood, not in a quiet, beautiful room, but with wreckage and ruin and shame and defeat. What an unholy mess she had made of her life, she who had had everything! She had failed with Alan, with her father and Norman, and it seemed to her, too, that the house she had cherished above all else had become a sepulchre, a place of broken dreams and broken loves and broken lives....

And all at once she knew what she must do. It was the last thing left to do. Her face drawn, her eyes tired and vacant, Edwina glanced around the room, thinking that she would never see it like this again. To the remarkable likeness of Patrick Burke, his blue eyes twinkling, his round cheeks glowing with health and vigor, she said, "Forgive me, but I can't see ahead of me any more, Dad. And I haven't slept for so long, really slept, that I want to go to sleep and not wake up again. Don't mind too much! Please don't mind too much because I'm going to take the life you gave me and because I'm going to destroy the things you loved because I can't bear for any one else to have them...."

She would not wait. She would not plan. To wait and plan would mean more nights of sleeplessness and more self-scrutiny and accusations. No, now! The countryside slept and Sam and Mary, the caretakers who lived in the cottage over the hill, would know nothing until morning. She gave only brief thought to them, knowing that her father had provided for them as long as they lived. And there was no one else....

Her mouth twisted. Of the thousands of people she had met, there was no one who would be intimately concerned or even very sorry. They would say, "Wasn't it dreadful what happened to Edwina Burke?" and forget it quite soon. On second thought she knew that Norman, who was the best friend she had ever had, would be disturbed for a time....and also Amy....What would Alan think?

No notes of farewell, no apologies, she thought, walking slowly to the teakwood table and picking up a silver cigarette lighter. When the flames sprang to life, she watched it a moment, glanced about her again, wondering where to begin, and when her eyes fell on the rich green draperies between the drawing room and the hall, she advanced toward them, the flame flickering as her body moved.

She watched, with the fascination of one charmed, the flames eating upward....

Edwina was still standing there a rigid figure in white, when Norman came back, entering the house by way of the door that opened out to the terrace. For a second he stopped still, his eyes disbelieving what he saw, and then, his brain clearing, he ran to her, thrust her aside and with a quick, mighty jerk tore down the flaming draperies and smothered them with a small scatter rug.

Edwina, standing where he had pushed her, was trembling violently when he went to her.

"Edwina, why did you do it? Not because if me! You didn't want to burn down the house because of me! Then why did you do it?"

"Why did you come back? Oh, why did you come back? Why didn't you let me go through with it? You've just postponed it. I'll do it again. I am going through with it!"

"Not if I stop you." Speaking more gently, he said "You're coming home with me. You don't know what you're doing, Edwina. You're terribly upset. I came back because I was uneasy about you. I had a premonition that something was wrong. It's been a mad sort of night. Come home with me. We'll talk it out or not, as you wish."

"What's the use?" she shook her dark hair loose. "Oh, why did you come back? I don't want to talk it out. I don't want anything. I'm tired of talking and waiting and planning. If you hadn't come back, the whole horrible business would have been over in a few hours. Can't you understand that I want it over? I'm not going with you."

"You're going, if I have to carry you."

He took her hand and pulled her, and outside she walked unaided to his car. Afraid that she would jump from the car as he drove quickly home, he held her hand firmly until he stopped before the stone house.

Going in, she was conscious of the comfort of the masculine living room with the pine panelled walls, and as one either blind or drunk she felt her way to the low green divan and fell upon it. Closing her eyes, she saw the flames devouring the green draperies and when she opened them, Norman was standing over her with brandy in a glass.

"Thanks, but you're wasting your time," she said, the brandy stinging her throat. Norman pulled a footstool close to the divan, sat down and leaned forward as she continued, "I'm not in love with you. Never have been. I want you to know that first. I wanted to marry you for your money, Norman, because you're the only man I know with money enough to—to save the house. I'm broke. I haven't had any money for a year."

"You poor kid. Why didn't you tell me? You know I'd have let you have money, Edwina!"

"Borrow? That's all I've done. Borrow and sell my clothes and my jewelry. The house was next. I couldn't meet the next tax bill and the fire insurance has lapsed. Don't you see— I couldn't bear for any one else to have it?" As she pushed back her hair, she smiled faintly. "You're a funny guy, darling. I tell you I've been lying and scheming to get your money and you aren't even angry...."

He smiled back, chuckling. "You scared me out of it. No, I'm not angry and you weren't lying and scheming all the time. You were enjoying yourself as much as I was. That's true, isn't it?"

"You're the best friend I've ever had—you and Amy. I used to think I had a lot of friends, that I was the most popular girl in the world. But I've really only two, you and Amy. It's no use, Norman. I've worn out every desire and reason to live. I've made a mess of everything and I'm so tired I want to die so I can sleep."

"You're going to take a nice long normal sleep. When I went for the brandy, I called Miss Durfee. She sprang awake like an alarm clock. I asked her to come out to your place and spend what's left of the night. She said she'd come and she didn't ask any questions."

"She knows. She's the only person who does, except you now. I told her I was going to marry you for your money." She had told Carol that she was going to marry Norman, she thought.

He got up and went to look for cigarettes. Edwina took hers with a trembling hand. Standing beside the fireplace with one arm resting on the stone mantelpiece, he smoked thoughtfully a few moments before he spoke.

"You haven't worn out every desire and reason to live, Edwina. You've simply lost your grip temporarily. I'm not going to be a male Pollyanna and make the blue birds sing for you. You're too smart, too much of a realist for that.

"You feel tired and finished because you've lived too fast. You're twenty-three and you've packed more living, more excitement into those years than most women do in a lifetime. Stop to think... Most girls your age are just coming out of college or been out a year or so.

"And the house! Good lord, can't you see that you've been selfish about it? The books belong in the Newton Public Library and the valuable pieces of furniture and pictures belong in the museum here. Give them where they'll be enjoyed by other people! Don't hoard them! That's your answer, Edwina. Then sell the house, clean up your debts and start all over again, free and young and healthy."

"What can stop you? It's a swell setup. There's a challenge to earning your living that you don't get in anything else. Can't your pride take it? Don't you want any one to know you're broke? Giving away the fine things in this house would be one of the finest things you could do. People would stop thinking of you as a spoiled, reckless glamour girl and start thinking of you as a generous young woman who made it possible for them to read fine books and see beautiful furniture and pictures. Take your choice...."

Little Benny's Note Book

I'm not genrelly suppose to go out after supper on account of the night air and doing my homewerk and having to go to bed and different things, and last night pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and I said, Hay pop, how long can I go out for if I promise to come in exactly when you say?

That's a fair question and deserves a fair answer, pop said. It's not a bad evening and you're not a bad boy and you may have the freedom of the streets for precisely half an hour. It's now 7 forty five and I expect you back at exactly 8 fifteen, he said.

Making me feel lucky, and I went out and I was the only guy out there, and I thought Heck, where's all the fellows, this is a heck of a note.

And I thought, Maybe they all think nobody else is aloud out so they're just staying in of their own free will.

So I started out to walk up and down the block whisseling, and nobody still came out. Proving I was probably really the only one that was aloud out, so I rang Puds Simkins bell and Shorty Judge's bell just to make sure, and they both told me they had to stay in for different reasons, and I thought, Heck, this is starting to get monotoniss.

Which it was, besides being kind of chilly to make it werse, and I asked some man what time it was and he said 5 minutes to 8, and I thought, Good night I've only been out 10 minutes, I've got 20 minutes to waist.

And I went and sat on our front steps till I got a cold sensation through my pants, and then I rang Sid Hunt's bell and Glasses Magee's bell, and they wasn't aloud out either, so I asked another man what time it was and he said just 8 o'clock on the dot, and I thought, Well heck, I still got 15 minutes and darn if I'm going in before I have to.

And I sat down on our front steps again and then I asked another man and it was only 5 more minutes, and I thought, Heck, the heck with it, I'm going in.

Which I did, proving when you're in doubt there's no place like home.

DISTRIBUTE FINGERLINGS

Toronto, May 1 — (CP)—Distribution of more than 1,000,000 speckled trout fingerlings has started in Ontario streams and lakes, the fish culture branch of the Ontario Department of Fish and Game announced Monday, and the figure is expected to exceed 3,000,000 before the end of the summer. The initial millian, the department said, is coming from government-operated pools used for speckled trout and bass. At this time of year the trout are taken out to be planted and are replaced with bass.

BASEBALL #26 . . . CATCHING POSITIONS

SIGNAL CROUCH
To give pitcher signals crouch low with knees well bent, glove shielding hand. Feet should be comfortably spread, balance steady.

CATCHING STANCE
After signal's given, raise body to position illustrated. Feet comfortably apart, knees and elbows bent, body erect, lean forward.

THROWING POSITION
As ball comes, get body behind it. Don't reach to side with arms alone. After every ball is caught take up "ready-to-throw" position.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 1. (CP)—The industrial share index dropped $1.60, the golds were down .48 and the base metals .08 at midday and the Western Oils had a gain of .23. The turnover was 1,273,000 shares for the first three hours, due chiefly to activity in some of the cheaper mining issues.

Denison Nickel was a leader in the action, trading close to 400,000 shares on a price advance of 11 cents to 34.

Ford A was sold actively for a loss of around 2 points. The liquor, senior oil and steel groups posted more losses than gains.

HAS TWO EXPERIENCES

London, May 1 — (CP)—Lord Inverchapel, British Ambassador-designate to Washington, said last night he had been arrested twice. Addressing a Pilgrims' dinner in honor of the retiring United States Ambassador John G. Winant, the former Sir Archibald Clark Kerr said his first arrest took place at the age of eight for hitting a policeman with a missile. The second arrest occurred years later, when he was charged with selling a flash-light, "without a peddler's licence."

JAP SAYS HE THOUGHT JAPAN WON WAR;

Hilo, Hawaii, May 1 — (AP)— A 51-year-old Japanese and his wife were being questioned by police yesterday why they flew the Japanese flag over their home Monday on Emperor Hirohito's birthday. Police quoted the man as saying he thought Japan had won the war, that Hirohito had granted the Allies a benevolent peace, and newspaper accounts of Japan's surrender were just so much propaganda.

Furniture Movers Swamped With Orders Despite the Fact Housing Situation is Critical

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sure there's a housing shortage, but all across the country today it's moving day, the first of May, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific furniture movers are swamped with orders. Not as many as they used to have, but plenty of them.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows the housing situation is critical everywhere. But people are moving just the same, from one house to another or from the city to the country for the summer months.

"Where they get their places is the $64 question," said an official of one Toronto moving concern.

Truckers in the Toronto area said moving day this year would find them just as busy as ever, perhaps busier. Most of them are booked solid for the rest of the week and have enough orders to keep them going for weeks ahead.

One mover explained it this way: "When one fellow moves, another takes his house, and that leaves a third house for another family. I've seen as many as 10 moves in sequence like that. It's sort of a chain reaction."

A long distance transport man said moving day prospects this year are about the same as last year. This man had several orders for people returning to Toronto from Ottawa where they were employed during the war. Some of the orders were merely to move furniture into storage.

People Going North

One firm whose trucks go to North Bay, Sudbury, Kirkland Lake and Timmins said that business is about as good as last year, and maybe a little better. "People are going north," said this trucker. "Not many are coming this way."

In the Maritimes, Sydney and Truro don't expect much of a moving rush. New Glasgow, N.S., moving men said 150 families want to move but they can't because no other homes are available.

It's at Montreal that May 1 has always been the traditional moving day and in 1930 and 1931 around 60,000 families moved each year. Today there'll be no more than 5,000 or 6,000 families moved.

Largely Re-shuffling

Ottawa's moving is largely a re-shuffling. The Ottawa Branch of the General Mortgage and Housing Corporation has 2,074 applications for houses and apartments on file. Perhaps 200 families will move from one place to another in the capital today.

At Winnipeg transfer companies had hundreds of orders for moving today, families moving into Wartime Housing Ltd., units and others moving on an exchange basis.

Saskatoon reported no houses, no apartments, no one moving. There are no houses for rent at Regina, either. But about 200 Regina families made arrangements to move today in an intricate and worrisome procedure of swapping one place for another.

Fire Destroys Storage House

Used for storage of tools owned by a contracting firm excavating on Church Street for installation of cable by the Bell Telephone, a frame shed on the Collegiate grounds was completely burned by fire shortly after midnight on Saturday. Although a watchman was reported on duty at the time, the fire had gained considerable headway and was out of control when firemen arrived on the scene. Tools contained in the shed were also consumed by the flames.

Two other alarms were answered by the department over the weekend, the first for a grass fire at the rear of Belleville Creameries at noon on Sunday, and the other to 41 South Front Street where Monday morning a bedroom was reported afire. Mattress on the bed was burned, but the fire fortunately was extinguished before it spread to other furniture or caught into the walls or ceiling.

Two Canadian Cemeteries Now Completed in Italy

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer))

Rome, May 1 —(CP Cable)— Two fine Canadian cemeteries for the dead of the 1st Canadian Corps have been completed in Italy, except for headstones to replace the present wooden crosses, but elsewhere in Italy the graves of Canadian soldiers bear signs of at least temporary neglect.

Agira cemetery in hilly central Sicily and the Moro River cemetery near Ortona, where the Canadians fought one of their biggest engagements, are well-kept prototypes of other cemeteries now being built by the Canadian War Graves Commission in France, Belgium and Holland.

But the 5th Canadian Armored Division cemetery at Villanova near the banks of the Lamone Canal west of Ravenna is depressing. The graves of more than 225 soldiers there have obviously received no attention since the 1st Canadian Corps left early in 1945.

Parts of the cemetery lie under more than an inch of water, with weeds growing freely not only between the graves but in the aisles between the plots.

There also are Canadian bodies in individual graves and regimental cemeteries along Route 16 leading along the Adriatic coast from Pesaro to Rimini and farther north. On the other hand, those I remember buried in small regimental plots by the roadside along Route 9 running northwest from Rimini to Faenza and Bologna have been removed

So far no Canadian cemeteries have been made in the Gothic Line area south of Rimini or around Ravenna. The Canadians are buried in British cemeteries at Gradara and Coriano Ridge where the 8th Army fought through the Gothic Line.

Ortona takes pride in the appearance of the Moro River cemetery, a constant reminder of her deliverance Dec. 28, 1943. A municipal pilgrimage to the cemetery on the anniversary has become an annual event. Plans to rebuild the damaged chapel of San Donato as a shrine for daily masses have been halted pending word whether Canada desires to do this herself.

Say Man in Anger Removed Sweater And Shirt in Tax Office

Hamilton, May 1 — (CP) — "You've got everything but my shirt; you might as well take that, too."

And with those strong words, an angry customer of the Federal government proceeded to remove his shirt and sweater in the main ground-floor lobby of the John Street South Dominion Public building shortly before 5 o'clock Monday afternoon; flung them to the ground and trampled them underfoot.

According to various employees of the building, that is the scene which was enacted before them and before crowds of last-minute income tax payers (yesterday was the deadline), while women giggled or shrieked at the impromptu strip-tease, depending upon their temperament.

Woman Saw Ghouls Steal Mussolini's Body Says Newspaper

Rome, May 1 (AP)—The newspaper Il Messagero printed a Milan dispatch which purported to be an interview with an unnamed woman who watched ghouls steal the body of Mussolini last week from a pauper's grave.

The woman, whose presence was not explained asserted that "four men of large size" stole the body. Three kept watch while the fourth, wearing a gas mask and large rubber gloves, opened the grave alone "in a manner indicating he certainly was familiar with that macabre profession," she said.

The item said the body was reported hidden in a village near Milan. Mussolini and his mistress, Claretta Petacci, were executed a year ago and buried in unmarked graves in a potter's field.

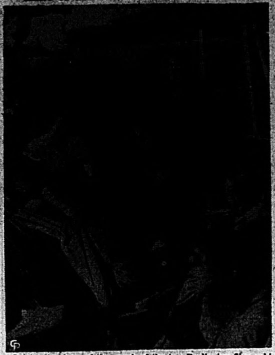
Firemen Rush to Scene on Foot

Simcoe, May 1 — (CP)—Responding to an alarm here Monday firemen decided to leave their trucks behind and run to the scene of the fire — 200 feet away from the fire station — where an oiling truck was burning. The flames were quickly put out.

Assaults Fellow Worker When Cooking Criticized

Cobourg, May 1 — (CP)—Jean Roberga, cook on a car ferry here, took objection to remarks by William Hamilton, a fellow worker, that his culinary abilities weren't quite up to par. Monday Roberga was remanded for sentence when he appeared in police court on a charge of assaulting Hamilton.

HERO OF TRAIN WRECK SHOWN IN ACTION



Outstanding hero of the smash of the two Burlington fliers which claimed 47 lives at Naperville, Ill., was navy man George J. Whitney, M.M./I.C., of Council Bluffs, Iowa, a passenger on one of the wrecked trains. Whitney, a navy veteran of seven years service, rescued 17 persons from the wreckage, before, fatigued by the rescue work, he collapsed and was sent to a naval infirmary in Chicago. Whitney is shown, facing the camera, as he helped remove one of the victims.

GULLS ATTACK LITTLE DOG

Buffalo, N.Y., May 1 — (AP)— The water was cold enough in the barge canal for Tingy, a Pekingese dog, Monday night, but the dive-bombing gulls were too much for him. Rescued by Arthur Greek who commandeered a rowboat after seeing the gulls attacking Tingy, the little dog was revived by artificial respiration and is reported "resting comfortably" in a veterinary hospital.

Son is Born to Swedish Princess

Stockholm, April 30 — (AP) — Princess Sibylla of Sweden gave birth to a son today. He becomes third in direct line of succession to the Swedish throne, after his father, Prince Gustaf Adolf and his grandfather, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf.

Princess Sibylla and Prince Gustaf Adolf also have four daughters.

No Giant Firecrackers But Plenty Of Other Fireworks Available

Nervous city residents can go their peaceful way here on May 24 (Victoria Day) without the fear of giant firecrackers exploding beneath their feet.

Incorrigible youth in the old days (even as you and I) were wont to derive huge enjoyment from the scared faces and general antics of unsuspecting oldsters, as a miniature bomb exploded in the general vicinity.

But those youthful antics will not be apparent this year. Not because modern youth is any different to that of a generation ago, but merely because the giant crackers will not be available.

But, don't be disappointed, children. There will be plenty of Roman candles, pinwheels, small lawn lights, sparkles and other pyrotechnic ammunition which will make plenty of color but little noise. As a matter of fact for the first time in three years, there will be a supply of these for all.

The giant cracker shortage, is due to the fact that the Chinese, experts in the manufacture of the noise-producing biggies, have not made any for the past several years, and the Canadian supply has been depleted.

Manufacture of fireworks was curtailed during the first years of the war, and was cut off entirely three years ago. Stores here report a well-stocked variety of the smaller "crackers" and Junior and Sis as well as the old folks will likely celebrate their first pyrotechnic Victoria Day this year in fitting and illuminative style.

Mayor Orders Street Repairs After Breaking Car Spring

Port Arthur, April 30 — (CP)— Mayor C. W. Cox hit a large hole while driving his automobile on a city street here Sunday and one of the car's springs broke. That was good news for Port Arthur residents who had been complaining about the condition of the streets. Yesterday the mayor ordered that the streets be repaired — at once.

Faint at Wedding

Sussex, Wis., May 1 — (AP)— Spring air filled St. Paul's Lutheran Church during the wedding of Leroy Wandsneider and Lois Kramer, but as Rev. H. A. Crusius tied the nuptial knot, the bridegroom fell to the floor in a faint. Then his brother, Floyd, fainted. Seconds later Lester Van Lare, an attendant, slumped to the floor in a faint. The bride and her attendants aided in reviving the trio.

Remote Chance Seen for Byrnes Plan for Germany

Step Taken by U. S. is Seen As One of Most Important

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, May 2 — (CP Cable) — A diplomatic tangle arising from a Transatlantic telephone call and unexpected difficulties in discussion of the Italian peace treaty featured the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference here yesterday.

Meanwhile, it became evident the proposal made this week by James F. Byrnes, United States Secretary of State, for a four-power treaty aimed at ensuring the disarmament of Germany for 25 years after occupation ends, had only a remote chance of being accepted as it now stands.

Loan to France

The telephone mix-up occurred after Foreign Minister Bidault of France had talked to President Truman in Washington. A source characterized as "an official French source" said Mr. Truman had told M. Bidault prospects were bright for the loan France is seeking from the United States.

The unidentified French source said Mr. Truman and the Foreign Minister had talked over a number of important French-American issues, including the speeding up of United States wheat shipments to France.

Meanwhile, Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross was announcing in Washington that Mr. Truman and M. Bidault had merely exchanged brief greetings without discussing any business or political affairs.

Late last night, a French foreign office spokesman in Paris indicated Mr. Ross was correct. The spokesman said: "The fact is that questions of an American loan and wheat for France were discussed between M. Bidault and Mr. Byrnes in Paris. When M. Bidault spoke to President Truman on the telephone their conversation was purely of a general and non-political character."

Hitch Over Italy

A hitch arose when the Big Four failed to reach an agreement on an Allied inspectorate for Italy. Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain brought up the question and won the support of M. Bidault and Mr. Byrnes. Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia, however, suddenly dissented, stating that for a long time the Soviet Union had doubted the desirability of such Allied control machinery.

The Byrnes proposal for the future of Germany was receiving a dividend reception with Britain supporting the idea, regarded here as one of the most important foreign policy steps Washington has taken in recent years.

France is not sure as yet where she stands on the plan. Russia also is on the fence.

The United States delegation cannot understand what led the Russians to chance their basic attitude. The whole thing may bring cards out on the table in a show-down over Germany, where there has been a great deal of confusion in regard to future policy.

"The Russians do not seem to know yet what they want for Germany," one American official said.

Liverpool First to Have Radar - Controlled Fog - Proof Dock

London, May 2. (Reuters)—Liverpool will have "the first radar-controlled fog-proof dock system in the world," the Daily Herald reported today.

"One man sitting before a chart will be able to control every ship in the eight miles of docks and their approaches; he will be able to see them all," the story said. "The pilot on the bridge may not be able to see the bows of his ship, but all ships will be as clear as television to the man in the office 15 or 20 miles away."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 2 (CP)—Synopsis at 7.30 a.m.: Fresh outbreak of cool dry air has moved southward across northern Ontario and Quebec bringing somewhat lower temperatures to these regions. Western Canada remains under the influence of rather cool air of Pacific origin. Air from the Gulf of Mexico which is causing rain south of Lake Michigan and southwest of Lake Erie has failed to advance appreciably during the last 24 hours. Fair weather prevails over all of Canada with the exception of overcast skies in Eastern Manitoba and extreme northwestern Ontario.

POWER CUT ORDER IN CHICAGO AREA STRIKE SEQUEL

Further Curbs Seen Likely in Reports From Various Centres

By ROBERT K. MOORHEAD

Pittsburgh, May 2. (AP)—Fuel shortages stemming from the 32-day-old strike of 400,000 American Federation of Labor soft coal miners today brought a drastic power curb in one metropolitan area of the United States and threatened food supplies and transportation for other city dwellers.

With stockpiles of coal above the ground fast disappearing, the Illinois Commerce Commission issued a sweeping order affecting commercial customers of nine power companies serving Chicago and some 1,300 other communities in Northern and Central Illinois.

The order, effective immediately, virtually closes down all after-dark activities and limits the supply of electric power to industrial plants to 24 hours a week, with no service Saturdays and Sundays.

The commission also ordered a return to the "brownout" of the February-May, 1945, period, with elimination of sign lighting, window and showcase lighting and interior illumination in excess of minimum requirements. Exempted were establishments essential to public health, safety and protection of property.

Food Supply Threatened

At St. Paul, Minn., Gov. Edward J. They of Minnesota, telegraphed President Truman that "creameries and milk processing plants have only a few days' supply of coal on hand and are unable to obtain necessary replenishments from dealers."

A coal industry spokesman, Starr Killen of St. Paul, said that only about 15 days' supply of coal remain at the head of the lakes, storage point on which Minnesota, the Dakotas and Northern Wisconsin depend.

In New York, Israel Weinstein, acting health commissioner described the city's fuel situation as "very grave", adding that unless there is an indication of resumption of coal mining within a week, he will ask curtailment of subway operations, a lighting dimout and convening of the city's disaster control board.

In the meantime, the coal shortage was cutting deeper into the operations of steel mills, railroads and other coal using industries.

COLLISION INJURES NINE

Renfrew, May 2 —(CP)— Nine persons were injured in a head-on collision Tuesday night between a Canadian Pacific Railway local passenger train and a C.P.R. work train in the centre of Renfrew.

The passenger train, a mixed local was slowing for the station when it struck the work train which had been switched to the main line while en route to the roundhouse. Both engines were damaged and the roadbed was ripped up for a short distance.

Schacht Says Munich Concessions More Than Hitler Expected to Get

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Nuernberg, May 2 — (AP) — Hjalmar Schacht told the international military tribunal today that Britain and France at the Munich conference in 1938 "handed Hitler on a silver platter more concessions than he ever expected to get" and thereby dealt a blow to anti-Nazis in Germany.

On the witness stand in his own defence for the third day, Schacht said that at Munich "Hitler tried only to get autonomy for Germans in Czechoslovakia."

"But the Allies handed him the Sudeten territories, more than he ever expected to get, on a silver platter," he added.

"This success strengthened Hitler's popularity and weakened the chances of removing him."

The former economics minister contended that he had no prior knowledge of Hitler's plans to invade Czechoslovakia, Norway, Denmark, Poland or Russia.

He said an emissary from Gen. Franz Halder, chief of the German General Staff, told him shortly in advance of the plans to violate Belgium. He said he protested in vain.

He testified that he refused repeatedly to co-operate in any of these Nazi conquests.

Schacht, former Reichsbank president and minister of economics, is on trial with 22 other ranking Germans on war crimes charges.

He asserted that after he was removed as president of the Reichsbank in 1939, he devoted his efforts to preventing war. After his dismissal as minister without portfolio in January of 1943, "my only political activity

MILK PRODUCERS WILL CONSIDER SUBSIDY ACTION

Possibility of Milk Ration Suggested In View of Action Of Federal Govt.

Toronto, May 2 —(CP)— Possibility of milk rationing in the autumn was suggested last night by Fenton McIntyre, Brantford, president of the Whole Milk Producers League of Ontario, which has called an emergency meeting for Friday to discuss what action, if any, should be taken in view of the federal government action in reducing the subsidy on milk production.

Federal Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced Tuesday that the winter subsidy of 55 cents a hundredweight would be reduced to 35 cents for the summer and the league directors immediately wired a protest. Last night they had received a reply from Mr. Gardiner which said no change in policy could be made until the federal cabinet is freed from the Dominion-Provincial conference now proceeding at Ottawa.

A meeting of directors of the milk league empowered its executive meeting Friday to take any action it deemed proper.

Mr. McIntyre said in regard to the possibility of milk rationing that it is no longer profitable nor feasible to produce milk, and farmers are selling their dairy herds.

"There is talk of a shut-off," he added, "but the shortage itself being created by this situation will mean an automatic shut-off of the supply."

Milk Strike Threats Voiced.

Members of the league in the past few days have voiced threats of a "milk strike" if the federal government did not take some action.

Ontario Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy said yesterday that price controls on farm produce were "killing the goose that lays the golden eggs" and that low milk prices were driving dairymen to sell their herds to United States buyers. Dairy cattle exports jumped 40 per cent in 1945 and in the first four months of this year are 50 per cent above last year.

Mr. Kennedy explained that "the low price of milk here compared with New York makes it attractive for our breeders to sell their good dairy cattle to that state." He said that New York dairy farmers were getting $4 per 100 pounds for milk going into butter and cheese, whereas in Ontario the producer received $2.90, including subsidy, delivered to the dairy.

Milk producers have met at several Ontario centres including Stratford, Kingston and St. Thomas. Fred McCoy, president of the Kingston Milk Producers Association, said yesterday producers in that area were prepared to strike if necessary to get the subsidy restored. John D. McLennan, president of the Algoma Milk Producers Association, said "it's quite possible we will fall in line with the others if they decide to withhold their milk from the market."

Japs Must Destroy Any Major Combat Vessels Left

Tokyo, May 2 — (AP) — The Japanese government was ordered today to destroy by April 30, 1947, the new major combat vessels of the Imperial Navy which escaped destruction in the war.

Allied headquarters said it expected only eight air craft carriers and cruisers would be available for immediate scrapping under terms of the order.

Propose Atom Research Control Be Placed In Br. Ministry of Supply

London, May 2 —(CP)— The government proposed today to vest absolute control of atomic research, development and use in the Ministry of Supply.

A bill introduced yesterday and published today laid out these jobs for the ministry: "To produce and use atomic energy and carry out research into any matters connected therewith to promote the development of atomic energy; and to control unauthorized production and use of atomic energy."

The bill only vaguely estimated costs, saying "expenditures of the order of £30,000,000 ($133,500,000) can at present be foreseen, but no figure can be given for the amount which may ultimately be involved."

Corporations would be subject to unlimited fines for disclosing information about atomic projects or processes, or for doing unauthorized atomic research. Individuals would be subject to £500 fines or five years in prison for similar offences.

Full control over digging for all minerals needed for atomic uses also would be vested in the ministry. The bill specifically mentioned uranium, thorium, plutonium and neptunium.

A British council of churches commission studying atomic problems asked today that atomic warfare be kept "for one purpose and one purpose alone" — to threaten or even execute reprisals against a country which attempted to use it for aggression.

The commission's report warned against releasing atomic power from government control "since it seems impossible to separate its development for industrial and military purposes."

The report said the ideal of a world community seemed to offer "the one reasonable hope of preserving western civilization."

"It would be disastrous to ignore, and no less disastrous to exaggerate or misunderstand, that the central problem hinges upon relationships between the Anglo-Saxon world and Russia," the report said.

Crown Proceeds With Case Against Carefoot Under Narcotic Drug Act

Following several weeks enlargement, the Crown today proceeded with its case under the Narcotics Drug Act against Ernest M. Carefoot, MacDonald Ave., with the court room in the county building jammed to capacity by interested spectators as proceedings were started before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Special Prosecutor E. E. Follwell read the charge against Mr. Carefoot that he did "unlawfully have in his possession a narcotic drug, to wit, morphine sulphate, authority of licence from the minister." The accused was represented by Arthur Slaght, Toronto solicitor, assisted by Malcolm Robb of this city.

Mr. Carefoot had previously been arraigned on the charge and had pleaded not guilty.

Three witnesses were called by the Crown during the morning session which saw witnesses, with the exception of character witnesses, excluded from the court room at the request of defence counsel. A number of local druggists and one of two Belleville medical men were noticed in the courtroom.

Licence Not Granted

As first witness Dr. Robt. T. Noble, Toronto, registrar-treasurer for the College of Physicians and Surgeons, testified that E. M. Carefoot was not registered as a licensed physician, his application in writing in September, 1945, not being granted. Dr. Noble read in court the reply to Mr. Carefoot indicating that no action would be taken regarding his request for a licence without examination. Dr. Noble had been registrar-treasurer of the College of Physicians and Surgeons since 1937 and Mr. Carefoot's name had not appeared in his records since that date.

Thurlow township clerk, Mr. E. Brown, told the court that Mr. Carefoot was entered in his assessment records for 1946 as being 56 years of age, as a tenant and classified as a gentleman. Mrs. Carefoot was entered as the owner of the property occupied by the Carefoot family.

Constable Keays Testifies

Lengthy cross examination by Mr. Slaght was seen when Provincial Constable Ernest Keays, investigating officer for the local police, came to the stand. Constable Keays told the court he had known Mr. Carefoot since the autumn of 1944 when he had received medical treatment.

He testified that on March 19th when conducting an investigation at the Carefoot residence, he had found several bottles of narcotics, together with a syringe, a hypodermic needle and other instruments and bottles. The narcotics and instruments had been found in a black bag behind a chesterfield chair, according to the witness.

On questioning by the Crown, Constable Keays stated that when treated by Mr. Carefoot in 1944 he had seen the accused take the black bag from behind the ches-

No Payment Asked

Cross examination by defence counsel brought out that no money had been received by Mr. Carefoot for treatment of Constable Keays, and that no payment had been asked.

Defence counsel went to some length to establish the actual proceedings of the police investigation at the Carefoot residence and also sought to establish the proper sequence of examination and listing of articles seized. Special Prosecutor Follwell interjected that the articles had not been seized under search warrant and that none had been required.

In reference to the seized narcotics Constable Keays said, "I saw the offence committed and seized the goods."

Defence pointed out, however, that police had conducted the search on authority of a search warrant in connection with another matter. It was brought out also that the Carefoot residence had been searched in the absence of Mr. Carefoot who had been placed under arrest. Mrs. Carefoot and her son Stanley Carefoot were at the residence and in position to see the articles removed, according to Constable Keays.

On further questioning by defence, Constable Keays admitted he had mentioned that narcotics had been found during the search of the Carefoot residence, indicating that it was a matter of ethics that matters under investigation were not discussed with other officers.

Court then adjourned for noon recess.

Whig-Standard Issues as Usual Despite Damage

Kingston, May 2 —(CP)— The Kingston Whig-Standard published its daily newspaper as usual today despite damage caused by a fire above the composing room which set off a sprinkler system last night. The blaze started from a spark on the roof and no estimate of damage, mostly caused by water, was available immediately.

Output of linotype machines, which produce type for the paper, was decreased through damage caused by the fire and water.

PALESTINE REPORT IS DENOUNCED FROM ARAB LANDS

Signs Seen U. S. May Shy Away From Prospect of Direct Intervention

(By Reuters)

Denunciations of the report of Anglo-American committee of inquiry on Palestine continued to pour in Wednesday from Arab countries, with threats of strife and violence expressed by many Arabic groups.

While Prime Minister Attlee expressed the hope in London that the report would prove a notable contribution to a solution of Palestine problems and of Jews in Europe, immediate Arab rejection of the report culminated in a call for a Palestine-wide Arab protest strike.

Meeting in Jerusalem on an urgent summons from their chairman, Jamal Husseini, the Palestine Arab higher committee decided to call the strike for Friday and cabled neighboring Arab states to declare "sympathy strikes" for the same day.

This decision was the first of "measures to combat the report," which the meeting was meeting to discuss.

Auni Bei Abdul Hadi, leader of the Istiqal (Arabs Independence) party, warned that "Arabs will defend themselves with all the means at their disposal." The recommendation to admit 100,000 Jews was "slur on democracy," he said.

Official Jewish comment in Palestine still is being withheld pending further consideration by the Jewish agency executive which met in Jerusalem Thursday under its president, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, world Zionist leader.

U. S. Attitude

Washington (AP)—The United States shied away today from the prospect of direct intervention in Palestine, apparently counting on the United Nations to assume future responsibility for the vexed Holy Land problem.

Although congressional opinion overwhelmingly favored the proposed migration of 100,000 Jews there, it was plain the lawmakers were against the United States joining Britain in maintaining peace between Arab and Jew.

With Britain unwilling to continue alone after the immigration recommendations of the Anglo-American Palestine committee, the U. N. appeared the only agency capable of stepping into the picture effectively.

The thumbs-down intervention attitude stemmed from these factors:

1. An apparent determination to hold foreign commitments of American troops to minimum security levels.

2. Belief that the problem of suppressing violence in other land should be handled on an international basis.

3. Reluctance to quarter troops in the Near East, a potential trouble spot, for fear the action might be misinterpreted—especially in view of recent insistence by the United States upon withdrawal of Russian forces from nearby Iran.

4. Heavy demands upon available American forces for occupation forces elsewhere.

St. Laurent Asks Provinces to Set Figure on Demands

Compensation for Vacating Income, Corporation Taxes

Ottawa, May 2 (CP)—Justice Minister St. Laurent suggested today that the Dominion-Provincial conference get down to the task of what rental would be paid to the provinces in return for their vacating the income and corporation tax fields.

Addressing the conference as it resumed its public discussions, Mr. St. Laurent said the matter of rentals for minor taxes such as gasoline, amusements and others would be worked out later with the provinces deciding among themselves what a proper rental would be.

He said it was not yet clear how much Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec wanted as compensation for getting out of income and corporation taxes for a three-year period.

If it was clear that agreement could not be reached without a great transfer of funds from the Federal government to the provinces than has already been offered, the Dominion authorities felt they would be better off without an agreement.

If no agreement was reached it would not be because of the uncompromising attitude of anyone.

Wants No Misunderstanding

Mr. St. Laurent said he wished to clear up some misconceptions which appeared to exist with respect to the purposes of the conference.

Before the adjournment yesterday, Premier E. C. Manning had expressed concern over the precarious point the conference had reached and had said that if agreement was not reached the failure would be placed on the doorstep of the Federal government because of its uncompromising attitude on what he believed were minor matters.

Mr. St. Laurent said the conference had not broken down and he hoped it would not break down. If it did break down it would not be due to the uncompromising attitude of anyone on any minor matters.

If no agreement was reached it would be because the governments of the country could not agree on the best way to serve the people of the country. It was not federal or provincial money concerned in the financial proposals before the conference. It was the taxpayer's money.

He believed everyone agreed that the taxpayer wanted a reduction in taxes and wanted it now.

Everyone appeared to recognize the heavy burdens on the federal and provincial governments. Everyone appeared to realize that every effort had to be made to keep the country's economy at a high level.

Turning to the field of succession duties — demanded as a continuing exclusive right in peacetime by his own province of Quebec — Mr. St. Laurent said the Dominion's experience during the war had taught that it was "an effective instrument of aid" in the collection of income taxes.

Should Group Taxes.

It was only fair to each Canadian taxpayer to see that all paid their share of taxes. If it was true that the administration of succession duties helped in getting from all taxpayers their rightful share of income taxes, then he thought it was only right that it should continue to be harnessed together.

(Premier Duplessis of Quebec has agreed to rent the income tax field but not succession duties.)

Mr. St. Laurent said there was no doubt that the effects of the war on the treasuries of the 10 governments of Canada and on the population are not over.

The war had brought additional financial burdens for all 10 governments. This was "an unavoidable consequence of the manner in which this country participated in the war."

There had been reference by Premier George Drew of Ontario to what he called a "joker" in the Dominion proposals. The premier had said that Finance Minister Ilsley's arguments for a tax agreement now would be equally valid at the end of another three years and that the provinces would again be asked to keep out of certain tax fields.

Mr. St. Laurent said he did not think it should be implied that there was bad faith on the part of the Federal Government.

It was true that the provinces in the 1942 tax agreements consented to give up income and corporation taxes for a certain period.

He felt bad faith should not be implied because it now appeared another agreement would be in the interest of the Canadian people.

The Dominion had at all times during the conference tried to meet criticisms of its proposals. It had extended to the limits of possibility the amounts it could afford to allocate out of its revenues.

Still Uninformed

The conference still had to learn, he said, just how much Ontario wanted in the way of compensation for giving up the income and corporation tax fields.

It has been suggested in the co-ordinating committee that the manner in which Mr. Drew's algebraic "X" would be calculated would be explained, possibly over a luncheon table. But no Federal representative had been invited.

Premier Stuart Garson of Manitoba interpolated "it hasn't been explained."

Turning to Mr. Duplessis' proposals, Mr. St. Laurent said they did not show very clearly whether Quebec would remain for the duration of an interim agreement out of the fields of income and corporation taxes and whether it would share the succession duty field.

Mr. St. Laurent said he had been unable to find in either Mr. Duplessis' brief or his oral statement anything precise about what taxation fields he would rent to the Dominion.

He said the Dominion probably didn't show good strategy in making its original proposals on such a definite basis but that these proposals were on the basis of painstaking work by experts and members of the cabinet. The proposals were designed to apply to the trying needs of the time.

But the present stage of the conference had been reached with the Dominion not knowing definitely how close together it was getting with the provinces or which agency was going to collect which taxes.

The issue was left at the end of yesterday's conference in the laps of the federal representatives.

Conflicting Positions

Instead of Finance Minister Ilsley's eagerly-awaited statement of yesterday turning the conference in one direction or another it simply produced a reiteration of provincial viewpoints which, like his own, reaffirmed conflicting positions already enunciated.

Over this morning's session will hang the threat of at least one provincial premier—Maurice Duplessis of Quebec—that he will "go home" if the Dominion fails to budge from the position it has taken.

Premier Drew of Ontario, the other member of the provincial "Big Two", stood just as firmly by the views he outlined Monday but he did not join in Premier Duplessis' last minute threat to walk out.

The Quebec premier later told reporters he would be in his seat when the open sessions, begun Monday, resume, thus spiking any rumors that the first step towards conference dissolution might be taken immediately.

New System of Checking Retail Meat Prices Reported in Use

Toronto, May 2 (CP)—If Toronto retail butchers are selling meat at black market prices, they'll be sorry. That's the word today from the Prices Board which said it had set up a new system of checking retail prices—a system to reveal positive proof of black market sales.

"We cannot let the secret out of the bag yet but butchers will probably know what it's all about by Saturday night," a Prices Board spokesman said. "Every butcher is being checked. If he is selling black market meat, he only thinks he is getting away with it."

With no sign in sight of a break in the price deadlock between producers and packers, the meat scarcity continued, and John King, President of the Toronto Retail Butchers Association, said the black market had the industry "completely in its grasp."

He said the rise in Ontario stockyards sales to nearly 50 per cent of normal was due to increased operations of the black market.

"Cattle prices have gone up even higher," Mr. King stated. "They are now reported to be 25 cents a hundred pounds higher than the point where the packers said they could no longer pay such prices without losing money in selling their products at ceiling prices."

Butchers in rural areas were reported to be buying live cattle from farmers and doing their own slaughtering. They said they could pay the farmers a fair price and still make a profit by selling dressed meat at ceiling prices.

INDIAN WOMAN NEARLY WRECKS JAIL CELL

Nellie Brant, Indian woman of Picton, doesn't take kindly to incarceration after being arrested on a charge of inebriacy.

Apprehended by city police last night, she objected somewhat strenuously to being placed in the women's cell and proceeded to vent her wrath on unsuspecting cell fixtures, police say.

First, she decided on the water treatment, and promptly placed the "plug" in the washbowl and let the water run where it may.

This bringing no surcease to her troubles, she felt that the cell fixtures were merely excess baggage and proceeded to destroy them in no gentle manner. She will face charges of intoxication and damage to property.

Laudatory Comment on Revue Repays Producer for Months of Worry, Labor

Last Performance Will End Arduous Work for Cast—Plenty of Seats Available

Ted E. Schwab, producer and impresario of the Kiwanis smash musical revue hit "Pack Up Your Troubles" closed somewhat tired eyes shortly after eleven o'clock last night, and as a capacity-filled Collegiate Auditorium slowly emptied itself, inwardly reaped part of the reward of months of exacting labor and worry.

Months of monotonous rehearsal, labor and worry; the burden of many days and weeks of "ironing out the wrinkles" which inevitably crop up in theatrical ventures of this nature, the hundreds of odds and ends demanding immediate attention, but small cogs in the machinery of success, lifted their burden from drooping shoulders as another of the delighted crowds, which have been in attendance since the show opened, involuntarily gave Mr. Schwab, through laudatory comment, the accolade of success.

Tonight "Pack Up Your Troubles" ends a tremendously successful four-day run. Tonight, directors, musicians, cast and others will reap the final harvest of success that will crown months of arduous rehearsal, study and work. It should be a fitting climax and another gay feather in the cap of success of the Kiwanis Club and those who assisted in the production of the show.

There are plenty of good seats available for the final performance, show officials announced today, but little delay as possible should be taken if potential patrons desire their choice.

The curtain rises at 8.30 sharp.

The entire cast and personnel of the show will be the guests of the Kiwanis Club at an "Appreciation Party" at the Trianon Ballroom, following the performance.

MARMORA

Agricultural Society Is Reorganized

Marmora.—Marmora Agricultural Society was reorganized at a meeting held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening. Sixty members were needed to organize and 72 names were obtained. Much credit is due to the Junior Farmers for collecting in the Township. Mr. George Bateman, president of the Society, when disorganized three or four years ago, acted as chairman. A letter will be sent to the department of Agriculture to sanction the movement. A meeting will be held on May 9, for the election of officers and other business.

Jeep Displays Versatility In Work on Farm

Rural interest in the Willys Universal jeep as a mobile power unit for general farm work was indicated at the Clifford Reid farm east of Belleville on the Kingston Road, Wednesday afternoon when between three and four hundred farmers and interested city residents turned out to witness a demonstration of the vehicle's versatility.

Evidence of the jeep's tractive power, both on sod and tilled ground, was seen as the versatile power unit handled in turn two twelve-inch plows; double disc, and cultivator, while its ability as stationary power was demonstrated as from its power take-off it supplied the belt power to drive the hammer mill.

Throughout the demonstration, the consensus of farmers seemed to be that the jeep had plenty of power as well as traction for general farm work. The demonstration was arranged by Bonn Motor Sales, district distributor for Willys cars, jeeps and station wagons.

Buchman Presence Challenged

London, May 2 — (Reuters) — Presence in Britain of Dr. Frank Buchman, leader of the moral rearmament movement which grew out of the "Oxford Group" of the '30s, will be challenged in the Commons today by Tom Driberg, labor member. Mr. Driberg said that Dr. Buchman, a United States citizen, "formerly expressed enthusiasm for the work and personalities of the Nazi leaders."

18 Students Held In Demonstration

Alexandria, May 2 — (AP) — Egyptian troops occupied Farouk University today and arrested 18 of the students who have been demonstrating there in protest against published reports that Britain proposed to retain four airdromes in Egypt.

The troops cleared the university after three persons were killed yesterday in a clash between students and police.

The disorder occurred during preliminary negotiations between Egypt and Britain for revision of their 1936 treaty of alliance. Evacuation of British troops from Egypt is a primary Egyptian demand.

(A London broadcast said five students and two policemen were killed and 50 other persons injured.)

A police cordon confined the students to the university grounds to prevent them from forming a procession. Police and students exchanged volleys of stones all afternoon. Hand grenades were reported hurled by the demonstrators, smashing neighboring windows but causing no casualties.

A police lieutenant was shot and killed in the street, a corporal died at a hospital of head wounds suffered in the outbreak, and a workman who was watching the demonstration was killed by gunfire.

In Cairo, Premier Ismail Sidky Pasha described the situation in a communique as "serious." When the students began their demonstrations yesterday the premier denied reports of British demands for the airports.

was devoted to efforts to remove Hitler."

He told of plotting with generals who opposed Hitler and of frequent contacts with "prominent Americans, Britons, Frenchmen and neutrals" aimed at seeking peace. Much of this ground had been covered by a previous witness, Dr. Hans Gisevius, who had identified Schacht as a participant in various plots.

The witness said he incurred the enmity of various leading Germans:

"Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler considered me anti-social ... Hermann Goering had me dismissed from the Prussian State Council as a defeatist . . . (Foreign Minister Joachim) Von Ribbentrop rebuked me for defeatist utterances." He said the Gestapo was put on his trail and his life was endangered.

The defendant said "The only present I ever received from Hitler was a painting for my 60th birthday."

"The painting turned out to be a forgery and was practically worthless," Schacht said. "I sent it back."

STUDENTS' PROTEST

Port Huron, Mich., May 2 — (AP)—Some 2,716 students of Port Huron high school and three junior high schools left their classes Wednesday in protest over the failure of the city's voters to approve a school-building program.

In a special election Tuesday the city's voters rejected, 2,945 to 1,925, a proposal to increase school funds by increasing the 15 mill tax limit. A two-thirds majority was needed for adoption.

European Peacetime Economy Depends On German Restoration

Picton, May 2 — There is reason to believe that the economy of Europe and future peaceful conditions depend upon Germany's restoration to a reasonable level of prosperity, said Capt. Lance Nethery in an address at the Anglican Laymen's Association Monday night. He spoke of the sixty million people in Germany as the most intelligent, and most highly organized people in Europe. Education of Germany to slum conditions will result in the creation of exploring forces, leading to another war, he believed.

Capt. Nethery served with the 30th Corps of the British Army, having duties related to re-establishment of civil government in areas occupied by Allied forces. The speaker said there was small destruction in Brussels, but damage from bombing was very heavy in such cities as Munster where the only habitable building found was the provincial gaol. The speaker said the Germans gave willing co-operation towards establishing normal civil life.

Convicted of stealing a car radio aerial and a car door glass from Stewart Thompson, Burton Phillips, Picton, was ordered to return them and given a year's suspended sentence.

IN MEMORIAM

TURNER — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Pte. Robert Turner, who died of wounds received in Italy, two years ago, May 2nd, 1944.

We are thinking of you today, dear Bob,
Thinking of you and the past,
Picturing you in our memory,
Just as we saw you last.
We do not need a special day
To bring you to our mind—
The days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all the world were ours
We would gladly give it and more,
To see the face of our dear Bob
Come smiling through the door.

—Sadly missed by Mother, Brothers, Sisters and nephew, Bobbie.

Wellington School Bd. Resigns When By-law Defeated

Picton, May 2. — Defeat of a by-law which would have authorized the borrowing of $50,000 in debentures for school purposes, has led to the resignation of the entire Trustee Board of Wellington Consolidated School. With but sixty per cent of the qualified electors exercising their franchise, the by-law was defeated by a majority of 25 votes.

'Each member of the Board, collectively and individually, endorsed the addition and they feel that they no longer represent the wishes of the majority of the ratepayers and therefore cannot conscientiously carry on their duties as trustees', read a statement issued yesterday.

The by-law would have provided for the sale of debentures for the purpose of building and equipping an addition to Wellington Consolidated School to permit the teaching of shop work, home economics and agriculture in the Continuation School, and to provide extra class room for subjects now being taught.

While the resignation of one member of the Board is effective at once, the other four have consented to act until May 31st, in the general interest of the school.

By resolution of the Board, a special meeting of the ratepayers has been called for next Wednesday night to receive nominations or elect a new Board of trustees.

U. S. Occupation Troops Rations Cut 300 Calories

Frankfurt, May 2 —(AP)— Rations for United States occupation troops in Europe will be reduced 300 calories a day May 5, U. S. Army Headquarters announced. Unofficial estimates placed the present ration at 3,600 calories daily.

The reduction means a daily caloric cut equivalent to two milk chocolate bars, it was said. To make the reduction, mess halls will serve less sugar, bread, flour, cereals, noodles, lard and bacon.

The present ration for displaced personnel in the theatre is 2,000 calories daily. For German civilians the ration is 1,275.

Seek to Save Natural Charm of New Forest

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lyndhurst, England (CP) — War and peace have both left scars on the 90,000-acre New Forest, southwest Hampshire beauty spot, and a three-man committee is trying to find ways of adjusting it to modern requirements without sacrificing natural charm.

Men and vehicles massed for the Normandy invasion in the New Forest, named for William the Conqueror's 11th century afforestation schemes. Bulldozers scraped out five big airdromes for the R.A.F. Tanks tumbled through the woodland, overflow from Salisbury Plain that proved too small for armored training.

Big areas still are under military requisition. The encroachment of war persists alongside earlier spoliation by unregulated private and public building to meet changed peace conditions—automobiles racing through to the coast, overhead wires, gas stations, billboards and unplanned village expansion.

Chairman of the new committee, appointed by the forestry commissioners who regulate all woodland development in England and Wales, is Harold Baker, former warden of Winchester College. Members are George W. Lucas of the Forestry Commission, and G. Langley-Taylor, vice-chairman of the Council for the Preservation of Rural England.

King's Hunting Ground

Old hunting-ground of the West Saxon kings, New Forest lies west of Southampton, between The Solent, Southampton Water and the River Avon. Administered as a National Park, it contains picturesque villages such as Bramshaw, Bank and Minstead. One-quarter of its area is under cultivation by private owners and tennants, the remainder being open woodland, bog and heath.

A sharp inrush of population has occurred in recent years, with growth of the New Forest settlements three or four times the national average. New zoning regulations have been recommended and will be studied by Mr. Baker's committee.

The plan is to set up four types of development zones:

1. Village areas, with building subject to regulation so as to avoid unsightly construction;
2. Rural areas, with building restricted to construction for rural purposes, such as farm cottages and barns;
3. Temporary rural areas, the zoning subject to revision at 10-year periods;
4. Amenity areas, with no building permitted.

But the committee will also study the New Forest's share in government plans for increasing Britain's timber and agricultural production. Its commission is to "investigate the state and condition of the New Forest" and recommend measures "for adjusting the Forest to modern requirements."

Minor Changes In Prices And Contents of Cans

Ottawa, May 2 — (CP)—Minor price adjustments and standardization of contents of canned chicken dinners and other meat products were announced Wednesday by the Prices Board.

The announcement said the new order would generally raise the quality of canned chicken dinners by requiring that they must contain "not less than two ounces of non-comminuted boneless poultry meat per 16-ounce container" and no heart, liver or gizzard could be included.

Minor price increases were permitted for canned chicken dinners and stews "to allow for increased poultry costs" resulting in possible additions of one cent on 16-ounce cans of stew and up to six cents on 16-ounce cans of dinners.

Maximum price ceilings also were set for canned meat or poultry sandwich spreads, stews, boiled dinners, hashes, and chili con carne.

ELEPHANT CARE

The hides of circus elephants are oiled regularly to keep them from cracking.

Three Youths Each Sentenced To Ten Years

Toronto, May 2 — (CP)—Three youths were sentenced Wednesday to 10 years each in penitentiary when convicted by Judge James Parker of a $12,000 armed robbery of a Royal Bank of Canada branch in adjoining Leaside last Sept. 28.

The three are John Liddle of Montreal, and Walter Mishko and Victor Wazny, both of Toronto.

In evidence the Crown introduced a conversation which police said was recorded as the 3 men talked in their cell. Police quoted Mishko as saying, "The traffic cop should have been shot," and Wazny replying, "Well, what do you think I was trying to do."

"Do you think this rap can be beaten?" police quoted Mishko as asking Wazny. Later, police said Mishko said "If they have a line-up I'm afraid the teller will identify me."

Would Cull Misfits From Universities

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canberra (CP)— A. M. Blain, who represents Australia's sub-tropical Northern Territory in the House of Representatives, told the House he thought misguided intellectuals are driving the country "cuckoo."

Mr. Blain was talking about increased federal social services and government assistance to university students which, he said, "is not as beneficial as it seems."

Sometimes, he held, assistance went to students, without the ability to finish their courses, who promptly turned to "isms."

"Many students leave universities expecting white-collar jobs when they should have entered a useful trade at 15 years of age. Many go through a year at the university and haven't the ability to go on.

'If we are not going to cull them before it is too late," he went on, "we are going to have a population of democratic idealists who are a menace.

"They are the misguided intellectuals who are the trouble — not the working unionists who are the salt of the earth. Vacancies for university students should be reserved for those with ability."

"I know what it's like to struggle for an education," Mr. Blain concluded. 'I didn't see a boot until I was 10, or the sea until I was 14. I went through the mill."

Missing Girl Found In Critical State From Bullet Wound

Waltham, Que., May 2 — (CP)—In critical condition with a bullet wound in her forehead, 21-year-old Pansy (Pat) Spinks, was found Wednesday in the dense bush near this Pontiac county village by search parties who had been scouring the area since she was reported missing last Sunday. An emergency operation will be performed.

Armed with a revolver the girl left the farm where she had been staying apparently intending to shoot small game. A sister, Lillian, said this was her favorite weekend pastime. When she failed to return, a search was instituted and volunteers gathered from Fort Coulonge, Que., and other district centres to aid in the four-day hunt.

Toronto to Continue To Call July 1st 'Dominion Day'

Toronto, May 2—(CP)—Mayor Robert Saunders told City Control Board yesterday that despite action of the federal government to change the name to "Canada Day," Toronto will continue to call July 1 "Dominion Day." He was speaking on a resolution from the council of North Bay, Ont., asking support in a petition to Ottawa to retain the old name.

"Any action we take would be of no effect now since the act has passed parliament," Mr. Saunders said.

British Loan Bill May Be Delayed By Opposition

Washington, May 2 —(AP)— An impending attack that could sweep the $3,750,000,000 British loan out of the Senate without a vote on the bill itself took form Wednesday.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.-Colo.) told a reporter that within the next day or two he will move a point of order, a parliamentary manoeuvre which if sustained would bring Senate consideration of the loan to an immediate halt.

Senator Johnson said he will contend that the bill under which Congress would approve the financial arrangements made with Britain is a revenue-raising measure and, under the Constitution, must be approved by the House of Representatives before the Senate can act.

The Johnson attack appeared likely to upset the administration schedule aimed at getting a final vote on the bill this week. It has been under discussion since April 15.

Meanwhile, Senator E. W. McFarland, (Dem.-Ariz.) reported that his amendment to force Britain to turn over title to some military bases and commercial rights on others in exchange for the loan is gaining strength.

Senator R. B. Russell (Dem.-Ga.) announced he will support the McFarland proposal.

Senator W. F. Knowland (Rep.-Calif.) added to the growing list of amendments with a proposal to bar any funds to Britain until the "general level of production in the United States equals or exceeds domestic consumption."

In the Spring

Spring clean-up which every municipality calls for after the long spell of autumn, winter and early spring has many advantages to support it. There is such a thing as fire hazard lying in the collection of debris, old rags, papers, chips, dust and such like. Everyone knows how easy it is to make certain parts of the house as the attic, or a shed or basement or cupboard the receptacle of a great amount of litter which can well harbor something inflammable which may create a real risk of fire.

It is at this time of the year that it is most easy, feasible and advantageous to get rid of that which might create a hazard either of fire and accidental injury to inmates of a house. In the spring the human is feeling the invigorating spirit of growth and life in everything in nature that knows life and hence it is no difficult task to undertake the job of getting rid of every bit of rubbish. In this day this is made more easily by the systems of collection for which the citizens pay in their taxes. At no other season is there the same urge. The weather is just right to create the mood. In a few weeks when it becomes warmer the urge to clean up diminishes.

Some persons are fortunate in their thoughtfulness and desire for the sense of orderliness in all things in home and in mind. Many have not that happy possession and are inclined to throw unused and unnecessary articles into a heap which clutters floors of sheds or attics or cellars and so creates a risk to limb at least by tripping.

Where some of the long season's accumulation is of value it can now be sorted and preserved for whatever purpose it is fitted.

With the clean-up of course goes the paint-up. Human habitations need the use of the wash rag and the brush with paint and varnish on it to maintain them as they ought to be maintained.

In the past few years due to scarcity and pre-occupation with the war and its problems and crowding, there has been accumulating a vast amount of this sort of this work of reviving of living quarters. Much can be done at this time when nature inspires one to clean up premises, to get rid of useless collections and to hand over anything that can be salvaged to salvagers by whom it can be put to use.

Building

It is good news that the people of Belleville have in the report of April building permits, the total for which was over $130,000, this amount being spread out over some twenty new residences and for some commercial and industrial construction, which was slightly lower than in some recent months. In all 32 permits for residences have been issued since the first of the year 1946.

New dwelling construction is much in the people's mind at this time here as in every other urban centre in the Dominion or in North America as in other parts of the world. Belleville is like so many hundred of other places. Canadian, United States, British cities and towns feel the need. In the Old World this building program is even more emphasized because of the havoc created by war and the need of new construction. On the Continent of Europe there remains an immense amount of building which will take years to catch up.

In Belleville there is in many parts the evidence of the filling in of vacant spaces, at last being put to use for house building. It used to be that there were many large gaps on these streets, not short streets either, but streets that run across a good section of the city. Now those open spaces have been filling up with homes that add greatly to the attractiveness of the community as a city of homes. At the same time these new or recently new homes assume a good share too of the burden of civic administration costs. Lots that formerly were carried by the owners who had to bear the tax load as best they might without any return now are creating wealth by helping to pay more taxes, and by the contribution which the added residents and families make to the volume of trade and business of the community.

Bird Nesting

"One of the most striking manifestations of instinct in birds is nest-building," says James L. Baillie Jr. of the Royal Ontario Museum. Birds do not have to be taught how to build or where to place their homes. Young birds follow the design adopted by their parents and grandparents although they have never witnessed the actual construction nor attended any courses on nest-architecture.

Look, for instance, at the nest of a Baltimore oriole, as it swings, basket-like, from the outer limb of a big elm, and you may well marvel not only at the intricate construction of the nest, but at the exactness with which it corresponds to all previous nests woven by its species. The site chosen, vegetable-fibre materials used, time of construction, and manner in which it is fastened to the supporting limb are all characteristic of the Baltimore oriole.

Long-billed Marsh wrens attach their globular nests of cat-tails to standing cat-tails in some dense marsh. The tiny entrance-hole is in the side of the nest, whereas orioles' nests are always open at the top. The fact that all marsh wrens place a side door in their homes and all orioles a roof opening does not signify intelligence on the part of the builders, but shows, rather, that their daily routine is controlled by some inherited design. That birds possess any powers of reasoning or any intelligence in the process of nest-building has not been supported by experimental evidence. In their actions, a considerable amount of trial and error may be evident, but the way in which they perform such delicate feats as house-building can quite safely be considered purely instinctive."

Strangers in a Foreign World

With the beginning of summer, forests and fields are alive with furred and feathered creatures. Walking in the woods, the wanderer hears their furtive rustling and feels their quick, bright eyes. A flutter of leaves betrays a presence lurking near; a parting of the grasses tells of fearful, scurrying feet.

They are companionable folk, these people of the woodlands. There is something comforting in their very presence. Their green world is filled with charm and mystery. Coming upon their hidden homes and finding their young tucked away, one feels he has intruded into a precious secret, and only a marauder would tarry to spy or to despoil.

There is, it seems, a kindship between the human and the lesser things of creation. Unconsciously the heart of man goes out to these timid creatures, and he feels perhaps something of the sensitive thought of Emily Dickinson:

> These strangers in a foreign world
> Protection asked of me;
> Befriend them, lest yourself in heaven
> Be found a refugee.

U. K. Papers Still Small

British newspapers, reduced in many cases to a crowded four-page sheet with a small quantity of advertising, are to stay in their brief wartime form for the time being because of the continuing newsprint shortage. Before the war, they consumed about 1,100,000 tons of newsprint annually; by 1943 consumption was down to 20 percent of this figure; and it has risen since then to 27 percent (290,000 tons). The increase since 1943 has gone into larger circulation and not into larger papers. Average consumption of newsprint per head of population fell from 60 lbs. a year in 1938-39 to 11 lbs. in 1944. The present shortage depends mainly on Britain's lack of "hard currency" for purchases of pulp and paper from Sweden and Canada, though to some extent it is due also to the shortage of labor in United Kingdom mills.

ROMAN CIVILIZATION

"Now," said the dentist, with a grin,
Taking the napkin 'neath my chin:
"With that you ought to talk with ease.
Say: 'Roman Civilization' please.

"Say: 'Roman Civilization,' sir!
That is the phrase which I prefer.
It proves my dentures are successes
If patients manage zees and esses."

So, for his patients to rehearse
And practice with, I pen a verse.
Say without fear or trepidation:
Caesar and 'Roman Civilization."

Caesar and "Roman Civilization!"
Salmon and silver salvation!-
If you pass safely this adventure,
Believe me, you've a perfect denture.

Whitehall Notebook

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 2 (CP)—Rt. Hon. Richard Austen Butler, 43, probably third in line of succession to Conservative party leadership, said in a recent interview the British people became tired of the rigid Puritans and threw them out of power and assuredly will do the same thing with inflexible Labor politicians now in office.

This casual, friendly Englishman who was a brilliant Cambridge scholar and has years of experience in trying cabinet offices including that of Minister of Labor in the Churchill "caretaker" government last year, looks on the Labor government tolerantly, certain it will fail. His practical study of British history and participation in British politics for nearly 20 years convinces him the people will reject the over-all controls Labor must impose in following out its policies.

He was of the opinion, too, that the moderate and extremist elements within the Labor party inevitably will come into conflict and split the government, whether it will be five years or 10 before the Conservatives again have the opportunity to form a government he does not know, but in the meantime as his party's director of political education he preaches:

"We believe that no system of politics of economics can function unless personal responsibility be encouraged to the full."

This belief in personal responsibility and in personal freedom of action is acceptable to the British people no matter how they voted in the last election, Mr. Butler says.

He said the ancient privileges of wealth were gone and wealth itself was being levelled out among the people by taxation. He himself is at least well-to-do for he is married to the only daughter of Samuel Courtauld, chairman of the £32,000,000 ($144,000,000) Courtaulds rayon firm, and recently became a director. Some day he hopes to spend a good deal of time in Canada and his ambition is that one of his four children will live in the Dominion.

Mr. Butler said he did not think the Liberal party had any hope of regaining power and the battle for power remained between the Labor and Conservative parties.

Once the principle of property ownership was assailed, "there is no stopping the runaway horse," said Mr. Butler. The small man and his chattels would become as much the target of state ownership as the big man. The prospective struggle was that between those who desired power for power's sake and those who sought to serve under a constitutional democracy.

GOOD "PENNY" TURNS UP

St. Joseph, Mo., May 2—(AP)—Penny, a red cocker spaniel with wanderlust, disappeared for the umpteenth time, and Mrs. S. J. Wegenek sighed and ran another "lost" ad. Penny himself answered the ad half an hour after it appeared. He ambled into the Newspress want ad department, where Miss Barbara Brumbach recognized him from frequent descriptions in the "lost" columns.

INJURED PIGEON WALKS HOME?

Tampa, Fla., May 2 — (AP) — Butch, a racing pigeon, was released March 24 from WayCross, Ga., in a race to Tampa — a distance of 216 miles, but was not among the finishers and owner Marty Hussey considered him lost until yesterday when he turned up in the pigeon loft — exhausted and with a broken right wing. "My opinion is that he literally walked most of the way home from Waycross in the past five weeks," said Hussey.

4 Arrests Made In Bomb And Leaflet Attack

Rome, May 2 (AP)—Interior Minister Giuseppe Romita last night said four persons were arrested for Tuesday night's bomb and leaflet attack against the Rome buildings of Communist and Socialist organizations. The attacks and other disturbances preceded May Day celebrations in Italy.

Police identified two of the four as disabled Italian war veterans, who denied they were Fascists but asserted they "hated Communists."

Meanwhile, search continued for five men who entered the Rome radio's transmitting station Tuesday night held up the staff and interrupted a program to broadcast the Fascist marching song "Giovienezza."

The broadcast interruption was seen as part of an attempt by Fascist die-hards to sabotage left-wing plans for May Day celebrations. The men were armed with rifles and hand grenades. Station employeees said they were on the air three minutes before making a getaway.

The attacks on Communist headquarters and Communist and Socialist party newspapers came later.

Three khaki-clad riders on a speeding motorcycle and sidecar flying the Italian tricolor tossed two grenades at Communists headquarters. Then, before police could be summoned, they roared past the buildings of the Communist newspaper L'Unita and the Socialist paper Avanti. They threw one grenade and fired several pistol shots at each building. But no casualties or damage resulted.

In Rovigno, persons operating at night replaced with the Fascist banned a hammer and sickle flag flying since the recent Socialist municipal elections victory.

Oleomargarine Bill is Discussed By Senators

Ottawa, May 2 —(CP)— A bill to legalize the importation, sale and manufacture of oleomargarine last night won support from two speakers in the Senate and was opposed by three others.

The debate took place on second reading of the bill which was introduced before the Easter recess by Senator W. D. Euler (L-Ontario). The debate was adjourned last night by Senator James Murdock (L-Ontario.)

Supporting the measure were Senator A. K. Hugesson (L-Quebec) and Senator Norman Paterson (L-Ontario). It was opposed by Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative Senate Leader; Senator J. E. Sinclair (L-Prince Edward Island) and Senator Charles Howard (L-Quebec).

Senator Haig said the fundamental issue was whether the current demand for butter would be satisfied by oleomargarine. The dairy industry was a $400,000,000 business which attained record production last year.

Senator Haig said the dairy industry had been the backbone of a large number of Canadian farmers. Passage of the bill would lead to unrest in the farming industry even though the measure was sure to be defeated in the Commons.

Senator Hugessen supporting the bill said prohibition of the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine was a violation of democratic principles. No special interest, no matter how deserving, should receive a monopoly by statute. Such legislation was directly contrary to a free economy and was particularly objectionable when it applied to such a necessity as food.

Senator Sinclair said the whole matter should be considered in the light of the world situation. The only result of passage of the bill would be to open the door to a black market trade in oleomargarine with the United States.

Senator Howard opposed the bill which, he said, would not give any relief to present shortages.

Senator Paterson said he saw no prospect of an improvement in the butter supply; rather, conditions probably would get worse. Everything possible should be done to provide a substitute.

King George's Sends Message To Hong Kong

London, May 2—(Reuters)—The King sent a message to the people of Hong Kong yesterday marking restoration of civil government after a period of military control. The message said:

"I am confident that all of you will play your full part in re-establishing that spirit of tolerance and good will which alone will enable Hong Kong to regain the pride of place which she has occupied in the past, and to achieve that influence for world peace in the future for which her position, as a great international meeting place, makes her so particularly fitted."

SOMETHING OUT OF THIS WORLD

I have raised a family with all their teeth and tonsils in and could fill a book with my experiences (writes Mrs. J. D. S.). Now I have grandchildren and it's still the fad to demand tonsils out after the first glance of a child with a cold etc. Could you tell me how to find a doctor here or in—— that believes as you do and uses your methods. I would be so glad if I could find a doctor that doesn't start that tonsil stuff the first thing.... (J. D. S.)

Before the war I had compiled a fairly useful list of doctors here and there who were skilled in this or that method which I recommend, and so I was able to advise some correspondents where they could find such doctors.

The war brought such changes that my list became useless, and there is no immediate prospect that I can resume that service, much as I would like to, for I know how grateful I would be to find a doctor who could cure me of hernia by office injections, if I were confronted with the question of submitting to radical operation.

You are right, Ma'am, about the propensity of too many doctors to say the tonsils should be removed just because the child has enlarged tonsils at the moment.

For that matter, I question the justification for and the pathology of this routine condemnation of children's tonsils.

It is normal and perhaps advantageous for a child to have large tonsils. Enlargement of tonsils and pharyngeal tonsil (adenoid body) in children is actually a part of the child's natural immunity reaction to cri (kree)—common respiratory infections. If all growing children could enjoy the daily exposure of skin to light that children do enjoy if they get a fair break, the vitamin D they would manufacture under the activation by ultraviolet in daylight, would prevent much tonsil and adenoid enlargement.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Injection for Bursitis

Other than a shot of morphine to relieve the pain what is your best bet for acute subdeltoid bursitis? (E. M., M.D.)

Answer—I believe I'd want an injection of local anesthetic into or around the bursa now and again. Also puncture of the bursa and drainage for relief of tension.

Normal Blood Pressure

What should be the normal blood pressure of a woman 65 years of age?

(Mrs. T. D. W.)

Answer—Leave her blood pressure to the doctor. I'm sorry if this seems inconsiderate, but I believe I am giving you good health advice.

Mast for Dentist

What sort of mask do you recommend for dentists to wear to prevent cri infection?

(E. R., D.M.D.)

Answer—One made of washed non-inflammable X-ray film, as described by Dr. Lewis J. Silvers, pioneer in diathermy extirpation of the tonsils. There is a description of it in "Call it Cri"—for copy of booklet send 25 cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Protects dentist from infection by patient; protects patient from infection by dentist.

Obsession

Milk is very constipating to me, I like it and know I should drink it, but I think I am better off without it and take laxatives.

(P. B.)

Answer—Milk certainly is not "constipating." Better drink your daily pint or 1 1-2 pints at least, and eat enough fruit, greens and vegetables to maintain good digestion. Send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet "The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene."

A Stupid Habit

Please tell us how to overcome chronic constipation. Several members of our family (H. B.)

Answer—Send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Ask in writing, not with clipping for booklet "Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What was Columbus's religion?

The generally accepted opinion is that Christopher Columbus was a Christian.

All evidence points to the conclusion that the discoverer of the New World lived and died a communicant of the Roman Catholic Church.

A few authorities incline toward the belief that Columbus was racially a Jew in whole or in part. If he was of Jewish descent it is not probable that this fact was known in Spain at the time.

His chief patron was known as Isabella the Catholic and she not only encouraged the Inquisition but proscribed the Jews in her kingdom.

Very little is known about the early life of Columbus. He himself appears to have been rather reticent on the subject.

It seems to be quite certain that he was born in Genoa, Italy, and his son Ferdinand wrote his father for a time attended the University of Pavia.

Columbus's father appears to have been a wool-comber or weaver and according to tradition Columbus himself worked with his father at that trade as a youth before he quit his native land to return no more.

Even the year of Columbus's birth is not known for certain. Conjectures range from 1446 to 1451. It is generally supposed that he was born about 1450. Assuming that date to be correct, he was 42 when he discovered the New World in 1492 and 56 when he died in 1506.

His hair was already white at about thirty. The only authentic portrait of Columbus indicates that he had a high forhead, long face and aquiline nose.

'PANEFUL' EXPERIENCE BUT NO LICENCE

Fresno, Calif., May 2 — (AP) — Leonard Gurard, 21, pulled toward the curb on completion of a test for a driver's licence. At this juncture, Guararo started to park — but nervously stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake. The car plunged over the curb and through the plate glass window of an office — that of Ross Dewdney, the driver's examiner. The license application was denied.

SYNOD COMMENDS BALL CLUB

Montreal, May 2 (CP) — A commendation to the Montreal Royals Baseball Club "for taking its stand in not concurring with racial discrimination against Negro members of teams" has been sent to the local International League team by the Synod of the Anglican Diocese of Montreal. A motion that a letter to this effect be sent was passed at a meeting of the Synod yesterday.

Napanee, Ont., May 1 —(CP)— When Mrs. George Alenbrack, Canada's first blind war bride, arrived in Canada three weeks ago she found her husband had built her a neat little bungalow on the outskirts of Napanee. Also in Mrs. Alenbrack's mail was a letter from Dr. James E. Ward, retired eye specialist of St. Petersburg, Fla., who volunteered to come to Canada this summer to operate on her eyes.

Young Women's Guild Hears Talk on Trade Union Women's Auxs.

A comprehensive description of the work of trade unions and of the Women's Auxiliaries was given to the members of the Young Women's Guild, on Monday evening, at the Tabernacle Church parlor. The guest speakers were Mrs. Mabel Mayne, Regional Director of the U.A.W.-C.I.O. Auxiliaries of Canada, and Mrs. Catherine Gelles, International Secretary Treasurer of the Women's Auxiliary U.A.W. C.I.O. Members of the Belleville Women's Auxiliary added to the interest of the meeting with their first hand information in the discussion period.

The worship service, led by Mrs. A. E. Cornish was a meditation on the fact that Jesus Christ is still the supreme Master of life for this and every age; that the Gospel of Christ is still "the Power of God unto Salvation, to every one that believeth."

Miss Josephine Tickell introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Mayne, who in an informal talk, described the work of the Women's Auxiliaries of the U.A.W.-C.I.O. They were set up to help the trade unions in their struggle for better working conditions. There are now eight organizations in Canada, the first one being organized in Oshawa in 1937. The women follow closely governmental decrees in all matters that pertain to human welfare. They try to work with, and through, local city councils and school boards. These Women's Auxiliaries endeavor to educate housewives in the value of trade unions, in the need of better housing, particularly as it is a factor in child delinquency, and in more educational facilities in public and secondary schools for all children.

In speaking of trade unions, Mrs. Mayne stressed the fact that the manufacturers are well organized and that the laborer needs to be organized for his own welfare. She pointed out that the standard of living is raised in industrial centres where there are strong trade unions. Not only do the workers benefit but the whole community is more prosperous.

The fact that wages are frozen by Order in Council while price controls are being removed was severely criticized.

Mrs. Gelles painted a vivid picture of the conditions in Detroit during the sit-down strike in that city. She showed how wages increased from 35 cents to $1.03 an hour in the Bohn Aluminum Plant in one department after the C.I.O. organized there.

A project of the International Union, U.A.W.-C.I.O. is the Health Institute housed in the former home of the late Edsel Ford. This Institute is considered one of the best in the country. Here it was found that 300 workers were suffering from silicosis and preventive measures were then instituted.

Mrs. Gelles showed that though manufacturers are often unfriendly to a union at first, yet when they see that better working conditions induce better production, they are pleased to cooperate.

Mrs. Mayne and Mrs. Gelles were enthusiastic about the interest that the Women's Auxiliaries take in all community projects. One of the notable examples mentioned was the work done by the unit in Detroit, where, last year they collected $250,000 in aid of cancer control and hope to exceed that amount this year. In this connection the audience was asked to give liberally to the present drive. Both speakers graciously answered the many questions asked of them in the discussion period.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. S. D. Scripture tendered the vote of thanks to the two young women for their interesting and informative talks.

Greater Need for Sex Education And Better Presentation of Marital Problems Stressed in Brief

Toronto, May 2 (CP)—Canada's "unintelligent treatment" of sex education is paralleled by "an equally unimaginative presentation (if any at all) of marital problems and divorce," the Royal Commission on Education was told yesterday.

This viewpoint was contained in a brief covering all phases of adult education put forward by Edwin C. Guillet on behalf of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation.

"Child and adult education alone can lessen the necessity for divorce, and education alone can provide the enlightened public opinion that will impel legislation," said the brief. It urged the need for taking adult education out of the hands of purely voluntary organizations and placing it under comprehensive state direction and expansion.

The brief, titled "free education to the limit of ability," dealt with more than 18 separate topics, including crime and punishment, alcoholism and prostitution, sex education and divorce, racial discrimination, an intelligent electorate, adult education in Ontario, education by radio and motion pictures, community centres and rural education.

The obvious need in Ontario, both for industrial and agricultural workers, stated the brief, is a large-scale use of all present school and college buildings for adult education: And subsequently the provision of residential schools and colleges for adults, as in Sweden and several countries.

Refers to Borstal System

Reference was made to Britain's famed Borstal system of segregating youthful offenders and to the Archambault report on Canadian prison conditions. The need for correction, as well as punishment and an intelligent and forceful approach to the whole problem of crime and punishment was stressed. Recent authoritative works on criminology, the brief stated, reveal that crimes against property are largely caused by unequal or inequitable distribution of wealth, by unemployment, by poverty, and by stark need.

Dealing with the subject of public libraries in Ontario, the brief said that approximately 40 per cent of Ontario's population of nearly 4,000,000 are entirely without library facilities. Of the 497 libraries in existence in the Province, only 232 are free and public. Complete revision of the present library act was urged.

The suggestion is made in the brief that the work of adult education be furthered by the use of travelling art galleries, museums, and orchestras. The widespread need for provision of music-appreciation facilities by the state, cannot adequately be met by localized methods, it is pointed out.

Education Needed

"Our unintelligent treatment of sex education is paralleled by an equally unimaginative presentation (if any at all) of marital problems and divorce," the brief goes on, "child and adult education alone can lessen the necessity for divorce, and education alone can provide the enlightened public opinion that will impel legislation."

Touching on racial intolerance, the brief said that a projected meeting of U.N.R.R.A. at Montebello, Que., had to be cancelled because the Director-General of the organization at that time, Herbert Lehman, was a Jew and restrictions were placed on admittance of Jews to the club where the meetings were to have taken place.

The need for community centres to provide meeting-places for citizens, comradeship, a sense of "belonging", centres of amusement, sports, music, drama, arts and crafts, is another topic with which the brief deals. Also included is a compsehensive report on rural education and the part to be played by adult education in this sphere.

Roadsigns on Canadian Route Up Through Rugged Italy Still Mark Course of Advance

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Rome, May 2 — (CP Cable) — The roadsigns which guided Canadian troops to their sectors of the Italian front still mark the Canadian route through the rugged peninsula more than a year after the 1st Canadian Corps pulled out for Northwest Europe and the final stages of the war with Germany.

Old 1st Division signs, faded red patches in their corners, betray the trail in Sicily and southern Italy. West and north of Ortona they give way to the once-familiar Maple Leaf and corps tactical signs with the number 17, while the roads from Ravenna across the Appennines still show the secret lettered boards which led the corps to Pisa and Livorno (Leghorn) for embarkation to join the 1st Canadian Army.

At Taormina in Sicily a six-foot-square masterpiece painted on a rockface points the way to the old mess of Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, then commander of the 1st Canadian Corps. Two hundred years hence it probably will be a carefully-preserved mural.

The 1st Canadian Armored Brigade's route from Rome to Florence via Lake Trasimeno is littered with derelict equipment, Canadian and German, which remains to be hauled away.

Scars of war are evident everywhere. Battle-damaged farmhouses are merely temporarily patched. Some dwellings are ingeniously contrived from ruins. Entire areas of battle-ravaged towns cry aloud for attention.

The 'Park Plaza' hotel opened in Riccione on the Adriatic near Remini by Maj. Forbes Thrasher of Halifax is still an officers' transit hotel.

NEW TRIAL FOR HARRIS

Toronto, May 1 — (CP) — Ontario Court of Appeal today ordered a new trial for Lorne Cecil Harris, 21, previously convicted on a charge of murder in the slaying last Nov. 10 of Mrs. Audrey Lyons, 22, in her home at Ajax, Ont. Harris was sentenced to be hanged May 28.

Mrs. Lyons, wife of an airman stationed in Newfoundland at the time, was found strangled with part of her pyjamas in the bedroom of the cottage in which she lived with her two young children.

New Book Analyzes Economic Problems

Toronto, May 2 —(CP)— Canada is divided economically into seven regions, each with its own economic and political interest, Prof. A. W. Currie says in "Economic Geography of Canada," (MacMillan). Despite the linking of railroads and canals, the maintenance of national unity against the decentralizing tendencies of geography has been an ever-present problem.

Mr. Currie, associate professor of commerce at the University of British Columbia, divided the country into the Acadian-Appalachian region, St. Lawrence lowlands, Prairie region, Cordillera region, Canadian Shield, Mackenzie Valley and Hudson Bay Lowlands and the Tundra.

Of the seven, the St. Lawrence lowlands, covering southern Ontario and the Ottawa and St. Lawrence valleys as far a Quebec City, has by far the most complete and well-rounded economy of any region and consequently tends to favor high protection where for example the Acadian-Appalachian region (the Maritimes, Gaspe and Quebec's eastern townships) desires foreign markets for its potatoes, apples, and newsprint and more trade for its merchant marine and seaports.

The book analyzes physical and climatic features of each region in detail and relates them to the region's productivity. Such details as the latest method of summer fallowing on the prairies and the best way of packing codfish come in for their share of attention as problems of each region are dealt with.

A similar analysis of Newfoundland and Labrador is also included.

Memorial to An Insect

Boonarga, Australia, May 2 — (CP)— This Queensland town cherishes a memorial to an insect. This is the Cactoblastis Memorial Hall built by farmers in 1935 to honor the tiny insects which freed thousands of rich acres from prickly pear in the district.

Prickly pears from North and South America had a stranglehold on 30,000,000 acres of Australian land by 1925 the fast-growing weeds had prospered in the days of large pastoral holdings and small populations in some areas the density of the pear was 800 tons to the acre.

Drew Condemns Subsidy System Proposal by Federal Government

Ottawa, May 2 (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario said yesterday before the Dominion-Provincial conference that the "subsidy system," as proposed by the Federal Government, would lead to the break-down of the Dominion's Federal system.

Rising to speak after Finance Minister Ilsley had indicated the Dominion was standing pat on its proposals, Mr. Drew said he hoped the provincial premiers realized "the veil is off" and that Mr. Ilsley had made a "bald declaration" to the provinces that "we can take it or leave it."

He would do his "utmost" to be restrained in circumstances which did not invite restraint.

There was "danger" in the subsidy system and this had been emphasized many years ago by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had said it was a "completely false principle" that one government should impose taxes and that another government should spend revenue.

In every case in history where the Federal system had broken down it had been broken down under just such a system.

Results Are Clear

Mr. Drew suggested Mr. Ilsley read Hitler's "Mien Kampf". It had advocated the centralization of authority in a central government. Its author now was dead and the results of his policies were clear.

"Federal system after Federal system has broken down because there was too much centralization of authority," he added.

The subsidy system was not a "new deal." It was the "oldest deal" known in the history of the governmental system.

Dependence on money coming from another government placed the dependent government in the position of being a "local paymaster" and meant the death of the Federal system.

Mr. Drew said most of Mr. Ilsley's remarks had been directed at Ontario as though Ontario was the only province opposed to the Federal provinces. However, Quebec, Manitoba and British Columbia had been "quite as emphatic" as Ontario on certain points.

It was wrong to suggest that Ontario had "created differences here." In many respects, the stand of Nova Scotia, for instance, was "precisely the same" as that of Ontario.

Proposals Changed

When it was suggested that the Provinces were sitting at the conference table "as reluctant recipients of benefits," he would point out that the original Dominion proposals for adjustment had been changed in January and again this week.

From these, a figure of $15 per capita as a basic subsidy had emerged. Ontario had suggested an alternative method for arriving at that figure.

The minimum Dominion figure was not $15. That figure was governed by the Provincial populations of 1941 or 1942. Assuming that the agreement was for three years, the per capita subsidy would result in Ontario getting less than $15 and force her to fall back on the minimum basis which would be $58,260,000 on the basis of a 1942 population of 3,844,000 multiplied by 15.

As he saw the Dominion proposals, Ontario's per capita subsidy in 1948 would be $14.50. If, by chance, Ontario's population swelled in three years to 4,400,000 the subsidy would be $13 or less.

That was the reason Ontario had proposed another formula. It did not differ substantially from that of the Dominion except that the $15 would be multiplied by the population of the year before the payment in any case.

That, he felt, was the popular conception in the country of the Dominion plan, but such was not the case.

Mr. Drew said he believed the Ontario formula for working out the Federal subsidy to the Provinces was a frank one which tied the subsidy more closely to population than did the Federal formula. Under the Ontario proposal the subsidy would increase as the population rose.

Ontario Net Arbitrary.

He said that at no time during the conference had Ontario put forward an arbitrary position from which it would not recede. It had been prepared to recede on the condition that there were clear basic principles.

It was easy for demagogues to create a picture of Ontario as a rich, selfish province which was unwilling to lessen its own advantage. That was the oldest device known to demagogues.

Ontario was ready and in fact had insisted on sharing its advantages with other provinces. Ontario had suggested that a national adjustment fund be established to help needy provinces.

He took exception to a remark made yesterday by Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan with reference to the fund. Mr. Douglas had depicted the fund as a "confederation poor-box" from which the poor relatives would draw Christmas presents.

Mr. Drew said Ontario would pay heavily into the fund and would draw no benefit from it. He was ready to leave to the provinces which would benefit the methods of operation of the fund.

Ontario had suggested a figure of $20,000,000 for the fund, but was ready to agree to any amount shown necessary.

The provinces and the Dominion were not seeking largesse, they were seeking a reallocation of taxes. No matter how those taxes were reallocated it would not mean one cent more out of the taxpayers pocket no matter who was the collector.

He suggested that before any province accept the Federal proposals, it study population figures and see what would happen if the Dominion subsidy rather than the Ontario formula was accepted.

Source of Much Revenue

Mr. Drew said it was easy to picture Ontario as the "wealthy" province which was unwilling to co-operate, but there were "certain simple figures" which should be kept in mind.

These were that of the total of $1,500,000,000 in taxes collected throughout Canada last year, 48 per cent was collected "from the people of Ontario."

Premier Garson of Manitoba commented: "Collected in Ontario but not from the people of Ontario."

"Oh, that's the same old argument," retorted Mr. Drew.

Every dollar collected in Ontario had been the result of the brains and brawn of the people of that province.

Quebec and Ontario were the real basis of the Confederation and it was essential that these "wheelhorses not be hamstrung." Together, those two provinces contributed 77 per cent to the $1,500,000,000 collected in taxes while Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia had contributed 85.5 per cent of the total.

This left a contribution of 14.5 per cent for the other six provinces.

Coal Strike Hits Steel Production

New York, May 2 (CP) — Dwindling coal piles sent steel ingot output down 5½ points this week to 68.5 per cent of rated capacity, Iron Age, national metalworking paper, reported.

A much sharper dive was predicted for next week.

The coal stoppage has caused a total loss of 1,000,000 tons in steel ingots, the paper said, and another 750,000 ton loss will probably be added next week.

Steel users are also threatened with curtailment of industrial electrical power as some utilities plan to cut power consumption for manufacturing as much as 50 per cent.

A third effect of the coal stoppage was foreshadowed by reports that coal supplies of some railroads were dangerously low, bringing the possibility of curtailment of freight hauls.

Volume of new steel orders increased during the week as customers filed requests for 1947 tonnage, but few mills will give definite delivery commitments.

Reformatory, Strap For Timmins Youths

Cochrane, May 2 — (CP)—Oscar Rinfrit, 18, and Real Tourangeau, 17, both of Timmins, were yesterday sentenced to serve two years less one day with one year indeterminate in reformatory, with eight strokes of the strap, following convictions on charges of raping a 16-year-old girl here March 9, during a drinking party.

The jury deliberated less than two hours before returning with a verdict against Rinfrit. Attached was a recommendation for mercy. Gregory Evans, representing both accused, thereupon entered a plea of guilty in the charge against Tourangeau. He asked for leniency for both accused in view of their youth and previous good records. Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly, passing sentence, observed that long penitentiary terms would have thrown the two youths in with hardened criminals and would have had an unfortunate effect, insofar as reforming them.

R.C.A.F. to Operate Two Cadet Camps

Toronto, May 2 — (CP)—Summer camps operated by the R.C.A.F. for Ontario Air Cadets will open at Camp Borden and Mountain View July 1, it was announced yesterday.

A full program of air force training and sports is planned for the air cadets during their two-week stay at camp.

Commenting on the announcement, H. L. Garner, general manager of the Peterboro Examiner and chairman of the Ontario provincial committee of the Air Cadets said: "In addition to having contributed in no small way to the prosecution of the war, Air Cadets and Air Cadet training are doing a tremendous piece of work in the development of good citizenship in the youth of today who will be our leaders of tomorrow."

Ontario Plans 2000 Miles Road Improvement

Ottawa, May 2 —(CP)— Plans for improvement of 2,000 miles of highways throughout Ontario now are nearing completion and work on some already has begun, G. H. Doucett, Ontario Highways Minister said last night in an interview.

In Ottawa attending the Dominion-Provincial conference, Mr. Doucett said frost damage to highways had been particularly bad this year and for that reason the maintenance appropriation had been "greatly increased."

Supplies of roadbuilding materials were ample except for steel, "but there's still plenty of good white pine in Western Ontario which can take the place of steel temporarily at least."

MAGISTRATES TO MEET AT MOOSE FACTORY

Toronto, May 2 (CP) — The next convention of the Ontario Magistrates' Association, said Magistrate E. R. Tucker of Cochrane today, will be at Moose Factory, 700 miles north of Toronto.

The Magistrate, attending association meetings in Southern Ontario for 25 years, said "we plan to hold the meeting in the centuries-old fur trading room of the Hudson's Bay Company, an immense room with hand-hewn beams and containing original presses used in baling furs for shipment to England in those early days."

"It has the most interesting background of any community in Ontario."

LOBAIDO GIVEN LONG TERM

Detroit, May 2 (AP)— Frank Lobaido, 29-year-old grocer, yesterday was sentenced to serve from 40 years to life imprisonment on each of two counts of rape and attempted murder of seven-year-old Rosalie Giganti.

The defendant was convicted last week by a jury that deliberated only 11 minutes.

The state charged that Rosalie was raped in the rear of Lobaido's grocery last Jan. 27. She was found, her throat slashed, in a trash can near the store.

SENTENCED TO TWO YEARS

Brockville, May 2 — (CP) — For an attempted armed holdup of the Union Station ticket office here April 20, James Kerr, 19, Montreal, was Wednesday sentenced to two years.

Two Montreal girls, arrested with him at Kingston a short time after the offence here, were convicted of theft of a car. They were Doris Bowles, 19, who was given a year in reformatory, and Constance Kelley, 16, who drew suspended sentence.

Pair of Proven Pre-war Vets May Provide Power to Hoist Philly Teams From Dungeon

Dodgers Regain Top Seat While Red Sox Shellack Detroit 13-1; Yanks Scalp Indians and Avenge Feller No-Hitter

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia's faithful followers, long familiar with the dreary darkness of the dungeon, pinned hopes today on a pair of proven pre-war professionals.

The long-suffering souls, who have seen their two favorite—the Athletics and Phillies— finish in the big league basements 16 times in the last 11 years, feel salvation may come from Sam Chapman and Frank McCormick.

Chapman, back in the A's outfield after four years in the services, has been their big gun. His ninth-inning home run yesterday, good for a 3-2 victory over St. Louis Browns, was his fourth in 14 games this season and his third in the last three playing days. His batting average is .296.

McCormick has played brilliantly at first base for the Phils despite a bothersome back. He made only one hit yesterday—but it was his second home run of the campaign and aided in the Phils' third win in a dozen games this year, an 8-0 shutout over Pittsburgh Pirates. In a dozen games, the Bronx-born Irishman has 15 bingles in 45 times at bat for a .333 batting mark.

Another ex-serviceman, Ike Pearson, pitched the shutout. The 27-year-old righthander held the Bucs to five scattered hits in making his first 1946 start.

Despite the victories, the A's and Phillies still trail in their respective leagues.

Boston Red Sox, off to their finest start in years, virtually skinned Detroit Tigers alive with a 13-1 shellacking that thrilled a paid hometown attendance of 23,371.

Led by Charlie (Red) Ruffing, who registered his 266th mound triumph in his 21st season, New York Yankees rebounded from Tuesday's hitless performance against Bobby Feller and Cleveland to scalp four Indian hurlers for nine hits and a 6-3 victory. It was Ruffing's first 1946 start.

Brooklyn Dodgers climbed back into a first-place National League tie with St. Louis' Cardinals by stopping Chicago Cubs 5-1.

Rain caused postponement of the scheduled Chicago-Washington American League contest as well as the New York Giants-Cardinals and Boston Braves-Cincinnati Reds tilts in the National.

Ryder Cup Golf May Resume In 1947

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

New York, May 2. (AP)—Basing their hopes on British open champion Dick Burton's decision to invade the United States, officials of the Professional Golfers Association expressed confidence today that Ryder Cup Competition would be resumed in 1947 after a lapse of ten years.

P.G.A. President Ed Dudley said he was cabling a request to British Golf professionals asking them to reconsider a previous decision and send a team to the United States to play an American squad next year.

Craig Wood, Ryder Cup captain, said he felt the matches would be resumed, now that Burton had decided to come here this month.

Britain's P.G.A. president, Henry Cotton, declined a previous invitation, saying the British pros agreed that it would take them at least two years to recover their pre-war form.

Ryder Cup competition, started in 1927, was interrupted in 1939 with the beginning of the war in Europe.

The United States holds the cup donated by Samuel Ryder, British sportsman, having won it in England in 1937 for the fourth time in six matches.

Burton, who won the British open title in 1939, the last year the tournament was held, accepted an invitation yesterday to meet Byron Nelson, United States P.G.A. champion, at the Winged Foot Club in Mamaroneck, N.Y., May 29 and play in the Goodall round-robin starting the following day.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Louisville, Ky., May 2 — (AP) —At first view, Churchill Downs resembles a mud pie and it might be a good idea to keep that in mind if you're figuring on a wager in the Derby Saturday . . . There were only a few showers yesterday but the ancient racing strip, reputed to dry out quickly, still was so deep in mud you could hear the horses' feet squish clear up in the roof-top press box—that is, when the favorite was losing. The customers still managed to drown out the splashing when a horse they liked came down in front . . . Jockey Johnny Longden says he made two mistakes when Spy Song bogged down and was beaten by Rippey in the Derby trial. That's one over par.

Today's Guest Star

Tommy Fitzgerald, Louisville Courier-Journal: "The National Football League plans to impose on players who jumped to the rival All American Conference the same severe treatment baseball is giving its Mexican leapers. Tommy Rotolo, the farmer-boxer from Rome, N.Y., has finished his spring plowing and once more has started training for ring tussles . . . Hope Tommy doesn't get his signals crossed and start plowing up the canvas with his nose.

Over 14,000 Fans Watch Toronto Come Thru in Final Minutes; Montreal, Baltimore, Newark Win

(By The Associated Press)

Toronto, Buffalo, Montreal and Rochester, the International League's four northern teams, staged home openers yesterday and more than 65,000 fans poured through the turnstiles.

The largest crowd was 17,927 at Buffalo but the fifth-place Bisons were embarrassed before the huge home throng when Johnny Moore scattered seven hits to hang up a 5-1 victory for Newark Bears.

At Rochester, Baltimore Orioles disappointed 15,201 spectators by outslugging the Red Wings, 9-6. The victory moved the Orioles into first place as Syracuse Chiefs dropped to second by bowing 5-3 to Toronto Maple Leafs before 17,000 in Maple Leaf Stadium. In Montreal, the Royals delighted 15,000 by banging out a 12-9 triumph over Jersey City Giants.

Eddie Robinson highlighted Baltimore's victory over Rochester with a grand-slam circuit clout in the sixth inning to provide the Orioles with a 7-2 lead.

Toronto hopped on Syracuse's Millard Howell for single tallies in each of the first three innings but Kermit Wahl crashed a two-run homer in the fourth and Howell tied it up with a boundary belt in the sixth only to have Lee Gamble clout a two-run triple in the eighth to break up the game.

Montreal piled up a 7-2 advantage over Jersey City in the first three frames but the Giants tied it up in the fourth with Norman Jaeger's four-run homer featuring the attack. Montreal broke the ice with a three runs, two of which came as the result of a home run by Dixie Howell. Howell drove in and scored Montreal's 100th run of the campaign with his circuit swat.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Owner Warren Wright and trainer Ben Jones yesterday withdrew in earnest from the 72nd $100,000 Kentucky Derby scheduled for Saturday at Churchill Downs after the horse finished seventh in the one-mile Derby test Tuesday. Mrs. Vera Bragg also withdrew Mist O'Gold, thus leaving a field of 16 probable starters for the classic. Favorites for the race continued to be Lord Boswell and Knockdown.

If the track continues to be muddy, there was also the prospect that Wee Admiral, owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa and given a 35-to-1 chance in the winter books, would be scratched by trainer Arthur Brent.

With organized track employees, with the exception of mutuel clerks, on strike at Narragansett Park yesterday, a number of jockeys were spilled in the rough going when the track was not scraped between races. The distance of two events was changed because the starting gate could not be moved.

Losing to A. W. Baker 6 and 5, Arnold Bentley, defending champion, was among the prominent players eliminated yesterday in the second day of the English amateur golf tournament on the Royal Mid-Surrey course.

Rene Cyr, and Mike Abt increased their points lead in the nine-team field at the 72nd hour mark of the Chicago six-day bicycle grind last night. The Peden-Rodman pair were riding in second place.

Aston Villa took a two - point lead yesterday in the England South Soccer League by defeating Millwall 2-0, the second-place teams being Charlton Athletic and Birmingham City.

Ensign Hanover, champion pacer among two-year-olds last year, won his second straight race in yesterday's Grand Circuit card at Santa Anita with a two-length victory over Charming Scot at the mile distance in 2:03.2.

RACE HORSES DIE IN BLAZE

Chicago, May 2 — (AP)—More than 20 race horses owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's Maine Chance Farm were reported by police to have perished in a fire that swept Arlington Park race track barns early today.

Police said that among the horses that perished were a War Admiral colt, the name of which was not learned immediately, and Gay Emperor, valued at $32,000.

He said "about 26" horses belonging to Mrs. Graham perished, and that "about six or seven" were saved.

A groom, William Baden, and trainer Jimmy Smith, who escaped in his shorts, attempted to return to free horses from the stables, and saved seven.

WARM ON PRAIRIES

Winnipeg, May 1 (CP)—Westerners sunned themselves yesterday in temperatures that ranged up to 80 degrees and unofficially well past that. Regina was the warmest city with an official 80. Prince Albert, Sask., and Medicine Hat, Alta., each had 79, Saskatoon 78, Edmonton and Lethbridge, Alta., 72 and Winnipeg 70. Calgary was cool with 66.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Young Marse Robert Feller, whose faster-than-sound right flipper, is expected to help catapult the Cleveland Indians into the 1946 pennant picture, if not the world series, stood inside the New York Yankees baseball wigwam the other day conversing with fellow Braves of the Tribe. On his face there was a look of dejection. He glanced around glumly, but a close observer would have noted a smile twitching his lips and a gleam in the Feller eyes, that bespoke anything but sadness and sorrow.

Feller had lost two of his first three starts and already the wisenheimers had him slated for the baseball boneyard, the Cleveland sandlots or perhaps the Zwick's Island Fusiliers in the Bay of Quinte loop. So his mates offered condolences. There were make-believe tears in Indian eyes as they crowded about the youngster whose pitching career had been cut off in its prime.

Feller wrung out a couple of handkerchiefs. He admitted it was tough to fall apart just when he was learning to navigate his private cabin-cruiser job, and the little woman was depending on the next salary cheque (dollars, not pesos) to get herself one of those newfangled pressure cookers. "Everyone says I showed promise, too" sobbed the big righthander who is getting a great big kick out of the report of his impending demise.

"I'm going to pitch against the Yankees tomorrow," he gulped. Mebbe you had better come early if you want to see me. I may not be here after the second ball is pitched."

But Feller fooled not only the wisenheimers, who were ready to place flowers on his baseball career casket, but the cash customers and the flying New York Yankees too. He was in there not only when the second ball was pitched but also when the 133rd ball thudded into his catcher's glove, because that is all he slung against DiMaggio and company to register the first no-hit, no-run game in the American league this year.

It was Rapid Robert's second no-hitter of his Major League career, the first coming some years ago when he held the Chicago White Sox hitless and runless in the league opener. And just for the record, it might be added that Faultless Feller, who as was mentioned before, slung just 133 pitches at the helpless Yanks, struck out 11 of the Bronx pets. He threw 54 "balls," 35 strikes, (17 called and 18 swinging), 29 fouls and 15 hit to infielders or outfielders.

But another stout fella on the Indians' squad aided and abetted Rapid Robert in no uncertain way. He is Frankie Hayes, whose ninth inning homer, cut off suddenly what threatened to be an umpteen inning affair.

Sloan and Taylor were the high point-getters for their teams in the recent Memorial Cup series won by Monarchs. Managing director Conn Smythe of Maple Leaf Gardens said it was planned the two eventually would form part of another "Kid Line" as made famous by the Charlie Conacher - Primeau-Busher Jackson combination of other days.

Sloan, who probably set an all-time junior record by snipping 133 points, on 86 goals and 47 assists, in 51 games this season, was top pointgetter during the seven-game Memorial Cup series with 11 goals and four assists for a total of 15 points. Taylor's Memorial Cup record was 13 points on five goals and eight assists.

The atmosphere of the famous natural product of Iowa, (we prefer ours on the cob) that surrounds the stories of prizefighters and pachyderms saving the moolah to pay off the family mortgage; educate little Nell and other tear-jerking human interest excuses that the pulp mags use as a stock-in-trade sports themes, does not apply to some of the lads of the squared circle.

Johnny Greco, Montreal boxer came back to his native city the other day and concluded a deal for a $16,000 home in Notre Dame de Grace for his folks. Furniture and alterations will run to another $9,000 paid out of Greco's earnings. The fact is Johnny has saved enough out of his ring collections to get himself an annuity, a nice cash balance, home for his folks and a block of vacant real estate behind the self-contained house he bought.

East and West, the "twain" of adage, will meet in Toronto Maple Leaf hockey uniforms next winter in the persons of Tod (Sudden Death) Sloan, St. Michael's College ace giant-killer and Harry Taylor, the centre ice king of the Winnipeg Monarchs, newly crowned Dominion junior champions, according to an announcement by Maple Leaf moguls yester e'en.

Incidentally Greco has announced that he has been signed by Promoter Mike Jacobs for three fights either inside Madison Square Gardens or out, the first of which is with Beau Jack on May 31. Before that he is tentatively booked for a match in Youngstown, Ohio.

And speaking of matmen and their money, Yvon Robert, one of the better wrestlers who has showed his wares here, recently purchased Au Petit Robinson the Cafe in the Trees, in Montreal, for $32,000 cash. Robert, a big cafe and tavern tycoon, already owns the Chez Emil, a swank bistro.

Ky-Wi softball will get underway immediately, Messrs. Joe Shortt and Gordon Barclay announced today. The series will be composed of three classes, Bantams, 11 years and under; Midgets, 14 years and under, and Juveniles, 17 years and under. Entry forms are now available at the Y.M.C.A. here and managers and team captains are urged to get their respective players signed and submit their entries right away.

Friday night sees the annual gymnastic display of members at the Y.M.C.A. A splendid program of tumbling and other gymnastics has been lined up and officials look for the best exhibition in some time. The show starts at 7:30 p.m. and Secretary Joe Shortt urges all who like this form of athletics not to miss an eye-pleasing evening's entertainment. The lads have been practising faithfully and right now are at the peak. It should be well worth viewing.

The Ontario Athletic Commission, practically inoperative the last two years, will probably be re-organized this week, a government source said today. Four members are expected to be appointed.

B. C. Dominoes Favored For Second Tilt

Windsor, Ont., May 2. (CP)—Victoria Dominoes, "the deadliest basket potters ever to come out of Western Canada," were confident of taking a two-game lead when they clash with Windsor's Assumption College here tonight in the second contest of the best-of-five series for the Canadian Senior "A" Basketball championship.

In the initial game Wednesday, Dominoes completely outclassed the Collegians 53-35.

Coach Stan (Red) Nantais of Assumption College contended that his boys were caught off balance by the polish and accurate shooting of Dominoes in the opening game.

"But my lads will know just what to expect tonight," he said. "We will be ready to take anything that comes along. I must admit, though, that I have nothing but praise for those old men (Dominoes) and I know it will take plenty to stop them."

The Collegians will still be handicapped for tonight's battle by the absence of Bill Coulthard, rangy forward, who is out of action because of a sore throat.

Coach George (Porky) Andrews of Dominoes said he would line up the same team as in the first game.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By MEL SUFKIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, May 2 —(CP)— A subtle inkling of what could eventually happen to Canada's national sport, lacrosse, has turned up with the announcement that British Columbia senior teams will probably be playing regular Sunday night engagements in Seattle this summer.

The call of the big money South of the Border and the paying crowds present an enticing offer, and a thought to the future uncovers the possibility, vague as it may be, of Canada losing its hold on the boxla pastime.

Lacrosse promotor Max Turner figures it may go the same way as hockey, still supplied with players almost solely by Canada but with most of the big professional teams operating in the United States.

If the Seattle offer meets the approval of players on the five B. C. lacrosse teams, a 14-game series will be played there in a separate and self-contained league with its own standings. And to add a hometown touch to the procedings one of the Canadian clubs would take on the team name, "Seattle" with sweaters and all to give the fans something to cheer about.

Here and There:

Rheda Martin, Dominion and British Columbia fencing champion, doesn't think much of the weaker sex theory. Practising for Vancouver fencing championships June 6, she defeated 24 male opponents with little difficulty . . . Edmonton is building from the bottom up in efforts to boost the standard of tennis play in the city. The Edmonton Tennis Association has imported Capt. Ray Gould, net star from Yonkers, N.Y., who will act as coach for the coaches, who in turn are expected to be better equipped for grooming the youngsters.

VANCOUVER "HEDS" WIN WESTERN GALS HOOP TITLE

Winnipeg, May 2 — (CP) — Vancouver Hedlunds defeated Winnipeg 'Pegs 41-28 here last night in the third game of a best-of-five series for the Western Canada Women's senior basketball championship and swept the series in straight games to retain their four-year-old title.

No eastern challenge was forthcoming for a Canadian championship series and Hedlunds were presented with the Underwood Trophy, emblematic of the Dominion title, by President Charles McLaughlin of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association.

Hedlunds had taken the two previous games of their series with 'Pegs 42-17 and 30-23.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 976

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Poor Prune Palooka plays the hearsay system. It is sponsored by that eminent nonenity "They Say." One of his most cherished rules is the profound absurdity "when in doubt, lead a trump."

To lead a trump when in doubt is just ducky for my aunt Nettie the indomitable Mrs. Knittingham. She is always in doubt as a bridge partner. Anyway, she has her knitting to pick up after she leads.

Rule tells you the lead to select. You may have a choice. Both may be undesirable, for which there is also a rule: As between two evils, choose the one likely to do your side the least harm.

When opponents bid two suits, the assisted one becomes trump. Refrain from leading the less solid side suit. Your lead in that suit may help declarer decide how to take more tricks in it.

The overall lead rule is: Leads follow tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

Take the case where all the suits have been bid. Or contain an ace or a king from which you must not lead. Or a combination of both. You do not drop your ducats and commit hara kiri. You must lead something. That is when you lead a trump. Not because you are in doubt. But because the order of choice and don'ts determine it for you.

Although declarer also bid diamonds, he ended at a contract of four hearts. Lead from this hand:

♣K 7 5 4

Don't lead a suit bid by opponents. So, you do not lead diamonds. Against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or king. So, you do not lead spades or clubs.

Of the two suits bid by opponents, a diamond lead may hurt your side most. Therefore, you lead a trump.

Some players are sunk by misguided junk.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 2 — (AP) — Mickey Rooney's back, minus brashness and plus ambition.

Before the cameras as "Uncle Andy Hardy," Mickey has returned from the wars with king-size ideas and projects. He has enough plans to keep a corporation busy — and that's where Rooney, Incorporated, enters the picture.

"Rooney, Inc., is a going concern," the actor-magnate said. "We handle such artists as Andy Russell and Peter Lorre. We produce a transcription radio show. Some day I'll have my own radio show too." Other Rooney projects include writing popular songs and original stories. And as soon as he finds a suitable vehicle he is going to produce a picture.

"It will be produced independently but we may allow M.G.M. to release it," he joked. Asked if all this activity meant an eventual demise of Andrew Hardy, he said:

"No, I'm very satisfied with Andy. I want to keep doing the series until he gets too old to be believable."

However, he would like to alternate Hardys with good musicals and dramas. His next will be the musical version of "Ah Wilderness."

Bill Demarest sleeps with a shotgun by his side at his hilltop home. Coyotes, not burglars . . . Bob Hope's daughter Linda, six, has chicken pox . . . Wally Beery should get his two-engine, four-passenger plane in time to celebrate his 20th year as a flier.

Al Schmidt, the blind ex-Marine who was portrayed by John Garfield in "Pride of the Marines," now is appearing in a film himself. He is playing himself in Pete Smith's M.G.M. short, 'Playing by Ear.' The film shows how blind people can be taught to play sports and how Al was instructed in golf.

Don Barrett Tabbed By Red Wing Scout

Don Barrett, star centre ice player with the Belleville Junior Hockey Club for the last several seasons has been invited to attend the training camp of the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League at the Detroit Olympia next fall, it was learned here today.

Barrett paced the attack for the juniors to the group championship last season, only to be defeated in the first round of the O. H. A. playdowns by Kingston "Saints".

Don is a fast skater and a clever stickhandler and has won the eye of the Detroit scout Carson Cooper. He still has another season in junior company.

FORMER TENNIS CHAMP DIES IN FRISCO

San Francisco, May 2 — (AP) — William (Little Bill) Johnston, 51, former United States tennis champion, died last night of a heart attack at his home.

Johnston won the National singles championship in 1915 and the doubles title with C. J. Griffin in 1915 and 1916.

He became known as "Little Bill" during his fierce court duels with William (Big Bill) Tilden. They teamed up to regain the Davis Cup for the United States from Australia.

Johnston's Cup competition overshadowed Tilden's in one respect. In seven years he lost only three singles matches.

He retired from competitive tennis in 1928.

BUDGE DEFEATS RIGGS IN TENNIS JOUST

Toronto, May 2 — (CP)—Don Budge last night defeated Bobby Riggs in the touring professional tennis troupe's exhibition at Maple Leaf Gardens. There was an attendance of 2,200 for the show.

Budge beat Riggs 6-4, 6-2 in the feature match. His comparatively easy victory reduced the margin held by Riggs in the coast-to-coast tour. The score now stands at 16 victories for Riggs, 15 for Budge.

Barrie Appoints Recreation Head

Barrie, May 2 —(CP)— Capt. Kenneth W. Robinson, 35, of Kingston, has been engaged by the town of Barrie as director of recreation and will assume his duties on release from the Canadian army, it was announced last night.

Capt. Robinson served in the permanent army as a physical training instructor from 1929 until 1934, when he went to England to take up professional boxing. He returned to Canada in 1940 to rejoin the army.

AT THE CAPITOL — William Boyd in the popular western role of "Hopalong Cassidy" as he appears in Goodwill's new cowboy drama, "Bar 20 Rides Again," now playing at the Capitol. On the same program "Don Juan Quilligan," starring William Bendix, Joan Blondell and Phil Silvers.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACW SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 2. (CP)—The practice of conducting charity auction sales from the ring just before the main event at Seymour Hall, London, got out of hand recently. The money was rolling in too fast.

Auctioneers were Jack Peterson, former British heavyweight champion and Col. A. C. Newman, V.C., leader of the St. Nazaire raid.

Bottles of whiskey went on the block first. They sold at £10 ($45) a bottle, but the purchasers returned them. One man, who bought a bottle for £25 ($112.50), presented it to Col. Newman.

Another came back as a gift to Peterson and the pace grew so hot the gallant colonel sank into a corner seat and was fanned, ring style, by the former champion. Eventually, Col. Newman solved the difficulty by autographing the bottles and these were sold again.

There were no more gifts. Purchasers apparently decided the V.C. winner's autograph was worth keeping.

Four months ago Geoff Godwin, 40-year-old motorcycle speedway rider, broke his neck on the track at Newcastle. He was in a plaster cast until the other day when he went through the paces at Wimbledon.

He went through the landings in North Africa, Sicily, Italy and Normandy without a scratch, but crashed when, as an engine-lieutenant-commander, he rode at Newcastle and was hit by another rider.

Lease of the Filbert Street ground of Leicester City football club has been renewed 14 years by city council. The present lease expires in 1948 and by a 24-to-25 vote, council decided to extend the lease and to pay compensation up to £20,000 ($90,000) should the ground be required before expiration of the period. Some councillors contended a football team was one of the best advertisements a city could have. Against this, others suggested that payment of compensation meant subsidizing a club and other forms of sport might ask for a similar arrangement.

William Chandler, wealthy owner of Walthamstow Greyhound Stadium who started as an errand boy, died the other day. He refused an offer of £500,000 ($2,250,000) for his luxury track in Essex last year.

At the age of 15 his father died, and "Billy" promised to look after his mother. After his spell as errand boy, he set up in a modest way as a street bookmaker and branched out from there. He was regarded as one of the richest bookmakers in Britain.

KING WAITS GREEK VOTE FOR THRONE

London, May 2 (AP)—Greeks who know stocky, bespectacled King George II, who has been exiled from Greece three times in less than 30 years are confident he will return once more to his throne in Athens.

King George has maintained a discreet silence on political events in civil war-torn Greece but he has sent Col. Dimitros Lividis, master of the royal household, back to Athens and informed sources said the monarch was expecting to be recalled by the new pro-royalist government before many months have passed.

Only last fall many Greek political observers gave the king less than a 50-50 chance of regaining power. But the Populist (monarchist) party victory in the March elections brought a new air of optimism to the book-lined suite at Claridge's hotel where George has held informal "court" during much of the Nazi occupation and succeeding liberation.

King George has kept closely informed on Greek developments since he went into virtual seclusion after the 1944 civil war and his appointment of Archbishop Damaskinos as regent.

Plebiscite Postponed

His last public statement was in November 1945 when he issued a strong protest against the regent's postponement of a plebiscite on the monarchy to 1948. Post-election statements of Populist leaders indicate they also favor an immediate poll on restoration of the king.

The sprucely-dressed, balding king often strolled unnoticed along Mayfair streets as he lived the quiet life of hundreds of others who took refuge in Britain.

Today, informed sources said, King George II, of the Hellenes is more of a force in Greek politics than at any time since the German invasion in April 1941.

Diplomatic couriers travel beking's errands and he is reported in close contact with the new government leaders.

George's first experience as an exile was in 1917, when he was crown prince. He joined his father, King Constantine, in exile in Switzerland when the king abdicated under Allied pressure because of alleged pro-German sentiments.

George succeeded to the throne in 1922 and went into his second period of exile the next year when a republic was proclaimed.

In 1935, he was recalled to the throne when the monarchy was restored and he reigned in Athens until driven out by the Germans in 1941.

SIX DEER TRAPPED IN QUEENSTON FOREBAY

Niagara Falls, May 2 —(CP)— Six deer, apparently driven by fright into the hydro canal, were trapped into the hydro forebay at Queenston yesterday and before rescuers could extricate them, three died of exhaustion.

The other three were rescued by means of a rowboat and ropes. When the animals were brought to shore they were too weak to stand on their legs and were badly bruised after swirling around the forebay for nearly three hours.

I'LL WAIT FOR YOU

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 15

"You make it sound very simple. But it isn't as simple as that.

"It is! And I'll help you. I'll love doing something. This idleness is driving me crazy. I'll give you a part-time typing job in my office in New York and in your free time you can take courses in anything that interests you. You're too clever, too vital to—to give up. You can't. It isn't sporting. There's a challenge in every new day."

He smiled. "Well, shall I write you out a new lease on life and present it to you, or shall I go back and help you make a thorough job of destroying the house and you?"

She lay back and looked at him, her eyes slowly believing in the things he was saying. A twisted road was straightening; locked doors were opening. A held out a hand to him and he went to her and took it.

"Thanks for the new lease on life, Norman." Edwina was gaining control of herself. "Strange, I've always thought myself to be capable and self-sufficient. I didn't think I'd ever really need anybody. But if you'll stick by me and see me through this.... I was going to say I'd do something for you. But I can't now. I used to pay back favors with expensive gifts and parties. Anyway, I'll be the hardest working part-time typist you ever hired."

Her voice broke and the tears spilled over her lashes. "I know a man hates to see a girl cry.."

"And I never saw a girl have a handkerchief when she was going to cry. Here's mine. Cry all you want to and then I'll take you home. You're going to sleep for two days and then you and I are going to give this town the biggest news it's had in years."

A few minutes later she found him on the veranda. With his hands thrust deep into the pockets of his dinner jacket, he was standing at the lower end of the veranda where, in the daytime, a fat little bird came to frolic in its bath.

"Norman, tell me this before you take me home. Where did you learn to arrange other people's lives so well? You've always had everything you wanted. Where did you learn the secret of thinking for other people? You're a riddle, too. To most people, I imagine, you're a good-looking, rich, successful young man flitting from girl to girl.."

"I've learned things this summer, too, Edwina. I've learned it's easier to push somebody else over a high fence than to get over it yourself alone."

Amy, dignified, capable, good-humored, waited for them in her car outside the Burke home.

Edwina said, "I have a lot to tell you, darling." And she said it with humility and gratitude while Norman stood beside her. "If you hear a strange noise, it's a leaf of my life turning over. Tomorrow I'm going to begin on a nice clean white page."

Amy smiled and shook her head.

"Edwina, is this your unique way of telling me, after getting me out of bed at this hour, that you are going to marry this young man?"

"No, darling. I'm not going to marry him even for his money." She turned to Norman. "Good night. You look dead tired. I'll explain to Amy. I don't mind the explanation. But come back after I've slept for two days."

In response to public demand, powerful lights had been installed at the water-filled quarry, making night swimming possible.

To the gay and colorful scene Norman came two nights after the newspaper announcement of Edwina's generous gift to the city, an announcement which had resulted in a flood of telephone calls and telegrams of congratulation to a calm and rested and no longer tormented girl. Norman stood on the green slope which descended to the water and smiled at the merry capers of boys swinging from ropes, Tarzan fashion, before dropping into the deep water. When he saw Carol, slim and tanned, in a blue satin bathing suit, her hair drying in the warm night wind, he hesitated before going to her, and once, as he walked toward her, stopped briefly as if he had changed his mind.

To her he was a man appearing out of a dream, a wish fulfilled..

"Hello...."

"Hello, Carol. Are you alone?"

"Yes, I am." Trying to be casual and natural she said, "I usually see some one out here I know but tonight everybody apparently had other ideas. Alan was coming out for me but Mrs. Christian, who is in charge of the bathhouse, just came out to tell me that Alan phoned he isn't coming. Something came up unexpectedly at the office and he's with a client. Aren't you going for a swim?"

"I didn't bring a suit. I was over at the club and heard about the new lights. Just drove over."

How to be casual and natural, how to be with him as she had been in the beginning, how to say lightly, "Still a lonely man?" or "Won't you sit down, Norman?" But the words stuck in her throat and her heart hammered. Why didn't he go and leave her with all her fine resolutions that she was for Alan and he for her? If Norman lingered, those fine resolutions would crumble to nothing and she would climb to dangerous heights again. The years ahead, safe years, would be unimportant and only a moment, this little moment, would matter. What had happened between tonight and that bright day when she knew she loved him dissolved so that it was as if they had come from that day to this night in an instant and nothing had changed. Love was wonder and magic, not reason and good sense.

When he sat down beside her and their glances met, she felt, as she had felt once before, that he could read her thoughts, stripping her of all false pretenses and weak resolutions. The dark eyes which could be so gay, which laughed when he laughed, nevertheless, were knowing eyes. She thought: I love your frown and the sound of your voice, Norman. I want your touch again. But where is Edwina tonight? My father said, after reading the paper the other night that no one could be truly bad who was truly unselfish. But Edwina is giving everything away because she has you. If I had you, I'd feel that I had everything in you—that you, just you, would be all I'd ever want....

She said, "I read about what Edwina is going to do. It's wonderful, I'm not the only person who has wondered about the interior of the house. And now everyone is going to have the chance to see the things Patrick Burke collected. Where is Edwina tonight?"

"At home. She has a big job ahead, disposing of the things, and she wants a hand in it. We're going to start on the books tomorrow. I think Mr. Lane, the president of one of the banks mere, is going to buy the house. He telephoned her today. He's been wanting the house for years but he had no idea she'd sell. Perhaps this, this gesture of hers, will make people realize that Edwina isn't what they have thought she is. It's time people stopped being jealous and afraid of her and realized how fine she is...."

He spoke curtly but with feeling. About Edwina, she thought, he was deadly serious. And as she had scratched the surface of Alan's stoic nature, so had Norman delved beneath the surface of Edwina's recklessness and extravagance and found the girl he wanted to marry.

He said, "I'm helping Edwina get her affairs straightened out and when that's over, which should be in a couple of weeks, I'm going back to New York."

"To stay?"

Though she kept her eyes ahead, she knew that he was looking at her. "Yes. Important job coming up at the office. It'll be September in two weeks.. A red leaf I saw this morning reminded me that my hibernating days are almost over. It's been a summer I won't soon forget."

Nor I.... Nor I.... This was probably the last time she would see him because he would be busy with Edwina, and people whose lives were so far removed did not often meet by chance. The last time.... A girl in a blue bathing suit, a girl beginning to shiver, and a young man in a dark brown suit sitting side by side beneath powerful lights while people around them chatted and laughed and swam....It would never be like this again because no other night would ever be quite like this. And she would come out to the quarry year after year after year....

It would be so easy not to be brave, to turn to him and ask, "What did that day at the stone house mean to you, Norman? Nothing or everything? Did you kiss me because it was a nice moment to kiss a girl, any girl? And did you kiss me and say that you would love me into forgetting Alan if you could because they were passionate, dramatic words you wanted to say to a girl, any girl? Why? Tell me or else keep me guessing all my life, all my life with Alan....

Instead she said, "I'm getting cold. I think I'll go in and dress."

"Have you a car?"

"Yes."

"An open car?"

"A roadster, yes. Why?"

He got up, held out his hand to her and helped her to her feet. "There's going to be a nasty storm. You have to look over the trees over there to see it. I'll wait for you...."

Wait for her! And they would say a very cordial good-bye while the storm raged, she thought, as she hurried to the bath house. She changed quickly from the blue suit into a printed frock and then enclosed her still damp hair in a blue turban. Then rain began to tap on the tin roof....

As she stepped from the house into the driving rain, the light in the house and over the quarry went out.

"Carol?"

"Yes. But I can't see you....I can't see anything...."

Norman found Carol's hand and led her through the rain and the darkness.

Laughing, he asked, "Are you still with me?"

"What isn't washed away."

"Hold on...."

"How do you know where you're going?"

"Eyes of a cat—I can see in the dark. Don't slip...." His hand was reassuring as the lightning flashed and zigzagged. It seemed as if he were enjoying the soaking. "Not afraid, are you?"

"No!"

"Good. I love it. I shed water like a duck. I think my car is this way...."

"I hope it is...."

"Hold on...."

Inside the car, he said laughing, "Lucky guess. Are you all right? I won't turn on the car lights...."

She was laughing, too. "Thanks, I'm all right...."

"I think I've an old topcoat in the rumble. I'l get it...."

"Don't go out into the rain again...."

"Why not? I can't get wetter...."

When he came back and placed the warm coat around her, she thought how happy she was suddenly, how crazily, idiotically happy she was. It had never been like this with Alan, not a high moment like this, and for no reason at all.... No reason? There was Norman's presence, his gayety in spite of rain and lightning and thunder and physical discomfort. Always the comparison of the two men and always and forever the knowledge that she had made a great mistake.... When she was old and there were no more high moments for her, she would come back to this—a dash through the rain, her wet hand in his, her laughter mingling with his. Already she was seeing tonight in memory, knowing that there would never be another like it.

"I FELT TIRED FROM THE TIME I GOT UP IN THE MORNING"

Stomach Was Out of Order, Had Poor Appetite, Couldn't Sleep Well, Says This Man. Became Nervous, Rundown. Tells How Syntona Helped Him.

When the stomach is out of order and food fails to digest properly, but ferments causing sourness, gas and a full, heavy feeling; when poor kidney action brings on night rising, backache or rheumatic aches and pains; when bowels are constipated and you have dizzy spells, headaches and nerves are on edge, take a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and the chances are that you may find it to be just what you need to put you on the road to better health again.

"My stomach began giving me trouble about two years ago," said Mr. Wilford Reep, well-known farmer of Lobo, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I began to suffer all the time with indigestion and heartburn. I was subject to throbbing headaches and dizzy spells. My appetite was very poor, but even the food I did eat gave me a miserable, bloated feeling and large quantities of gas. I became so nervous and irritable I just couldn't get to sleep at night and so I felt tired from the time I got up in the mornings. Many days it was hard for me to do my work.

"But all that has changed since I've been taking Syntona. This medicine has been the best thing I ever found for these troubles and it has made a wonderful difference in the way I feel. My digestion has improved so much that I actually look forward to mealtime and although I eat heartier I have no trouble with gas, heartburn or indigestion. The headaches and dizzy spells have left me and I sleep well. As a result I feel rested in the mornings and have far more energy to carry me through my day's work.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

Little Benny's Note Book

After school I went in the house to throw my books in, and ma was in the living room talking to Mrs. Sitgrove, and Mrs. Sitgrove's little kid Elmer was there too, and I hurry up started to sneek out again and ma quick came out in the hall, saying, Oh, is that you, Benny?

Yes mam, I'm just going out, I said, and ma said, No you're not, either, I want you to play with little Elmer a while, because otherwise he'll be asking his mother a thousand and one questions while I'm trying to talk to her.

Well aw G, ma, how can I take a little kid like that out and tell the fellows he's a friend of mine? I said, and ma said, Then take him upstairs for land sakes.

But jimminy, ma, how can I play with that size of a kid? I said, and ma said, Now you heard me and I heard you, so let that be the end of it.

Meening the argument was over and I lost it, and I took little Elmer up to my room a while and brought him down to the living room again, saying to ma, Here's Elmer again, he didn't want to play anything.

And I quick went out and didn't come back till ma called me in for supper, saying, Little Elmer was strangely quiet, he didn't bother us at all. Perhaps he wasn't feeling well and that's why he didn't want to play with you. What sort of games did you want to play with him? she said, and I said, Well, ferst I asked him if he wanted to play Indian prisoner of war and let me scalp him, and I promised not to pull his hair any harder than I could help, but he didn't want to try it anyways ,and then I asked him if he wanted to leave me shut him up in my closit and tell him ghost stories through the key hole, and he said he didn't, and then I wanted him to pretend he was a berd and I was a snake hipmotizing him till he was too scared to move, but he didn't like that game either, so I brought him down again

Not being quite the end of the subject.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, May 2 —(CP)— Trading livened up in the third hour, on the stock exchange, bringing volume for the first three hours up to 1,376,000 shares. Industrial stocks had an index gain of 1.31 at noon and other groups were down narrowly.

Denison Nickel continued to hold the spotlight, changing hands in heavy volume on an advance of 5 cents to 28. Hudson Bay, Golden Manitou and Sherritt were narrowly lower.

The liquor, senior oil, food and miscellaneous industrials worked higher.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, May 2 — (AP) — Buying interest again was centred on special stocks today while many marked leaders contended unsuccessfully with light offerings.

The coal strike, threatening widespread industrial curtailment, continued to chill bullish sentiment.

Fractional variations ruled from the start although a few "thin" issues climbed several points. Dealings were slack throughout and quotations well mixed near the fourth hour.

Distillers Seagrams featured the Canadian group with a mid-day gain of 5 1/2 points at 106 1/2. Hiram Walker was up 2 3/8 at 114. International Nickel gained 1/8. C.P.R. was off 1/8 at 19 1/8 and Dome Mines lost 1/4 to 24¼.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, May 2 —(CP)— The few cattle offered sold at steady prices up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Butcher steers were $12-$12.55, a few heifers $11.25-$12, medium quality cows $9-$10 and fed yearlings $12-$13.35. Veal calves were steady at $15-$16 choice, with plain lights downward to $10. Hogs were steady, dressed, Grade A $20, Grade B1 $19.60, sows mostly $16.50. No sheep or lambs were offered. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: cattle 50, calves 40, hogs 50.

HOGS

Toronto, May 2 (CP)—Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Barrie $19.75 delivered; unchanged at Stratford, to farmers $19.70, to truckers $19.85, delivered, in markets reporting early today.

CHARGED WITH LEAVING SCENE OF ACCIDENT

James Sharpe, Deseronto, was arrested by city police shortly before eight o'clock last night, and will face charges of leaving the scene of an accident. Police allege that Sharpe drove away following a collision at the Front-Pinnacle streets intersection, and they arrested him shortly afterwards when he was driving along Dundas Street.

Two Face Liquor Charge

Coincidental with Sharpe's arrest, police also took into custody Alfred Sharpe and Alfred Brookes. The former was charged with being intoxicated while Brookes will face a count of having illegal possession of liquor.

Sharpe's car and that of John Frost, 26 Hillcrest Avenue, vehicles involved in the accident suffered damage of a substantial nature.

SPEEDERS FINED

Notwithstanding consistent warnings issued by Chief of Police Walter Probert, a number of city motorists persist in breaking city speed by-laws. A number were summoned and paid the conventional fines today.

"There will be no let-up in the curbing of these drivers", the chief said. "They are a menace to the safety of the residents of this city, and will be dealt with by the law whenever they commit breaches of the city by-laws."

TEEN-AGED DRINKERS WARNED

Cornwall, May 2 —(CP)— Teen-aged drinkers found guilty of intoxication will get no more sympathy from the court, Magistrate H. C. Bergeron announced today. In future, he said all the young offenders would be fined $25 and costs as a minimum.

"We have to end this drinking by young people less than 21 years of age," he said.

SPANISH BORDER FORCES REDUCED TO 170,000

Madrid, May 2 —(Reuters)— Spanish military strength on and near the Pyrenees frontier has been reduced from 300,000 last summer to 170,000, reliable reports received here indicate.

The Spanish regular 11th Division, at present garrisoned in Madrid, entrained today for Catalonia, but the movement is not regarded by competent observers here as of exceptional importance.

Canadians Who Gave Their Lives Rest in Carefully Tended Graves Not Far From Where They Died

Ottawa, May 2 — The men of Canada who gave their lives in Northwest Europe in the summer and autumn of 1944 and the winter and spring of 1945 sleep their long sleep in beautiful and carefully tended resting places, not far from where they fell, and in burial plots guarded by pine trees and hardwoods which adorn the countryside.

Eight cemeteries, four in Northern France, one in Belgium, and three in Holland, remain forever a part of Canada. Locations were studied carefully.

Beny-Sur-Mer, overlooking the invasion beaches, and not far from Caen and Carpiquet, is shared by British soldiers and by Royal Air Force personnel who with men of Canada's 3rd Division stormed ashore or fought aloft on historic D-Day.

Bretteville-Sur-Laize overlooks the Falaise Pocket battlefield.

Hautot-Sur-Mer is near Dieppe and here those who fell in the 1942 raid have their final resting place.

Leubringhen (Calais), located between Calais and Boulogne is beautifully sited. From here one can see the White Cliffs of Dover.

Half-way between Bruges and Ghent in Belgium, there is Adegem, in a countryside peaceful and hallowed, but in ages past often alive to the tramp of continental armies.

Not far north across the border of Holland is the Canadian cemetery of Bergen-op-Zoom located a short distance from the historic city of the same name. Here the greensward is some three feet lower than the national highway to Breda which borders it, thus giving the wholly pleasing effect of a sunken garden, its entrance sentinelled by handsome trees.

On a site overlooking the Hochwald Forest the Canadian cemetery of Nijmegen commands one of the most beautiful scenes in the terirtory. The River Rhine is visible in the distance.

Also beautifully located and built in three terraces, is the cemetery of Holten, 12 miles east of Deventer on the main highway to Hengelo. Stately pines surround the area.

The task of identification and reverent removal to a permanent location has been one of considerable proportions. Meticulous care has been taken in each case. Not only Canadian soldiers but personnel of the Royal Canadian Air Force who fell over Northwest Europe are interred in these beautiful final resting places.

Eventually these cemeteries will be handed over to the care of the Imperial War Graves Commission, under Major General J. H. Roberts, D.S.O., M.C., a Canadian who is chief administrative officer Central European District, I.W.G.C. Under the I.W.G.C. these cemeteries, as well as the Canadian cemetery in Sicily at Agira overlooking the battlefeld there, and the Canadian cemetery in Italy at Ortona, not far from the scene of heavy fighting at Christmas time in 1943, will be maintained administratively and horticulturally, as a part of Canada in perpetuity.

Surgery Most Reliable For Prostate Cancer

New York, May 2 (AP)—One of every five men who live 50 years or more get cancer of the prostate gland, Dr. Reed M. Nesbit of the University of Michigan Medical School told the medical society of the State of New York.

He reported on two new treatments which he said offered some hope of improvement. Both get rid of man's male sex hormones. One is by castration and the other by administration of a synthetic female sex hormone.

Comparing the new treatments with older ones, Dr. Nesbit said that at the end of two years the deaths after older treatments was 69 per cent of the cases studied; for castration 37 per cent; and for the female hormone 24 per cent. For five years, deaths after the older treatment were 82 per cent and for castration 66 per cent, he added.

Dr. Nesbit said early surgery still is the most reliable treatment resulting in real cures.

BIG TOURIST FUTURE PREDICTED

Sault Ste. Marie, May 2 (CP)—In development of the tourist business "lies the hope of the province," Col. G. Arthur Welsh, Ontario Minister of Travel and Publicity, said here after completing the first leg of a 3,000 mile seaplane flight to cover northern Ontario border points.

Speaking before a Sault Board of Trade dinner Col. Welsh said: "I make the prediction that by 1952 anything you have seen in the tourist business will be just a drop in the bucket."

Col. Welsh and Deputy Minister Tom C. McCall said they found facilities established at Sault Ste. Marie for the reception of tourists best of any border city they have visited to date and gave the Board of Trade reason to hope for the establishment of a tourist reception bureau here.

Fox at Folly Out Plush Gets a Pub

Dorchester, England, May 2—(CP)— Thanks to efforts of John Barnard-Hankey, who wants to better the life of country people, the Dorsetshire village of Plush is to have its first public-house and villagers no longer will have to walk a thirsty mile-and-a-half to the Fox at Folly at adjacent Piddletrenthide.

Barnard-Hankey obtained permission from licensing authorities here to establish the pub after he told them it would be impossible to stop the drift of countrymen to the towns unless small villages had a social centre. Already he has been responsible for Plush's 19 cottages being equipped with electric light, hot and cold water and other amenities.

"The nearest pub — The Fox at Folly — is nearly 1½ miles away, and I know that the chaps out of the forces who have had their wet canteens even in Burma just won't walk," he said.

British Cruisers For Indian Navy

New Delhi (CP)—Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, commander-in-chief in India, has revealed that the Royal Indian Navy will soon receive three six-inch-gun cruisers from the Royal Navy, the first of which will be available in 1947. Indian Navy personnel have up to this time had experience only in the management of vessels of the size of sloops and corvettes.

Gen Auchinleck also stated that India will in due course become self contained in the matter of air defence. Starting with only one squadron before the war the Royal Indian Air Force now has 10 squadrons entirely manned by Indians.

He said that no time limit could be set for the process of the Indianization of the army, "but the decision to set up an Indian military academy for the training of officers is an indication of the determination to fulfil that pledge." The Indian army is almost fully mechanized.

Attempt Foiled To Blow Up Br. Destroyer

Haifa, May 2 —(Reuters)— An attempt to blow up the British destroyer Chevron in Haifa harbor was foiled yesterday by discovery of a kit-bag filled with explosives in the destroyer's messroom.

The Chevron arrived here from Alexandria carrying 13 Palestine seamen due for discharge in Palestine.

After the seamen had disembarked a kit-bag was discovered placed in a position over the ship's magazine and containing detonators fitted and primed as well as a length of fuse.

The Palestinian seamen were searched and one was found to have a detonator sewn into his clothes. Others also had explosives concealed in their clothing. The men — one of whom is said to have been identified as a well-known terrorist — were arrested.

Authorities seeking a motive for the attempt recalled the Chevron was the ship which intercepted March 25 the illegal Jewish immigrant vessel, Brigadier Wingate, inside Palestinian territorial waters off the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

New Zealand Begins Paying War Grants

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)— New Zealand has begun payment of war gratuities to veterans of the Second Great War. Payment is at the rate of the equivalent of $3.60 a month for service at home and $13.50 a month for overseas service.

To encourage veterans not to draw the whole amount immediately, interest is offered at 7½ per cent on sums not paid out and this is proving sufficient incentive to many to leave their money on deposit. It was feared that the immediate drawing of the whole sum by all veterans would lead to inflation.

FEDERAL GOVT. "STANDS PAT" ON PROPOSALS

U.S. Prison Inmates Make Bid for Freedom

Alcatraz Convicts Kill One Officer And Wound Others

Ten Guards Held as Hostages By Rioters Are Rescued

San Francisco, May 3—(AP)—Prison guards drove through a hail of gunfire early today, cornered in a cell block a group of convicts attempting to escape from the Federal prison on Alcatraz Island and rescued 10 guards the prisoners had held as hostages.

At least one dead and 14 injured prison officers were counted as the guards pressed the bloody battle to the four or five desperadoes believed involved in one of the boldest uprisings in the prison's history.

In Washington, director James V. Bennett of the Federal Bureau of Prisons said all the hostages were rescued.

After the prison authorities penetrated into the cell block from which the prisoners had been battling for at least seven hours, a Marine Corps public relations officer reported "The situation is still precarious." He had just returned from the island where Marines are guarding prisoners not involved in the battle.

Warden J.A. Johnston announced rescue of the 10 guards but gave no details.

Started Thursday

The break was reported to have started yesterday when guard B. A. Burch, armed with a rifle and .45 calibre pistol, entered the cell block.

Burch said he was accosted by Bernard P. Coy, serving 25 years for bank robbery, Dyer Act and Flight, and possibly others, and was struck over the head.

Bennett said that four and possibly five long-term desperadoes were involved in the riot and named in addition to Coy: Joseph P. Cretzer, serving life for second degree murder and bank robbery, Sam R. Shockley, serving life for bank robbery and kidnap, and Myron Ex serving 99 years for kidnapping.

Others Involved

"Possibly Louis Fleisch is also involved," Bennett said.

Other guards rushed to Burch's aid and were captured by well-armed desperadoes, who locked them up. Some prison officers were shot and all were reported beaten.

At the sound of the alarm, other prisoners on the rocky island in San Francisco Bay were herded into the prison yard. Marines landed, well-armed boats patrolled the waters and prison officers began exchanging gunfire from outside the building with the convicts in a cell block on the pinnacle of the island.

Convicts, guards reported, obtained keys to all doors of the 3-storey building except the building exit.

No Prisoners Escape

The statement of the Bureau of Prisons director said he did not understand how the guns could have been captured in view of prison precautions. He said he believed no prisoners had escaped.

Heavy exchanges of fire characterized the battle during daylight. Guards used tear gas, but the convicts were reported to have obtained gas masks. The spectacular fight from the building's fringe raged until nearly midnight, after which the battle continued inside.

Prison officials identified the guard killed as Harold P. Stiles.

The furious battle, which began yesterday, provided a scene of unusual drama for San Francisco. Thousands of persons watched gun flashes in the darkness from the city's hills. Thousands of others lined docks and watched great searchlights play over the island, located at the entrance of San Francisco Bay.

Editor:—The following eyewitness account of what could be seen at the Alcatraz escape riot from a boat lying off the penitentiary island in San Francisco Bay was written for The Associated Press by a reporter who approached as closely as he could during the battle.

By GEORGE DRAPER
(San Francisco Chronicle Reporter)

Off Alcatraz, May 2 (AP)—I am sitting on a small boat 50 yards from the fight.

We moved in close to see well and because we knew the men holding the first floor of the main cell block towering above us were using short-range automatic arms.

Just above me, it seems, guards are lying on their bellies firing rifles. I watched them hit the dirt—army style—firing, advancing, taking cover.

The slow, deliberate rifle fire of the guards is being answered by tommy-gun bursts of the convicts.

The convicts can't quite reach us but they can sweep the guards. Apparently they have plenty of ammunition. They are throwing five shots for every one they take.

One of the kids running the boat is keeping his eye on one guard trying to creep in close.

"I'm just waiting for him to get it," he says.

I am watching a huddle of guards and plain clothesmen hiding around the south corner of the building. We can see them but the convicts can't.

Some kind of attack is about to take place. On the roof of another building north of the old cellblock we catch a glimpse of two guards, their heads bobbing above the roof wall.

"Watch those guys," I say, and just then the two figures stand up and pump three or four shots down into the north end windows of the cell block.

Now the guards huddled at the south end of the building are starting to move. They are hugging the wall, crouching low and from the way they are scurrying along we think they are probably scared stiff.

Fire from the windows steps up. The angle is wrong. The convicts can't get in a shot as long as the guards hug the wall.

One of the guards raises up. He stands on tiptoe, stretches his hand up full length, fumbles for the window ledge. He is feeling for a whole in the glass.

He crouches down, pulls something out of his pocket, then throws a tear gas bomb inside. In a second it comes bouncing out again like a red-hot rock.

The grenade bounces off the guard and lands smoking in the purple flowers. Other guards reach up and throw grenades in the broken windows. Two of them shoot revolvers inside.

Another grenade sizzles out of one of the windows.

We think one of the guards has been hit in the hand. He is grabbing his wrist.

The tear gas hasn't worked. Maybe they are dug in for the night. Nobody's won this little war yet.

LITTLE HOPE SEEN FOR AGREEMENTS AT PARIS PARLEYS

Byrnes Says U.S. Is In Favor of New Armistices So as To Stabilize Europe

(By FLORA LEWIS)

Paris, May 3 —(AP)— High-ranking delegates to the Four-Power foreign ministers conference today expressed the opinion that barring some spectacular and completely unforeseen development, there was little hope any peace treaties would be agreed upon at this session.

The ministers of the United States, Britain, Russia and France were scheduled to meet with Yugoslav officials at Luxembourg Palace today to discuss revision of the Italian-Yugoslav frontier. The Yugoslav delegation includes Edward Kardelj, deputy prime minister, and Stnoje Simic, foreign minister.

Alcide de Gasperi, Italian Premier, is expected to appear before the ministers later in the day. He arrived here last night by plane.

British, United States and French delegates said privately it was still too early to predict that the conference would break up in complete failure, but stressed that after a week of meetings the ministers appeared to have made no progress whatsoever on controversial issues.

These sources also interpreted a request yesterday by State Secretary Byrnes of the United States for revision of the Italian and other armistices as an indication that hope was rapidly vanishing for an agreement of peace treaties in the near future.

Favors New Armistices.

Mr. Byrnes told the other ministers the United States favored new armistices to stabilize Europe, in view of the fact that peace treaties, even if drafted immediately, could not become effective for some time.

He asked specifically that the Italian armistice be softened, but further consideration of the matter was blocked by British objections. American officials said the United States was determined not to budge from her position on this and other controversial matters.

Some sources said that the only chance for the government to succeed would be for V. M. Molotov, Russian foreign minister, to make a number of unexpected concessions.

The Moscow radio, however, indicated that Russia did not endorse Mr. Byrnes' most far-reaching proposal—a Four-Power mutual assistance pact to prevent Germany from rearming for at least 25 years.

In a broadcast today, the Moscow radio, heard in London, said that the proposal falls far short "of the aim of preventing the rebirth of militarist Germany."

TO DARKEN LOAF OF BREAD

London, May 3 — (Reuters) — Britain is to darken her loaf of bread by a wheat-extraction rate of 90 per cent "as a temporary measure," Food Minister Sir Ben Smith announced at a hastily-called press conference last night. In March the extraction rate was raised to 85 per cent, compared with an average pre-war rate of 73 per cent. Announcing other steps to meet the world wheat shortage, he said output of biscuits and similar products will be reduced.

Word 'Ridiculous' Used by Howe Starts Verbal Spat with Premier Drew

Ottawa, May 3 —(CP)— The word "ridiculous" uttered by Reconstruction Minister Howe today set off a verbal spat between him and Premier Drew of Ontario, enlivening the proceedings of the Dominion-Provincial conference which so far have been carried on in a formal manner.

Mr. Howe uttered the word after Mr. Drew said a question of good faith on the part of the federal government was more involved now than it had ever been.

Mr. Drew said Finance Minister Ilsley had told the conference that the federal government had not asked for succession duties in 1941 because it knew it could not get the provinces to agree. Now the Dominion had come along and "demanded" that the provinces give up succession duties.

"Ridiculous," said Mr. Howe before Mr. Ilsley interjected that the federal government was not making a demand it was making an offer to the provinces.

Turning to Mr. Howe, Mr. Drew said "I haven't talked about you yet."

"Go ahead," retorted Mr. Howe.

Judgment Reserved Until May 16 in Carefoot Case

Following day-long taking of evidence against Ernest M. Carefoot, 201 MacDonald Ave., on a charge laid under the narcotics drug act, judgment was reserved by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county police court Thursday. With breaks for lunch and dinner, the case continued from ten-thirty in the morning until almost ten in the evening.

Judgment in the case will be given by Magistrate Wills on May 16th in county police court, unless otherwise stated.

Four principal witnesses were called by the Crown in seeking to establish that morphine vials had been found by police officers at the residence of Mr. Carefoot on March 19th, while defence counsel objected to the Crown calling two additional witnesses during the evening session after the Crown's case had been completed.

Defence counsel Arthur Slaght of Toronto, and Malcolm Robb of this city in turn called seven witnesses, including three members of the Carefoot family, in their effort to show that morphine allegedly found by police officers in Mr. Carefoot's small medical bag, was there without the owner's "authority, knowledge or consent." Several character witnesses testifying to the accused's honesty and integrity, were also called by the defence.

Ordered to Cease Investigation

While on the stand during the morning session, Provincial Constable J. Ernest Keays told the court that last year the Crown had ordered him to discontinue investigations into activities of Mr. Carefoot. This was brought out by defence counsel who asked if the constable had been investigating activities of his client in August, 1945.

"No sir," replied Keays, "I started an investigation, but on instruction from the Crown discontinued it."

The constable told of the investigation at the Carefoot residence on March 19th and of finding five bottles of morphine

U. S. Orders Drastic Cut In Railroad Service Because of Coal Strike

Virtually All Freight Shipments Banned, 25 P.C. Cut in Passenger Service

Washington, May 3. (AP) — Drastic curtailment of United States railroad service was ordered today, as President Truman voiced alarm at the acute situation created by the prolonged soft-coal strike.

The rail curb order clamps a ban on virtually all freight shipments except fuel and food and directs a 25-per-cent cut in passenger service on coal-burning railroads. Approximately three-quarters of the country's passenger mileage relies on coal.

The curtailed services go into effect a week from today, and the office of defence transportation warned that "much more severe" measures will be necessary if the strike does not end.

The presidential alarm over the strike's effects was echoed in high administration quarters where predictions were made that the "whole industrial economy will be seriously crippled within 20 days" if the mines continue idle. The strike entered its 33rd day today.

Nevertheless, settlement negotiations still gave no hint of any early break. On the contrary, Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the mine owners, reported that the last four days have been "completely" wasted.

Mr. Truman described the picture as serious in his press con-

EXPLOSIVE ISSUE OF PALESTINE NEARING CRISIS

Arab Committee Calls One-Day Strike, Gives "Next to Ultimatum"

London, May 3 —(AP)— The explosive problem of Palestine mounted swiftly toward a crisis today amid warnings from Arab leaders that the Holy Land might erupt in bloody strife if recommendations of the British-American inquiry committee are adopted.

The powerful Arab higher committee in Jerusalem called a one-day general strike of Arabs for today to protest against the inquiry committee's report and handed the British High Commissioner "the next thing to an ultimatum" stating that Arabs would prepare all means "to resume the national struggle" unless the report is rejected.

The secretary-general of the Arab league, Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha, declared in Cairo he had been informed the "ultimatum" demanded abandonment of the inquiry committee's recommendations "or all Arabs in Palestine will begin their war immediately."

In response to a question as to whether the members of the league — Egypt, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Transjordan and Yemen — would join the Arabs of Palestine in their struggle against the report, which includes a recommendation for immigration as soon as possible of 100,000 homeless European Jews to Palestine, Azzam Pasha replied:

COMMONS MAKES SLOW PROGRESS ON CITIZENSHIP BILL

House Passes Eight of 47 Sections and Three Left for Further Debate

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)— The Commons yesterday made slow progress with a detailed study of the Canadian citizenship bill and planned to resume the discussion today.

Going over individual clauses the House passed eight of the 47 sections and left three over fofr further debate. Amendments to reduce the probationary period for British subjects who desired to become Canadian citizens were rejected.

Two further amendments are pending on one of the sections which was not disposed of yesterday. One, proposed by State Secretary Martin who is sponsoring the bill, removes the necessity for British subjects to go before a court to obtain citizenship. If the amendment is adopted — and indications were that it would be—British subjects after fulfilling the five-year residence rule will merely make application for citizenship and unless there are exceptional circumstances it will be granted.

The other pending amendment came from John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) who opposed addition to the bill of a bill of rights for Canadian citizens.

At one point the contentious question of Japanese-Canadians was injected into the discussion. Howard Green (PC-Vancouver South) suggested there be a test which would determine whether or not citizenship should be revoked for disloyalty. He spoke particularly of naturalized and Canadian-born Japanese.

McTAGUE WANTS REVISED LAWS IN PRESENT CODE

Securities Head Says Threat of "Very Costly Bureaucracy" Seen Unless Laws Changed

Toronto, May 3 (CP) — The threat of "a very costly bureaucracy," controlling sales of securities was seen by Securities Commissioner C. P. McTague last night as "inevitable" unless changes are made in the present code and brokers themselves take more action in dealing with present problems.

The chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission said in his address to the annual dinner of the Toronto Stock Exchange last night that he was "floating a trial balloon" in proposing a complete new provincial code to reduce questionable practices and also reduce government intervention, giving brokers a greater voice in their own policing problems.

Four major changes were recommended by Mr. McTague in in the present set-up.

First was a "streamlined" Toronto Exchange Act, giving the stock exchange governing powers over purely exchange business.

Second was an Investment Dealers Act legalizing what he termed a "splendid job" by the Investment Dealers Association performed on a purely voluntary basis.

CONVENTION TOLD SCHOOL SYSTEM OUT OF DATE

Asks for Reduction of 6,000 Various Boards to 50 or 60 in Province

Toronto, May 2 — (CP)—Reduction of Ontario's 6,000 various school boards to 50 or 60 boards of education and drastic modernization of the school curriculum, with a study of contract bridge supplanting geometry, were two of the suggestions presented to the convention of the Associated High School Boards of Ontario yesterday.

The first suggestion came from Dr. A. C. Lewis, Dean of the Ontario College of Education, Toronto, who denounced Ontario's "ox-cart" school board system and argued against the present duplication of administrative bodies — public school boards, separate school boards, continuation school boards and high school boards. He suggested that a merger of all these into district boards of education would both increase administrative efficiency and provide a wider choice of school trustees.

"We must," he said, "get away from these small sections and their boards and set up an overall board in each district to take the child from elementary school to university."

Truman Critical of Questioning By 2 Reporters at Press Conference

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

Washington, May 3 (AP) — President Truman's unexpected press conference flare-up left Washington wondering today.

Yesterday the chief executive:

1. Sharply criticized one reporter for his line of questioning on the issue of merging army and navy.

2. Told another, but with a smile, it was none of his business what happened at a secret cabinet session Wednesday.

Mr. Truman opened his weekly conference by saying he had no announcements to make.

Many had expected to learn the name of a successor to the late Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone both as head of the Supreme Court and as one of its nine members, but to an early question, the President replied with a crisp, no comment. Later he said he still is trying to find the right man for the job.

Things went smoothly until Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune asked whether the President regarded Navy Secretary Forrestal's testimony before the Senate Naval Committee Wednesday as "lobbying against the merger bill."

The President said Mr. Forrestal was not opposing a merger and declared the reporter wouldn't have so much trouble if he would read these things carefully.

In his own story published in the Herald Tribune, Andrews said the President's use of "sharp language" was due to a misunderstanding which was "ironed out later, with no hard feelings."

Andrews did not use the first person in referring to the exchange of words, but spoke of "a reporter."

Unable to Agree With Proposals Made by Ontario

Would Cost Dominion 109 Millions More Than it Can Pay —Ilsley

Ottawa, May 3 — (CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley today told the Dominion-Provincial Conference the Dominion was standing by the proposals placed before the conference by Prime Minister King Monday. It could not agree to changes proposed by Ontario.

Mr. Ilsley was the first speaker at the opening of today's session. He reviewed proposals which had been advanced by Premier George Drew of Ontario which, he said would cost the Dominion an additional $134,000,000.

The revenue netted to the provinces under the Ontario plan would be greater than they would otherwise receive unless "very high" income and corporation taxes were levied by the provinces.

Mr. Ilsley said that acceptance of the Ontario proposals would cost the Dominion $109,000,000 more than it has said it can pay to the provinces in return for certain exclusive taxation rights.

The figure did not include what it would cost the Dominion to accept the Ontario proposals that it provide foreign exchange at par to provinces and municipalities. Neither would it include the cost of unemployed employables or pensions to the aged and the blind.

Pensions for Blind up

Pensions for the blind would cost $1,000,000. At a minimum the additional cost to the Dominion of old age pensions would be $17,000,000 and at a possible maximum it could be $113,000,000, depending on the age limit and whether a means test was provided.

Payment of full cost of the relief of unemployed employables was "entirely impractical." The Dominion had no close connection with local affairs. Even the Dominion offer to pay relief to

DREW WANTS REVISION OF PROPOSALS

GUARDS USE GRENADES

San Francisco, May 3 —(AP)— Alcatraz prison guards launched a vigorous attack with hand grenades on rioting convicts on the island prison shortly after 8 a.m. P.S.T. (noon E.D.T.) today.

DUPLESSIS READY TO QUIT

Ottawa, May 3 —(CP)— Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec today indicated to the Dominion-Provincial Conference that he saw no purpose in immediately continuing discussions.

ARABS HURL STONES

Jerusalem, May 3 —(Reuters) —A crowd of more than 1,000 Arabs assembled at the Damascus Gate in the old city of Jerusalem today began throwing stones at a platoon of British troops posted there.

The troops fired one warning shot in the air.

The demonstration came during a dawn-to-dusk stoppage call by the Palestine Arab higher committee in protest against the Anglo - American commission's report on Palestine.

SECOND GUARD FATALLY WOUNDED

San Francisco, May 3 —(AP)— A second guard was fatally wounded on embattled Alcatraz Island, "The Rock," as rioting by desperate convicts continued into the second day today.

Guard William A. Miller died in hospital as a new attack was launched to dislodge six of the United States' toughest convicts from their stronghold in a prison cell block.

Guard Harold P. Stiles was killed by machine-gun bullets at the outset of the rioting yesterday afternoon when convicts seized an arsenal.

ACCUSED GIVEN LASH

Brockville, May 3 (CP)—Sanford Kelsey, 45, Lyndhurst, today was sentenced to three to five months and five strokes of the strap for assaulting his wife, the mother of 11 children, following an argument over the monthly family allowance cheque.

Mrs. Kelsey testified she had borne five children at different times without medical assistance or care. Kelsey used one allowance cheque, she revealed, to buy two tires for his car, although he was out of work at the time.

Two Bushmen Believed Drowned

Timmins, May 3. (CP)—Believed to have lost their lives in the swift rapids of the Missinable river, Alphee Frenette, 25, and Wilfred Frenette, 27, bushmen, have been missing since April 26. They are brothers.

A canoe has been missing since they disappeared and authorities believe they went paddling on the swollen river, which empties into James Bay.

Employed at a lumber camp, eight miles north Mattice in Santkey Township, the brothers were to have followed a cutting party into the bush on April 26. Their absence was not reported to provincial police until the party returned to camp on Sunday, April 28.

An intensive hunt was made of the banks of the stream and the bush was patrolled for many miles. Searchers continued to drag the river today, but little hope is retained of finding the two men as the rapids are dangerous and the stream is in full flood.

His employer, it was revealed, was willing to continue to keep him on the payroll and accept restitution via wages reductions.

BROODER HOUSE FIRE DESTROYS 500 CHICKS

Thought to have originated from an oil brooder stove, fire Friday morning completely destroyed a brooder house and 500 two-weeks-old chicks at the home of George Caldwell, west of the Ontario School for the Deaf on No. 2 highway.

The Belleville Fire Department was called to the scene when sparks blown by a light breeze, endangered buildings owned by Mr. Chalmers. The blaze was brought under control with water from the city pumper, but not before a small woodshed at the rear of the brooder house was destroyed. The brooder stove had been giving uniform satisfaction, according to Mr. Caldwell.

U. S. ORDERS

ference yesterday. In time, he said, the shutdown of the soft-coal mines by 400,000 miners might be considered a strike against the government. Should matters reach that stage, he added, the government will act accordingly.

Certain Exemptions

The rail service curb order limits freight shipments to necessities, with priority for livestock, live poultry, perishable items, and these special classes of commodities:-

Coal, coke, charcoal and petroleum products, wood and feed, printing paper and printing inks; medicine, drugs, surgical instruments and hospital supplies; and shipments moving under special permits.

Freight traffic originating on and destined for points on a railroad not using coal burning locomotives will be allowed, regardless of the type of shipments.

On the passenger service reduction, the order left it to the individual railroads affected to work out their own methods for carrying out the 25-per-cent cut.

As strike settlement negotiations continued here, O'Neill, speaking for the operators, say meetings this week have been wasted because nothing has been discussed but the question of overtime pay arising from four major holidays in the last six months.

The operators asserted that John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, (A.F.L.) was demanding that this overtime-pay issue be settled before talking about a new contract that would end the strike. Lewis was not present at yesterday's session.

JUDGMENT

sulphate in Mr. Carefoot's black medical bag. Also in the bag had been a syringe, a hypodermic needle, a bundle of legal papers, and other articles.

He stated that as officer in charge of the investigation at the Carefoot home, he had not mentioned at that time that narcotics had been found in the black bag.

Sgt. Styran of the R.C.M.P. testified that samples of vials given to him by Constable Keays had been analyzed by a government analyst and found to be morphine sulphate. Constable Keays had told him the vials were taken from Mr. Carefoot's bag.

Denies Making Statement

Constable Keays was asked to state whether a few days prior to the arrest of Mr. Carefoot, he had visited in the Queensboro district and if he had made a statement to the Clarke family regarding Mr. Carefoot. The constable denied making any statement.

Appearing on the stand as defence witness, Mrs. Ella Clarke, Queensboro, told of Constable Keays and "another" man visiting her home seeking information regarding Mr. Carefoot.

James Clarke, Queensboro, also told of Constable Keays visiting his home in quest of information regarding Mr. Carefoot. When his wife had asked what they were going to do with Mr. Carefoot, Clarke stated the officer had replied that "Carefoot was a quack and a crook" and that they were going to jail him.

Says Wife Treated

Clarke told of his wife having been treated by Carefoot for a liver ailment and that he had paid 'about" $150. Under cross examination Clarke denied having said to the officer that he had paid Mr. Carefoot too much.

J. Vincent Doyle, and George Pauley, two Belleville druggists, testified that Mr. Carefoot had never to their knowledge asked for morphine at their stores.

Stanley Carefoot, aged 18 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carefoot, identified the "black bag" in which Constable Keays stated five morphine vials had been found during his search of the Carefoot residence on March 19th.

He told further of an incident occurring last August or September when after coming home from school he had seen his father empty the bag, crush a part vial of morphine and burn it in the stove.

Under cross examination Stanley Carefoot stated the reason the morphine had been destroyed was that his father had been warned that provincial police were investigating his activities.

The incident of the black bag was corroborated by Mrs. Carefoot who stated the family had come to Belleville in August 1935. She admitted that people had started to call at the residence for treatment by her husband in 1944, but stated never to her knowledge had Mr. Carefoot prescribed narcotics for any purpose since coming to Belleville.

Certificates Identified

Certificates showing that Mr. Carefoot was a graduate in medicine from Queen's University, and that he had taken post-graduate work in medicine in England and on the continent, were exhibited in court by defence counsel as Mr. Carefoot was called to the stand.

A former medical doctor in Saskatchewan, Mr. Carefoot stated he had done no general practice since 1923. He admitted to treating people who came to his home and also that under the Medical Act had been practising illegally. "I had not been practising, but merely treating people who came to the house," he said.

He denied having purchased any morphine for 23 years and stated he had not "used" his medical bag since discontinuing his practice 23 years ago. The vial of morphine which was destroyed last September "might have been from the old days," he said.

Under cross examination by Special Prosecutor E. E. Follwell, Mr. Carefoot admitted that when arrested on the narcotics charge he "might" have said if there were narcotics in his bag they must have been there for years.

Treatments Started in 1943.

People had started coming to his home for treatment in 1943, he stated, while in 1944 "not over 50" had come all year. He admitted there had been many more people come to his house in 1945.

"I kept no records, because I knew if my place was raided, it would be records, and names of patients, which the police would be after," Mr. Carefoot said.

"Why did you think you would be raided?" asked Mr. Follwell.

"It was just one of those things which you know," was the answer.

Asked if it was true that in treatment for cancer in the last stages it was the practice to give morphia, Mr. Carefoot replied, "I never used it."

Although Constable Keays had testified that legal papers, in addition to morphine and other articles, had been found in Mr. Carefoot's "black bag," the accused denied that the papers had been found where reported by the officer. "Those papers were never in the bag, but in my desk," he said.

Character Witnesses Called.

to the credibility of the accused's

Character witnesses called as testimony in the witness box included Mr. Percy Dalmage, Irvine Hefkey, J. Arnold Thomson and Warden James Nickle, the latter stating his wife had been treated by Mr. Carefoot.

When the Crown sought to call Inspector Monohan, investigator for the Provincial Police, to the stand at the opening of the evening session, defence counsel Slaght strongly objected, accusing the Crown of "splitting" its case, and also objecting on the grounds that Monohan had sat through the court when it was agreed witnesses were to be excluded from the court room.

"If Inspector Monohan's testimony will refer to what took place the night of March 19th, it would put the accused at a terrific disadvantage," stated counsel.

Magistrate Wills ruled Inspector Monohan's testimony was inadmissible.

Cpl. Speers of the R.C.M.P. was called to the stand under objection from defence counsel and referred to a statement made by Mr. Carefoot to his wife on the night of his arrest. Mr. Carefoot stated, Cpl. Speers said, that he did not know there were any drugs in the house, but if so, they must have been there for years. The officer stated Mr. Carefoot had made no statement that the drugs must have been planted.

Produces Syringe

Constable Keays was recalled to the stand and produced a second syringe which he said had been found in a cupboard.

This evidence again was objected to by defence counsel who asked what possible excuse the Crown had for bringing in new evidence following completion of its case.

In summing up defence counsel stressed the importance of the Clarke evidence and also held that the accused should be given the advantage of any doubt that the narcotics found in his client's bag were there without his knowledge or consent.

In reply Mr. Follwell held there was no need for Constable Keays to deny statements alleged in the Clarke testimony, while he also claimed variance in black bag "episode" to which the Carefoot family had testified.

This statement by the Crown concluded the case.

Consultations Approach End Of First Phase

London, May 3 — (Reuters) — Commonwealth consultations now under way here approached the end of their first phase today with Prime Minister Chifley of Australia due to leave for the United States Monday and Prime Minister Mackenzie King not due to arrive from Ottawa until May 18.

At yesterday's session of the Commonwealth leaders, Empire defence talks were recapitulated for Prime Minister Smuts of S. Africa who arrived late for the conference. The veteran South African statesman endorsed previously expressed opinions that there should be no formal and rigid machinery for Empire defence co-operation.

Observers expressed the view that the present system of loose liaison and exchange of views, and the maintenance of the "family" relationship of the Dominions, would continue unchanged, although the British government earlier suggested a somewhat tighter arrangement. Previous suggestions of military missions from Britain being stationed in the Dominions were not considered likely to be adopted.

Something less formal is desired by the Dominions. There was unanimous approval however for complete liaison and co-operation as scientific research and development of new weapons. Effect of new methods of warfare and communications were considered against the general strategic background.

No Discussion of Transfers of Plants

There have been no detailed discussions on possible transfer of British plants and equipment for scientific research or military supply to the Dominions, although such matters have been considered as part of the possible future strategic setup. No attempt has been made to formulate definite and rigid machinery for co-operation.

Documents submitted by the chiefs of staffs of both Britain and Dominions have been considered again and referred to the Dominions governments for further consideration, but all discussions it was emphasized were informal and no binding decisions have been or can be made.

On Thursday the conference also discussed the problem of the Polish forces, particularly Gen. Wladyslaw Anders' 1st Polish Corps in Italy. The question was reviewed but there was no discussion of what can be done to ensure the future of those Poles, stated to be "very many," who do not desire to return to Poland.

Dominion absorption of these men was not considered.

Today is the last meeting before Mr. Chifley leaves. It will be devoted to discussion of economic co-operation.

Viscount Alexander Accepts Honorary Presidency

Truckload of Beer Recovered After Chase Through District

City and provincial police cruisers raced through city and outlying districts this morning on the trail of a member of the light-fingered fraternity who had stolen the truck of a brewery company loaded with approximately 550 cases of beer.

The truck was finally located, abandoned two miles north of Highway No. 2 on the sideroad near Riley's Pavilion leading to the 2nd Concession of Sidney. The temporary owner is still at large but police are working on a number of leads.

The cargo of suds was intact with the exception of a few cases, found in the ditch a half mile north of where the abandoned truck was found, and which had been tossed off the vehicle, police believe, for future reference.

The driver of truck, Clarence Frobie, Kitchener, told police that the truck had a flat tire on one of the rear dual wheels and he had parked the vehicle outside a Front Street restaurant, while he went inside to telephone a garage.

But the fact that the motor was running and the keys left in the truck proved too much temptation for a passerby. The truck roared out of the city for destination unknown, while a surprised driver scratched his head in wonderment.

City police were notified and Inspector Hayes and Sergeant C. Arnott scoured the city in the police cruiser. Provincial Police joined the chase and cruisers took up the trail east and west of the city.

City police trailed the truck through to the 2nd Concession of Sidney, where the missing truck had been located by Provincial Police Constables G. G. Peer and Harry Caldwell.

Business Men Should Develop Closer Contact With Farmers Says Minister Of Health at Tweed C. of C. Dinner

Tweed, May 3rd (Special) — "Your town will be what you want it to be. It's not the town, it's you." So said the Honorable Russell T. Kelley, Provincial Minister of Health at the inaugural dinner of the Tweed Chamber of Commerce in St. Carthagh's Hall, Tweed, Thursday night.

Mr. Kelley urged the members to be community conscious. "Build up a community centre and spend your money in your own home town. As Tweed business men, take a deep interest in the farmers of the community. Have a picnic with them and get them interested in the Chamber of Commerce."

"The farmer must do a better job and he must be inspired to do it" he continued. "As business men, it is up to you to give the farmers this needed inspiration. Pay them a decent price for their produce and by so doing, encourage them to develop a good trading area in the community.

Mr. Kelley stated that he had been born on a farm near Teeswater and had always had a great deal of admiration for the farmer and the small man.

Lauds Decentralization

"One subject that is very dear to my heart is the decentralization of industry," said Mr. Kelley. "Build up the smaller centres in order to decentralize industry." The speaker mentioned a number of the smaller towns and villages that had adopted this plan. "Keep a record of your shipping, highway, railroad, and bus facilities so that you can supply any firm that is looking for a new location with this vital information," he urged.

"None of us in this old world can afford to have an enemy", offered Mr. Kelley. "Have a cheery nod and a pleasant smile for everyone. Strike off one or two "pikers" and on the average, the other fellow is just as good as you are."

The speaker said that he hoped that Tweed would develop a community spirit where everyone in town would be a "booster", not a "knocker."

"A word of encouragement for the Chamber of Commerce is that with a population of some 1400, the Tweed "News" has a circulation of well over 1400" continued the speaker. "This speaks well for their community spirit."

In conclusion, Mr. Kelley said that he hoped to hear about the progress of the Chamber of Commerce. "I hope that the time will not be wasted and that all will be "lifters" for Tweed and "lifters" for the better world for which so many of our young men gave their all."

Need United Effort

Chairman for the banquet was Reeve S. A. McCarey who welcomed the guests. "I hope that your visit to Tweed will be one of pleasure and profit." He mentioned the work of the various service clubs and said he hoped that everyone concerned would combine their efforts for the good of the village of Tweed.

Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., for Hastings East, introduced the speaker. In his remarks, he said that he was happy to be present at the inaugural dinner of the Chamber of Commerce. "I have always looked on Tweed as a very progressive village," he commented. In introducing Mr. Kelley, Mr. Robson said that it was a pleasure for him to introduce the speaker, a man who has given the public such wonderful service.

S. R. Curry introduced the next speaker, Mr. J. Hamill, field service representative of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Hamill outlined some of the plans that the Chamber of Commerce could undertake and promised to give every assistance possible to help the organization in Tweed.

J. J. Trudeau, representative of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce was present and said that the Belleville Chamber of Commerce was whole-heartedly behind Tweed's efforts to form a Chamber of Commerce and would give them every assistance possible.

Friendly Spirit

J. A. Pringle, M.P.P., for Lennox and Addington said that he appreciated the privilege of visiting Tweed and said that he liked to do business in Tweed because of the very friendly spirit among the business men. "I hope the Tweed Chamber of Commerce meets with great success" he said.

George Stokes, M.P., thanked the Chamber of Commerce for the very kind invitation and said among other things, that every effort must be put forth to succeed in trade and commerce in order to establish ourselves."

The Rev. Dean Cullinane and the Rev. A. L. Sisco expressed themselves as being very happy to be present and wished the organization every success.

Seated at the head table were the chairman, Reeve S. A. McCarey, Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., J. A. Pringle, M.P.P., George H. Stokes, M.P., J. Hamill, J. J. Trudeau, S. R. Curry, the Rev. A. L. Sisco and the Rev. Dean Cullinane.

The community singing was under the direction of Art Snare and Doris Curry and Betty Snare rendered several delightful piano duets.

The dinner was prepared by members of the Catholic Women's League.

Britain's Ablest Lawyer May Take Rose's Case

London, May 3 (CP Cable) — D. N. Pritt, K.C., was not available for comment today on reports in Montreal yesterday that he has been retained to defend Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive member of the Canadian parliament, facing charges laid in connection with Canada's probe into leakage of secret information to Russia.

However, the office of Mr. Pritt, one of Britain's highest-paid barristers, said 'dates will be a determining factor if he is going to handle the case."

Mr. Rose awaits trial this spring on two charges under the Dominion Official Secrets Act.

Mr. Pritt, who during the war was so pro-Russian that his views frequently created a sensation, currently is engaged in a colorful case before the privy council. He is acting for Ramendra Narayan Roy, who claims to be the Rajah of the Indian State of Bhowal.

The Ranee claims her husband died and was cremated on a funeral pyre in Darjeeling 37 years ago. Ramendra Narayan Roy says he escaped from the pyre alive but suffered loss of memory and wandered through India for 12 years without knowing his identity.

Mr. Pritt, a vivid character himself, sits as Independent Labor member for Hammersmith in the House of Commons. He was expelled from the Labor Party in 1940 because of his opposition to the party policy in the 1939-40 war between Russia and Finland. He retained his seat with an overwhelming majority in last year's general election.

SEARCH AMERICAN SOLDIERS

Paris, May 3 —(AP)— United States army military police and criminal investigation division agents swooped down early today on Paris haunts in search of American soldiers absent without leave or using forged papers to live outside the law. More than 700 agents combined for the manhunt with orders to seize every man in American army uniform found on Paris streets during that period.

Defence Counsel Submits Two Motions for Rose

Montreal, May 3. (CP)—Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure of the Court of King's Bench today set May 7 as the date for hearing of two motions submitted by defence counsel, Joseph Cohen on behalf of Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament charged with offences under the Official Secrets Act and with conspiracy.

One motion asked for particulars in connection with various counts in the indictment against Rose that refer to the Official Secrets Act. Cohen said he would refer to these alleged offences as "substantive offences."

The second motion asked for separate trials on the alleged "substantive offences" and the conspiracy charges.

Rose, who represents Montreal Cartier in the Commons, is charged with unlawfully communicating information to the Soviet Union and with conspiring to communicate such information. Cohen said he would make no motion in connection with the conspiracy counts in the indictment.

Rose made a pro forma appearance in the King's Bench Court this morning at the opening of the May assizes. His trial has been set for May 20 and he is free on bail of $25,000.

He was not called to the box but was told to report to the Court again next Tuesday.

Dr. Raymond Boyer, McGill University professor and National Research Council employee who faces charges similar to those against Rose, also was scheduled to make a pro forma appearance today. He is free on $15,000 bail and date for his trial has not yet been set.

UNABLE

the extent of 85 per cent of unemployment insurance benefits amounted to an "open-ended commitment," for which no estimate was possible.

But taking merely the minimum costs of the exchange, blind pensions and old age pensions proposals of Ontario, the Dominion would come into an additional financial obligation of $25,000,000.

This added to the other $109,000,000 made a total of at least $134,000,000.

His figures, Mr Ilsley said, were based on 1947 estimates.

Acceptance of the Ontario proposals would mean that tax transfers and payment of subsidies would total more than all provincial revenues before the war, "something like $50,000,000 more."

This was "entirely out of the question for the Dominion."

Ontario's Suggestion

Ontario suggested yesterday that the annual rental to the provinces for getting out of income and corporation taxes by $12 multiplied by the gross national production per capita for the year before the payment, divided by the gross national production per capita for the year 1941, multiplied by the province for the year preceding the rental.

Mr. Ilsley said Ontario had also proposed that this rental not include the statutory subsidies now being paid by the Dominion. Ontario had asked that the Dominion not collect succession duties, gasoline, amusement, security transfers, pari-mutuels and electricity.

The statutory subsidies amounted to $17,000,000, the giving up of the tax revenues suggested would amount to $102,000,000 annually and the rental to the provinces for income and corporation taxes would total $188,000,000.

This meant that the Ontario proposals would cost the Dominion $307,000,000 next year. The Dominion's proposed subsidies to the provinces would cost an estimated $198,000,000 next year, making a difference of $109,000,000 in the two sets of offers.

Consider it a Fair Order

Mr. Ilsley said he still considered the Dominion proposals "a fair offer". They would give the provinces an amount 59 per cent over those received under the wartime tax agreements. Those agreements had given the provinces an annual average of $124,801,000 while the present Dominion proposals would give $198,200,000.

Unless the provinces planned to levy "very high" income and corporation taxes if they turned down the Dominion plan he did not think they could reasonably expect to receive nearly as much through occupation of those fields.

In addition to the subsidy payments, however, the Dominion had also offered other commitments such as social security, public investment and unemployment assistance benefits.

The Dominion, he said, must adhere to the position that its financial stand was as already stated by Mr. King and himself earlier this week. This position is that the Dominion has gone as far as it can insofar as costs are concerned.

Police Believe Man Who Died Started Fire

Woodstock, May 3 (CP) — Trapped in his blazing home, Albert J. Findley, 38-year-old father of three children, died yesterday in a fire which police and fire officials said they believe he had started himself.

His wife and three children, seven-year-old Allan, four-year-old Janet and one-year-old Tommy, were unhurt. The boy Allan was said to have told police: "My father poured turpentine on the floor and then struck the matches. I saw him strike the last one and then I ran out the door. He told me to get out."

Findley had been in the rear portion of the small frame house and the rest of the family were in the front when Mrs. Findley noticed flames coming from the rear. The mother and children raced out and summoned police and firemen but the little home was a mass of flames when they arrived and they were helpless to aid Findley despite his wife's appeals that he be saved.

"It was impossible to get in to save him," said Fire Chief S. G. Hayes. "There is not much doubt that he set fire to it with some inflammable material."

Police who arrived at the same time as the firemen said the heat was so intense from the blaze that "you couldn't get near the shack."

Fire Chief Hayes found an empty tin which may have contained inflammable paint remover.

Findley was to have appeared in court next Monday on a charge of assaulting his wife. Mrs. E. Roberts, next-door neighbor, said that the man "appeared to be intoxicated" shortly before the fire broke out.

An official of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office is expected today to investigate the fire. Police said that an inquest will be held.

Ontario's Proposal Would Cost Govt. 100 Million More

By R. K. CARNEGIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)—Financial experts connected with the Dominion-Provincial Conference today were comparing Ontario's offer for straightening out the tax deadlock with the Dominion's offer.

Finance Minister Ilsley said yesterday Ontario's proposal would cost the Dominion roughly $100,000,000 more than under the offer Prime Minister Mackenzie King made on Monday and which has since been maintained by Dominion spokesmen.

Experts said the difference in the per capita subsidy between the two proposals was not great. The important totals would result from Ontario's demand that the Dominion vacate altogether such tax fields as succession duties, gasoline, amusement and pari-mutuel.

On per capita subsidy the Dominion proposed to pay the provinces a minimum of $15 a year per head of population calculated on the basis of the population of 1941 or 1942. This was to be increased if the gross national production went up.

Ontario Formula

The Ontario formula was to multiply $12 by the gross national production for the year immediately preceding the year the subsidy was paid, divided by the gross national production for 1941. This wouldn't be much higher than the Dominion's offer. The provinces, however, would gain if their populations grew because the latest population figures would be used instead of 1942.

The Ontario formula also provided that the $17,000,000 paid annually in statutory subsidies to the provinces would be in addition to the per capita subsidy for vacating taxation fields while it formed part of the $15 minimum the Dominion proposed.

The Dominion further would lose $30,000,000 in its three-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline, and some $53,000,000 from its succession and other taxes that Ontario insists must be discontinued.

The Dominion offered to leave these fields if the provinces could devise some plan to take over other Dominion commitments so the Dominion would not actually be out of pocket.

Prefer Dominion Way

Many of the provinces claim they prefer to leave the Dominion collecting its gasoline tax. Some of them are taxing gasoline 10 cents a gallon and could not add another three cents if the Dominion vacated the field. Then the provinces do not tax farmers for the gasoline they use for their farm machinery, but the Dominion levies its tax on this use.

If the Dominion dropped its five per cent take from betting in the pari-mutuels at the race tracks the provinces could increase their take an equal amount, but several of the provinces have no race tracks and would not benefit.

Four Are Charged With Prison Camp Murder of Friend

Medicine Hat, Alta., May 3 — (CP) — Preliminary hearing of four German non-commissioned officers charged with the prison camp murder of a comrade entered its third day in Magistrate's Court here today.

Sgt. Maj. Willi Mueller — in the witness box yesterday for more than two hours — SSM. Bruno Perzonowski, Sgt. Maj. Heinrich Busch and Sgt. Walter Wolf, all in their early 30s, are accused of murdering Karl Lehmann in Medicine Hat camp Sept. 10, 1944.

Lehmann's body was found hanging from a pipe.

Mueller testified he had written and signed a statement implicating himself and Perzonowski in the slaying but both Crown and defence counsels, W. D. Gow and Walter Rice, asked the contents of the statement be kept from the press because they might not be admitted as evidence in a higher court should the prisoners be sent before one.

Mueller added he had been told the other three accused also had written and signed statements and that he himself had written a second but he refused to identify the signature on it as his or answer any questions about it.

He told Magistrate Ellis he realized he could be held in contempt of court for his refusal. Mr. Rice said he had instructed Mueller not to answer because he felt he should not have been called as a witness under the circumstances.

THE RETURN OF SCARLET

Vivien Leigh, who played Scarlet O'Hara in the movie version of "Gone With the Wind," and her husband, Laurence Olivier, whom you remember as "Heathcliffe" in Wuthering Heights, are shown as they arrived on a Pan-American Constellation from London. They came with the old Vic Theatre Company of London to keep a six-week engagement in New York. The entire company, 29 in number, made the flight. This is believed to be the first time such a group flew the oceans to fulfil a theatrical engagement.

McTAGUE WANTS

Want Dealers Act

Third was a security dealers act for security dealers who at present are neither under the stock exchange nor the Investment Dealers Association.

Fourth was a rewritten securities act co-ordinating all the commissioner's proposed changes in the laws.

He asked: "What do you want in the Street; do you want a continuation of bureaucratic government agency control as initiated in the act of 1931, or do you want to participate in the governing of the business in which you are engaged?

"In my opinion you, as members of the stock exchange, are at a definite parting of the ways. Either you are going to let nature take its course and build up a straight expensive bureaucracy for which you will pay a substantial part of the cost, or you will co-operate with us and the rest of the Street in building up a form of self-government which will apply to every phase of the security business."

Mr. McTague declared that Canadian brokers potentially had one of the greatest security markets on the North American continent, with tremendous wealth in the country to the south.

Can't Wink at Practices

"A reasonable proportion of that wealth can be made to flow to this market, but it just cannot be made to flow by winking at practices which are abhorrent to the most influential section of the people of that country, and by violation of the laws of that country," he said.

"We have received the most cordial co-operation from the United States securities and exchange commission and a great many of the State Commissions since we took on our present task."

R. J. Breckenridge of the Exchange Management Committee said there was much in the plans put forth by the commissioner to claim serious attention of the security dealers.

J. B. White, chairman of the meeting, announced plans for brokers to visit various mining districts this summer. The first party leaves June 6 for Noranda, the Malartics and the Larder Lake District.

Ample Evidence To Justify Building Of Waterway

Washington, May 3 (AP)—A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee yesterday expressed approval of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

The report, based on nearly three weeks of hearings on the more-than-$600,000,000 international project, declared there is "ample evidence" to justify its construction.

The subcommitee said the seaway would bring savings in transportation costs amounting to as much as 50 per cent of present land and water transportation costs of some overseas shipments. It added there is ample traffic for the seaway and existing transportation facilities.

With reference to the power development, the report stated:

"There is no section in which complete rural electrification would mean more to the agricultural economy than to the diversified farming interests in the northeast with dairying and poultry raising preeminent."

Total cost the committee said, is estimated at $619,500,000. Of this Canada has already spent $132,672,000 and the United States $31,742,000.

E. H. Macklin

One of the great figures who helped to make the press of Canada what it is today was E. H. Macklin, dean of Western Canadian journalism and one of the founders of The Canadian Press. His death occurred this week at Winnipeg. He had been fifty-six years in newspaper work before his retirement. Moving from Toronto to Winnipeg at the turn of the century he saw and had a great part in the changes which time has brought to the West. He saw Winnipeg grow to become one of the great cities of the Dominion of Canada and had no small share in the Western development in newspaper and other fields.

The Canadian Press which today is the great co-operative news-collecting agency and through it the newspapers and the people of Canada owe a great debt to this man for it is one of the results of the labors of this pioneering genius. He helped to found the Western Associated Press in 1907, followed ten years later by the establishment of The Canadian Press. He was honorary president of this organization and a director until nine years ago.

Mr. Macklin was a colorful figure and his memory will long linger while the results of his pioneering spirit and his vision will remain and be reflected in the years to come. To men of his type the Canada of today owes a large measure of its progress and many of the fine opportunities it provides for the future.

Canadian newspapermen honor the memory of this outstanding man.

Lidice to Live Again

Lidice will live again. This is the hope of the people of Czechoslovakia.

All the evil that was in Hitler and the fiendish regime he set up cannot prevent it. The foulness of murder to which the men of Lidice fell victims did not conquer.

It is said that about fifty children who hailed from Lidice have been found near Hamburg, and thirty or forty are still missing. The report of their finding disclosed that only 18 Lidice children had been previously found, mostly one or two at a time in scattered sections ranging from Germany to Czechoslovakia.

Now too a child, the first, has been born to a Lidice family, Jan Stephan Kucera, whose father was in a German prison when the Germans shot the men of the town. That baby Jan is seen as the assurance that Lidice will arise and that about him will gather the nucleus of a population that will restore Lidice.

German atrocities could not entirely destroy the population of the little mining town.

Symbolic of life is the thought that from this little beginning will rise a new Lidice, the best memorial to the men of that place who were murdered by the aggressors.

Television in Britain

On June 7th the British Broadcasting Corporation will transmit its first regular television program since noon of September 1st, 1939, when the war interrupted this thriving young industry in Britain. There are now to be daily programs from three to four in the afternoon and from eight-thirty to ten at night. In addition, there will be a special hour's program on week-day mornings at eleven so that radio manufacturers and dealers can demonstrate the sets to prospective buyers.

It is expected that on June 8th, B.B.C. will televise the Victory Parade and celebrations in London. The broadcast will be made from B.B.C.'s studios in the Alexandra Palace, with further broadcasts outside the Palace, including scenes on the Mall.

When the coming of war closed down British television and the manufacture of sets, Britain occupied an advanced position in the field. Over three years earlier, in July, 1936, B.B.C. had presented the first regular transmissions of television programs in the world. These daily programs consisted of plays, variety shows, operettas, fashion shows, sporting events, spot news. movies, ballets, talks, and other types of entertainment and instruction.

About 30,000 individuals had purchased home television receivers, which meant that, with a minimum of three viewers for each set, almost 100,000 people were regularly seeing television programs at home, not to speak of thousands who had access to sets in stores, radio shops, and other public buildings. The cost of a home receiving set was at first about £75 ($375 at the prewar rate of exchange, but was later cut down to less than half that amount.

Plays of every type appeared on the screen: Shakespeare, Ibsen, Kaufman and Hart, "Alice in Wonderland," "Abraham Lincoln," "Night Must Fall." All kinds of sports save baseball were successfully televised: football, cricket, field and ice hockey, polo, tennis, billiards, boxing, and racing.

The transmission range was generally between twenty-five and thirty miles. Sending was not limited to the studio only, however. Mobile equipment permitted televising of programs outside the studio, an achievement accomplished two ways: sending pictures by very short-wave back to the home station for fixing to the main transmitter, and using underground television cable permanently laid in London. The latter method employed ordinary telephone lines, three or four miles in length, connecting the mobile truck to the cable.

The B.B.C. sending sets had a picture of 405 lines, and sent twenty-five pictures a second, specifications known as the London Standards. It has been decided that post-war operations will be on the same lines as prewar thus receiving sets already in existence can continue in use. The United States now operates on 525 lines and thirty pictures a second.

Jobs for Scots

J. Westwood, Secretary of State for Scotland, speaking at the annual convention of the Royal Burghs of Scotland in Edinburgh, said there were going to be plenty of jobs in Scotland.

No other part of Britain had more thoroughly prepared itself for the future.

Mr. Westwood said he believed that people were beginning to "realize that there was a future for this nation of ours." That counted for a great deal. After the last war a good many Scots folk felt that the old country had no further use for them.

"Developments either completed or in progress of completion will result in work for about 85,000 people," continued Mr. Westwood.

—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Scottish Generosity

It is said that all the jokes about Scottish meanness are made in Aberdeen. Certainly it will be hard to repeat them in Lancashire after the announcement that the Council of the Scottish Football Association has decided to give the whole proceeds of the international match between Scotland and England to the fund for the victims of the Bolton disaster. This money, which normally would go to help the Scottish clubs, will be by far the biggest contribution yet offered. This is generosity on the grand scale, and the news of it will make many wonder whether there is not, after all, some truth in the old belief that sport is a bond between nations.

Newspaper Facts

"Newspapers are the best medium for carrying the retail hardware dealer's selling message to his buying public" . . . states Fred R. Olmstead of the National Retail Hardware Association.

In a Winnipeg groceteria a woman shopper halted at the cashier's counter with a package of shortening atop her basket, says Maclean's Magazine. The cashier clerk stared for a moment, then said: "Madam, where did pou get that? We had shortening yesterday, but it was sold in a few minutes."

"I know," said the shopper triumphantly,, "I was here yesterday too, but I didn't have enough money. So I hid the shortening in the store until today!"

JUST FOLKS

HUMAN BAROMETER

In days of old my grandpa told
The weather by his pains.
He'd often say: "It's nice today,
But we are due for rains.
The way I feel, from head to heel,
A storm is on the way.
Quite sure that is. My 'rheumatiz'
Is kicking up today."

Though skies were blue, my grandpa knew
How soon they'd turn to gray.
He'd warn: "I'll bet you'll all get wet
If far from home you stray.
The way I ache, umbrellas take
Or close to shelter stay.
I'm telling you, a change is due,
I'm full of pain today."

His great, right toe somehow could know
The east wind from the west.
Of weather lore his knees had more
Than Uncle Sam possessed.
When grandpa said, with shaking head:
"I look for rain tonight.
My 'rheumatiz' a sure sign is!"
Quite often he was right.

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Palestine Problem And Inquiry Recommendation

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

The Anglo-American inquiry committee's report on the white-hot Palestine problem lies heavy on a lot of chests.

This report among other things recommends that 100,000 Jewish immigrants be permitted to enter Palestine forthwith, whereas the British policy has provided for about 15,000 yearly. The report maintains that the Holy Land shall be neither a Jewish nor an Arab state. It calls for suppression of Arabian and Jewish violence, which has boiled up afresh of late and in itself presents a tall order.

Both Arabs and Jews have attacked the report. The matter of immigration alone was enough to make the kettle boil over, for the Arabs are against increasing the Jewish population, and the Jews want not a mere 100,000 permits but 1,000,000. The Arabs have proclaimed a symbolic general strike in Palestine for Friday and. are calling on neighboring Arab states for support.

Cautious Reserve

Britain, which holds the mandate for Palestine, has received the report with cautious reserve—summed up in the words of Prime Minister Attlee that England does not want to have to implement a policy which would involve her alone in heavy commitments. He wants to know to what extent the United States would be prepared to share the resultant military and financial responsibilities.

Proponents of the idea that Palestine is an international issue dig up some formidable arguments. Still Palestine is a key position in Britain's Eastern Mediterranean zone of influence.

Situation Grave

The Palestine situation has become grave again at a critical moment for Britain, because her domination of the Mediterranean has been imperilled by the post-war realignment of zones of influence. Russia is insisting on her place in the Mediterranean sun and is even asking for a hand in the control of the Italian colony of Tripolitania in North Africa, dominating Britain's life-line to the Middle East and the Far East.

Furthermore, Egypt, which lies right alongside the Suez Canal and is one of Britain's most vital posts on the Imperial route, is demanding that Britain clear out of the country altogether. And now comes the trouble in Palestine—another strategic safeguard, and site of the port of Haifa which is the terminus of one of the great pipelines that pour oil from the Iraq petroleum fields into British naval and commercial ships.

Among the highlights of the Anglo-American report is the one in which the committee comments on its recommendation "that Palestine shall be neither a Jewish nor an Arab state." Committee members say: —

"We therefore emphatically declare that Palestine is a Holy Land, sacred to Christian, to Jew and to Moslem alike; and because it is a Holy Land, Palestine is not and never can become a land which any race or religion can justly claim as its very own."

Predicts Industrial Strife

Toronto, May 3 (CP)— Ontario, as the leading industrial province, may be the scene—and it may be soon—of great industrial strife, Ontario C.C.F. leader E. B. Mr. Jolliffe said a vast conspiracy, sponsored by "big business" and with the backing of the Tory party, was afoot to get all the price controls lifted, so that prices would go sky high.

THE SISTERS FANATIC

For more than four years my sister and I have lived on fresh raw milk direct from the farm, home made cottage cheese, fruits, dried fruits and bananas, Sometimes we eat vegetables, meat, fish and eggs but we don't enjoy such food so much, so we go back on the milk and fruit diet. We consume two quarts of milk a day, cottage cheese, and whatever fruit may be in season or available. Is this too large a bulk of food for a girl eighteen? We seem to thrive on this diet, but our family insist we are eating wrong and that we are getting insufficient vitamins and minerals. They call us fanatic (Miss F. C.)

The food is not too bulky. Probably you get as good a daily ration of vitamins and minerals from your milk and fruit diet as other members of your family get from their diet. In fact I can't find any fault with your diet—especially if you do, as you say, sometimes eat meat, eggs, vegetables and fish.

You say you have thrived on the diet for four years. That is a better criticism than any opinion I can offer. You don't thrive if you suffer from any nutritional deficiency.

I would not recommend a milk and fruit diet as the best diet for ordinary folk. It seems to me that even if meat, eggs, fish and vegetables are taken occasionally, there is still something lacking. That is wheat. Plain wheat, not any refined or fancy product.

Why not have a go at it—you should be able to find some plain wheat at the public market, the farmers' market, the feed store, the seed store, even at the grocery store—take a few pounds of it home. Wash it with running water, crack it in coffee grinder coarsely, cook it as little as you like, and eat it as breakfast cereal. Or chew a handful of it every day —it beats gum chewing. Or send me a stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing, (not with a clipping, please) for the pamphlet "Wheat to Eat" which tells how to use plain wheat in the everyday dietary and why.

There's just one thing — when you girls ask for plain wheat the feed store man, seed store man or market man is pretty certain to regard you as more than fanatic. I know. They do it every time!

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Vitamins

In some of the recipes in your pamphlet "Wheat to Eat" I notice there is baking powder or soda. I always thought either of these kills vitamins.

(Mrs. F. H.)

Answer—Making powder or soda hastens oxidation and destruction of vitamin C, but has no significant effect on other vitamins:

Girdle

I had appendicitis operation December 10th. How long will it be necessary to wear a girdle? I do not like to wear harness. Will it be safe to go swimming as early as June 10? (Miss C. M.)

Answer—If you were at all fit, that is, not utterly flabby and soft before the operation, you hardly need any other support or bandage or girdle than you would ordinarily wear. The surgeon probably did not cut out any muscle, only the appendix. So why pamper yourself forever more? Great Gosh, girl, you might have gone swimming three weeks after the operation. Why not?

The Seven Keys to Vite

Please send me a book of exercises that will help me to be supple and graceful. I am 28, have two children and am 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighs 120 pounds.

(Mrs. B. R. H.)

Answer—You should try to gain about ten pounds. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self - addressed envelope, for booklet "The 7 Keys to Vite." Inclose ten cents additional if you want the pamphlet "How to Gain Weight."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did Mt. Desert Island get its name?

Mt. Desert Island, lying off the coast of Maine, was discovered in the fall of 1604 by Samuel de Champlain while exploring the Acadian coast west of St. Croix. Champlain named the island "L'Isle des Monts Deserts," the isle of desert mountains, because from where he saw the island the rocky summits of the mountains appeared bare, wild and solitary.

Champlain, when he named the island, may also have had in mind the name of his patron, Pierre de Gast Sieur de Monts, who is known in history as Sieur de Monts. Sieur de Monts was a Huguenot and a favorite of Henry IV of France. He visited the St. Lawrence in 1603 and in 1604-1605 he and Champlain explored the coast from New Brunswick to Cape Cod. As director of the Canadian Company Sieur de Monts in 1605 founded the first French colony in Canada at what is now Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia. At that time the French applied "Acadia" to a vast region along the coast. Later that name was restricted to a district in Nova Scotia.

The English rendered "L'Isle des Monts Deserts" simply "Mt. Desert Island."

The island is 15 or 16 miles long and six or seven wide, and as early as the 1870's it had become a fashionable summer resort because of the beauty of its mountain and lake scenery.

In 1916 some 5,000 arces lying on the island south of Bar Harbor was set aside by President Wilson as the Sieur de Monts National Monument to commemorate the founding in 1604 of the first European settlement in North America north of the Carolinas by Sieur de Monts.

It was the first national monument and park created east of the Mississippi and is the only one bordering on the Atlantic.

In 1919, after the area had been almost doubled, the Sieur de Monts National Monument was given the status of a national park and its name changed to Lafayette National Park in honor of the memory of the French Revolutionary hero.

Again in 1929 Congress changed the name to Acadia National Park and provided for further enlargement. The "mountains" on Mt. Desert Island are the highest adjacent to the American Atlantic coast. In spite of the impression that Champlain had of the island, the vegetation in places is exceptionally vigorous, and luxuriant; but in the discoverer's day "desert" still implied a deserted or unpeopled wilderness rather than a barren place.

That Peary Trip To Pole

(The New York Times)

The death of Capt. Bob Bartlett turns back the memory to a time when the people of this country were divided, not so much into Republican and Democrat, as between those who believed passionately in Peary, and those who, with equal fervor, were supporters of Dr. Cook. It was probably the hottest controversy we have had in this century, its reverberations were heard aroun dthe world, and the issues are still good for an argument.

Now one more figure in that controversy is gone, and we have with us a generation to which the date of April 6, 1909, produces only a blank stare. It was then, of course, that Robert E. Peary reached the North Pole, the first man from the civilized world to do so in four centuries of striving.

Begun by Henry VIII

Gilbert H. Grosvenor of the National Geographic Society has traced these attempts back to the time of King Henry VIII. Henry Hudson in 1607 rounded Spitzbergen and travelled as far north at 80° 23'. His record stood for 166 years, and then was beaten only twenty-five miles by J. C. Phipps, who had with him a young lad of 15 who later became Lord Nelson.

Parry in 1827 thought he would use reindeer to pull his sledges, but gave up in favor of men. Sir John Franklin in 1845 led the most tragic of all Arctic explorations, in which he and more than a hundred others died of starvation. His men "fell down and died as they walked". In 1897 Andree with two companions started toward the Pole in a balloon. They were never heard from again.

So it was against a background of hundreds of years of failure that Peary, a Bowdoin graduate second in his class, Phi Beta Kappa, and with a record of throwing a baseball 316 feet, began thinking about the North Pole.

Lifetime With One Aim

He was not yet 30 when this dream came to him, while on an expedition to Nicaragua. He was to be 53 years old when it was fulfilled, after about twenty-five years during which he though of almost nothing else.

It was on March 30, 1909, that Peary left Captain Bob behind at 87° 46' 49", and began the sledge journey which was the last lap of the successful expedition. This was 133 nautical miles from the Pole. Peary had with him his Negro bodyguard Matthew Henson, four Eskimos, five sledges and forty dogs. There was food enough for forty days, or fifty by gradual use of the dogs. Peary could remember "many times when from sheer starvation I had been glad to eat dog meat raw," so he was prepared for anything.

Planting the Flags.

Everything went smoothly, but when the Pole was actually in sight Peary was too tired to take the last few steps. He slept several hours, then planted five flags, one a silk American flag his wife had given him fifteen years before, and which he had carried wrapped around his body on all his trips. He also planted the colors of Delta Kappa Epsilon, his college fraternity.

Henson was now told to "time the Eskimos for three rousing cheers, which they gave with the greatest enthusiasm." Peary shook hands all around, and a few hours later the party started the long trip back to rejoin Bartlett.

Dr. Cook Breaks Some News

It was six months before news of this exploit reached the outer world, and it was to be preceded by the most fantastic incident in the long history of exploration.

On Sept. 1 of that year, 1909, word came from Dr. Frederick A. Cook, a previous associate of Peary in explorations, that he had reached the North Pole on April 21, 1908—that is, about a year earlier than Peary.

It was just five days after this bomb-shell burst that news came from Indian Harbor, Labrador, of Peary's discovery. Cook arrived at Copenhagen, received a tremendous reception, walked down the gangplank with the Crown Prince of Denmark, notified President Taft of his feat, and received a congratulatory cable in return. For five days he was acclaimed as one of the world's great.

End of the Trail

Doubts of his story were heard at once, but he was still riding the crest of something like a wave when he reached New York, was hailed by the Alderman and rode through the streets with a wreath of roses around his neck. He was finally to stand disgraced, expelled from the Explorers Club and the Arctic Club of America. He died at 75 in New Rochelle, N.Y., in 1940.

Peary had preceded him twenty years in death. He is buried in Arlington Cemetery with the heroes, a man of one fixed idea which he consummated on his eighth journey into the Arctic wilderness where he had spent twelve years of twenty-three between his thirtieth and fifty-third years, using the intervening years to make ready for each new attempt.

BEFORE BRITAIN LIFTED BARS

Eleven hundred Jews aboard a schooner at La Spezia, Italy, stated that they were "determined to blow up the ship and themselves" if barred from proceeding to Palestine, according to the head of the Italian Zionist organization. They stated further that if British authorities continued temporizing them they would again go on a hunger strike. The refugees come from many parts of war-torn Europe and, strangely enough, not one of them speaks Italian. The photo shows hbw the ship is used as a home and the dock as a place of recreation, sunbathing and for the hanging wash. Britain finally allowed their admission.

MAINTENANCE OF PEACE

Toronto, May 3 —(CP)— One of the most important tasks for which labor must dedicate itself this May Day is the maintenance of peace which is already threatened, Dewar Ferguson, vice-president of the Canadian Seamen's Union, told a May Day meeting. If reactionaries who want war are "successful in their attempts to bring on war, let me warn you that Canada will be the battleground," he said.

Operation Only Chance To Save "Blue Baby"

Toronto, May 3. (CP) — A chance to live and play and grow up without the shadow of sickness and death continually hanging over her became a possibility today for a Toronto "blue baby" six-year-old Audrey West.

Dr. John Keith, heart specialist of the Hospital of Sick Children, has informed Audrey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles West, that there might be one chance to save their daughter. He said that an operation that has cured "blue babies" in the United States might be advisable in Audrey's case.

Audrey was born a "blue baby" and has fought a losing battle since infancy against the heart condition which denies her body an adequate supply of oxygen.

Mr. and Mrs. West are anxiously awaiting the final decision of doctors on whether an operation can be performed or not. They are also worrying about the cost, knowing that the father's wages as a coal yard worker are not nearly high enough to pay expenses.

Thinks Conference Would Go Better Without Lawyers

Ottawa, May 3. (CP)—Premier Walter Jones of Prince Edward Island, a farmer, had a word of jocular criticism for the five lawyers who as premiers are attending the Dominion-Provincial conference.

"Did you ever see a satisfactory agreement reached when you get a bunch of lawyers arguing?" he asked while the galleries and representatives on the conference floor laughed.

"The best plan is to do like we do down in my province. We get around a table and find a solution and then hire the lawyers to come in—that is the most satisfactory way."

The five lawyer-premiers are: J. B. McNair, New Brunswick; Angus MacDonald, Nova Scotia; Maurice Duplessis, Quebec; George Drew, Ontario; Stuart Garson, Manitoba.

Former Windsor Boxer Wins Rich Movie Contract

Windsor, May 3. (CP)—Three weeks after he was picked up by one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's talent scouts at a Detroit dancing academy, 28-year-old Clarence (Caesar) Murphy, former Windsor heavyweight boxer and all-round athlete, has a five-year movie contract in his pocket and is on a train heading for Hollywood.

He has been hired as an adagio dancer and his contract starts at $300 a week.

He has been working at the Ford Motor Company of Canada as an accountant since his discharge from the R.C.A.F. a year ago last January. Prior to enlisting with the air force he won many honors around Windsor in the field of sports as a heavyweight boxer and a swimmer. He also practiced adagio dancing and fencing and during the past year he has attended a dancing school in Windsor where he has received a specialized training in different forms of dancing. He had hoped to start a dancing school of his own soon.

Citation Clears Up Mystery of U.S. Award to Canadian

Toronto, May 3. (CP)— Earl W. Wrightman of Toronto, who said a few days ago that he did not know why he had been awarded the United States Bronze star, had the mystery cleared up yesterday with word from Washington that the award was for his feat in killing three Germans and capturing 26 prisoners and an anti-tank gun on the Rouen-Dieppe road in August, 1944.

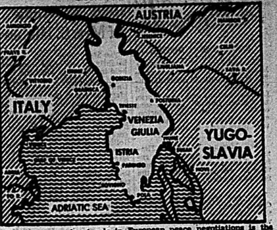
When he first received word of the award Wrightman was puzzled because, he said, at no time during his five years service overseas was he attached to any American unit. But the citation for the award told the story. It was issued by command of Supreme Allied Commander Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, and recounted that the award was for heroic action by Wrightman "when in command of the 11th Troop, 'C' squadron, of the 8th Canadian Reconnaissance Regiment."

2,338,533 Persons Donated Blood During the War

Toronto, May 3. (CP)—Dr. J. T. Phair in a final report to the Central Council of The Canadian Red Cross in session here yesterday said the Wartime National Blood Donor Service received donations from 2,338,533 persons from January 1940 to August 1945. Nine hundred and thirty donors gave 20 or more donations, he said.

Chairman of the National Corps Committee, Norman S. Caudwell, in his report said that 190 Red Cross members went overseas in 1945 to serve with the overseas detachment in the United Kingdom, Italy or Northwest Europe. Mr. Caudwell said that the number of active members of the Corps at any particular period reached its peak about VE-Day when the overall enrolment was more than 6,000.

EUROPEAN HOTSPOT



Playing a prominent role in European peace negotiations is the Trieste-Venzia Giulia area, demanded for Yugoslavia by Tito, who is backed by Russia. Reports from the Paris peace talks of the Big Four foreign ministers indicate Russia may release claims to the area to obtain other concessions.

LEAVE REYKJAVIK

London, May 3 — (CP Cable) — Seven more planes of the RCAF Transport Squadron — number 435 — left Reykjavik, Iceland, Thursday en route to Canada, the R.C.A.F. announced. Improving weather conditions, are expected to permit the balance of the squadron, delayed in the United Kingdom in its repatriation move, to clear shortly.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Plans for Her Sons 17th Birthday Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer some questions for me concerning surprise party I want to give for my son's 17th birthday the last of June?

1.—I am planning to invite about twenty of his school friends. His birthday falls on Saturday. What hours would you suggest as proper?

2.—Should all the guests be seated at the dining-room table or should they serve themselves from the table and sit wherever they please?

3—What menu would you advise for the hours you suggest? Also, should I have an assortment of cookies, as well as the birthday cake? Should I serve canned mixed fruits or an assortment of fresh fruits? Also, nuts and candy?

4.—Should I have white frosting on the birthday cake? What color of candles? When should the birthday cake be served. . .before the ice cream or should it be last?

5.—Is there anything else I should have? Please let me know.

6.—Should I buy some games, or do you think they would prefer to dance?

7.—Should he oen his gifts at once or wait until the end of the party?

C.M.N.

1.—Boys and girls of your son's age prefer an evening party to one given in the afternoon. . . they consider it more "smart" to have their parties start at eight o'clock with a supper about ten o'clock. "Home Sweet Home" about twelve o'clock.

2.—If your dining-table is large enough to accommodate the guests, it is proper to have seated service. But you'll find buffet service vastly easier to plan and more popular with guests of this age who prefer to look out for themselves.

3.—For a buffet meal there are endless variations. For your buffet supper you might serve assorted cold cuts with rye bread or pumpernickel sandwiches, with a green or vegetable salad; or serve chicken salad (always a favorite) or tuna fish salad with hot rolls or small biscuits, relishes; or if you can conveniently have one hot dish, either creamed chicken or chicken a la king, on toast or in a patty shell; or set on your dining-table various ingredients for sandwiches (cold cuts, cheeses, sardines, sandwich "mixes", tomato slices, and cottage cheese, jams and jellies, thin slices of bread), supply a board and knife (or several of each) and let the guests make their own sandwiches. And yes, have an assortment of cookies; and dishes of candies and nuts. Since you'll have ice cream with the birthday cake, no need for cut fruits too; but your centrepiece may be of flowers or a fruit arrangement.

4.—It might be possible for you to have the birthday cake decorated with your son's school colors . . .the lighter one for the background-color, the darker one to the 'Happy Birthday", and the candles could be of some color to harmonize with these. In any event, have sturdy colors for the frosting and candles; no pastels for a boy's birthday cake. The birthday cake is brought in, lighted, before the ice cream is served; then, when the candles have been blown out, the cake and ice cream are served for dessert.

5.—At your evening party, I suggest you have a bowl of cold fruit punch, or a supply of cola-drinks or ginger ale. You might have plates of cookies near these drinks for the nibbling that goes on all during the evening. Also as a gala note you might provide as party-favors small corsages for the girls, and boutonniers for the boys.

6.—Provide your young guests with radio or phonograph music for dancing; or if you know they like to play bridge, bingo or other games, have this equipment on hand.

7.—The guest of honor should him by an arriving guest, and thank for it most enthusiastically. open each gift as it is handed to

WEDDINGS

CROSS—GOVETTE

A lovely Easter wedding was quietly solemnized in Bridge St., United Church on Saturday, April 20, at five p.m., when Helen Doris, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Govette, of Meaford, became the bride of Willet Clinton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Cross, of Bloomfield. The double ring ceremony was performed before a bank of Easter lilies and fern by the Rev. D. C. Amos.

The bride was lovely in a turquoise wool suit with matching hat and veil and a corsage of red carnations. She was attended by the groom's sister, Mrs. Richard Hall, who wore pink jersey with matching hat and corsage of Briarcliffe roses.

Mr. Hall attended the groom. The groom's gift to the bride was a cedar chest, to the groomsman, a leather billfold and, the bride's gift to her matron of honor was a plastic compact.

After a delicious wedding dinner at the New Queen's hotel, the happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes on a motor trip around Lake Ontario and to the bride's home in Meaford.

The bride is a teacher on the staff of King George School in Belleville.

ADAMS—DALLIDAY

The marriage of Mary Dalliday, daughter of Mr. J. W. H. Dalliday, Peterborough, to Robert H. Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Adams, Belleville, took place quietly, April 18, in Peterborough with the Rev. F. W. Craik officiating.

Following a wedding trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Adams took up residence in Peterborough.

PENNIE—JOHNSTON

In a bridal setting of tiny roses, white bells and pink and white streamers, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at 21 Richard Street, Trenton, on Wednesday afternoon, April 24, when Edna A. Johnston, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnston, became the bride of Gerald O. Pennie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Paddon, Little Current, Ont.

Rev. J. G. McKee, of Grace United Church officiated, and appropriate wedding music was played by Miss Hazel Faul.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was adorable in street-length blue sheer, fashioned with long, full sleeves, embroidered midriff and V-neckline. She wore a tiny blue flower cap with matching veil and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pink carnations, sweetpeas and baby breath. Her only ornament was a gold locket, the gift of the groom.

Attending the bride, was her sister, Miss Lelia Johnston, who was becomingly attired in street-length rose saconne with drapped bodice and sweetheart neckline. Her matching flower hat was delicately veiled in black, and she wore black accessories and the bride's gift, a gold necklet. Her flowers were similar to those of the bride.

Mr. Paul Jones, South Charles Street, assisted the groom.

For the happy occasion, the bride's mother chose flowered jersey with black accessories, and corsage of pink and mauve sweetpeas, while the groom's mother was gowned in navy crepe with matching hat and corsage of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony, dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Harold Paul, Miss Delia Johnston and Miss Edna Farrell, assisted by Shirley Jones, Hazel Faul, Marion Bell and Isobel Hearn.

Mr. and Mrs. Pennie left on the evening train for a brief honeymoon in Little Current, the bride travelling in a turquoise wool suit with black accessories and corsage of red roses.

On their return they will reside in Trenton.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Delia Johnston, Belleville. —Trenton Courier Advocate.

Sine, Mrs. Earl White and Mrs. Chas. Colley. A reading, "Youth of Today", was given by Mrs. Jas. Sine. The meeting was closed by Mrs. J. N. Chisholm.

Fine Fabric Bag

By ALICE ALDEN

THE FABRIC bag has to be pretty smart these days to hold its own with the leather variety. Josef is responsible for this smashing big, handsome bag which he has fashioned in navy blue. The base is shirred, and the top gathered onto an impressive hand-carved frame of lucite. We admired it worn with a navy faille suit and white hat and gloves.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Won't You Have a Cup of Tea?"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—I would like to follow the custom of serving tea when a neighbor drops in for an afternoon call. I have a large tray which I can place on the coffee table. If on the tray are the teapot, the sugar bowl and cream pitcher, this doesn't leave much space for cups and saucers. What would be the proper procedure in this case?

2.—When pouring tea, what does the hostess do about providing spoons and napkins for the guests? That is, is the spoon passed from the tray with the napkin to each guest? Or just what is the proper procedure in serving a cup of tea to a guest?

C. M.

1.—Your tea-tray should, if possible, accommodate these items for tea-service: teapot, some kind of container for hot water (hot-water kettle or pitcher of hot water), cream pitcher, sugar bowl, waste bowl, dish of sliced lemon with small lemon fork. Then, if you especially wish to use the coffee table to hold the tea-tray, you must provide yourself with some kind of supplementary table (placed at your left) to hold the tea plates, cups and saucers, tea napkins, and spoons; and also the plates of foods you are going to serve.

2.—Let's say that you are seated at your tea-table and are about to prepare a cup of tea for a guest. Your first question is "How will you take your tea?" The guest is expected to tell you (1) whether strong, medium or weak; (2) whether with sugar or without; and (3) whether with cream or lemon or "plain."

In pouring tea you first pour the tea into the cup, adding the hot water to the guest's liking; add cream or lemon and sugar; put a spoon on the saucer, with its handle parallel to the handle of the cup; place the cup and saucer on the tea plate; and place the tea napkin on the side of the plate. (I am in favor of placing the napkin on the side of the plate rather than on the plate under the saucer, since with the cup and saucer on the plate it is awkward for the guest to extract the napkin.

Death of Bridegroom's Father Changed Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother and his fiancee, who are to be married next month, had planned on a large church wedding and reception. But my father has just died, and althought they are going ahead with the wedding, they are now planning a very quiet one with only members of the immediate families present. No formal announcement has been made of either the engagement or the wedding plans. There are numerous relatives and friends whom the prospective bride and groom would have liked to have at the wedding, but, owing to the circumstances, cannot. What type of announcement should be sent, or what should we do?

F. S.

Relatives and friends will understand the reason why they were not invited to the wedding and so it will not be necessary for your family to make any announcement or explanation. If the bride and her family wish, they may correctly send out formal announcements of the marriage.

Congratulation on Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Three years ago my husband and I met a couple here in our home town, got to know them very well, and were very devoted to them. The husband had been stationed here temporarily during the war, and has since been transferred back to their former place of residence. While they lived here, they invited us to celebrate with them their eighth wedding anniversary. I remember the date, and realize that next month they will be celebrating their tenth anniversary. I would like to write them a note of congratulation. Do you think this would be proper; and if so, would you suggest a form.

R. L.

Yes, it would be a charming gesture for you and your husband to make to these friends—and they will, I know, be touched by your remembering and by your friendliness. It is such rememberings and remembrances that keep friendships flourishing! Your note might read somewhat like this:

Dear Betty and Bill,

Bob and I want you two dear friends to know that we will be thinking of you on "the" seventh, your tenth wedding anniversary—thinking of you with very special devotion and with dear remembrances of the happy times we had with you when you were here. Today we are particularly recalling the delightful hours we had with you on your eighth wedding anniversary, and we wish we were celebrating this one with you.

Our heartiest congratulations to you—every good wish for your happiness and welfare in the years to come—and may we all meet again soon, to talk of old days and new!

Affectionately,

Children Rise When Introduced

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

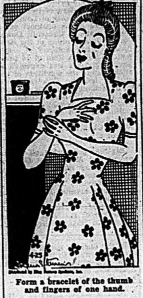
To settle an argument in our family, will you please answer this question: Should children be taught always to rise when they are introduced?

R. E. S.

Yes. Children should rise when they are introduced, either to a grown-up or to another child.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON



Form a bracelet of the thumb and fingers of one hand.

Directions for Hand Molding

Unlovely hands are a constant rebuke. "Please, mama, make us smooth and pretty again." A woman is mindful of complexion flaws or stray rag-tags in the hair-do whenever she takes a bird's-eye squint in the mirror. But hands are there all the time, to be regarded with sorrow and dismay if they are not up to beauty par.

If they belong to the hard-working housewife, they have much to endure. They are in and out of hot or cold water many times a day; they come in contact with furniture polish and dust cloths. All this takes a toll from the cutaneous surfaces. There's no way of getting around it; neglect is shameful. No time, did you say? Nonsense! How about a bottle of hand lotion on the kitchen sink where you will see it? Don't fancy you need it only in the winter season when the flesh gets chapped. You need it all the year round, day after day.

Beauty shops give hand molding treatment. These treatments can be self administered. They cost nothing but a little time, energy and a jar of heavy massage cream. If cream is a pull on the strings of the beauty budget, use cocobutter. Unlike the home manicure, one hand comes forth looking as well as the other.

Give your hands and forearms a thorough scrubbing with warm water and a nail brush. Rinse and dry. Spread on the cocobutter with flattened fingers; as the massage continues, keep adding more.

Work from the elbow down to the fingertips, doing a rotary movement with the thumb. Give the elbow itself some circular movements. Arm hinges can always do with more attention than they receive. Often they look grey and mournful. The flesh is coarse there, as a rule.

Thumb the back of the hand, then each finger, starting at the base. Force as much of the oil as you can into the cuticle that surrounds the nails. Friction the nails themselves so they will keep their delicate shell-like appearance.

When heavywork is done, the knuckles may show wear and tear; dark lines my be present. When massaging the knuckles, bend the fingers so the oil will be forced into the creases. Don't overlook the inner surfaces of the fingers.

Form a bracelet of thumb and fingers of one hand, weave up and down the opposite arm, moving the arm in one direction, the finger bracelet in the other.

Do not remove the cocobutter. Sprinkle borated talcum on the arms to form a pack. Leave it on over night.

Beware Those Double Chins!

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONE CHIN is enough for any woman. When it takes upto itself a mate, the lady gets pretty mad about it. Perhaps she has been partaking of those good things of the table that form adipose tissue; cell building has gone on right there. Perhaps she has been in habit of keeping her head lowered which is a mistake. A balanced, well-posed head imparts a certain charm and dignity.

The spare chin should be caught young and treated rough. Also, it should be treated coldly, be subjected to an ice friction twice a day.

After the face washing at night, apply a heavy emollient, one that offers resistance to manipulations. Pick up the under-slung flesh, roll between finger and thumb. This rolling movement dissolves fat cells. Other forms of massage are necessary so that a flabby condition will not result.

Stroke from chin tip to ear lobes using the fingertips. Throw the head back, but keep muscles relaxed; stroke from collar bones to chin. Facial operators are able to presto-change two chins into one if given half a chance. But home treatment brings speedier results.

While the cream remains on, frisk an ice cube over the flesh. Use ice again after washing the face in the morning. These refrigerating treatments will help to firm tissues that have relaxed.

When chins go tandem, the neck is usually soft, fibres without tone. This condition can be corrected somewhat by proper exercise.

Sit in a straight back chair, chest lifted, spinal column extended, head on the level. Turn the head from side to side, swinging as far back as ever you can. You will feel muscle pull down to the collar bones.

Clasp the hands back of the neck, send the chin up and down slowly.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's Making Herself Unhappy Over a Crush

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 14 years old and in 9-A. I am a very emotional girl and cannot control my emotions.

Last term when I was in 8-B, I got a crush on my English teacher. Every one in the class liked her, but none as much as I do. At Christmas a friend and I brought her a present. After the holidays, she was in the hospital with pneumonia and we wrote to her. I wrote six times to my friend's once. She never answered us. After she got home, I called her up, and she thanked me for the letters and said, she would answer soon, but never did. When she got back to school, I wrote her again, telling her I would not write any more if she didn't want me to, and asked her to answer. A few days later, a friend and I took pictures of her after school and she said she had received my letter and would answer it soon, but she hasn't yet.

What would you advise me to do?

Unhappy Girl

I would advise you stop writing to this teacher and to stop thinking about her so much. Why write her anyhow, for Heaven's sake, when you can see her in school? It's perfectly natural for you to have a crush on a teacher. All schoolgirls do now and then. But it's very silly to make yourself unhappy about it.

It seems to me your teacher might have handled the situation more tactfully, but since she so evidently wishes to discourage your too-emotional feeling for her, I'd be smart enough to take the hint and stop bothering her.

And stop boasting about how emotional you are. It's nothing to be proud of. Quite the reverse, in fact, because one's ability to control one's emotions is the measure of how mature one is. Do you want to show everyone you're still a baby, emotionally? Brace up, now, and start teachiing yourself a little self-control.

She Slapped His Face—Now He's Mad

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I met a boy a long time ago who is 20, and I'm 18 years old.

He's a gentleman, but he said something that I didn't like, so I slapped his face. He told me long ago if anything happened to cause me to slap his face he would never spea kto me again. And he hasn't been to see me since.

Do you think if he really cares for me as he says he does, he will call or come to see me again.

Hoping.

As a general rule, 'Hoping", gentlemen don't say things to members of the opposite sex that call for face-slapping. So I'm wondering if your boy friend is quite as gentlemanly as you think he is. And incidentally, of course, do ladies slap faces? I hardly think so.

But be that as it may, however, if he told you he'd be through with you if you ever slapped his face, he certainly gave you fair warning, and you have nobody but yourself to blame for what's happened. Isn't that true?

No doubt, if he does really care for you as you seem to feel he does, he'll eventually decide to stop sulking and get in touch with you again. But if you feel that what he said deserved the slap, you'd be very foolish indeed to make the first move toward making up with him, or to let him talk you into feeling that he is the injured one and that you did him wrong. It's up to him to come around and apologize like the gentleman you think he is.

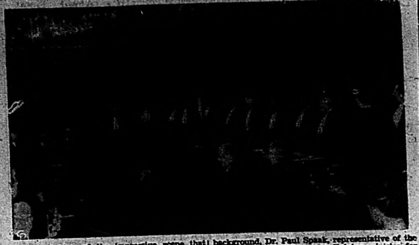
PERMANENT COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE



A general view of the impressive scene that marked the opening of the permanent court of international justice at The Hague. Justices of the court at right, standing behind the bench. In the background, Dr. Paul Spaak, representative of the United Nations, who is also Belgian minister for foreign affairs, is seen standing by a bank of microphones, one hand on the bench rail.

First Lady's Garb Combines Elegance With Practicality

London (CP)—Lady Alexander, wife of Canada's new governor-general, took with her to Canada a wardrobe prepared by two of London's most famous dress designers, who aimed at combining elegance with practicality. Both day and evening clothes were designed by Norman Hartnell, who makes many of the Queen's dresses, and Angele Delanghe.

For travelling Hartnell designed a severely-tailored suit of green with matching overcoat. With it is worn a blouse of pale pink and a stitched beret of the same tweed as the suit.

There is also a day dress in green with yoke effect, tied in at the waist, and a cocktail dress of brown wool with a short skirt and short matching jacket. The dress is embroidered with copper and gold and worn with a brown felt hat trimmed with coq feathers.

Among other dresses designed by Hartnell is a dinner gown in stiff sapphire velvet. The slightly draped bust is set on a diamond-shaped front waist, pulled into a separate belt at the back. The sleeves are long and fitted and the skirt flares out from the hips by virtue of the stiffness of the velvet.

Lady Alexander has an evening gown of heavy brocade reminiscent of a century ago with a small floral design of cherry color on a shot cherry and white background. The skirt is fitted to the knees, then becomes full to the ground and is about a foot longer at the back than the front to form a tiny train. It has a narrow belt of red paillettes. The heart-shaped decolletage is low in front but follows the neckline at the back. The short sleeves are caught above the elbow into tight cuffs; the shoulders are squared and the waistline low.

Another of Hartnell's designs for Lady Alexander is a dinner gown of wine velvet, modelled on Empress lines. Embroidery of transparent and opaque violet studs, set into gold, outlines the neck and crosses over the bust, and the sleeves are short and puffed.

Delanghe Designs

Angele Delanghe has also designed both day and evening clothes for her. Among them is a grey flannel dress and jacket. The dress is plainly tailored with slightly flared, panelled skirt. The jacket buttons up to the two small revers and has a box pleat on each pocket.

Another ensemble is a royal blue dress and jacket with midnight blue overcoat. Here again the dress is on simple tailored lines and the jacket is collarless with two small epaulets on each shoulder. The revers are buttoned back and the buttons are strung on with the material instead of being sewn on. The midnight blue coat has plaster lion buttons and large revers from the neckline going over each shoulder to form an epaulet and continuing down the back to the waist to form a V.

Delanghe has also designed a printed dinner dress in cornflower blue on a white ground. The skirt is slim fitting with a draped band twined round from the hips to the bottom of the skirt. It has a simple V-shaped neck with loose fitting sleeves on the magyar line.

Another evening dress is in midnight blue slipper satin with loose tiers of lace at the back forming a bustle and inserted at the back of the bodice and up over the shoulders to form soft cape sleeves. The neckline is very low in front with a rolled lip edge.

Lady Alexander also has a black lace dinner gown with softly draped bodice and skirt with two pink water-lilies attached below the square neckline.

RAWDON

Mount Pleasant Welcomes Home Returned Men

Rawdon.—On Sunday evening, April 28, a very large group of Mount Pleasant folk and a number of visitors gathered at the church to "Welcome" home the boys who had served during World War II.

The guest speaker was Honorary Captain, the Rev. Grant Meiklejohn, Toronto, a padre recently returned from overseas and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Meiklejohn, Rylestone. He gave a stimulating message of welcome based on the theme, "The Power of God's Abundant Love and the Value of the Church". He asked the church members not to be critical of the soldier boys as they try to adjust themselves once again to the way of civilian life.

Major Clifford Holmes, Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes, Mount Pleasant, ably replied on behalf of the boys expressing appreciation for the service arranged in their honor, and said the prayers of the home folks meant a great deal as well as the letters. He also paid tribute to the life of the late F. O. Kenneth Smith who paid the supreme sacrifice.

Letters of regret were read from Mr. Sidmer Demorest, Newmarket and Mr. Kenneth Holmes, Sarnia.

The pastor made the presentation of leather engraved Bibles to the following young men, who were present at the service Messrs. Ray White, Irvin Potts, Lorne White, Douglas McAdam, Clifford Holmes, Ormel MacMullen, and John Mulheron.

Bibles were also given to members of the familes for LAC. Will McAdam, who is serving in Toronto, Mr. Percy White, Brantford, Mr. Kenneth Holmes, Madoc, Mr. Sidmer Demorest, Newmarket.

And an illuminated scroll was presented to Cpl. Marion Phillips of Montreal. This was a special request as Marion has been given a Bible when she donned the uniform.

Three boys paid the supreme sacrifice and were F.O. Kenneth Smith, Pte. Clifford Smith and Pte. Lawrence Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith placed a lovely basket of snapdragons on the Communion table in memory of their son, Kenneth.

The choir rendered "God of Our Fathers", with Mrs. T. F. Townsend presiding at the piano.

Mr. Bob Leury sounded the Last Post on his trumpet in memory of those who had fallen and the congregation stood for two minutes silence in their memory.

The pastor spoke briefly and extended an official welcome to the boys who had served in the King's uniform. All sang "A Prayer for Our Dominion".

Miss Mabel Sharp spent a few days with Mrs. James Booth at Marmora.

Will Be No Change

Later he asked for assurance that passage of the citizenship bill would not affect the government policy on Japanese in Canada. Veterans Minister Mackenzie who was leading the House said there would be no change.

Tom Reid (L-New Westminster) and James Sinclair (L-Vancouver North) objected to dual citizenship on the part of Japanese in Canada. Mr. Green also took the position that Canadians who served in the armed forces of another country should lose their Canadian citizenship. On his suggestion the clause was left over for further discussion.

Mr. Martin said the matter of revoking citizenship was a very serious one and care should be taken to protect people from becoming "stateless". He said the United States had experienced considerable difficulty because of its legislation revoking the citizenship of Americans who served in the forces of another country.

Important points of the bill of rights Mr. Diefenbaker proposed dealt with rights which, he said, had been violated in the recent espionage investigation. Habeas corpus could only be suspended by parliament and no one could be required to give evidence before a tribunal or commission if denied counsel or other constitutional safeguards.

The bill also gave assurance of freedom of religion, speech and the right to peaceable assembly.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there had been a gradual infringement on the rights of citizens since 1914 and the time had come when Canada should follow the example of the United Kingdom and the United States in writing into a statute the fundamental rights of citizenship.

Probationary Period Debated

Debate on the bill slowed down on the section which provided a five-year probationary period for new citizens. The House spent more than three hours on an amendment sponsored by Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) which would have cut the period to one year for British subjects from self-governing parts of the commonwealth. Mr. Fleming said he was agreeable to British subjects still coming under the provisions of the immigration act which would leave the way open for their deportation within five years should they prove unsuitable citizens.

Mr. Martin introduced his amendment, removing the necessity of British subjects appearing before a nationalization court, early in the discussion but Mr. Fleming and the Progressive Conservative group supporting his proposal said Mr. Martin's change did not meet their objection to requiring British subjects to wait five years before becoming citizens.

Hon. Mr. Glen, who is responsible for administration of immigration and himself a Scot, objected to the one-year period for British subjects. He said such a regulation would be directly in conflict with the Immigration Act and citizenship would have to be revoked before a person could be deported.

The government also had support from another British immigrant, Alistair Stewart (CCF-Winnipeg North) who said he had been satisfied to serve his "apprenticeship." A colleague of Mr. Stewart's, Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) disagreed on the ground that people from the United Kingdom had much in common with Canadians.

The amendment was turned down on a vocal vote and almost immediately H. W. Herridge introduced a new proposal providing a two-year probationary term for British subjects. It also was defeated.

Muddy Track In Prospect For the Derby

By The Canadian Press

After four days of rainy weather in the vicinity of Louisville, Ky., there is the prospect of a muddy track at Churchill Downs for the 72nd running of the Kentucky Derby tomorrow at 6.15 p.m. (E.D.T.) A field of 16 prospective starters was expected to stick despite the condition of the surface but the 17th candidate, R. S. McLaughlin's Wee Admiral, had practically been counted out yesterday on account of the mud.

Still regarded as the horse to beat was Lord Boswell from the Maine Chance Farm, whether wet or dry.

Big-time pro basketball was in prospect at Maple Leaf Gardens every Friday night next winter with the announcement by Major Conny Smythe, Toronto, that a group of sportsmen had arranged financing for an entry in the United States National Loop. A prime mover is Ben Newman, sponsor of Hayes Hellcats, Merritton.

In the opening round of Davis Cup competition in the European zone yesterday at Barcelona, Spain and Switzerland each won a singles match.

Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League acquired two players yesterday. Left-winger Armand Lemieux was acquired from Providence Reds while Vic Lynn, another left-wing player, was secured from Buffalo Bisons.

Director Robert Murphy of the American Baseball Guild said at Boston yesterday one of the aims of the labor organization is to secure a $7,500 minimum salary for major league players.

Hamilton Tigers, who lost out to the Calgary Stampeders in the Allen Cup finals, were given a royal welcome home when they arrived home last night. More than 2,000 cheering fans turned out to greet them.

Grooms and exercise boys whose one-day strike crippled yesterday's racing program at Jamaica went about their usual chores early today under a temporary agreement and final settlement of the walkout was expected before the first race this afternoon. The truce was called last night after a settlement proposal which officials said they thought would be accepted by owners, trainers and the Exercise Riders and Grooms Association. The strike was called after some owners and trainers discontinued cash awards to grooms and extra compensation for those who handled winners.

"THE SPECKLED TROUT"

Based upon a picture painted for Carling's by Shelley Logier

This is one of a series of illustrations on the subject of the Conservation of Canada's natural assets designed to emphasise the fact that the beauties of unspoiled nature that we enjoy today are a precious birthright which we must protect for tomorrow.

"A Beauty"

A swirl beneath the surface, a ripple where a moment before quiet water had mirrored the leaves above . . . And then—an explosion of iridescent beauty as the speckled trout leaps high in search of food.

Since the days of Izaak Walton the joys of angling have captured the hearts of many men, and we in Canada have been endowed with a stock of fighting fish unparalleled in the world. But by our very enthusiasm we have endangered the sport we love. Many waters which formerly teemed with fish are now barren. Many species have vanished entirely from their old haunts.

Our governments, both Provincial and Federal, have instituted restocking programmes, built fish hatcheries, and passed laws for the protection of game fish, but without wholehearted and active public support, mainly in the observance of daily catch limits, these measures will fail.

Conservation is not just a doctrine to be preached to hunters and fishermen. It is a vital part in the continuance of our national economy, and must, of necessity, fail if its measures do not receive the full support of all Canadian citizens.

Allen was picked by the American Jersey Cattle club and "County Fair" officials as a typical farm boy who might be able to lift a calf every day and duplicate the 2,500-year-old feat of Milo of Crotona, Greek strong man.

The under-water hoard, which was dumped into the bay by the Japs last July, was thought by Jap sources which gave information of the cache to military government officials to be worth about $2,000,000,000.

Canada Helps Out Europe's Schools With Broadcasts

Pre-War Development Results in 15-Minute Programs to Aid Harassed Teachers

By EDGAR SIMON
Canadian Pres Staff Writer

What started as a radio experiment to provide Canada's rural schoolchildren with a supplementary source of education and assist teachers and school boards has expanded to the point where Canada is playing schoolmaster to children in various parts of Europe.

The plan, an outgrowth of the CBC's series of school programs started in 1938-39, calls for shipment overseas in recorded form of programs for use in France, Luxembourg, Greece, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Presented in the language of the country receiving them, the programs will be used on local stations to help hard-pressed teachers beset by a shortage of textbooks and education equipment. The series, based on broadcasts heard on the CBC's French network, are edited, translated and recorded by the International Service, the CBC short wave division.

First programs to be shipped overseas will include five sets, dealing largely with natural and applied science. Each set includes 13 15-minute broadcasts. So far 520 programs in all languages are planned. All arrangements have been made through the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in London.

CBC engineers might have known that preparations for the premiere of "Deirdre of the Sorrows," the John Coulter Healey Willan opera based on an Irish legend, should have included ample provision for the machinations of "the little people that live in the hills."

It could only have been the pixies that picked the first production of Canada's most important musical event in years as the occasion for transmitter trouble at CBL that left Toronto and Central Ontario listeners with silent radios.

The program was promptly changed over to a second Toronto station, CJBC, causing additional consternation to 'teen-agers who found themselves switched without warning from the 'hot licks" of their Saturday afternoon swing program to one of Dr. Willan's best arias.

Engineers quickly cleared up the trouble on CBL's transmitter and brought Deirdre back where she belonged, but not before studio telephones were jammed by anguished opera lovers and swing fans, all wanting to know what happened to their respective programs.

Listeners tuning into the 80-metre short wave channel recently could hardly believe their ears. Accustomed to the curt, well-disciplined transmissions of Army and Air Force radio operators, they suddenly heard a barrage of messages from Skeezix to Little Orphan Annie and Peter Rabbit and a plaintive call from someone who identified herself as "the hubba hubba girl."

It was tuneup time for Canada's amateur radio operators who were happily reclaiming the airwaves from the military after nearly seven years' silence and indulged in a little whimsy while testing their sets a few hours before they officially took over.

HEATED TENTS IN YELLOWKNIFE

Temperature at night still drops below freezing in Yellowknife, little mining boom town 1,000 miles north of the American border in Canada's Northwest Territories, yet the housing shortage leads to the use of heated tents like this, even during the winter's 50 below. Young prospectors, Art and Charlie Ridley, are the "home" owners in this case. They get help and pointers from such veterans as Mike Mitto, who last year led young Frank Salerno, of Bridgeport, Conn., to a fortune of $175,000.

Washington Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 3 — (CP) — A Congress is planning its longest holiday since before the war and seems certain to leave the great bulk of President Truman's requested legislation untouched.

He hopes to adjourn early in July until Jan. 3, 1947 when an entirely new House of Representatives (435 members) will have been elected, and one third of the 96-member Senate will be fresh from the polls.

If his goal is reached the Congressmen will have to put on an extraordinary spurt of activity as compared with the rate of progress so far this year.

Little of the president's long legislative program has been disposed of and numerous potentially important requests will be left over for the new Congress.

The casualty most important from an international point of view may be approval of the $3,750,000,000 loan to Britain. Even if it gets Senate approval this week, as forecast, it still has to run the gauntlet of House committee hearings and long debate on the floor.

In spite of recent optimistic reports and encouraging support from formerly strong Senate opponents of the loan, there is a feeling among observers here that a majority of Congressmen would prefer to delay the necessity of voting on it until after the November elections.

Tired, desperate food experts were struggling in a committee room in the Agriculture Building to find a little more wheat and rice for the starving abroad and reporters were waiting outside to hear of their success or failure, and reading handouts pleading, among other things, for complete abandonment in the United States of rice consumption because that was an essential to some Far Eastern people.

While they waited a release arrived from the White House containing a suggested austerity menu for Americans. One of its recommended dishes was rice.

Senator Theodore (the man) Bilbo, Mississippi Democrat used nearly an hour of his incipient filibuster against the British loan to score Henry Luce and his wife Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (Rep.-Conn.) for Life magazine's reference to him as "the worst man in the Senate." Perhaps his most effective protest was his plaintive comment that Life reporters visited his district twice and "enjoyed the hospitality of my home and ate my grub."

22 Race Horses Worth $500,000 Die in Blaze

Chicago, May 3 (AP)—Twenty-two race horses, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Graham and valued at $500,000, died yesterday in a fire which swept through a barn at Arlington Park track in suburban Arlington Heights.

Two stable ponies also perished in the fire.

Seven horses were saved by stablehands, including Beaugay, three-year-old filly last year named champion United States two-year-old, and War Date, winner of three stake races in the Chicago are last summer.

Assistant trainer Joe Ludy listed the dead horses as Sugar Lea, a three-year-old and the following two-year-olds: Gracious Me, Chance Mascot, O'Clipper, Admiral General (formerly Cosmic Bomb), Soft Answer, Rosario, War Coment, Fire Gold, Star of Night, Bit Miracle, Sunny Brae, Slim Jim, Gay Beau, Pink Pom Pom, Samson, Pink Rose, Gay Emperor, White Lace, Blue Angel, Super Lassie and The Bat.

Cancer of the skin is treated with radium or x-ray therapy.

The War against CANCER
is Your War

● Cancer attacks men and women, rich and poor; the young and the old, and especially the middle aged. So the war against cancer is your war. You, or some member of your family may be the next victim. Unless this war is waged much more effectively than at present, one person out of every eight now living must expect to die of cancer.

Can cancer be cured?

Though no specific cure for cancer has yet been discovered, it is estimated that the majority of all cancer cases can be cured if they are diagnosed in the early stages of development and properly treated. Surgery, X-ray and radium are the weapons now available in the battle against cancer. It is hoped that scientific research will sooner or later bring cancer completely under control or wipe it out altogether.

Ontario joins battle against cancer

A concentrated drive against cancer is now being organized in Ontario, with the following objectives:

—To establish fully equipped cancer clinics at suitable centres in the province where persons who suspect they may have cancer may be examined and, if necessary, receive the proper treatment.

—To pay a portion of the cost of treatment of cancer, including travelling expenses to and from clinics, to those needing financial help.

—To conduct an energetic program of cancer research in Ontario.

To carry on this war in all its phases, your help is needed. Your contribution will help to cut down the death toll from cancer. It may help to rid the world of cancer for all time to come.

This appeal is for an objective of $2,000,000 to provide for a three-year program of cancer research, treatment and province-wide service.

44 Years' Transportation Career Closes as Robert Hay, Formerly Of Belleville, Retires at Vancouver

Mr. Robert Hay, an old Belleville boy, son of the late D. J. Hay, who was an alderman of this city for many years, and brother of Miss Jessie Hay, 290 George Street, recently retired as city ticket agent for the Canadian National Railways in Vancouver, B.C., and the following reference to his retirement, which appeared in the Vancouver Daily Province of April 15th., will be of interest to his old friends in this city:

Celebrating his 65th birthday today, Robert Hay, city ticket agent, Canadian National Railways, Vancouver, closes a transportation career that commenced 44 years ago.

Mr Hay, who is retiring, has booked and ticketed passengers in this city since 1910. During the last 36 years he handled travel arrangements for short trips to long tours and round-the-world cruises. His first experience here was with the tourist and travel bureau firm of Brown, Hope & Macaulay, with offices at Granville and Dunsmuir streets.

In 1915 he joined the Canadian Northern Railway when its uptown ticket office was on Hastings street, opposite the post-office.

Mr. Hay started railroading in 1902 with the Grand Trunk at Napanee, Ont. For a year, in 1907, he was employed by the Northern Railroad in Costa Rica. He later was a passenger representative at Lake Louise.

During his 31 years with the Canadian National here, Mr. Hay has, because of his intimate knowledge of ticketing the travelling public, introduced many suggestions to facilitate this work.

At least six of his ideas were adopted and have been used on the National system. They are a loose-leaf ticket case; sleeping car reservations diagram; ticket case drawer stops to hold tickets in place; ticket cover; new sleeping and parlor car rates set-up for system timetable folders, and an accident insurance ticket envelope holder for counters.

Mr. Hay is one of the founders of the Vancouver Passenger Men's Association, organized in February, 1926, and was its first president.

Marriage Business Booming in Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, (CP) — The marriage mart is booming in occupied Germany.

In downtown Frankfurt you can pick a candidate for wife or husband right off a public notices board, next to the one which offers articles for trade or sale. Many more marriage offers are carried in classified advertising columns of newspapers.

The ratio of women to men is high in Germany because of war losses—4 to 1 in age groups 19 to 45 in the American zone—so naturely women are in the majority as bidders in the marriage columns. But offers from men are increasing as more and more return from prisoner of war camps and seek to start line anew.

Offers come from all age groups—girls scarcely twenty to ment and women in the sixties.

Women especially make a point of stating what they have to offer—especially in hard-to-get lodgings and furniture. A widow aged 29 describes herself not only as "dark and attractive" but emphasizes that she owns household furniture.

Nationalities Mix In Farmer's Home

Neville, Sask. (CP)—Most people have never heard of Neville but there's a man living here who has set an example that many might follow.

His name is Irvin Studer and he is the kind person who believes that the world is just as good as the people who are in it. Mr. Studer has 20 acres of fruit trees on his farm and in his home he substitutes the fruit of human kindness for trees.

As far as both Mr. and Mrs. Studer are concerned the world is just one big family of nations with no boundaries.

One day about 18 years ago the couple visited the Regina exhibition and happened across a woman distributing literature for the bureau of child welfare.

"We began talking with the lady and the first thing we knew we had a baby," Mr. Studer says.

At first they didn't know what to do with the child...they just gave him some milk and let him cry. But now they know exactly what to do when a baby cries.

Today that child is 18-year-old Howard, of Hungarian parentage. And since then they have adopted four more—to make the family a veritable league of nations.

Edith, 16, is of German parentage; Denis, 11, of Irish parentage; Alan, eight, of French-Canadian background and Mary Lynn, two, of Scottish parents.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Studer came to Canada from the United States and have been living in this district ever since.

They have told the children about their different nationalities "but they don't worry about nationalities." They have grown up together as a family and enjoy themselves as a family.

Russians to Raise $3,774,000,000 Loan

London, May 3. (AP)—Soviet Russia today called on her people to subscribe to a 20,000,000,000 ruble (nominally $3,774,000,000) loan "for restoration and development of the U.S.S.R.'s National economy", the Moscow radio said.

Russian Finance Minister Arseny G. Zverev appealed to the people to buy 20-year tax-free bonds to provide money to "heal the wounds of war and speedily restore the Soviet economy."

The radio said the council of ministers had decreed that the money would be used for "fulfilment of the five-year plan" and the "further strengthening of the military and economic might of the country."

Three Conferences To Discuss World Food Problems

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, May 3 (CP) — World, food problems which promise to remain critical through May will be discussed at three international conferences this month, with Canadian delegations taking part.

These are:-

1. The resumed meeting of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Council which met in Atlantic City in April and adjourned at the call of the new Director-General, Fiorello H La Guardia, who will bring the delegates to Washington probably next week.

2. A meeting of all United Nations food ministers or their equivalent, called for May 20 in Washington by the food and agriculture organization at the request of the United Nations.

3. The plenary session of the 18-member economic and social council of the United Nations, scheduled for New York May 25.

At the U.N.R.R.A. meeting Mr. La Guardia will report on the success he has achieved in obtaining allocations for the starving millions in Europe and China for whose assistance the administration is responsible.

The F. A. O. conference will have before it a still secret survey of world food conditions prepared by experts in the last three months. The effort will be to coordinate and harmonize the work of the several agencies now working on world famine problems and make long-range plans for continuing this work when temporary agencies, such as the combined Food Board and U.N.R.R.A. go out of business.

It is expected the F. A. O. survey will reveal a likelihood that world food shortages will continue through 1947 and possibly 1948.

Preparatory committees of the economic and social council of the United Nations already are at work in New York in anticipation of the May 25 plenary sessions.

LAND GIRLS ASK U.K. GOVERNMENT FOR BETTER DEAL

Thousands Leave 'Cinderella Service' at End of War and Enrolment Now Down to 30,000

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 3 (CP)—A national campaign to double the strength of the Women's Land Army and bolster farm production in this food-crisis year has brought renewed demands for better treatment of the "Cinderella Service."

Dissatisfied Land Girls have put on protest meetings and 20 of them invaded the central lobby of the House of Commons in an unsuccessful effort to interview Agriculture Minister Tom Williams.

Newspapers have written editorials urging a "Square Deal for the Land Army" and a raise in pay—now 48 shillings ($10.80) a week minimum. Members of parliament have argued their case in the House.

But so far the Labor Government, like the wartime coalition, has declined any change in the Land Army regulations.

"Land girls are leaving in thousands to go home," said Joyce Sancho, land girl for six years and a leader in the campaign for better treatment. "The minister of agriculture is appealing for volunteers and he is letting thousands slip through his fingers."

Decrease in Strength

During the war the Land Army reached a strength of more than 60,000 and the buff-and-green uniform was a familiar sight in any rural area. With peace came right of release from service and now enrolment is down to 30,000 with less than 1,400 new workers signed on in the three months after Jan. 1.

Modelled on a similar organization of the 1914-18 war, the Women's Land Army is an "army" in name only. Land girls have to surrender clothing coupons for their uniforms and must buy their own underwear. They may be dismissed for illness on one week's notice and are not entitled to the service gratuities, resettlement grants or reinstatement rights in civil employment.

On the other hand, they are not subject to military discipline, draw national health insurance benefits and may apply for assistance from a £150,000 W.L.A. Benevolent Fund in cases of hardship.

"Members of the W.L.A. are in the same position as agricultural workers in being employed on a weekly contract of service, which may be determined by either party at one week's notice," Mr. Williams told the House.

The membership campaign's target is 30,000 new Land girls, signed on for two-year terms and available for work anywhere in Britain.

ROCKET TEST

The moon casts its light on the nose of a V-2 rocket bomb in secret night test by U. S. army ordnance personnel at the White Sands proving grounds, New Mexico. A similar missile will be fired in the demonstration to take place at the desert proving grounds on May 10, 1946.

Woman Dies After Car Crashes Hay-ride

Windsor, May 3 (CP)— Miss Stella Martin, 20, Essex, one of the 11 persons injured last Friday night when a passenger automobile crashed into a hay-ride on Dougall Road about two miles south of the city limits, died in hospital early today.

Russell Snyder, 22, Detroit, driver of the car which ran into the back of the hay-rack, has been charged with reckless driving, but Provincial Police said today the charge now would likely be changed.

Snyder has not been arraigned. He still is in the hospital with a fractured leg, and abrasions about the face, hands and arms.

Miss Martin's death came unexpectedly and suddenly. It was announced on her admittance to the hospital that she had [illegible] back injuries, but it was not suggested then that her injuries might prove fatal.

In serious condition at the hospital is another of the hay-riders, Miss Theresa Grondin, 16. Following an operation last Saturday night doctors said Miss Grondin might never walk again, with the lower part of her body likely to be paralyzed because of a sheared spinal column.

The DOW AWARD
PRESENTED TO Pauline Hutt
FOR EXCEPTIONAL COURAGE AND BRAVERY

is a citation presented for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily papers.

ON bleak Nichol Island, off the Nova Scotia coast, Lighthouse Keeper James Hutt had gone hunting along the shore. He had not returned at dusk . . . and his wife and small son began a frantic search in the biting wind. They found him, trailing blood, trying to crawl home. He had accidently shot himself. They struggled in vain to drag him up the hill on a toboggan. The mother sounded the fog alarm, built brush fires . . . but no help came. The next morning Hutt died.

After three attempts to launch a boat that day, the young woman and her son finally got away at night and somehow covered the two miles to the wharf. The courageous efforts of Pauline Hutt to save her husband's life are beyond praise. We are proud indeed to present her with The Dow Award.

Chicago in State Of Emergency And Confusion

Chicago, May 3 —(AP)— Chicago today was in a state of emergency — and confusion — as the full impact of an order curtailing use of electricity struck all phases of business and industry.

Wartime darkness returned to the second largest city in the United States last night and to hundreds of communities in two-thirds of Illinois as lights blinked out under the emergency dimouts by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

Twenty-two northern Indiana counties, including the big steel-producing Calumet area, were under a similar order by the Indiana Public Service Commission.

Business, commercial and industrial leaders struggled to arrange working schedules to conform to directives imposed in an effort to save diminishing coal supplies.

The commission reiterated a warning that violation of the order directing industry to use electricity 24 hours a week and commercial users, including stores and theatres, from 2 to 6 p.m. from Monday through Saturday, would result in power being turned off.

There were indications that industrial plants and business establishments faced the loss of millions of dollars. Part-time unemployment for thousands was in prospect, as well as sharp reductions in payrolls.

Amusement centres sought to work out some method of illuminating their establishments. Thousands of office workers faced the prospect of climbing to their place of employment in skyscrapers as elevator service in some 150 buildings was to be restricted to afternoon hours, with only limited service at other times.

It was estimated that more than 700,000 office workers will be affected.

In support of the power curtailment, Mayor Edward J. Kelly proclaimed a state of emergency and called on all citizens to comply with the dimout edict. He asserted he would seize coal stocks, if necessary, to protect public health.

Many department stores had planned to observe regular hours until next Tuesday, but the Commerce Commission said it would order the stores' power cut off if they disregarded the directive.

NOT MUCH COMPLAINT

Duqoin, Ill., May 3—(AP)—Farmer J. Wesley Tucker wasn't complaining too much when he reported to police that a thief stole 14 of his chickens. Tucker said the robber left in such a hurry he dropped his purse, which contained $13.14. That was just 40 cents less than the fowls would have brought at ceiling prices.

A TALL TALE

Corning, N.Y., May 3 —(AP)— Frederick L. Raymond and E. C. Cook, engineer and fireman respectively, returned from a Pennsylvania freight run with this tale: A hawk flew alongside their locomotive carrying in its claws a squirming rattlesnake nearly five feet long. A blast of the locomotive whistle frightened the hawk. The snaked fell into the tender and was killed by the train crew.

DID NOT LIKE BEING SPANKED

Chicago, May 3 —(AP)— Mrs. Virginia J. Riley, 23, told Superior Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday the first time her husband, 25, spanked her, she forgot about it. He was in the army at the time she said, and spanked her for being late for some dates with him. But when he came home from the army, "he tried it again. And that was too much." Judge Sabath granted her a divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Juvenile Delinquency At Minimum in Community President Tells the C.A.S.

No Special Speaker at the Annual Meeting but Many Splendid Reports Given

The fifty-second annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held Thursday evening in the Ladies' Parlors of Bridge Street United Church with Mr. H. B. Fetterly presiding. In his opening remarks Mr. Fetterly paid tribute to the staff and Board of Management of the Society, to the representatives of the County Council; to the social workers, Mrs. McLauchlin and Mrs. Marshall; to the superintendent, Mr. Ruston, and the assistant, Mr. Lockyer; and to the clerical staff; all of whom have worked unceasingly for the Society. Mr. Fetterly stated that, while the chief duties of the workers are "protective," much of their time is given to prevention, that is, the attempts to keep homes from breaking up. He recalled that a number of years ago a survey was made of slum conditions in this city, with the result that many of the disgraceful residences have been torn down or renovated into respectable buildings.

At a Minimum

"Juvenile delinquency is at a minimum in this community", stated the president, "and this is due to the co-operation received from the Board of Education, the principals of the schools and the service clubs." He spoke of the delight of the organization in the noticeable movement toward the establishment of a Public Health Unit. The work of the society in connection with the Unmarried Parents' Act has greatly increased during the past year, and this duty depends entirely on the generosity of the public.

Members Give Views

Mr. Fetterly explained that, in lieu of obtaining a distinguished speaker this year, the members of the staff were going to present intimate views of the society in action. Mr. Lockyer, assistant superintendent, was the first to speak in this regard and in his opening remarks paid tribute to Mr. Morley Duff, who was appointed by the Dominion Government as consultant for the Dependents' Board of Trustees. He spoke of the problems presented the Society in the re-adjustment of the home-coming soldier. During the war, wives of service men have been forced to assume the role of both father and mother, and in many cases, children have been given more leeway in their daily lives, receiving less supervision and more spending money than ever before. Mr. Lockyer's address, as well as those of the other members of the staff, was illustrated with vivid pictures of different cases dealt with by the C.A.S. He told of the broken homes mended and the children put on the road to happiness.

Trying to Assist

"Much of our work", stated Mr. Lockyer, "is in trying to assist the juvenile who comes in contact with the police. Perhaps it is not generally known that no boy or girl under the age of 16 should be arraigned in court without an officer of the C.A.S. being present." He spoke with pride of the boys of the Society who served the country during the war, and of the three who were killed in action.

Mrs. M. Marshall spoke mainly on the work with older girls, giving many graphic stories of their struggles for better living conditions. She said that a great deal of praise goes to the foster mothers, who take wards of the society into their homes and give them the care and love that is the heritage of every child. Mrs. L. McLauchlin added more pictures to the tragic story of want and destitution in the community.

Illustrated Address

Mr. T. D. Ruston, superintendent of the C.A.S., in his address, stated that prevention is a greater work than reformation, and said that the object and work of the society was to turn the footsteps of children into the way of righteousness and establish them thereto. He told of the indifference of many to the welfare of children. He illustrated his address with figures, showing clearly how necessary is the work of the society. At the end of the year 313 children were in the care of the society. He told of the work done under the Unmarried Parents' Act and the Adoption Act.

In closing, Mr. Ruston paid tribute to Mr. Fetterly, who has served for ten years as president of the Children's Aid Society. His counsel and assistance were invaluable.

Mrs. A. Cordes, Chairlady of the Clothing Committee, gave a brief statement regarding clothes purchased for the year. She extended the thanks of the committee to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Kiwanis Club and to the foster mothers who have helped so well in providing clothing.

Azzam Pasha's Comment.

"The report does not help build any understanding between Arabs and Jews," he continued. "I believe it is bad luck for Jews, Arabs, Americans and British that this report has not succeeded in any way to ease the situation or lead to any understanding.

"If we were left alone without any foreign interference, there would be no difference between Moslem, Jew, Zionist or Christian . . . but the result of this report is encouraging Zionist terrorism."

In London, meanwhile, Foreign Secretary Bevin was reported officially to be making "informal inquiries" as to what aid Britain might expect from the United States in administering the troublesome mandate in Palestine.

Reports from Washington have pictured the United States as unwilling to undertake any direct intervention in Palestine, but rather as counting on the United Nations to assume responsibility.

In Baghdad, a joint session of Iraq's parliament was called upon by the newly-organized National Peoples Defence Committee to consider active means of combatting the inquiry committee's report.

In addition to calling today's Arab general strike in Palestine, the Arab higher committee in Jerusalem designated a group to study plans for a "little civil disobedience strike and the possible mobilization of Arab youth in Palestine and also called on all Arab nations to help them as the "first line of defence for the Arab world."

CONVENTION TOLD

Fails to Reach Objective

The second and more novel suggestion was made by Norman G. S. Ingram, president of the Association. Mr. Ingram, a former Geometry teacher held that reasoning ability, so essential in development of the student, could be more easily learned in deciding whether south was leading from an ace than in demonstrating that parallel lines never meet. He contended that among the vast majority of boys and girls, geometry failed to reach its avowed object of developing reasoning ability.

Others who supported him were Mrs. Evelyn Beatty of the York Township Board of Education and Mrs. Colin Campbell, chairman of the Toronto Board of Education management committee.

Envisioned as Community Centre

The high school of the future was envisioned by Mr. Ingram as a community centre, its grounds a public park, with sound-proofed classrooms, and the library and gymnasia shut off from the rest of the school for extra-curricular use.

A belief that parents should be the last people in the world to decide vocations for their offspring, was expressed by Marshall Close, Toronto business executive.

"When it comes to choosing a boy's vocation," he said, "the parents cause a lot of frustration. In many cases the parent only wants the child to be what he, the parent, would like to have been and isn't."

He criticized the matriculation standard as "a myth." Academic education should be abolished for students who won't need it, he said.

ONION GROWERS RESEED FIELDS

Erieau, Ont., May 3. (CP) — Onion farmers of the vast Erieau marshlands in this Kent County district continued reseeding today after gale-like winds of last week destroyed tender shoots with almost 100 per cent loss. It was the worst disaster in the marshlands since 1929-30 floods caused when Lake Erie waters broke through a dyke and flooded farms.

Last week's destruction came because the high winds carried off top soil which had become "like dry powder" through lack of rain. The winds blew the crops away with the soil.

NOT IN POSITION TO SAY

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King told The Canadian Press yesterday he was not yet in a position to say when he was going to London to participate in the commonwealth talks which have brought Prime Ministers to the empire capital from all the Dominions. Previously a Washington report had stated that Mr. King had booked passage to sail from New York either May 3 or May 13.

PLEAD FOR MIHAILOVIC

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)— Three former R.C.A.F. air crew members arrived here last night to attempt to enlist the support of Prime Minister Mackenzie King in seeing that Gen. Reid, both of Edmonton, and David Martin, formerly of Toronto and now a resident of New York, were forced to bail out over Yugoslavia and were given assistance by Gen. Mihailovic.

NEXT WEEK IS BABY WEEK IN BELLEVILLE

How Babies Grow and Develop

Everything is new to a newborn baby. Watching him grow and get acquainted with the world around him is one of the most fascinating and satisfying experiences of parenthood. In the space of a few months the baby develops more and learns more than at any other period of his life. Many forms of behavior that may seem annoying at first—for example, crying the first few nights after he comes home from the hospital—are simply signs of immaturity, and the baby will outgrow them. On the other hand, the habits he forms in the process of growth will depend largely on the care and training he gets and the examples he is set by the persons around him.

Height and Weight

At birth your baby will probably weigh about 7 or 7½ pounds, boys being slightly heavier than girls. The newborn infant is about 20 inches long. His head is large in proportion to the rest of his body because his brain is already well developed.

Your baby will likely lose a little weight directly after birth, but usually he regains this in a couple of weeks. Growth is very rapid in infancy; for their size babies require more food than adults do. By the time the baby is 4 months old he will probably have doubled his birth weight, and at 1 year he may weigh more than three times what he did when he was born. Babies who are gaining steadily in weight, and who are contented, need not be weighed oftener than once a week. After the second month, the weighings may come two weeks apart or may be discontinued, especially if the baby is being supervised regularly by a physician.

Your baby's length will increase about 8 to 10 inches during his first year. The upper part of his body will develop first, his legs being short in comparison with his arms and trunk. The fact that a baby can sit up and use his hands and arms well long before he can stand or walk shows that growth proceeds from the head downwards.

Teething

Although you cannot see that your young baby has any teeth, an X-ray picture of his jaw would show that the teeth are present, low down in the jaw, where they started from before his birth. The expectant mother's food must supply the elements necessary for building the baby's teeth during the prenatal period.

You may expect your baby's first tooth to appear at about the age of 6 months. It will probably be one of the two middle lower teeth. Shortly after these two teeth have come through, the corresponding upper ones appear. By the end of the 10th month the baby will probably have all four of his middle front teeth (central incisors), and the teeth next to them (lateral incisors) are starting to erupt. The first chewing teeth (molars) begin to come in when the baby is 1 year old; some perfectly normal babies have delayed tooth eruption, which is possibly inherited.

When "teething" begins, mothers are apt to lay every upset that a baby has to the fact that his teeth are coming. As the eruption of teeth is a natural process, it ought not to cause trouble, except when the teeth are actually pushing through the gums. Then the gums may be a little sore and uncomfortable. Having something hard to bite on, such as a bone or rubber ring, or hard crusts of bread, or zwieback, will help to ease the discomfort of the gums. The baby's teeth may be kept clean by wiping them with a clean cloth moistened with a solution of boiled water and baking soda.

Learning and Doing

As each baby takes his own time in growing and developing, the periods at which he learns to do things, like walking, talking, and bladder or bowel control, may vary greatly from the average. There is nothing to worry about if your baby does not take his first step or say his first intelligible word or keep dry as soon as some other babies do. Remember also that it takes time for the baby to succeed in doing what he sets out to do. For weeks after you first notice that the baby is trying to stand alone or to walk, for example, you will see him make many false starts and mistakes before he can perform the act successfully.

At first a baby's sense organs are not all fully formed, but very quickly his eyes and ears and nose and tongue and skin complete their development and teach him through experience what to expect from his world. He can tell light from dark as soon as he is born, and at the beginning of the second month he can follow a moving finger with his eyes and turn them toward an unusual sound. He recognizes familiar faces and objects by the end of the second month, and at 6 months he may act shy with strangers. If his new acquaintances do not make a fuss over him and try to touch him, this shyness will be outgrown as he becomes accustomed to seeing new people.

The baby can hear acutely and be frightened by sudden loud noises when he is only 2 days old. He recognises familiar voices at from 3 to 5 months of age and shows that he enjoys music at 6 months.

His ability to speak depends upon his sense of hearing. At first the only way he can make his wants known is by crying. By slight differences in the tone of his cry his mother learns to tell when he is hungry, or uncomfortable, or frightened, or in pain, or only wants attention. But by the time he is 4 months old he has several other ways of expressing himself—he smiles vividly, laughs, coos, gurgles, and shows by his actions that he is aware of many things in the world around him. At 1 year of age the baby is usually able to say a few words besides his words for "father" and "mother". One word has to serve for a whole sentence at first. Girls usually begin to talk before boys do. A baby old enough to talk learns more quickly if all his wants are not anticipated. By letting him make a sound, even if it is only a grunt, to show what he wants, he learns to appreciate the value of speech as a tool.

The baby grows rapidly in strength and the ability to use his muscles. At first he sleeps most of the time, and when awake lies on his back with his head turned to one side. At 4 months he can hold up his head while lying on his back and can turn from back to side and from side to back. He likes to sit up propped by pillows, and can hold his head erect when carried. He reaches for objects around him and enjoys playing with a rattle. Shortly after the baby is 6 months old he can sit up alone. He tries to get hold of everything within reach, and takes great delight in playing with objects he can crumple or bang. This is the time when he begins to bring almost everything to his mouth as a further means of finding out more about it.

From the ninth to the tenth month, the baby will probably be able to make stepping movements when held so that his feet touch the floor. He may even stand up, holding onto a chair or the side of his crib, but he may not be able to pull himself up yet. When he first pulls himself up he may not be able to let go to sit down and will need to be helped. He enjoys games like peekaboo, waves good-by, and holds out his arms to be taken up. He is using his hands more all the time. By the time he is 10 months old he may creep, though some babies never do.

At 1 year of age the baby will probably walk when someone holds his hand, and soon afterward he will be able to climb up steps. It is important that a baby should have a chance for safe climbing, as it strengthens all his muscles. It takes only a few trials, with help, to teach a baby to climb up steps safely. He will do the going up part easily; it is when he is coming down that he will need your help in showing him where to put his feet.

The average time for walking alone is 15 months, although many a baby walks earlier. Parents should not be concerned if their baby does not walk until somewhat later, for the age of walking varies a great deal from one baby to another.

THE CARE OF THE BABY

Although a normal newly born baby is all ready to start life as a separate human being, many of his organs are imperfectly developed. The secret of his care during the first months is to see that all his wants are met while his sensitive little body gradually develops in peace and quiet the ability to perform functions which were performed for him before he was born.

A tiny baby is easily frightened by rough handling, loud, sharp noises, sudden approaches, the feeling of being dropped. So remember to handle your newborn baby gently, approach him in slow motion, hold him securely, talk to him softly and cheerfully, surround him with the calm, peaceful atmosphere which will make him feel secure and loved.

Everyone will be happier, and the baby will get along better, if a careful plan is made that takes into account his needs and yours. To save your strength when you first take up your household tasks after the baby's birth, it is especially necessary to have the arrangements for the first few weeks carefully thought out. Ask your husband to help you plan these arrangements. If he can share in the care of the baby at this time, his love and interest will get an early start.

A young father usually feels awkward and helpless about handling and caring for a new baby, but if he is encouraged to do it he soon becomes interested in the baby's development to an extent that would be impossible without this close acquaintance. For example, many a father looks forward to giving the baby his bath on Sunday, as he can then see how the baby has grown and what new things he can do. In any event, your husband should be familiar with the routine of caring for the baby so that he can take over in case of an emergency, such as illness in the family.

Medical Supervision For Your Baby

During the first year your baby should be seen by a physician at least once a month, even though the baby remains well. If the doctor who is to deliver you does not make a practice of looking after babies himself, ask his advice about future medical supervision.

The Baby's Feeding Schedule

The doctor will tell you how often the baby should be fed at various ages. He may recommend feedings at either three-hour or four-hour intervals. In planning your baby's daily program make sure that his feeding hours are convenient and interfere with your rest and his rest as little as possible.

As the baby grows older the intervals between the times when he wakes up at night to be fed become longer and longer. Some babies may sleep beyond the time for the 2 a.m. feeding shortly after they are 2 weeks old. When a baby fails to wake up for this feeding he may wake later yelling for food. In that case it is all right to feed him regardless of what his schedule calls for. By the time he is 2 months old he will probably have learned to sleep right through to his 6 a.m. feeding. Little by little as he grows older, the baby also learns to do without the 10 p.m. feeding, until finally he gets 12 hours of unbroken sleep at night. During this process it is a good idea to give the last feeding at night a little later than 6 o'clock, and the first one in the morning a little before 6 o'clock so that the interval between feedings will not be so long.

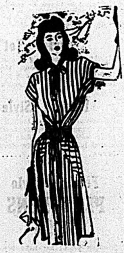
Stripes Are Starred



Cotton dress for daytime wear.

STRIPES STAR in the spring-into-summer dress parade, especially when it comes to being young cottons. Striped cotton makes this nice little dress, just right for all-day wear by a blithe little beauty. Vertical stripes on the bodice and skirt, diagonal stripes used in diagonal formation from underarm to waist, and horizontally on the hip yoke add charm and interest to an otherwise quite simple little frock. The skirt ripples into soft gathers. The colors are black stripes on a bright yellow ground.

NEXT WEEK IS BABY WEEK

Thousands of fathers and mothers are now getting ready to receive the thousands of babies who will be born this year. The coming of a new baby is an exciting event, because each baby is a unique little person with possibilities for growth and development different from those of all other human beings.

When a normal baby comes into the world, his body is already equipped with everything necessary to assume the task of living. The kind of body he has depends partly upon what he inherits from his parents and partly upon the care his mother had before he was born. But the instant he is born everything in his surroundings begins to influence the way in which his body and mind develop. The provisions made for his comfort, health, and safety; the standards and ideals of his home; the attitude of his parents toward him and toward other members of the family, all help to determine the kind of person he will grow up to be.

For the first few months all a baby wants is to be kept comfortable, safe, warm, and well-nourished while he is getting used to living as separate human being. Simplicity should be the keynote of the arrangements made for his care, whether there is much money or only a little to spend. The simpler the arrangements you make, the more time and strehgth you will have to give him a good start in life.

Supplies For The Baby

The things you will need in taking good care of your baby are described as follows: By using a little ingenuity you may save, on some things in order to have more to spend for others.

Bed And Bedding

The first bed may be a bassinet, a crib, or a large rectangular clothes basket with handles. A large crib with a firm mattress will be needed by the time your baby is sitting up and trying to stand, so you may decide to buy one in the beginning. Be sure that the slats are close enough together so that the baby cannot get his head between them, and that the fastenings are secure and easy to manage.

If you use a basket for the baby's first bed, make a mattress by folding a soft, clean blanket several times, or by using three or four thicknesses of quilted padding. Slip the mattress into a muslin cover made like a pillowcase.

The supplies needed for the baby's bed are a piece of oilcloth or waterproof sheeting, sheets, a cotton pad, and lightweight wool or part-wool blankets. In making the bed the waterproof sheeting goes on first over the mattress, then comes the cloth sheet, and finally the cotton pad.

Lightweight wool blankets make better bedcovers than comforters, as comforters are too heavy for a baby. In cold weather, extra blankets underneath the baby are as important as the covers that go over him.

For the sake of his posture, your baby should sleep without a pillow. A folded cloth, which may be changed frequently, may be laid under his head to save the sheet.

Baby Carriage

In selecting a baby carriage be sure to get one that is large enough to accommodate your baby both when he is sitting up and when he is lying down. It should have good springs and be high enough above the ground to protect the baby from dust and animals. It should be provided with a netting to keep out flies, mosquitoes, and other insects.

A carriage is not roomy enough to be used as a bed, except for very little babies and for outdoor naps.

Toilet Equipment

The things you will need to have on hand for bathing the baby are as follows:

A stout table on which to place the tub, or a combination table and tub. Some women prefer to stand when bathing the baby; others feel more at ease when they sit down to do it. Whichever position you choose, be sure that the height of the table is convenient, so that this task, which should be one of the pleasantest tasks of the day, will not overtire you. A fairly low chair, without arms, will be most useful if you undress and dress the baby while seated.

A tub of tin or enamel, or the "bathinette" type of tub which folds up when not in use.

From four to six soft bath towels and the same number of soft washcloths.

A tray or box containing the various small articles needed for the baby's toilet. Among the articles to supply for the toilet tray are covered glass jars for holding absorbent cotton balls, boiled water, sterilized nipples for giving water, and mineral oil or olive oil; a bar of mild pure soap on a soap dish with a cover; and two sizes of safety pins.

A pail with close-fitting cover for soiled diapers.

A small clothes rack for the baby's clothes and towels will prove very useful, although an extra chair kept for this purpose will do. A waterproof apron to protect your clothes while bathing the baby and an apron of bath toweling to wear over it will be a great convenience.

Balance Scales for Weighing The Baby

You will need to weigh the baby every week during the first month. To do this, first take off all his clothes and place him on a blanket in the pan of the scales. After recording the weight remove the baby, weigh the blanket, and subtract the weight of the blanket from the first weight recorded.

Clothing For Baby

The clothing which a mother makes or buys for her baby is called the layette. The simpler the layette is, the better. The baby will need the following articles of clothing during his first months of life:

Two to four shirts with sleeves; Two to four shirts without sleeves; Three to four dozen diapers; Three abdominal bands; Three or four kimonos; Three or four nightgowns; Two or three sweaters; Two or three large squares of flannel for wrapping the tiny baby; One light cap and cloak.

It is not advisable to buy the smallest-sized clothing as a baby outgrows his clothes so fast. All-cotton cloth is often used for a baby's shirts. Part cotton or rayon and part woolen shirts may be used in cold weather. However, wool irritates the skin of some babies, and you may prefer to provide extra warmth by means of a light woolen sweater which may be put on or taken off as the temperature of the room or the weather changes.

White and Navy for Spring

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

VIBRANT ACCESSORIES help achieve springtime look with the simplest of suits. Always smart and correct is the classic slip-on glove especially when it is fashioned of white doeskin with hand-stitching. The shoulder strap "mail-pouch" bag is of white calf When the flap is raised one can see the drawstring-tied pouch top. The sides and base are walled. The navy kidskin pump is a dainty design with its detail of a large white piped self-button that slips through a white-piped loop.

THE BABY'S PLAYTIME

One has only to watch a baby when he is awake to be amazed by the constant activity of his body. This squirming, wriggling, and waving of arms and legs is very necessary, as it helps him to grow strong. Almost from the first, the baby should have an opportunity to kick and stretch without any clothes on for a few minutes two or three times a day. It also rests a baby to be turned over occasionally.

Little babies need to be let alone most of the time, but they also like being taken up occasionally and held on the shoulder or laid flat across the knees for a little while. An older baby will enjoy having his father or mother carry him about and talk to him. Tossing a baby up in the air and catching him, or tickling him, will make him laugh, but the nervous strain which accompanies frequent rough or exciting play may make him irritable and nervous.

Active romping play should not be carried on in the late afternoon or evening, as a baby gets too excited to sleep well afterwards. Taking a baby up once he has gone to bed to show him off to admiring relatives or guests will badly interfere with his regular sleep habits.

From the first months a baby should get used to being alone for short periods while he is awake. In this way he will learn to amuse himself. By the age of 3 or 4 months, toys begin to have meaning for him. He should have only one or two at a time to play with, lest he get into the habit of picking up one thing and throwing it down because he sees another that distracts his attention.

When your baby is in his carriage, crib or play pen, do not get into the habit of picking up things he lets fall, as this will teach him to drop things to get attention. Tie a toy to his crib or pen and let him solve the problem of how to recover it when it is out of his reach. Simple, inexpensive articles that may be found in any household, such as stout paper to crumple; large, empty spools; a spoon and tin pan with which to make noise are the kinds of playthings a baby of from 6 months to 1 year will enjoy. Do not give him painted toys, objects small enough to be swallowed, or toys with sharp edges or parts that will come off, as everything will go into the baby's mouth. For this reason, too, toys must be kept clean.

It is time to get a play pen when the baby begins to get about by creeping or pulling himself up by the furniture. Many baby pens have a canvas floor, but if you make one at home you may want to put in a wooden floor, because then it can be used out of doors when the ground is damp. If the floor of the pen is raised a bit, you will not have to worry about the baby catching cold in cold weather from being too near the floor. The slats of the pen must be close enough together so that the baby cannot get his head through.

ST. JOHN'S W.A.

Stirling.—The members of St. John's W.A. met in the Parish Hall on Tuesday, April 30, with sixteen members and two visitors present. The membership now is thirty-two and more are heartily invited to come.

Mrs. H. Rodgers, president, opened the meeting. Mrs. H. Smith gave the Bible reading.

Minutes of the last meeting and correspondence were read. Mrs. Fred Kent gave the treasurer's report for the month.

The visiting committee made six calls during April. Those chosen for the month of May are Mrs. H. Smith and Mrs. McMurray.

Mrs. Burton Woodbeck gave a splendid report of the Annual W.A. with the following highlights of the session: Two carloads from Stirling attended the service which commenced with Communion Service with the Lord Bishop of Ontario as celebrant in St. James' Church, Kingsion. The Rev. Dr. A. T Briarly Browne, dean of Ontario, delivered the sermon.

After the service the ladies adjourned to the Parish Hall where Mrs. J. de Pencier Wright occupied the president's chair.

An address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. R. G. Ashcroft with Mrs. Mary Humphries replying.

The Bishop in speaking paid very high tribute to the work don by Miss Ruttan retiring secretary-treasurer of Dorcas. He also spoke briefly on the Anglical Advance Appeal asking all members to support this great cause.

Mrs. Wright in her address in the afternoon mentioned the fact that in 1885 there were only seven or eight women members of the W.A. as compared to approximately ninety-one thousand today. The second speaker, Mrs. P. Carrington, of Quebec City, secretary of the Girls' Department of the Dominion Board was very interesting. Miss Butler announced the Thank-offering amounted to $1,598.78.

Mrs. Pepper of Brockville, extended an invitation for the 61st Annual meeting next year to be held in St. Paul's Church. This will be a two day session.

The ladies served tea, sandwiches and cake.

Mrs. H. Rodgers thanked Mrs. Woodbeck for this wonderful report. Mrs. H. Cooke and Mrs. E. Gould were in charge of the program. Mrs. McMurray gave a reading "The Hand that Rocks the Cradle". Mrs. Edgar Morrow gave an interesting reading on "Will Justice be done to our Canadian Japanese". Mrs. B. Stiles conducted a contest. At this point the Rev. W. J. Robinson, of Tweed, and Rev. C. C. Brazill joined the meeting. Rev. Mr. Robinson spoke to the ladies in connection with the Anglican Advance Appeal also gave a piano selection "Maiden's Prayer" which was greatly enjoyed. The rector sang "Rise Up O Men of God", accompanied by Rev. Mr. Robinson at the piano.

The rector spoke briefly on the Anglican Advance Appeal.

Mrs. C. Vance moved a vote of thanks to all taking part in this wonderful meeting.

Schoolboys Open The Silly Season

Richmond, Va., May 3. (AP) The spring silly season was ushered in today at Robert E. Lee school and the three sixth-grade boys taking part in the performance were ushered out by Principal Horace R. Eckles.

The trio wished to protest against girls wearing dungarees and flannel shirts. So they came clad in sharp little skirts, anklets and saddle shoes. Their crew haircuts didn't afford good holding ground for hair ribbons. But one wore a rosebud.

Principal Eckles' comment was a digest version. All he said was:

"Silly."

Bans Love-making Between Frauleins And G.I's on Berlin Streets

Berlin, May 3. (AP)—United States soldiers with romantic inclinations towards German girls must henceforth refrain from love-making on Berlin streets.

Maj.-Gen. Walter B. Keating, new commander of the American garrison here, has issued an order to all officers under his jurisdiction that they lead their troops back to a more "austere" way of life—a way which, he made clear, precludes all public demonstrations of romance.

"We can't control what happens behind closed doors," said Keating, "but we can control what happens in public, and we shall."

GOOD CONDITIONS FOR SLEEP FOR THE BABY

The very young baby sleeps rom 20 to 22 hours out of the , but gradually the length of me he sleeps grows less, until t 6 months he is sleeping about 5 or 18 hours. From the first, e should have his longest sleep eriod at night, for your sake as ell as his own. By the time he 9 months old he should be aving 12 unbroken hours of leep at night. As the amount of leep your baby needs grows less, ou will find that one of his daytime naps becomes shorter. Some me before he is 18 months old e will no longer need two naps day.

Because your baby's growth epends just as much upon his leep as upon his food, you should y to make conditions right for im to learn good habits of leep. The place where your baby sleeps should not be too light nd should be protected from udden noises and interruptions. owever, it will not always be ossible for him to sleep where is completely dark and quiet, o it is advisable not to pull the hades all the way down, nor to y to shut out every bit of noise. is unwise to go about on tiptoe, onstantly hushing everyone and olding up the progress of the rdinary household activities in rder to have complete quiet.

The baby should sleep in his wn bed. Both he and his mother will sleep better separately, and the baby will not form the habit of having his mother lie down beside him when he goes to bed.

There should be a constant circulation of fresh air in the room in which your baby sleeps. All open windows should be well screened against flies and mosquitoes. In cold weather it may be necessary to fit a frame covered with gauze into the part of the window that is open in order to temper the stream of air flowing into the room. Another method is to use a window board or a screen placed in front of the window to keep air from blowing directly on the baby's bed. The bedroom and the baby's night clothes should be adapted to the temperature of the room.

FOOD FOR THE BABY

Giving your baby a standardized fish-liver oil or concentrate of vitamins A and D supplies him with vitamins which are necessary to promote normal growth and to prevent rickets, a disease that interferes with the healthy growth and formation of his bones and teeth. Fish-liver oil should be started before the end of the first month, preferably during the first two weeks. The amount you give your baby will depend upon the doctor's advice and the kind of oil you are using In any case, doctors suggest beginning with a few drops and working up to the full dosage gradually. The oil should be continued through the summer months. It is advisable to give the oil alone rather than to mix it with other foods, so that the baby will learn to like the taste.

About the same time you start to feed the baby fish-liver oil, you may begin giving him fruit juice, which contains an element (vitamin C) necessary for health and normal growth. This juice may be unsweetened orange juice or grapefruit juice, canned or fresh, or tomato juice. If you use tomato juice it will be necessary to double the quantity recommended for citrus fruit juice, since it is not so rich in vitamin C.

Start with a teaspoonful of fruit juice a day diluted with a teaspoonful of boiled water, and increase the amount gradually until the baby is getting the quantity recommended by the physician. Fresh fruit juice should be strained and preferably given right after squeezing. Canned juices are already strained. Fruit juices should not be boiled or heated, but should be at room temperature when they are fed to the baby.

Every baby should be offered boiled, cool water several times a day, from a bottle with a nipple, your baby should be taught to drink from a cup regularly boiled and kept for his use.

Sometime between the third and sixth month, your doctor will want you to begin giving your baby other foods besides milk, fish-liver oil, and fruit juice. The time at which you may begin to add other foods will depend upon the doctor's instructions.

Cooked cereals may be started when the baby is 4 months old. In selecting cereal for infants, preference should be given to the whole-grain or enriched variety or those especially prepared for babie, as they supply valuable minerals and vitamins in addition to the starch of which they are largely made up. Zwieback, hard toast, or hard bread crusts for the baby to chew on may be given when his teeth begin to come through. To prevent choking, the baby should be sitting up with someone watching him when he chews on hard food of this kind.

Specially prepared baby cereals do not require cooking and are served with warm milk. The home-cooked varieties, which are less expensive, must be strained after cooking unless they are fine-grained.

At the first cereal should be given a thin mixture, but as your baby grows older, the cereal should be made thicker. If the baby seems at first to spit out the cereal, do not scold him. Remember that he is going through a new experience. All he knows how to do is to suck, and in sucking he may sometimes expel the cereal from his mouth. Give very small bites at first and show that you are pleased when he swallows it. Be patient and praise him for trying and he will soon learn to enjoy the new food.

When the baby is 3 or 4 months old, your doctor may advise giving egg yolk, mainly for the iron it supplies. Begin with only a few drops and gradually increase the amount until your baby is getting as much as the doctor recommends. The egg yolk may be raw, soft cooked, or hard cooked and mashed. Liver, finely chopped after cooking, may be begun during the first year and substituted for egg yolk once or twice weekly.

Vegetables are valuable for minerals and vitamins and help to promote good elimination. The first vegetables given to the baby when he is 5 or 6 months old will be strained peas, carrots, and green leaves like spinach or beet greens. Later on, strained green beans, beets, celery, and the like may be added. The small cans of sieved vegetables put up especially for babies are expensive, but they are a great time-saver and contain practically the same food value as home-cooked fresh vegetables. If you use canned vegetables, it is desirable to alternate them with fresh-cooked vegetables so that your baby acquires a taste for both.

Baked potato may be given three or four times a week after your baby has learned to eat other vegetables. It may be moistened with a small amount of the baby's milk mixture. A little later potato may be served every day, but the baby must not be allowed to refuse other vegetables to get more potato, which he usually likes very much.

POLICE PROBE DISCOVERY

KEEPING YOUR CHILD WELL

A well baby is a happy, lively aby. His skin is a healthy pink, is eyes bright, and his flesh firm nd not flabby. His appetite is ood; he sleeps soundly; and he akes a steady gain in weight. egularity in eating and sleeping reedom from overexcitement, leanliness, protection from conagious diseases, regular medical upervision, and calm and assurd handling will all help to keep our baby well.

Babies can now be made safe rom several of the contagious iseases which are especially angerous in infancy. When the aby is from 6 months to 9 onths old, the doctor will probbly protect him from diphtheria, mallpox, whooping cough, and possibly tetanus (lockjaw). Effective combined vaccines which serve the purpose of protecting babies against diphtheria and tetanus or against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough at one and the same time are now used by many doctors. Immunization measures are harmless, although the baby may be feverish or fretful for a day or so following one or more of the treatments.

Since measles is a serious disease for infants, you should do everything possible to keep your baby from being exposed. If there is an epidemic of measles in the neighborhood or an older child coming down with measles has been near the baby, the doctor will probably try to keep the baby from getting measles by injecting a protective substance.

Family Influence on Character

The good physical care you give your baby will help to make him comfortable and safe and healthy. What he learns from ou and other members of the amily group will influence the ay he behaves, —the way his mind works, the way he feels about things his whole life long. By your own attitudes, which our little child absorbs as a flower absorbs rain and sunlight, ou can help him to be free rom unworthy fears, to be ruthful and fair, to tackle his roblems with resourcefulness nd courage.

Even a tiny baby is unique with ossibilities of development different from those of all other babies. You have the pleasure of recognizing the best traits and discouraging the least desirable. By your loving care you give your baby the warm feeling of belongingness that will later develop into the knowledge that there is a place in his family circle that only he can fill, and still later that he has something within himself to contribute to society. But, if you are wise, you will not let your feelings of tenderness and protection, as the baby grows older, smother the free and independent spirit which will enable him finally to win a happy, useful life for himself.

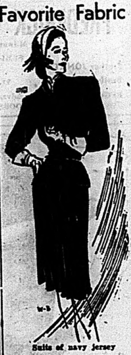
Fashion's Favorite Fabric



Suits of navy jersey

By VERA WINSTON

FINE WOOL jersey is a fabric favorite this year, used for some of the nicest clothes seen about town. Navy blue jersey is used for this trig little suit dress which goes in for a snug and slim bodice. There are slip pockets on the flaps which extend to the back where a vertical slit eases the line. The skirt is gathered centre front and gored in back. It is nice on its own or with a pretty blouse or a gay scarf tucked in at the throat.

SOUTHPAW POSE PROBLEM FOR ST. LOUIS CARDS

Eight Lefthanders Work Against Cards and Win Four Games This Season

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It looked today as if the National League is trying to southpaw the favored St. Louis Cardinals to death to keep the Red Birds from wrestling the pennant from Chicago Cubs.

In 14 games this season, eight lefthanders have worked against St. Louis sluggers for four victories. Altogether the Cards have dropped five games, only one to a righthander.

The latest lefty to haunt the Cards was Dave Koslo, New York Giants hopeful, who handcuffed them with four hits yesterday and whipped them 5-1 to knock St. Louis out of a first-place tie with Brooklyn.

The Dodgers came from behind to shackle the Cubs 3-2 when Billy Herman's single in the 8th inning scored Pete Reiser and Dixie Walker with the tying and winning runs.

Boston's pin-up boy, Ted Williams, slammed a 10th-inning home run to give the American League-leading Red Sox a 5-4 victory over Detroit Tigers and a clean sweep of the three-game series.

New York Yankees clung to the Sox heels by trimming Cleveland Indians 8-2 behind effective 9-hit hurling by Spud Chandler, 1st big league moundsman to register four victories.

Banged around for two straight days by the Philadelphia Athletics, St. Louis Browns came to life with a 16-hit barrage to defeat their tormentors, 10-3.

Lefty Fritz Ostermueller pitched a steady game against Philadelphia Phillies while his Pittsburgh Pirate mates took advantage of a big five-run frame to topple the Phils, 8-3. It was the Phils' 10th loss in 13 games.

The scheduled Boston Braves-Cincinnati Reds contest was rained out. Washington and Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

DOMINOES BEAT ASSUMPTION IN SECOND GAME

Western Cagers Appear to Have Dominion Title All Sewed Up

Windsor, Ont., May 3 — (CP) — The mighty Victoria Dominoes today were within one game of the Canadian senior "A" basketball title, after rolling up their second straight triumph over the Windsor Assumption College squad by a 51-37 count.

Dominoes now are called to end the best-of-five final in the third game Saturday night.

It was the stellar marksmanship of the Dominoes on foul shots that paid off. The Dominoes sank 17 field goals and 17 out of 21 foul tries. In contrast Assumption, netting 13 field goals, were able to sink only 11 of their 22 foul shots.

Norm Baker, tall, blond star of the westerners, was high scorer again last night with 18 points. He had five field goals and was hot on the foul line, netting eight of his nine tries. George Andrews was not far behind, with 11 points.

Andrews, apart from his scoring, was a defensive star of the game, stopping many Assumption drives with his steady work at guard.

Assumption's top scorer was Pete Mudry, who tallied 11 points on three field goals and five foul shots. It was Mudry's best night of the season after he had been put in the starting lineup in place of Tommy White at guard. Freddie Thomas sank four field goals and a foul shot for nine points, and Gino Sovran amassed eight points, including two field goals.

Coach Stan Nantais of the Windsor squad took the defeat in stride but he's just about given up hope of his team winning the title. "They're just a bit too old for us," said Nantais.

The Dominoes team had been re-united after being broken up by the war and Baker, one of several veterans on the western squad, had proved a tough nut for Windsor in the title clash two years previously when he was playing for R.C.A.F. Fliers.

RESULT OF EXAMINATION

Toronto, May 3 — (CP) — Authorities revealed Wednesday that examination of the body of Norma Baldwin, 25-year-old domestic whose body was found in Toronto Bay last week after she had been missing for several weeks, showed no traces of poison. A previous autopsy showed death due to drowning but police investigation had continued in view of the girl's mysterious disappearance.

TORONTO LEAFS LOSE IN NINTH TO THE CHIEFS

Syracuse Scores Three Runs in Ninth on Walk and Four Singles

(By The Associated Press)

George Hooks and Alex Ronay, two pitchers whom manager Tommy Thomas of the International League's pace-setting Baltimore Orioles has used consistently in relief roles, are making serious bids for a starting assignment.

Hooks came to the aid of Ray Poat in the seventh inning yesterday and held Rochester Red Wings scoreless for six innings to gain credit for a 13-inning triumph, 4-3.

The victory was the Orioles' second straight over Rochester and preserved their half-game margin over the runner-up Syracuse Chiefs who nosed out Toronto Maple Leafs 7-6 in Toronto.

Ronay, who relieved Ray Flanigan and obtained credit for the Orioles' 9-6 triumph over the Wings Wednesday, and Hooks have turned in some of the best Oriole pitching of the year.

Jersey City Giants and Montreal Royals battled to a 9-9 12-inning deadlock. The Jerseys used 24 players, including nine pitchers, while the Royals shoved 16 men into battle. Montreal scored six times in the sixth and once in the eighth to assume a 9-7 advantage but the Giants tied it up with a two-run blast in the ninth.

Syracuse came from behind to tally three runs against Toronto in the ninth inning on a walk and four singles. Kermit Wahl drove in Charley Kress with the winning run with his second single of the game. Buffalo and Newark were not scheduled.

Yankees Best Drawing Card In the Majors

New York, May 3 — (AP) — New York Yankees today are baseball's hottest "draw", playing day after day to paying crowds ranging from 20,000 to more than 50,000. The smallest turnout Yankee Stadium has seen this season was yesterday's 21,511 for the series finale with Cleveland Indians.

The opening-day turnstile count was 54,826, described as a record by the Yankee front office.

For eight home dates, the total Stadium attendance is 267,133 or approximately 30 per cent of last year's take for the entire season. The club has been home only one Sunday and hasn't played a single doubleheader. Furthermore, the two best rival attractions, the world champion Detroit Tigers and the Boston Red Sox with Ted Williams in the lineup, haven't played here yet.

Somebody asked secretary Arthur (Red) Patterson to check on the big league record for a season.

"The Chicago Cubs drew 1,485,166 in 1929," said Patterson. "You can bet we're taking dead aim at that figure."

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Billy Herman, Dodgers: His pinch single scored two runners in eighth inning to give the Dodgers a 3-2 victory over the Cubs.

Dave Koslo, Giants: Limited the Cardinals to four hits in pitching the Giants to a 5-1 victory.

Hank Camelli and Bob Elliott, Pirates: Their triples in the second inning featured a five-run rally and won for the Pirates, 8-3 over Phils.

Ted Williams, Red Sox: His 10th-inning homer gave the Sox a 5-4 decision over the Tigers.

Nick Etten, Yankees: Belted a grand-slam homer to highlight an eighth-run fourth inning which was enough to beat the Indians 8-2.

Walter Judnich, Browns: Collected four hits to lead the Browns to a 10-3 victory over the Athletics.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Softball squads of the Belleville Softball Association are losing no time in getting practices under their belts and that goes for the baseball squads too. Down at Ox Point, Phil Loft and his Point Anners are faithfully bumping around the overgrown spheroid in nightly practice jaunts, and city teams are doing likewise.

Frank Sedore, brain trust of the newly formed Belleville Flashes, a squad composed entirely of veterans of the last war, gives out with the statement that his slit-trench-aircraft and mess-deck athletes are appearing regularly for work-outs. "No Reveille is needed for my boys" quoth Frank, who announced that a further practice will be held at the Fair Grounds tonight at 6.30.

Latest recruit to the Flashes roster is Doug Beaupit, former Hamilton hurler, who arrived in town to take a new job with the Tip Top Tailors Branch here last Monday. Doug turned out with the Flashes the other night and looms up as a promising addition to the armed services exes.

There is a strong possibility that Vern (Jumbo) Goyer may take over the guidance of the Belleville Junior Softball squad, which won the Ontario junior title last year under the aegis of the Columbian Squires. Vern feels that despite the fact that the team's ace hurler, Don Boyle has left for greener pastures and some of last years team are over the junior age, he can fill in the vacancies with some promising young material. If plans now under way materialize the youngsters might yet field a strong team with "Jumbo" in the role of manager.

An indignant blonde stopped us on the street yesterday with fire in her eyes and a look of determination on her face. With a clear conscience yet withal a sly glance around the vicinity to note whether the better half was cruising around on a reconnaissance mission, we stood our ground and awaited the onslaught. A daintily shod foot stamped angrily on the pavement. She tossed a golden mane and rearranged a stray wisp of blonde hair.

"Listen," she blazed through pearly teeth. "Can you tell me what is wrong with these lazy, irresponsible, lethargic, apathetic, don't-give-a-damn hunks of alleged masculinity who are supposed to have the Ladies Softball League under their featherless wings? They've had all winter to get something organized, and what did they do. Nothing. They called a meeting a few weeks ago, and what did they do. Stayed at home and studied the 1946 edition of a seed catalogue. What about us gals who want to play softball. Don't they care anything about us, other than shoot wolfish eyes at us when they see us on the street?"

"There are at least four girls' teams that I know of, in the city who want to get into organized softball, not to mention a team or so from the air station," she went on," and all that is needed is a few husky he-men to contribute their brains, if any, to get the thing started. If nothing happens along these lines soon, we'll organize the thing ourselves, swelp me Ozark Ike and then everything will be Shoo-Shoo Fly and Apple-Pan Dowdy. (whatever that is)

She paused a moment to replenish her ammunition belts, and let loose with another salvo. "Then what would happen. It is as plain as the nose on your face. We would be accused of being Gravel Gerties, Dragon Ladies, and whatnot, and in all probability some masculine termites would come forward and tell US how to operate the league."

The current heart-throb appeared on the horizon at the moment and the blonde bombshell turned away. "People will soon be wondering where the girls' softball teams are this year," was her parting shot. "So you tell 'em what I told you, and brother, I'm not kidding. So long, chum, here comes Prince Valiant."

And there you have it. It appears that unless something is done in a hurry, ladies softball in this man's town will be relegated to the limbo of things that were. One squad, we are informed, has already lined up its members, and if the worst comes to the worst will seek engagements (softball) with out-of-town aggregations. The girls' game proved a popular evening pastime during the war years, and was productive of a fine brand of the outdoor sport. But the administrative males of the species, apparently aren't too much interested, and it looks as though the game, from a girls' standpoint will die a lingering death.

Don Gallinger of the Boston Bruins stumbled into a strange gathering shortly after the end of the Bruins-Canadians Stanley Cup finals series. A number of his pals were squatting on the floor, so Don, being an inquisitive guy, sunk to his haunches to find out what was going on. It didn't take long. It was a painless pastime called "galloping dominoes," played to the breezy chant of "Baby needs Shoes" or that old Indian lullaby "Snake-Eyes" with vocal obligatos of "Box-Car Boogie" and solemn supplications to "L'il Joe", "Phoebe", "Two Rows of Buckshot" and other mythical beings that supposedly guide the destinies of the spotted cubes.

But there was no joy in Beanville that night. There was whizardry in the mighty mitts of Galloping Gallinger. He murmured soft nuances to the ivories as they rolled softly over the floor, occasionally glancing upwards at their manipulator with a "Howma-doin' pal" look. Their loyalty was superb. By the time the sun was getting over the Beantown Hills and the Cabots and the Lodges had drawn evening blinds to protect themselves from the glances of the hoi-polloi, the Great Gallinger had collected some $1300 of his pals dinero. Which in addition to his cut of the playoff melon, amounted to tidy little sum.

Tonight at the Hume Arena, Whippah Billy Watson will fling his superb torso against the hairy but sturdy barrel-shaped upper extremities of one Frederick Von Schacht. Dubbed as the Milwaukee Mastodon, the burly Von has yet to win any awards in a be-kind-to-pachyderms contest, and delights in the Frankensteinian methods of tearing the foe apart, and nonchalantly disdaining the remnants. He is a rough-tough graduate of the knock-em-down-and-drag-em-out school, and excels in this form of mat mayhem. But the gallant Whipper refused to be scared and the outcome should be a pleasing eyeful. Then there's the Mormon Maulers, Jonathan and Russel, popular guys, these, who will appear in the preceding bouts against Bockwinkle and Mazzatti, respectively.

"HORSE SENSE" BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 977
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme resorts to the lollypop lead. She lolls back and pops out with the first card that strikes her fancy. She generally favors a red card when she is wearing green.

But the rule for leads is: Follow the 'order' in tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

When opponents have bid all four suits, lead a trump. When each unbid non-trump suit has an ace or a king, lead a trump. Thus, you lead a trump when a don't warns you against leading a side suit.

Suppose each unbid side suit contains an ace or a king. If the trump suit also contains the king and a small card, do not lead a trump. Choose a lead that may do you the least harm.

Do you realize what this means to your partner? Can you spot what partner tells you when he leads a trump? See it for yourself when partner leads from this hand:

♥ 9 7 4 2
♣ K 7 6

The opponents bid hearts and diamonds before ending in a four spade contract. Your partner leads the trump six. What do you know?

Hearts and diamonds were bid by opponents. So, you do not expect him to lead either. But why did he not lead a club? There can be but one reason. He must have an ace or a king in it.

What good does that do you? It tells you that he wants you to lead a club when you can. It tells you that a club lead from you will be toward his ace or king.

Will it tell you exactly which he has ace or king? Very likely. If you have the ace, he must have the king. If you have the king, he must have the ace. If dummy has either, he must have the other.

You know better than to ask me if he has both. With both, he would have had a top lead. Can you top this?

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 3. (AP)—Want a career as a singer? Then start by singing Sunday mornings, advises Dennis Morgan.

The warbling actor advocates service in church choirs as one of the best means of gaining experience for show business.

Morgan, who is playing a gambler in "Cheyenne, has been singing in churches nearly all his life and is the mainstay of a Presbyterian choir in Hollywood. His argument:

"First of all, you learn stage presence. You are trained as a group and you appear as a group. That eliminates the 'all-alone' feeling with your first audience.

"You learn part singing. After your voice has changed and settled, you find out the different voice ranges and how they're used in harmony. And of course, you learn to read music and how to shade your voice.

"Also you become familiar with church music by such composers as Bach and Mendelssohn and you develop a taste for good music."

The search for the 1947 crop of Goldwyn girls, Lew Kerner, Goldwyn casting director, explains the qualities he seeks: "A Goldwyn girl must be beautiful; she must also be intelligent; she must be a perfect lady—not a gum-chewer."

A parade of beauties started and Kerner commented after each left the room: "Thin ankles— that means thin knees" . . . "What a smile! Her whole face lights up —even her ears smile" . . ."We're looking for girls, not wrestlers" . . ."Her eyes are blue-green, her hair blonde-brunette-auburn. The color cameraman would go nuts."

I remarked that he had an ideal job for a single man.

"Me single?" laughed Kerner. "I'm married to the former Miss Atlanta!"

CANADA TO BE BACKBONE OF INT. HOCKEY

Members of U. S. Group Say C.A.H.A. to Provide Impetus

Vancouver, May 3. (CP)—It is evident from discussions at the annual conventions of the International Ice Hockey and Canadian Amateur Hockey Associations meeting here that Canada, home of the world's top hockey talent, is destined to play the leading part in growing development of the game.

Walter Brown of Boston, secretary of the American Amateur Hockey Hockey Association, who recently returned from a trip to Europe, expressed belief at the opening session of the I.I.H.A. meeting yesterday that the continent needs leadership in hockey development. He felt that the C.A.H.A. is the body to provide that leadership through the I.I.H.A.

He said he did not think much of the hockey setup in England. There are three big rinks, Wembley, Harringay and Earlscourt, he said, with the first two controlled by Greyhound Racing interests. Mr. Brown felt they should be in the hands of persons directly interested in hockey.

He added that the Scottish Amateur Association was considering breaking away from the British Association.

To attempt to stir up hockey in the United States, Tom Lockhart of New York, president of the A.H.A., said he intends to send a man around the country with moving pictures of N.H.L. games.

A coaching school will be held in New York under the direction of Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers.

Evidence that Canada's hockey supremacy would not be threatened for some time to come was presented by Dr. George Hardy of Edmonton, president of the I.I.H.A.

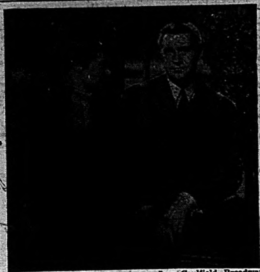
He told of receiving three letters from Russia and some pictures. They use old style field hockey sticks and rubber balls for a puck, he said. We don't expect any competition from them for a while, but with help they'll be tough to beat someday, he said. They have the weather and facilities for good hockey development.

At yesterday's meeting it was revealed by George S. Dudley, secretary of both the Canadian and International bodies, that the National Hockey League had offered to pay $20,000 a year to the C.A.H.A. for all amateur talent moving into professional hockey.

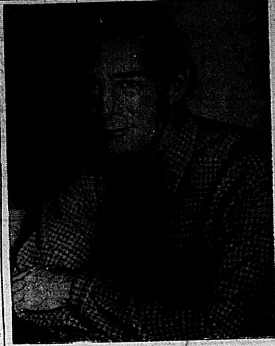
The C.A.H.A. had intended to get $2,000 for any player moving to the N.H.L. and staying more than a year, or $1,000 for a player staying just a year. It would be half price for minor pro leagues.

However, the N.H.L. proposed a flat sum in payment for any players needed by all pro leagues, N.H.L., A.H.L. and U.S.H.L., $20,000 to cover all of them.

Long Itchington, Warwick, England. (CP)—Miss Frances Witherington, 50 years an organist, stipulated there be no music at her funeral.



AT THE BELLE — Screen newcomer Joan Caulfield, Broadway's original "Kiss and Tell" girl, reassures the disconsolate Sonny Tufts in "Miss Susie Slagle's", Paramount film version of Augusta Tucker's popular novel, with Veronica Lake and Lillian Gish in featured roles.



AT THE McCARTHY — Randolph Scott plays Marshal Dan Mitchell in Jules Levy's exciting frontier drama, with music now at the McCarthy Theatre. Ann Dvorak co-stars with him in this United Artists release.

AT THE CAPITOL — Wm. Boyd as "Hopalong" Cassidy in the latest Clarence E. Mulford story to be brought to the screen, "Bar 20 Rides Again," now at the Capitol Theatre. The added big attraction "Don Juan Quilligan" stars William Bendix, Joan Blondell and Phil Silvers.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Louisville, Ky., May 3 — (AP) — In 1891 a special stand tabbed the "Bureau of Information" was erected at Churchill Downs for the exclusive use of touts, who were supposed to pay $5 a day for the privilege of following their profession. History records that not a single tout took out a required licence . . . Since then Col. Matt Winn has worked out a simpler system. There's no charge and the stand is called the press box . . . Most of the occupants are lucky if they lose only $5 betting on one another's hot tips . . . You can't hang around long without hearing a good word for at least a dozen of the 17 probable Derby starters, but if you pin the experts down, you'll hear only five or six mentioned as ones which "might beat Lord Boswell." . . .

The fire at Chicago which wiped out most of Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's valuable string of two-year-olds reminded mid-western turf followers that Dave Ferguson, the Detroit tool manufacturer, suffered a similar loss and is back in the Derby this year. His entire stable was wiped out by a fire in 1944, but Ferguson went into the yearling sales and came out with a bunch of good but comparatively inexpensive youngsters, three of which he named for sports writers. One of these is Bob Murphy, which will start tomorrow in the hope that the mud will be just as deep as it has been the past few days . . . and no cracks, please, about sports writers being mud slingers.

Mr. Bingo Binks Awfully Good On Ground Balls

Washington, May 3. (AP)—Al Simmons? Pretty good, but not up to Mr. Bingo Binks on ground balls down the left-field foul line.

That's what they are saying about the fielding ability of the colorful sophomore outfielder of Washington Senators.

Watching Binks perform after he had beaten Fort William-born Jeff Heath out of the regular left-field assignment, Manager Ossie Bluege remarked:

"Before Binks came along, I'd say that Simmons (Old Philadelphia Athletics Star) was the best I've ever seen at going over to the foul line, scooping up grounders and holding the runner to a single. But I believe Binks is better."

Bingo was a bench-rider until recently, except for an occasional pinch-hitting call.

Although he led the team in runs-batted-in as a freshman last year and hit .273, there was no place in the lineup for him at the start of this season with Heath acquired from Cleveland in a mid-winter deal.

But when Binks got his chance, he grabbed it.

The fans love the guy. He's left-handed, all the way—unorthodox, unpredictable, nonchalant.

To the gang out in the left-field bleachers, "the wonderful Mr. Binks."

I'LL WAIT FOR YOU

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 16

His voice, close, came to her through the darkness after a long silence.

"What have you been doing with yourself all these weeks, Carol?"

Grateful for the shield of darkness, she said, "Oh, helping father with his patients and playing tennis and swimming and trying to be nice to one of Alan's clients, a blind old man. And... and trying to make plans for my wedding." Yes, say it, say it, put it between you—Alan and your coming marriage....

"Wedding? You're going through with a wedding, a real church wedding?"

"Wouldn't you?"

"Never. There's still enough of the old tribal instinct in me to wait to run off with my bride. Swoop down and say, 'You're going to marry me, you know. Now!' And to it...."

Put Edwina between you, too. "Is that what you and Edwina are going to do? She told me, Norman. She didn't say that it was a secret but I haven't told any one. Congratulations are in order for you, too."

When the lightning came again, sharp and dazzling, lighting the inside of the car, she saw that he was looking at her queerly, a half smile dying on his lips.

"What congratulations, Carol?"

"You—and Edwina—your marriage."

"She told you?"

"The day she drove me home from your house."

After a silence he said, "I'm not going to marry Edwina, Carol. She.... We've decided that we're just good friends and it's only as a good friend that I'm helping her get her affairs straightened out. Then she's going to New York and get a job and study something. She calls it getting off the merry-go-round and turning over a new leaf. I suppose a lot of people have got the wrong impression of us this summer. We've been together, but we're not in love with each other. Not now, anyhow..Congratulations are not in order for me. They're in order only for you and Alan. So that's what you've been thinking—that I was going to marry Edwina...."

"Of course." But that altered nothing, least of all the plans for a November wedding. Her face felt warm, and seeing that the rain had lessened, she lowered the window and said, "Father knows I'm out here. He'll be wondering about me. I think I'll risk it now...."

"You know, Carol, you and I won't be seeing each other again...."

It would begin now, the cordial good-bye.... Awfully glad to have known you, Norman.... If you ever come back to Newton, stop and see Alan and me. We'll have a house in the Hills, a house we can't afford.... Have dinner with us...and I'll look through the candlelight at your dear face, your smile, your frown, seeing the hand whose touch I knew, the mouth that kissed me once....Smile, Carol. Make a good job of pretending and ... watch your love go....

"I don't suppose we shall. Newton and New York don't cross often and you'll have no reason for coming back. I really must go. It's lighter now. I'm sure I can find my car...."

Her hand fumbled with the car door and opened it, and he got out, circled his car and came to her. Together they walked to the small roadster she shared with her father.

"Your coat, Norman...."

"Won't you need it?"

"No. I hope the motor isn't wet..." She thought: This is like dying, like saying good-bye to everything in life that is dear, to life itself! And I'll remember everything about this last minute....

He stood beside the car, the tweed coat over his arm, the spasmodic flashes of lightning illuminating his face every few seconds. As the old motor started reluctantly, she wished that he would say something ridiculous and gay so that they could part laughing.

"Carol...."

"Good-bye, Norman. It was nice to know you." Nice!

"And you."

"Good luck...."

He said nothing else as the car jerked and moved along the muddy road. She saw him through the mirror and then, looking ahead, she drove by habit rather than by sight; her tears would not let her see.

An hour later, when Norman had changed the damp brown suit for a dry blue one, he found Edwina playing solitaire in her drawing room. She ordered a drink for him and then, curling up on the divan, smiled at him.

"I hoped you'd come. I've so much to tell you! The phone's been ringing so much that poor Sam is hoarse from answering it. The library sent out packing cases for the books. They wanted to send men but I told them we'd do the packing. Mr. Lane called too. I think it's a sale although he said he wouldn't want the house until October. Mrs. Lane is visiting her daughter in California. So I won't have to be in a rush about leaving. I'd—I'd like to stay as long as I can.

"It's worked out so well it scares me a little. I can sleep and breathe and think in peace. You've no idea how good it is. It's like having a pain relieved—not by dope but by a permanent cure." She gave a little happy laugh. "Why don't you hang out a shingle? 'Dr. Alexander mends lives—not bones.' Or am I embarrassing you? I may not be embarrassing you, darling, but I am certainly talking you to death."

"Talk some more...."

She laughed again. "He likes my chatter! But seriously I didn't think I had anything to talk about. And now, between phone calls and people telling me how wonderful I am because I'm giving Patrick Burke's art treasures to the public, that I'm a chip off the old block, that I have a pure and unselfish soul, I want to talk about what I'm going to do when I leave here.

"I'll take the typing job you offered me and a working girl's apartment, and since my formal education was so badly neglected, I'll take some courses when the fall classes open. Edwina Burke with books under her arm and maybe horn-rimmed spectacles. Edwina Burke learning about political economy and what really caused the Civil War." She shook her head.

"I'm not making fun. I like it." And her eyes, rested, calm and bright, flew to her father's portrait. "He'd like it, too. He had a great respect for learning and he had so little education. You know, Norman, when the house is sold and my debts are all paid, I'm going to have something over. I've been frowning over figures. I'm going to invest my little capital. I've finished my speech. What's on your mind?"

Leaning forward with a tall crystal glass in his hand, he said, "Maybe I ought to skip it altogether since it doesn't matter one way or the other. But Carol just told me that you told her you and I were going to be married...."

"Carol Tallant? Yes, Norman, I did. And it wasn't meant to be a monstrous lie, believe me. I had so stuffed myself with the belief that we were, that my scheme couldn't fail, it just slipped out that day. Bu I thought better of it and didn't let my optimism run away with me again. You were out to the quarry tonight? How are the new lights?"

"During the storm the lights—the lights went out."

"Does it matter that I told Carol that?" Edwina said, concern in her voice.

Norman was so unlike himself, looked worried and preoccupied, Edwina took her little white-shod feet off the divan, put them on the rug and leaned forward intently. "I didn't mean to deceive Carol, Norman. It was the crazy mood I was in—scared and desperate. Just to say it made me believe I was going to marry you. Please say something. Don't make me feel that I've let you down, you of all people. I'll explain to Carol...."

"Oh, it doesn't matter, Edwina. I'm sorry I brought it up. I wasn't trying to check up on either you or Carol. Forget it. Let's play double solitaire."

"All right. Has the rain stopped?"

He said, queerly, "The storm is over and the lights are probably on at the quarry. It was a regular blackout and tons of rain. People were trapped in the bathhouses and the few who ventured out got soaked wandering around looking for their cars. Yes, the storm is over."

They played double solitaire for quite a long time although at the very beginning Edwina saw that Norman's mind was not on the game and that his efforts to be amusing and interested were forced and flat. Several times she almost stopped the game but hesitated, thinking that she had no right to intrude upon his thoughts and that it would be rude of her to question. And frequently her mind wandered happily, lazily into the months to come and she saw herself, busy and contented, learning to do things she had never had to do, and liking the conquest of small inconsequential things heretofore ignored. She would learn to cook and to make her own clothes and balance a budget, and she would be, for the first time since she was a child, an anonymous person who owed nothing to any one. And she would make friends of girls as alone as she....

It would be fun, and, as Norman had said, a challenge. Nothing could frighten you when you were young and strong and ambitious. And she would come back to Newton to see Amy Durfee. And she would come back, not as she had this time, but as a person who had given something to Newton....

When she glanced at Norman again and saw his eyes distant, his fine hands still, she said, "Let's stop, darling. You're not thinking about it. And I have a strong suspicion that it's my turn to do something for you. What is it? You look—well, stricken is the word—as if a blow had almost knocked you out. Bad news from New York? I remember what you said the other night about it being much easier to push somebody else over a fence than to get over it by yourself.."

He got up, walked the length of the room, then came back to her again.

"Edwina, what sort of person is Alan Harding? Or don't you know him very well?"

Did she know Alan....

"I used to know him very well. Why?"

But even as she asked she knew all at once what the combination of desperation and false hopes had not let her see until now.

"Don't you know? No, I suppose you don't. It's a tribute to my ability to wear a false face."

"You love Carol...." She frowned, her eyes troubled. "You love Carol, Norman. That's it, isn't it? No, I didn't know. Your false face and my being so mixed up with my own problems and Carol's being engaged to Alan."

His smile was that of a hurt, puzzled boy, grimly amused.

"What do I do now," he said, "go out on a good spree? The first time I saw her, the day we both came, I thought she was the loveliest thing I'd ever seen. But the next day we went on a picnic together and I knew than that she had something more than beauty. When a man tells a girl the story of his life, when he wants her to know him, it must be love. I wanted to tell her everything about myself, the things you never tell any one. I didn't of course. Good reasons—Alan and the fact that she held me off. She's...."

Edwina said, "Don't try to explain love, darling. No one can. In love, two and two don't make four. It's the one thing for which no one can find a formula. It's still boy meets girl and no power on earth can explain it. I'm not guessing. I know. Why didn't we fall in love? The stage was set. But we didn't. I think Carol's one of the loveliest things I've ever seen, too, and you're the man I wish I could love and can't. So you found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow here in Newton—late in May, wasn't it?"

"I've seen her and touched her and kissed her. But that's all there is—and that's all there's ever going to be."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was changing his shoes to his slippers, and ma said, That's nice, William, rest your feet a little while.

A little while by bunions, I'll rest them all evening, pop said, and ma said, But William, I told the Sitgroves we might go there for a few rubbers of bridge

Nothing doing, pop said. One man I want to keep away from is that fellow Sitgrove and his bad puns, he said, and ma said, Now William that's only a thin excuse to get out of playing bridge. How about your own puns, you're always making puns right and left, she said.

But my puns are priceless gems of the art, pop said. I'd be proud to autograff a book of them and maybe some day I will. For instance the time we were playing poker with the Hewses, and Yewstace couldn't make up his mind whether to call my bluff or not, and I said, Come on, Yewstace, Hews to the line and let the chips fall where they may. Do you remember that one? he said, and ma said, No I dont, fortunately.

That's what I call a pun, pop said. If Sitgrove was capable of pulling puns like that I'd play bridge with him every night. The last time we had liver and onions I passed you my plate and said, Stand and deliver, my little onion. When did Sitgrove ever pull one as good as that? he said, and ma said, Now William there's such a thing as knowing when to stop, even if you dont know enough not to start. I should think you'd injoy a little bridge with the Sitgroves, you always play your best game with them, I dont know why, she said.

I'll tell you why, it's because I have to concentrate on the game to keep his puns from registering pop said. By gollies I've got an idea. We'll play bridge with them and I'll make a classic pun every 3 minutes. It'll be more pun than a barrel of munkies and my brilliant exhibition will discourrage Sitgrove from ever making another play on werds, he said, and ma said, I really believe you'd be capable of it. I'll gve you another choice. How about going to see a picture? she said.

Being what happened.

"There is something Congress can get its teeth into."

General Strike Reported In North Tyrol

Vienna, May 3 — (AP) — The Austrian government said yesterday that a general strike had begun in the North Tyrol.

Some rioting and clashes between Tyrolean and Italian police have occurred in the South Tyrol because the foreign ministers meeting in Paris rejected the Austrian plea to take the South Tyrol from Italy and incorporate it into the Austrian Republic, the announcement said.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 3 (CP) — The market recorded index losses at mid-day, mainly in the industrial and mining groups. The golds led with a loss of .94. Western oils weakened only slightly. Volume was down from that of the previous session at 1,073,000 shares for the first three hours.

Harding Carpet was a leader on the up side in the industrial share trading. It gained about 3-4 of a point. The liquors, steels, utilities, senior oils and papers posted more losses than gains.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 3 (AP)— A subdued stock market generally operated on the downside today as apprehension over repercussions from the country's coal crisis inspired light selling in virtually all departments.

A grain of comfort was seen in the fact that dealings, after a fairly active opening, turned sluggish. Minus signs of fractions to two or more points predominated near the fourth hour. The appetite for special issues waned and recently strong favorites encountered profit taking.

Canadian issues were generally weak in tone on the big board. Canadian Pacific was down 1-2 at 18 3-8, Distillers Seagram 1 1-4 at 107 1-4 and International Nickel 5-8 at 37. Hiram Walker was an exception, being up two at 116. Dome Mines was unchanged at 24 1-8.

HOGS

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Grade A, dressed, bacon - hogs, were unchanged at Stratford, $19.70 to farmers, $19.85 to truckers, delivered, in market reporting early today.

Barrie reported prices unchanged $19.75 delivered.

Desserres to Appeal Case, Says Counsel

Timmins, May 3 (CP)— Marcel Desserres, 25-year-old Schumacher miner, convicted by a Cochrane petit jury Saturday of Murder and armed robbery, will appeal his case, Charles H. Kerr, the condemned man's counsel said today.

Desserres' death sentence is automatically reprieved with the filing of the appeal notice.

Desserres was sentenced for the fatal shooting of John Dubinsky, South Porcupine, during a holdup there of the Bank of Toronto branch July 9 during which more than $8,000 was stolen.

"We expect to file notice of appeal within the 30-day period," Mr. Kerr said. "This appeal will be given priority at the sitting of the Court of Appeals at Toronto."

Defence counsel Kerr declined to comment on what grounds he will appeal the case.

WORD REDICULOUS

"I will," quipped Mr. Drew.

The Premier said that among the difficulties the provinces were faced were the offers of Mr. Howe's department to give "hand-outs" to municipalities for the carrying out of public works.

Although the Dominion proposals had made it clear that the grants were to be paid only on projects, approved and delayed for carrying out in a cycle when employment was low, Mr. Howe's department had gone ahead and offered grants in connection with projects that were to be carried out immediately.

Mr. Drew said this had been the case in connection with the Toronto rapid transit project. Mr. Howe had offered a grant although he knew the project was to be carried out immediately.

Mr. Howe interjected that he had made no such statement and that he would show the letters to Mr. Drew.

Mr. Drew retorted that despite Mr. Rowe's promise to the coordinating committee last January not to repeat such offers, they apparently were still being made. He said he had letters from two municipalities saying they had received promises of grants. One of the municipalities was Peterboro.

Mr. Howe said he had never heard of such a promise.

"If you haven't heard of it it shows the dangers of setting up departments without the experience to handle such matters," said Mr. Drew.

Mr. Howe said Mr. Drew was putting on a "good show" and was "amusing us."

"We have been amused by you so long that you can go ahead make all the statements you want, but we are here speaking on behalf of the people of Ontario," cracked back Mr. Drew.

Reg. Hinchey and Ted Schwab Presented with Wrist Watches

The cast of the Kiwanis musical production "Pack Up Your Troubles", were entertained on Thursday evening after their final performance by the Kiwanis Club at the Trianon Ballroom through the courtesy of Harold Carruthers and the management of the ballroom. The arrangements were under the supervision of Jack McVeigh and Albert Jones.

Harold Carruthers presented program director Ted Schwab and musical director, Reg Hinchey, with handsome wrist watches on behalf of the cast.

In replying to the presentation, Mr. Schwab thanked the members of the cast, the property men, the ladies of the Kiwanis Club, the advertisers and all those who had anything to do with the production. "Not forgetting," concluded Mr. Schwab, 'the citizens of Belleville and district who so wonderfully supported the project. Without their support, the production would have been in vain."

Mark Vanner, president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club expressed the thanks of the Club to the cast on their fine performance, and then introduced Walter Stewart, District Lieutenant-Governor of the Kiwanis Club, who congratulated the cast on their magnificent effort.

A buffet lunch was served and dancing continued until two o'clock.

USES JEEP TO MAKE ROUNDS

Father A. M. Gathy, Roman Catholic missionary priest in the booming mining town of Yellowknife, 600 miles north of Edmonton, has asked for an army jeep to do the rounds of his ever-growing parish. He got the idea from the Musk-Ox expedition when it was there, and during last winter the army drivers often gave him a lift to a local visit. The army boys went one further and taught the father how to drive, as indicated in the ABOVE picture at the wheel of the Army Signal Corp jeep outside the R. C. Church in Yellowknife. Prospector Mike Mitto, of Val d'Or, Quebec, is shown talking to Father Gathy while Instructor Sgt. M. Mennel, R.C.C.S. Radio Station Yellowknife., sits alongside

Negro Mother Of Noted Family To Be Honored

New York, May 3. (AP)—Mrs. Emma Clarissa Clement of Louisville, Ky., 71-year-old mother of seven children, and a granddaughter of a slave, is the American mother of 1946—the first Negro so honored by the American Mothers Committee of the Golden Rule Foundation.

Mrs. Clement is the 12th mother selected since the start of the award in 1935. She is expected to come to New York to represent American mothers during the Mother's Day observance.

Mrs. Clement is the widow of Bishop George Clinton Clement of the African Methodist Church. He died 11 years ago.

Her children include Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University; Frederick A. Clement, physics professor at West Virginia College; Ruth G. Bond, wife of the director of the Inter-American Foundation in Haiti; George W. Clement, a Red Cross recreation director in Italy; Maj. James A. Clement, army chaplain, and Emma C. Walker, Tuskegee, Ala., institute English professor.

She has seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

One of the committee members who voted for Mrs. Clement was Miss Mary E. Hughes of New York City, a native of Louisville, and a member of the Society of Kentucky Women.

"I never dreamed I would ever in my life vote for a Negro," she said yesterday. "But when I saw her record I couldn't be fair and serve on the committee without recognizing it."

Old Ferdinand of Bulgaria Wants One Shotgun to Kill an Auerhahn

By HAL BOYLE

Coburg, Germany, May 3. (AP)—An 85-year-old man here who once equipped hundreds of thousands of troops with arms today is asking permission from the Allied military government for one shotgun.

He is former King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, now living in retirement in his ancestral home.

His former palace inspector, Michael Petro, recently went to the military governor, to ask if Ferdinand could have back his old hunting shotgun and some shells.

"He wants to hunt the Auerhahn," said Petro. "He said the Auerhahns are calling to him now. There is a legend in the Royal family that each member must kill an Auerhahn each year or he will die."

The Auerhahn is a large game bird— a mountain cock.

Not wishing to accept responsibility for any disaster to the Royal family by flouting the legend, the governor is seeking a way to get a game-warden's licence for the household.

The old monarch, who won his crown in an election and lost it in the First Great War, ruled Bulgaria for 34 years, from 1884 to 1918. He was also a good businessman and was reported to have received handsome payment for bringing Bulgaria into the war on the Kaiser's side.

The old king sat waiting on a sofa, wearing a black skull cap and bundled up in a heavy coat with a fur collar, although the day was warm and the room heated.

He extended a gloved hand and his thin white beard shook slightly, as he said, "Please, I will talk. No questions. No questions about Russia please."

He still owns several valuable properties, but his real kingdom has come down to ten flowerpots and his room of pictures.

"Please," he said, "remember you have only been talking to Mister Ferdinand, an old gardener."

Townspeople say he lives in fear of the Russians. The border of their occupation zone is only seven kilometers away.

Czech Republic is Nationalizing 70 Per Cent of Industry, Finance

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Prague, May 3. (CP)— (By Air Mail)—Czechoslovakia is peacefully carrying out probably the most momentous economic revolution in post-war Europe by working towards the nationalization of 70 per cent of her industry, commerce and finance.

The republic of 10,000,000 in a vital geographic position at the heart of the continent was tramped under foot by the Germans during six years of occupation and nationalization of Czech leaders is the only way to resurrect the country's economy.

"The main reason for nationalization is that a large part of Czech industry got into German hands during the war and simply had to be taken over now" Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk told The Canadian Press.

"For example when the Czech government returned to Prague there was no money in the banks. It had been looted by the Germans and we could not spend millions reinstating private banking. Therefore our nationalization program is rather thorough—some think it too thorough."

Freeze Out Foreign Capital

The Czechs believed the only alternative to nationalization would have been to allow foreign investors to spread-eagle Czech industry and finance.

They did not like this prospect and besides it would probably have provoked some difficulties with Russia to whom Czechoslovakia is allied by military and commercial treaties.

The huge Skoda Arms factories at Pilsen have been nationalized and now are beginning to turn out locomotives, rail cars, farm implements and peacetime products, Prague officials said.

The Arms factory at Brno where the Bren gun was developed is under government ownership and banks and insurance companies are publicly owned. Railways have been state property for years and until the new policy was inaugurated were the chief example of nationalization in the republic.

Mines and steel and textile factories are included in the program as well as the famous Bata Shoe Company. Others are glass works, chemical and pottery companies, cement plants and utilities.

Nationalization is the most vital issue of domestic policy and through it is being practised what President Edouard Benes calls a "synthesis". This to Czechs is a realistic compromise trying to find a balance between western capitalism and Soviet collectivism.

Grim Warning Over Dry Weather Few Onions Likely

Toronto, May 3 — (CP) — Toronto district gardeners said today that there will be no onion crop this year in most southern Ontario areas and other vegetables will be at least two weeks late because of the unusually dry weather.

The overall supply of vegetables may be sharply reduced because the remainder of the growing season will be too short for a second planting, they warned.

D-P Conference Adjourns 'Sine Die' Failing to Agree

Door Not Entirely Closed On Possible Agreement

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)—The Federal Government, having seen the second Dominion - Provincial Conference in the last five years break up in disagreement, was prepared today to study new ways of bringing about the type of financial relations among governments both conferences aimed at.

The latest conference, like the one in 1941, ended dramatically when it was evident that no agreement with all provinces was possible. As discussions made that fact more and more evident, Finance Minister Ilsley moved that the conference adjourn "sine die."

Earlier, he had stated that the Federal Government could not accept the Ontario proposals. Premier Drew of Ontario and Premier Duplessis of Quebec made it equally clear that they could not accept the federal proposals.

Premier Duplessis, after reiterating his stand at the morning session, did not return for the afternoon discussions. His departure for Quebec because of the "pressure of business" was announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The adjournment motion, seconded by Premier McNair of New Brunswick, ended five days of public discussion of proposals and counter-proposals made since the conference opened last August. It did not entirely close the door on the possibility of agreement at some future date.

Many Sign With Some

Mr. Ilsley said the government would consider the various points of view and announce at a later late what procedure might be suggested.

He stated after leaving the conference room that the government would have to consider whether agreements could be signed with all provinces except Quebec and Ontario, and whether the Dominion could possibly go beyond the financial commitments it has set as its limit and thus obtain agreement with all provinces.

A third possibility to be considered was the action taken by the Australian government when it could not reach agreement with all that country's state governments. Australia made a specified amount available to the states and left to their governments the task of dividing it up.

An indication that it would be some time before the Federal Government would advance a new formula was contained in the fact that the Federal Government did not call on the conference to pass on a motion of Premier Macdonald of Nova Scotia which suggested an adjournment until next month.

Mr. Macdonald advanced his motion after Mr. Ilsley stated the Ontario proposals would cost the Federal Government about $134,000,000 more than it was prepared to pay for the exclusive use of certain tax fields.

Mr. Drew said the figures used by Mr. Ilsley in making the calculation were "pure, unadulterated nonsense." He said they included figures of tax revenues which would get back to the Dominion Government through other means.

TOLL OF FIVE IN MYSTERIOUS SHOOTINGS

Texarkana, Ark., May 4 (AP)—With a man's footprints as the only clue, the third in a series of mysterious double shootings was under investigation by police from two States today after an unidentified gunman fired thru' the window of a farm home near here last night, killing Virgil Starks, 36, and critically wounding his 35-year-old wife.

The farmer's death brought this area's unsolved murder toll to five since March 24.

Canadian Bacon Favorite

Ottawa, May 4 — (CP) — Canadian bacon has at least one booster in the United Kingdom. The Canadian Meat Board said today C. J. Rowson, a Liverpool shop proprietor, never fails to tell his customers the country of origin of the bacon he sells, directing their attention to the choice sides of Canadian bacon. In consequence, reports Mr. Rowson, they now asked repeatedly for Canadian bacon.

Twelve Held For Theft Of Mussolini's Body

Milan, Italy, May 4 (AP)—Civil Defence Chief Umberto Ferrante said today 12 persons, including one suspected of being the head o a Clandestine Fascist movement, were under arrest in connection with the theft of the body of Benito Mussolini.

Ferrante said none of those arrested had admitted taking part in the actual theft, but that some had confessed taking an active part in the organization "Partito Fascista Democratic."

This organization asserted in a published letter that it arranged the body-snatching.

Police operations in connection with the theft continued to centre in Milan. Ferrante said the arrests were only the first "rings of a long chain." He added he could not disclose additional details at this time without tipping off Fascists still at large.

TRAPPED KILLERS AT ALCATRAZ PLEAD FOR TRUCE

No Certainty of How Many of Convicts Remain Alive In The Cell Block

San Francisco, May 4 (AP)—Mutinous convicts today held out in silence in their Alcatraz stronghold as guards waited for dawn and a reply to a surrender-or-die ultimatum.

Surrender would subject them to charges of murdering two guards and wounding 14 others in a blazing riot that has continued a day and half but never once got any of them outside the concrete cellblock in which they made their stand.

The cell block was quiet early today after one of the doomed men telephoned Warden J. A. Johnston to bargain for surrender.

"We'll make a deal when you throw out your guns and ammunition," Johnston snapped back.

Only silence followed.

There was no certainty how many of the convicts remained alive. A marine officer estimated 24 were involved, on the basis of wounded guards' reports. It was presumed some were killed and wounded in fierce battling with machine-guns, rifles, pistols, hand grenades and tear gas that raged for hours, then slackened into last night's calm.

Last night Warden J. A. Johnston gave a withdrawal order to guards attempting to creep within gunshot of the rebels.

Leave Convicts Alone

"We're leaving them alone tonight, to talk it over," a prison official said. "We'll go to work on them in the morning."

Trade Commissioner To Eire Dies

Dublin, May 4 —(CP Cable)—Marchant Mahony, 59, Canadian high commissioner to Eire, died today.

Mr. Mahony, a Commander of the Order of the British Empire, was appointed to the post last year, succeeding John D. Kearney.

The Commissioner was commercial counsellor at the Canadian Legation in Washington from 1938 until becoming commissioner to Eire last October.

A long-time member of the Canadian diplomatic service, Mr. Mahony was native of Cornwall. He was secretary of the Canadian war mission to the United States from 1918-21, after service as a transportation expert with the Imperial Munitions Board in Canada in 1916-17.

From 1921 to 1937 he represented the Canadian Department of External Affairs in Washington.

Soft Coal Strike Spreads Creeping Paralysis Over Steel and Railroads

New York, May 4 (AP)—As the 34-day-old soft coal strike spread a creeping paralysis throughout the United States steel industry and seriously hampered railroads, Pennsylvania's Governor Edward Martin made an effort today to get enough coal mined to meet vital public utility needs.

Martin named three of his cabinet members to confer in Pittsburgh with four district vice-presidents of the United Mine Workers (A.F.L.) on whether coal can be mined for utilities servicing hospitals and other essential consumers.

At Washington, J. A. Krug, Solid Fuels Administrator, declared in a statement that the relief and rehabilitation program for Europe is on the verge of collapse because of the shortage of coal for transportation.

There is a grave possibility, he said, that great quantities of food "will not reach starving people in the liberated nations in time to avert an international catastrophe."

Meanwhile, the country's output of steel—vital to peacetime reconversion—dropped nearly six points to 67.7 percent of capacity this week. It was the sixth straight week production has sagged.

Fast-emptying fuel bins and lack of steel from basic producers brought additional sharp curtailments in such steel-making centres as Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Birmingham, and threatened to add thousands to the more than 71,000 workers in coal-consuming industries already left idle by the coal shortage.

At the same time, railroad officials formulated arrangements to mee the office of defence transportation's edict to flash passenger service on coal-burning lines by 50 per cent.

The order, effective May 15, came on the heels of a sweeping embargo on virtually all freight shipments except fuel and food. About three-fourths of the country's rail system relies on coal.

At Cleveland, Andrew H. Brown, Transportation Commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce, said the freight embargo "will, if prolonged, limit or halt 75 per cent of Cleveland's industry." Other transportation officials said the edict would cut to half the 120 passenger trains arriving daily at the lake port.

Cloud of Pessimism Settles Over Conference Of Foreign Ministers

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Paris, May 4 (CP Cable) — A cloud of pessimism settled over the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference today. In nine days the Foreign Ministers had failed to reach a single major decision which would contribute to a stable peace for Europe and the outlook for the success of the conference was unpromising unless speedy developments clear up at least some of the difficulties facing the ministers.

The conference fully realizes that it has failed to make a good start, but the delegations continue to plug away, trying to bridge the gaps of opinion between the various factions. The delegations realize that if the meeting collapses Europe is going from bad to worse.

There is talk in some quarters that a Big Three meeting of Prime Minister Attlee, President Truman and Prime Minister Stalin might be held if the current parley is unsuccessful. But a member of the United States delegation told The Canadian Press that this idea was "nonsense." He said there would not be the slightest use in holding such a meeting unless the groundwork for co-operation were laid.

One of the greatest difficulties confronting the ministers now appears to be that the conference is overburdened with new questions which the delegations either have had placed on the conference agenda or are seeking to have placed there at this opportunity.

JAPANESE FORCED TO OUST KEY MAN BY MACARTHUR

Disqualifies Hatoyama From Holding Any Public Office in Japan

By RUSSEL BRINES

Tokyo, May 4 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur today tumbled down Japan's political House of Cards by disqualifying Ichiro Hatoyama from public office, forced the politicians to renew their fumbling efforts to form a new cabinet—and gave the government a verbal spanking for dereliction of duty.

Gen. MacArthur obviously was tired of the fruitless, two-week political deadlock which was heading toward the naming of Hatoyama as Premier.

The Supreme Commander's headquarters issued a statement which branded the President of Japan's dominant Liberal Party as "a tool of ultra-nationalist interests;" said Hatoyama once publicly lauded the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor as a "great victory;" extensively cited his prewar public record as one stifling all opposition to the rise of the military clique; and bluntly hotted that action by headquarters was necessary because of government reluctance to take the initiative.

Hatoyama, who once published a book praising Hitler and Mussolini, told The Associated Press he did "not have in mind" appealing from MacArthur's directive but noted such an action was being urged upon him by Etsujiro Euhara, a Liberal Party chieftain.

Hatoyama said he was not sure the order barred him from his presidency of the Liberal Party which won a slight plurality at the April 10 election.

Bikini's Natives Are Homesick

By DON WHITEHEAD

Rongerik, Marshall Islands, May 4 —(AP)— Bikini's natives are homesick.

Even King Juda is moping with his people, longing for the coral atoll they left two months ago so the atom bomb could be tested on ships in Bikini lagoon.

It is unlikely they ever will be able to return to the crescent-shaped island. The burning blast of the bomb probably will shrivel every coconut palm and pandanas tree.

King Juda was asked today which was better, Bikini or Rongerik.

"Bikini was better," he said promptly.

Others nodded agreement, among them ancient Lauiar who is so old no one knows his age. He bent over his cane. There were tears in his eyes.

"We want to go back," King Juda asserted.

"We got more fish and coconuts on Bikini. The coconuts were larger and the fish were not poisonous as they are here."

Apparently nothing is "as good" as they remember at Bikini —except the stocks of canned rations which the navy left to help tide them over their reconversion period.

In reality, Rongerik is larger, much more verdant; the coconuts are more plentiful — and the same kinds of fish swim in waters off both islands.

MEAT SHORTAGE IN PROSPECT FOR MANY CANADIANS

Dealers See Little Hope of the Shortage Easing and Probably Will Worsen

By The Canadian Press

The family that eats a roast beef dinner this weekend can count themselves lucky. Comparatively speaking, their numbers are few as Canadians, from one coast to the other, felt the pinch of a meat shortage unparallelled during the war years.

Halifax and Vancouver housewives, hungry for meat, found the situation tough. In Toronto, beset for 10 days or more with dwindling meat supplies, the situation was still tougher. But her shops offered lean shelves and most of those that opened for business had queues before them. Many of those who queued-up went away disappointed, stocks having been disposed of before their turn came.

Boding ill for next week, retail meat dealers in Toronto said they saw little hope of the shortage easing and the consensus was that it probably would worsen with packers still refusing to pay producers' asking prices on the claim that if they do the retailers can't sell at ceiling values.

In Toronto flying squads of Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Prices Board investigators—commonly known in the A B—for Beef—Men started a drive designed to curb activities of black market operators whose undercover dealings accentuated the critical situation.

Lack of United Stand

John King, President of the Toronto Retail Meat Dealers' Association, in a statement, placed some blame for failure to break the black market on the lack of a united stand among retailers themselves.

Only in Alberta, the range province where steaks roam the grasslands on the hoof, and to a lesser extent in Manitoba, was the meat situation considered fair.

By areas, here is today's meat picture:

Toronto—Little on hand, many butcher shops closed or sold out in the shopping day's early hours.

Halifax—Meat famine has arrived. Refrigerator counters in most city retail shops almost bare.

Charlottetown—Meat situation on Prince Edward Island bad, all kinds of meat "very scarce."

Saint John— Beef in shorter-than-usual supply but still available and advertised by stores.

Montreal—No real meat shortage but beef not as plentiful as usual.

Ottawa—Some beef, not much pork or veal.

Winnipeg— No overall meat shortage but some lines getting low.

Edmonton-Calgary—Fair weekend supply in meat shops, though arrivals of live cattle at the Edmonton stock yards dropped to 136 head yesterday.

Vancouver—Many retail meat stores, their shelves scantily laden, anticipated an early close Saturday.

LUCKY DAY FOR FARMER

Colby, Kas., May 4 — (AP)—A young Menlo, Kas., farmer and Second great War veteran, Cletus L. Byfield, long will remember May 2, 1946, as the day he hit the jackpot. Attending a three-day tractor show, Byfield won a new automobile. Less than an hour later his wife gave birth to twin girls.

CITIZENSHIP ACT IN FORCE SOON AS BILL PASSES

Member Objects To Parliament Having To Deal With the Divorce Bills

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)— Canada's new citizenship act establishing Canadian nationality will come into force as soon as possible after the bill now before the Commons has passed, State Secretary Martin said Friday night in the Commons.

Members of the Commons spent most of the day on a detailed study of the bill in committee. An hour devoted to private bills was used entirely in a discussion on divorce legislation with Ralph Maybank (L-Winnipeg South Centre) objecting to parliament having to deal with divorce bills.

At adjournment last night the committee had gone completely through the citizenship bill but some clauses left over for further consideration still were to be considered.

The position on Japanese-Canadians in relation to the bill, subject of earlier discussion, cropped up twice during the day. State Secretary Martin introduced an amendment which removed possibility of passage of the bill affecting previous orders and regulations. Thus the bill would not supercede orders-in-council for the deportation of Japanese or orders prohibiting their residence in Pacific coastal areas.

Fire Destroys Dublin Creamery

Dublin, Ont., May 4 (CP)—The Dublin Creamery and the home of Mrs. Johanna Roach, 86, were destroyed early today by fire which was discovered in the rear-end of the creamery.

Mrs. Roach and her niece Miss Roach escaped from their home with only seconds to spare as a result of the alertness of Mrs. Elizabeth Bruxer, night operator on duty at the Dublin telephone exchange.

Realizing that the Roach home was in danger from the creamery fire, Mrs. Bruxer on her own initiative rang the Roach telephone until she received an answer.

William Stapleton who ran to the burning home as soon as he knew of the fire smashed in the door while the aged woman was trying to open it from inside.

Mrs. Roach was carried from her house with only minor injuries received when the door smashed in against her.

Her home was destroyed before she had been carried a block away.

The creamery is owned by Harry Rubenstein of Toronto, and managed by Hugh Pugh of Orillia. The interior of the concrete creamery building was gutted with the exception of the office at the southwest corner.

Dublin is 15 miles west of Stratford.

Tractor-Trailer Collides With Packed Streetcar

Transport Out of Control When Brakes Fail to Hold

Toronto, May 4 — (CP)—Two men died from burns, two women were in critical condition and at least 52 others were suffering from lesser injuries today after a runaway tractor-trailer exploded into flames in a collision here with a packed street car.

The two who died early today in hospital were M. Bartha, 60, and Fred Matthews, 30, both of Toronto.

A searing blast of fire swept the jammed trolley at the rush-hour early last night after the 30-foot tractor-trailer collided with it at an intersection. Police said the six-wheel vehicle was out of control for a mile and a half after its brakes failed to hold.

It careened down Bathurst Street with the driver and his helper shouting warnings to persons on the streets and was rammed by a Bloor Street car at the Bloor intersection. In an instant the truck's huge gasoline tanks exploded and a sheet of flame scorched the 100-odd hapless passengers inside.

The accident occurred a few minutes before six p.m., just about peak-time for the heavy, homeward bound rush which packs all trams.

The busy west central Toronto intersection was transformed into a scene of wild confusion, with the moans of the injured rising above the roar of the flames and frantic passengers screaming and fighting their way outside through windows they smashed with their bare fists. Scores of persons, their bodies a mass of fire, hurtled from the flaming trolley.

Belongings Strewn on Street

Personal belongings were strewn along the street and the intersection quickly took on the appearance of a battlefield, with moaning passengers lying on the road, many with their clothes burned, while nearby the wrecked streetcar and tractor-trailer burned fiercely. Prompt help came from passersby, who hastened to give first aid and summon ambulances.

Late last night police announced that Murray Boyce, alleged driver of the truck, had been arrested on a charge of dangerous driving. He later was released on $5,000 bail. Police estimated the speed of the truck at 40 miles an hour and said it sped past stop lights while out of control at three busy intersections before the collision.

Two passengers, names unknown, climbed back into the trolley to bring out badly burned people who were unable to escape by themselves. Miss Ruth Stockdale, a trained nurse who lived nearby, told of giving first-aid to two shock victims and a woman bleeding from glass cuts.

Pushed Off Rails

Henry Schepers, operator of the streetcar, suffered burns about the hands and face. The three most critically injured were Mrs. Mary Hewitt, 51, Miss Frances Weinstein, and M. Bartha.

Hundreds of spectators rushed to the blazing trolley, which was pushed several feet off the rails by the impact. The front of the trolley was wedged into the middle of the tractor-trailer, which had jackknifed from the collision.

The Athabascan Canada's Newest Destroyer Launched at Halifax

By JOHN LANGLOIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax, May 4 (CP)—Canada's newest warship, the tribal class destroyer Athabaskan, was launched today, bearing afloat the name of another Canadian destroyer lost in a sea battle in the English Channel.

The new fighting ship was sent down the ways with the blessing of Mrs. J. H. Stubbs, widow of Lt.-Cmdr. John Hamilton Stubbs, who lost his life when his ship, the old Athbaskan, was split by a German torpedo and sunk two years ago.

In today's launching Canada wiped out the memory of the loss of the first Athabascan and tucked it into the history books as tugs gripped the new ship and towed her around to her outfitting berth.

The new destroyed was expected to be in commission by next spring.

Crowds of visitors and shipyard workers came today to see the launching of the fourth destroyer built in the Halifax shipyards. Lieutenant Governor H. E. Kendall and Rear Admiral C. R. H. Taylor, Commanding Officer, Atlantic coast, were on the launching platform.

Mrs. Stubbs came from her home in Victoria to take the leading part in the launching of the ship named to commemorate the vessel on which her husband fought. She said she felt "immensely proud and humble" and considered the invitation to christen the Athabascan a "wonderful tribute" to her husband.

Lt.-Cmdr. Stubbs and his ship were lost in a flaming battle with a flotilla of German elbing class destroyers in the English Channel during a pre-invasion sweep. The Canadian destroyer captain had previously been awarded the Distinguished Service order for the fight in which his former ship, the flotilla leader Assiniboine, rammed a German submarine after an exchange of gunfire.

Miss M. Willsher Given 3 Years On Spy Charge

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)—A number of persons to face the Ontario Supreme Court on espionage charges had narrowed to nine today, two days before its spring assizes are scheduled to begin.

A third person among the 12 charged here was disposed of yesterday when County Court Judge A. G. McDougall sentenced Kathleen Mary Willsher, 40, former deputy registrar in the office of the British High Commissioner, to three years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Mrs. Emma Wolkin, 25, former cipher clerk in the External Affairs Department, is serving a 2½-year sentence in the same prison after facing the same Judge in a similar speedy trial.

Dr. David Shugar, former naval anti-submarine expert, is back at his job with the Health Department, a week after his discharge from Magistrate's court.

Of the nine cases scheduled for the docket of the Ontario Supreme Court here Monday, it was possible at least one would be tried elsewhere. Eric Adams, Montreal, former Bank of Canada official, applied in Toronto yesterday for a change in venue but judgment was reserved.

The eight others are David Gordon Lunan, Edward Wilfred Mazerall, Matt Simons Nightingale, Frederick William Poland, Harold Samuel Gerson, James Scotland Benning, Durnford Smith and Prof. Israel Halperin.

It may take the grand jury a week to decide whether the cases should go before a petit jury for trial, in which case public hearings may not start until the following Monday.

Hope of Quick Settlement Of Strike Fades

Los Angeles, May 4. AP)—Hope of a quick settlement of the Los Angeles bus and street car strike apparently has faded and it appeared today 1,000,000 tram customers most likely will be without service until next week at the earliest.

Negotiations between Los Angeles Transit Line officials and union leaders ended abruptly late yesterday, and the public limped along as best it could.

D. D. McClurg, president of the Transportation Union Local (A.F.L.) declared: "We walked out. It's a deadlock. We're not going to met again unless the company requests it and appears willing to negotiate."

Lee A. Reeves, assistant to the general manager of the Transit Lines, said the company was still willing to negotiate, but that he had no idea when another union-management conference would be called.

EX-SERVICEMAN WANTS PERSONAL PAPERS BACK

To an ex-serviceman, his discharge papers and other identification papers are pretty important documents. That's why Arnold Masters who works at the Belleville General Hospital is very anxious to recover his wallet which he lost somewhere between Victoria Avenue and the Belle Theatre.

Arnold who served six years overseas with the Hasty Pees, doesn't care particularly about the money that was in the wallet but he would really appreciate getting the wallet and identification papers back.

VITAL PART STOLEN FROM MISSING CAR

While he may not be a contender for the title role as the 'meanest' thief, the party responsible for the theft of the Buick coupe owned by William Johnston from the Crystal Hotel yard on April 23rd, at least went out of his way to be obnoxious.

Thursday afternoon the vehicle was found abandoned just south of the Canadian National Railways double track along the second concession of Sidney and north of Riley's pavilion. The car was found at the edge of a marsh by Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Wright, Hillside Street, who were out driving in the district.

When the owner went to recover his property, however, the vehicle was inoperative because the thief had taken the rotor from the distributor.

Saturday Market

Price of eggs increased generally to 43 cents per dozen on the local produce market on Saturday as result of firmer prices quoted in the larger centres. The price increase was general, although a few farmers' wives asked but 40 cents. Mediums were 38 cents the dozen.

As result of the continued meat scarcity in city butcher stores there was a keen demand for fowl with well finished birds bringing from $2 to $2.50 each. For the average fowl prices from 43 to 45 cents per lb. prevailed.

On the outside market transplanting stock, such as cabbage, tomatoes, raspberry canes and strawberries were offered while potted plants and flowers were also offered in quantity. Cabbages and tomatoes brought 25 cents the flat; raspberry canes a nickel each and strawberries up to two cents each. Plum trees were 50 cents each.

Winter onions and rhubarb were plentiful at a dime the bunch, while potatoes sold at 53 cents the peck.

Young pigs were plentiful with at least a dozen farmers in attendance. General price asked was $10 each although a few farmers quoted up to $11 for piglets older than the general run.

Number of Stitches Required to Close Wound on Leg

Struck by a runaway car as she was about to descend from a bus at the corner of Bleecker Ave., and Station Street, Mrs. George Corby, Railway Terrace, suffered a severely cut leg and was admitted to hospital.

Burwood Conway, RR. 1, Belleville, had his auto parked on Bleecker Ave., and was in the act of cranking it when the bus pulled to a stop on Station St., directly behind the vehicle. Accidentally the car had been left in reverse and as the motor started the auto jumped back to strike Mrs. Corby as she descended from the bus.

Dr. F. R. Ross was called and ordered Mrs. Corby to the hospital where a number of stitches were required to close cuts in the injured woman's leg.

Holstein Cow Bears 6 Calves In Three Years

Man's four-footed friend who sees to it that his milk bottle is filled each morning may be considered as a species of dumb animal, but a Holstein cow owned by Everett Grills of Carmel at least understands there is a world shortage of dairy products and is doing what she can to remedy matters.

And to show her willingness to co-operate, Mr. Grills' cow has given birth to six calves in the past three years, five of them being heifers.

Twin calves were born to Mr. Grills' Holstein in 1944, one in 1945, and triplets this year.

Gymnastic Display at "Y" One of the Best in Years

Over One Hundred Boys and Girls Take Part in Exercises

Precision and perfect teamwork were in evidence Friday evening at the annual gymnastic display at the Y.M.C.A. as well over one hundred boys and girls displayed the skill and agility they have acquired in the "Y" classes.

From the opening grand march to the closing demonstration of horizontal bar work, the participants held their large audience spell-bound at their feats of skill and daring. Following the opening march, the eight girls in the Juniors class presented an Irish Folk Dance, executing the difficult steps with rhythm and grace. Bill Navan, who presided at the piano throughout the display, added greatly to this dance with his rollicking interpretation of "The Galway Piper."

Series of Relay Races

The Prep boys presented a series of relay races, which illustrated their athletic ability as well as providing a great deal of amusement for the audience. This group appeared in a later number, demonstrating elementary mat work. One stunt in particular brought a round of applause from the audience when one boy stood on his head as the rest of the class somersaulted through his outspread legs. The Junior girls appeared again in an excellent demonstration of springboard and horse work.

Perfect timework and muscular co-ordination were displayed by an Intermediate class of six, consisting of Ronald Button and Gerald Bongard, Donald Rose and Tom Buchanan, Morris Burke and Donald Yateman, as they gave a demonstration on the parallel bars. This was followed by "Elephant vaulting" by the Junior boys, and springboard and mat work by the Intermediate boys.

A Striking Picture

Highlight of the evening was the work of the senior gymnastic squad, who appeared first on the parallel bars and later on the high horizontal bar. These three boys, Grant Locke, Jack Campbell and George Locke, demonstrated muscular development which comes only after years of hard work on the bars. Dressed completely in white, the squad made a striking picture as they twisted and turned in a series of remarkable stunts, both in teams and alone. George Garrow, the fourth member of the squad, was unable to be present.

Ground pyramids by the junior boys were another feature on the program which received rounds of applause. Again and again the boys formed pyramids and columns, perfect in their symmetry.

Comedy for the evening was provided by three clowns, Cam Snell, Jack Hegan and Jim Rapino, as they raced about the floor mimicking the gymnasts and adding improvements of their own devising. Their stunts climaxed a riotous basketball game, played entirely on roller skates.

All groups were trained and coached by Ed. Shortt, who may well be proud of his fine pupils.

Boy Runs Into Side of Car

Running into the side of a passing automobile driven by Paul Haggis of this city, the seven-year-old son of P. Leo Doyle, 1 Boswell Street, received minor injuries Friday afternoon. In reporting to police Mr. Haggis stated the child had been standing on the sidewalk and without looking had run directly into the side of the car as he drove past. The child hurt his left arm, but attending physician Dr. F. R. Ross stated the limb was not broken.

Damage of approximately $75 resulted to two vehicles at the Upper Bridge when a vehicle driven by Kenneth Camken, Station Street, turned off the bridge left onto Station Street, and was in collision with another vehicle being driven north on Front St. by Harry Clarke.

Tom Hetherington, Legion Treasurer, Leaving City

Four candidates, one a woman were initiated into the Canadian Legion at their monthly meeting held in the clubrooms on Thursday night with Lieut.-Colonel H. E. Smith as president, in the chair. It was with regret that the resignation of Tom Hetherington as treasurer of the Branch was accepted. Tom has been a faithful and efficient worker for the Legion and his removal to Kitchener by the Canadian Bank of Commerce will leave a large hole to fill in the executive branch of the Legion. Gavin Scott, another popular member of the Legion accepted the post.

Comrade Charles Lundy spoke on the housing situation and stated he received 64 responses to the ad that was inserted in the local paper and some of these will be turned over to the City Council for their action if possible. Everett Liddle, D. V. A. officer for the district announced there would be an official in his office in the City Hall every Monday afternoon and all day Tuesday through the month of May to interview returned men eligible for Vocational Training and Education. Comrade Ellarby was in the chair for the discussion period and many subjects were argued and satisfactory arrangements made. Plans were completed for the Model Shows, which will visit the city under the sponsorship of the Legion during the week of May 13th.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the committee in charge of Comrade Dainard.

Deanery Dinner Held at Trenton

Trenton — Some one hundred and twenty-five laymen of the Deanery of Hastings gathered in Canterbury Hall, Trenton, to partake of an excellent dinner served by the Parish Guild of St. George's Anglican Church. The event was in connection with the Anglican Advance Appeal, and everyone present was most enthusiastic regarding the success of that venture.

The chairman of the evening was Mr. Herb B. Smith of Trenton, president of the Hastings Deanery Laymen's Association who welcomed the men from the neighboring parishes. A word of welcome was also expressed by the Rev. W. J. Robinson of Tweed, Rural Dean of Hastings. Mr. H. R. Phillips of Brockville, Diocesan chairman of the A.A.A., spoke briefly and urged all present to put forward their fullest effort in the forthcoming campaign. The speaker of the evening, Mr. A. W. Simpson of Belleville, who was introduced by Mr. F. G. Creeggan, also of that city, gave a carefully prepared address on the objects of the A.A.A. and left an excellent impression of its value on the minds of all present. He was thanked by Mr. Whittimore of Deloro for his fine address. S/L. Swan from the Trenton Air Station was invited to say a few words and brought greetings from the Church in the West.

The concluding address of the evening was given by the Right Rev. John Lyons, the Lord Bishop of the Diocese who thanked the men for their presence, and assured them that he was most optimistic about the outcome of the campaign in the Diocese. During the evening the Blakely brothers of Trenton gave an excellent cornet and trombone solo and community singing was in charge of Jack Baker of Bonarlaw with Fred Houchin of Stirling at the piano. Also at the head table were the Rev. A. S. McConnell, rector of Trenton; Rev. A. B. Payne, Diocesan Organizer of the A.A.A.; Mr. Gordon Flynn, Diocesan Representative for the A.A.A.; Mr. Jack Baker, Past President; Mr. Glen Morrow, Vice-President; and Mr. Whittimore, Secretary of the Hastings Deanery Laymen's Association.

The induction of the Rev. A. S. McConnell, as rector of the parish, is to take place in St. George's Church, Trenton, on Friday evening, May 10th., at 8.00 p.m. (D.S.T.)

Bonarlaw Child Swallows Needle

Doris Morrow, age three, years, daughter of Mrs. Eva Morrow, young Bonarlaw widow, is in the Belleville General Hospital here, after swallowing a needle while playing at home on Wednesday. Hospital authorities stated today it was still undecided whether to operate and her physician is waiting to see if the needle will pass naturally.

The mother stated Doris had picked the needle off the floor and child-like had placed it in her mouth unobserved. The girl was immediately rushed to hospital where she is under the care of Dr. G. H. Stoble.

County Health Unit May Be In Operation by Early 1947

Dr. R. G. Struthers of the Dept. of Health Speaks to Representative Meeting in City Hall

There is more than a strong possibility that Hastings County will have an accredited partially government-subsidized Board of Health Unit in operation by early 1947.

This was indicated at a special meeting of representatives of Hastings County Council, the City Council, the town of Trenton, the Board of Education, the V.O.N. and other organizations held in the City Hall, Friday night, where Dr. R. G. Struthers, of the Ontario Department of Health, outlined the procedure leading to the securing of the Centre and its personnel and operation after the start of activities.

The Provincial Department of Health would pay half the cost if Hastings County adopts the proposed health unit scheme of administering public health. Should the city of Belleville do likewise the Department would assume one-third of the cost of operation.

To Work Out Agreement.

Outcome of the meeting was that Mayor Frank Follwell was delegated to get in touch with the county, city and Trenton councils. Each council will be asked to appoint its own special committee to meet a Department of Health official and the whole will work out a financial agreement. Each committee will then report back to its council. If satisfactory each body will then draw up a by-law authorizing and requesting the setting up a health unit in the county.

Do Work Immediately.

This work will be done immediately so that the County Council may act at its June session. It was pointed out that the sooner the groundwork is laid and by-laws drawn up and presented the sooner the Unit will be in operation here. It was felt by Dr. Struthers that the proposed centre in Hastings would not get under way much before the middle of 1947 due to the scarcity of skilled personnel, doctors, etc.

The proposed Board of Health would be appointed by the councils, and members would serve three-year terms. These are usually selected from members of councils or other persons rather than medical personnel, Dr. Struthers said.

The cost would be roughly $1.15 to $1.20 per capita, or in the case of this county where the department will pay half the cost," the price of one ice-cream cone per month."

Won't Have Private Practice

In the case of Hastings County, two or three full-time doctors will be needed as well as 14 nurses, four sanitary inspectors and a clerical staff. Doctors will not hold private practices and must have attended a special one-year course in public health.

Doctors will make a survey, decide the county's needs and lay out a program. They will control communicable diseases and provide liaison between the Board of Health and the press, doctors, public bodies, service clubs and other interested organizations.

"Being on full-time work, the doctors will not be embarrassed by giving orders to their competitors' patients," Dr. Struthers said. "They will be dealing with one of their own patients when issuing orders on such matters as sanitation."

Full-Time Workers

Sanitary inspectors, he went on, also would be full-time workers and must be fully qualified. They would be required to have studied a special correspondence course and taken practical instruction.

The office staff would take care of records and attend to routine work.

An essential part of the staff will be the public health nurses, Dr. Struthers said. They would live in various central communities and must be provided with suitable living quarters, office space and means of transportation.

Referring to the cost (about $1.15-$1.20 per head) Dr. Struthers told the meeting that the plan would cost money but the return in preventive measures and better health would more than repay any added taxation required to finance the project.

Work Varied

Work of the health unit would be varied but would not include surgery or actual treatment. The health officers could discover the need for medical care and see that the case was looked after, but the patient would go to a private physician.

Communicable disease control would be an important part of the doctors' duties. Discovery and follow-up of tubercular cases and contacts would be carried out by the health unit as would discovery, follow-up and contacts in venereal diseases.

Other duties of the unit would be supervision of school health work, maternal, infant and child hygiene, sanitation, water and food control, health education, mental hygiene and co-operation with other health agencies.

Consultative services provided on a regional basis would include public health nursing, dental examination, chest examination, mental hygiene, nutrition, sanitation engineering and industrial hygiene.

14 to be in Operation

Fourteen health units will be in operation in Ontario by July 1, 1946, Dr. Struthers said. Of this number those in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry; Porcupine, headquarters, Timmins; Kirkland-Larder Lake; Northumberland and Durham; St. Catharines, Lincoln; Elgin, St. Thomas; Welland, Crowland; Oxford and Brant are already under way, while Bruce, Prince Edward, Peel, Dufferin and Prescott and Russell will be operating in the near future. Several other counties and districts are under consideration.

"The Ontario Medical Association," Dr. Struthers said, "has approved the government's intention to abolish part-time public health officers, also the development of larger health units utilizing full-time officers of health.

The World We Have Forgotten

By REVEREND D. R. DAVIES
(BBC. Press Service)

London (By Mail)—In this year of 1946, which is almost exactly the middle of the twentieth century, I think it is true to say that the vast majority of people do not really believe in any existence except in this present world. The idea of a world, a life, beyond the grave does not count. We simply do not take it into our calculations. I imagine, however, that most people, even still, if they were asked whether they believed there was anything beyond the grave, would answer: "Yes, I suppose so." Just as they would say "yes" if they were asked whether they believed in the existence of the North Pole. But who bothers about the North Pole? Certainly not Mrs. Jones as she sets off with her shopping basket to wait in the queue. The North Pole is never taken into account. Neither is the idea of existence in another world. It is in this sense that I say that men and women have mostly ceased to believe in another life. This is the point at which we have arrived in the middle of the twentieth century.

But on the other hand, it isn't the only point of arrival. This world, which has become our one and only existence, is now being threatened with the loss of the very existence in which alone we have ended in believing. Just cast a glance at the problems which are oppressing, crushing the world today. Let me indicate a few of the problems which are keeping statesmen and all serious people awake at night.

Take the problem of population. In another twenty-five years, if we continue at the present rate and in our present fashion, the British people in these islands, and to a lesser extent other countries also, will begin the process of extinction. The number of people dying will be slightly bigger than the number of babies being born. Now if that situation continues from 1970 onwards, the disappearance of the British race becomes a question of simple arithmetic, which even a mathematical duffer like myself can work out.

I can sense a tremendous significance in the fact that a generation which has dismissed the hope of existence beyond this world is going to have a colossal job to save its own existence in this world. Can't you? Can you see in this perilous question of population nothing but mere biology? Can't you suspect that it is a matter of spirit as well as of sex? That is at least as much an affair of religion as it is of economics?

However you answer these questions, here is the problem of the physical survival of our race beginning to assume a most grisly shape: how can we ensure that the number of births shall exceed the number of deaths? You see, a problem of how to survive, not after death, but before death here in this world on which we have staked everything.

Again there is the problem which rides under the term "social security"—another problem of survival. There isn't the time to go into the implications of this question. But permit me to ask whether you do not find it strange, just a little bit strange, that at a time when man's productive power has reached its highest peak, society should be so obsessed with the question of security? I see in that situation a tremendous contradiction.

Why does progress breed a feeling of insecurity? Is it not a little hasty to take it for granted that the acquisition of more power over nature will give us security, when the chief result, so far, of the power we have gained is to make most of us feel insecure? Steam, oil and electricity—what have they done for us? They have created a nightmare of insecurity. And now comes atomic energy. Are you sure that that is going to achieve security, of any sort? Anyhow, the majority of people are finding existence in this world so uncertain, that the cry for social security is drowning every other cry.

And now comes the greatest problem of all, the problem of avoiding another war. The splitting of the atom, the release of nuclear energy, as the scientists put it, stakes the en[illegible] of civilization on one single [illegible]. For the first time in the long and painful history of the human race, we are in the position that, if another war breaks out, nothing will be at stake. Here is a problem of social survival with a vengeance.

There are scientists, not just theologians, but scientists who go even further than that, and say that another war will mean the end of physical existence, not simply of civilized existence, but of any sort of existence whatever. On December 7th of last year, at a meeting of the British Association, the President, Sir Richard Gregory, quoted these words from the second epistle of St. Peter: "But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night: in which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up."

He then went on to say that unless the nations could agree on the prevention of war, that day would surely come. Does that sound fantastic? But think a moment. Look at those words again. You will find them in the tenth verse of the third chapter of the second epistle of St. Peter. "But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night." As a thief in the night. How does a thief come. Well, silently and without warning. He doesn't ring the front door bell, does he? But isn't that how Pearl Harbor happened? Isn't that exactly how the atomic bomb fell on Hiroshima?

This last war wasn't declared. You can stake your bottom dollar that the next one, if another war does happen, will not be declared either. It will come exactly as St. Peter says, "like a thief in the night," and before people will have a chance to know anything about it, they will be "trailing clouds," if not of glory, certainly of vapour. It is really remarkable how ominously the New Testament prophecies of the end of the world seem to describe modern developments in diplomacy and military strategy.

Now I do beg of you to ponder the significance of all this. The world as an organized society is faced by the very real, grim threat of being blasted out of existence. This is not an accident, believe me. There is more in this than meets the eye. There is a very deep connection between abandoning belief in the reality of existence beyond the grave, and the endangering of existence this side of the grave.

But meanwhile, the things which do meet the eye are enough to be going on with. It isn't at all difficult to see that, as the Christian belief in an eternal world gets less and less, so civilization becomes more and more materialistic in its objects, ideas and values. Materialism, open or disguised, is the inevitable result of thinking that above and beyond this world there is nothing else.

Individuals, living unconsciously on the capital of principles that have come from the past, may not themselves be materialistic in their character and outlook. It is certain, however, that society, civilization, is quite definitely becoming ever more materialistic. A typical modern secularist thinker, Professor J. B. Haldane, for instance, has said that he cannot distinguish between economic and spiritual values. He has expressed the charatteristic modern outlook or dogma, which identifies spirit with matter. He said recently that "the realization of economic values is a necesary prerequisite to that of spiritual values" — a fatal misconception.

Right down at the root of our calamaties is this assumption that without a maximum consumption of material things, the good life is impossible. If that isn't materialism, what is? It is a direct consequence of loss of belief in another world.

Along with this growing materialism, we can see another dreadful process at work—the rapid de-humanizing of men and women. What does this mean? The quality which marks human beings off from the animal is freewill, self-consciousness, the power of self-determination, which means a sense of personal responsibility. To de-humanize men and women is to treat them as though they have no sense of responsibility, to lump them as masses, as mere raw material for the plans and purposes of others. The tendency to do this reaches its worst pitch precisely when the rejection of the Christian view of life and men is most complete.

We have seen that happening in Germany under the Nazis, but by no means only in Germany. In lesser degrees, the same thing is happening all over Europe and the rest of the world. It is one of the by-products of the belief that this world is the only sphere of human existence and being.

Another broad result, already dealth with, is to make our life here and now much more precarious and uncertain. The atomic bomb is but the latest and most dramatic instance in this direction. Less dramatic, but just as deadly, is the growing sense of inner fears, loss of faith and personal resources with which the psycho-analysts are so familiar.

"The age of enlightenment," said a recent writer, Mr. Arthur Koestler, who cannot be accused of being a Christian, "the age of enlightenment has destroyed faith in personal survival; the scars of this operation have never healed. There is a vacancy in every living soul, a deep thirst in all of us." There is indeed. It is a thirst which no amount of social, material progress can possibly quench.

We have in effect then thrown away the Christian hope of the life everlasting. What has that brought us? A prevading materialism of thought and life; a debasement of our common humanity. An inner emptiness and a terrible threat to bare existence. Do you consider that all this is a gain? Think it over.

London Girls Returning Home Jump off Train

London, Ont., May 3. (CP)—Three London girls who left their homes here on Wednesday are again the object of a police search after they jumped off a train at Chatham which was returning them home.

The three girls— Patsy Fagan, 17, Dorothy Mercier, 17, and Jean Mann, 14—were picked up by Windsor police yesterday and a police matron bought their tickets and put them on the train for London.

Acting Detective Inspector William Snell said today the conductor in whose charge the girls were left reported they were on the train when it arrived in Chatham but they jumped off in that city.

Nimitz Foresees Super-subs As Answer to Atomic Bomb

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz predicted today that our Navy will develop super-submarines, capable of traveling long distances under water at high speeds, as a means of maintaining an efficient and mobile sea power against atomic warfare.

In an article in Collier's he states that fully-submerged submarines can still move in relative security, and predicts that gas-turbine engines and atomic power may enable submarines to replace our surface fighting ships for bombarding distant targets, pin-point shelling, and covering troop landings.

The Navy already has plans for a gas-turbine submarine, Admiral Nimitz reveals, which are more promising than the Walther gas-turbine submarine built and tested, but never utilized, by the Germans during the last part of the war. The Walther was capable of staying submerged for 70 hours and had a submerged speed of 25 knots.

Seen Ready for Test

Admiral Nimitz declares that the Navy's new submarine, which should be ready for testing within a matter of months, is likely to be "the forerunner of still more powerful vessels until, in time, a virtually new category of warships may evolve." Navies of the atomic age, he adds "are likely to make far wider use of submersible craft than they ever have before."

After declaring that new weapons may someday deny use of the skies to aircraft, Admiral Nimitz asserts that submarines can move beneath the surface of the sea in "relative security." "We know of no means today — and none in the foreseeable future—," he says, "by which the movements of submarines, fully submerged, can be consistently detected or continually followed."

The Fleet Admiral also points out that the use of atomic machinery may give submarines a far greater submerged speed than was attained by the German's Walther submarine. In addition, he says, atomic machinery would "use less space than the present types of submarine engines, thus providing more room for weapons."

Develop New Tactics

"Some of the submarine men in our Navy believe that it is not too unreasonable to expect," Admiral Nimitz reports, "that at some future date the only kind of warship with a fair chance of surviving atomic battle will be the submarine. If they are correct, we may ultimately have to put the entire fleet under water. I am not prepared to go that far. I do believe, however, that we ought to work unremittingly to build better submarines and develop new tactics for them."

Parcels

Parcels still go overseas in large numbers. Even though hundreds of thousands of Canadians have returned from service to their homeland and thousands of war brides, many of them with children, have also come to this part of the New World, a great flow of parcels keeps up as can be seen any day at the post offices across Canada. The war made many new friendships which are not forgotten and a parcel can be one of the best tokens of that friendship, especially in a time when some things are scarce as they are in any land, even the producing lands of the Western World.

During the war many scores of thousands of Canadians learned the art of knowing how to select gifts and how to parcel them and have not yet lost the facility nor have they lost the appeal there is in packing a parcel.

In the war days many new friendships were made by and through Canadians on their great imperial mission. Canadians and service men and women made new friends in the British Isles and in Holland, France and other countries and these endure. People of Canada feel a profound interest in the people of the lands that fought with every inch of their strength for freedom and do not forget these valorous folk today.

Study the Dictionary

Referring to the fact of Mr. Jean Francois Pouliot bringing the dictionary into the House of Commons and recommending the reading of it, the Ottawa Journal says that "while he (Mr. Pouliot) annoys us more often than he amuses us," in this he "has our unqualified praise . . . Next to the Bible he could not have recommended a better book." The Journal advises Canadians to take a deep interest in good English and the glory and majesty of this speech. It points out that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was the best speaker in the House of Commons in our generation. "There was hardly a day when, as we remember him, he did not have a dictionary brought to his desk. It was simply that he knew the importance of the right word; understood what Morley once called "the glory of words." Mr. Asquith used the "inevitable word," "the word that contains the exact shade of meaning to be conveyed," which "is not possible without study of the dictionary. As well might a pianist expect to play masterpieces well without constant practice on the piano. We would like more of the dictionary in our class rooms, certainly would like to see more of it in our Canadian homes."

Two Pictures

Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill, recently honored at Aberdeen with the freedom of the city, paid an impressive tribute to the underlying unities of the English-speaking world which make it "unconquerable in a world that is very ill."

He touched on history known to everyone who has read in school of the wars of England and Scotland, the hatred between whom he said was "as bitter as any passions ever known among men." But those days are "long gone by for us." Today the underlying unities "which animate the British Isles, the British Commonwealth of Nations—nay, the English-speaking world—are such as to make us unconquerable and to make sure that we can deliver our message to the human pilgrimage, generation after generation, in sunlight or in storm however the winds do blow."

This is the picture he presented of unity and harmony and it served to point a moral.

Against this picture of peace and unity of Scotland and England, he set the other picture so different, that of the world recently engaged in the greatest of wars of all time. He said, "In many countries, where even united efforts would fall far short of what is needed, party strife and faction is fomented or machine-made, and skeleton fanatics rave at each other about their rival ideologies. All the while ordinary folk of every country show themselves kindly and brave and serviceable to their fellowmen." And here is the tragedy in the statesman's words. "Yet they are driven against one another by forces and organizations and doctrines as wantonly and as remorselessly as they ever were in the ages of absolute emperors and kings."

Here he has offered an analysis of the troubles with which the world has been ill and is still ill so that "there never was a time when a breathing space was more needed—a blessed convalescence—a truce of God and man."

Mr. Churchill described this ill world where "many mighty branches of the human family, victors or vanquished, innocent or guilty, are plunged in bewilderment, distress or ruin." The psychic energies of man have been exhausted, he said, and "the vital springs of human inspiration are, for the moment, drained." Measureless injury has been done to much of "Christian civilization" of the nineteenth century, "all the leading nations having been racked by the stresses which have blunted their sensibilities or destroyed their agreeable modes of social intercourse." Mankind cannot stand new shocks and quarrels without the risk of sinking to "altogether cruder and primordial forms."

He has known the Old World and it is not to be wondered at that he called for "a breathing space — a blessed convalescence —a truce of God and man."

North America has long known peace. It has been unbroken for a century and a third along the Canadian and American border of the two nations which understand one another and whose borders are not armed.

Mr. Churchill has seen the war-torn Old World with the wisdom of a statesman and has indicated the sources of its tragedy.

So his reference to the harmony and unity of Scot and Englishman for centuries after the bitter strife of long ago brings a message of hope that the great world, in which "strife and faction" exist and "forces and organizations and doctrines" drive people remorselessly and wantonly against one another, will some day — and it is hoped, soon — reach such understanding and harmony of underlying unity as have made the English-speaking world "unconquerable."

Unlearned Lesson

The pride of small nations is proverbial, but too often they permit it to have an undue influence on their common sense, especially where matters of security are concerned. This week we may take Iceland as a case in point.

Though protesting its affection for the United States, Iceland has refused to grant the Americans any military bases. If threatened with attack it cannot protect itself, but it will not grant a foothold to a power that can. It is a familiar story, and the lessons to be learned from it are plain, but Iceland chooses to ignore them.

It would be bad enough if only the small nations became victims of this shortsightedness. The record shows, however, that by acting as they do they become springboards from which an aggressor is able to menace or attack their natural allies. Like Iceland, all countries of good will place their trust in the United Nations. But that does not prevent them from looking to their own defences first.

Newspaper Facts

A 22 mile hike, temperatures of 30 degrees below zero at 7,000 feet, and 40 mile per hour winds were not enough to deter a persistent newspaper photographer from covering a recent airlines crash in mountainous terrain.

City people complain of being busy but few of them know what "busy" means. The dictionary ought to explain that the word is reserved for the farmer without any help who is putting in the spring crop, doing all the chores and acting as midwife to a herd of cows, a flock of sheep, a sow or two and an incubator, says The Farmers' Advocate.

The taking of ice in vessels from this locality to various ports in the United States has not proved to be a profitable undertaking. In some instances a considerable quantity of ice was honeycombed which made it worthless and the expense was found excessive. It is not likely that the venture will be repeated.

A new organ is being placed in Holloway Street Methodist Church. The opening will take place on May 13th., when an organ recital will be given.

Mrs. Martin Hough of Halloway and Mrs. A. W. Andrews of North Hastings Junction left yesterday to visit friends in Los Banos, California. They are accompanied by Mr. John Hough who is returning to California after visiting his brother, Mr. Martin Hough at Halloway.

The annual elocution contest in pulpit oratory took place at Albert College. There were thirteen competitors and they all displayed marked ability. The judges were Rev. E. N. Baker, Col. Ponton and Mr. Thomas Ritchie; they awarded first prize to Mr. L. S. Wight and second prize to Mr. A. W. Coone.

Mr. Percy Nash of Brockville formerly of Belleville, was in town today.

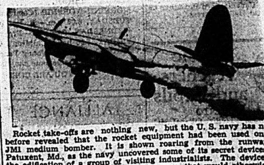
BRIDES TRAVEL BY FLATTOP

Five of the 130 English brides of Australian servicemen who are bound for Australia on the Royal Navy aircraft carrier Indefatigable are shown strolling the flight of the giant flattop. Arrangements for the carrier to be used as a bride ship were made with the Admiralty by Australian Resident Minister J. A. Beasley.

NEW SOCKING ROCKET



Rocket take-offs are nothing new, but the U. S. navy has never before revealed that the rocket equipment had been used on the JMl medium bomber. It is shown roaring from the runway at Patuxent, Md., as the navy uncovered some of its secret devices for the edification of a group of visiting industrialists. The device enables the bomber to take off from runways that would otherwise be too short. The same holds true for take-offs from short carrier decks.

Three Officers On Retired List Of the C.W.A.C.

Ottawa, May 4 —(CP)— Retirement of three officers of the Canadian Women's Army Corps was announced today by the Defence Department. They are:

Maj. Rosamond Grace Grant, M.B.E., of Toronto, who served a period of attachment with the British Auxiliary Territorial Service.

Maj. Frances Madeleine Armstrong, of Meaford, Ont., who served overseas with A.T.S. and commanded No. 49 C.W.A.C. Administration Unit at Toronto.

Maj. Anna Claire Mason, of Peterborough, who commanded No. 7 —C.W.A.C. Administration Unit at Barriefield, Ont.

TRAPPED KILLERS

Meanwhile the surviving guards and the bodies of the dead men were rescued by a gallant group of prison officials, who braved a hail of gunfire to remove their comrades.

Alcatraz guards, reinforced by guards from other federal prisons rushed here by airplane, and heavily-armed marines rested last night, prepared to renew the assault.

The unprecedented escape attempt, perhaps the most spectacular in the history of federal prisons, was a complete failure.

Warden Johnston said it initially had been planned as a mass break. Not one convict ever got beyond the cell block.

In San Francisco, thousands of persons watched from the hills and the docks for gunfire display from the bleak island, set at the entrance of the bay. Contrary to last night's spectacular show, the island was silent. Only great searchlights played over the walls.

Warden Johnston went to bed early today—some 33 hours after the uprising began.

While he had his first rest from personal command of forces fighting the rebellion, guards kept the cell block in which the convicts are cornered under range of their guns. There was no sound from the fortress cells of the cornered criminals.

CITIZENSHIP ACT

J. L. Gibson (Ind.-Comox-Alberni) sponsored an amendment which would bar persons of Japanese descent from living in the coast security zone for the next 20 years. The amendment was ruled out of order.

Another amendment came from Mr. Martin relieving British subjects of the necessity of appearing before a naturalization court. The amendment was adopted.

Members spent considerable time discussing sections of the bill which provided for education and preparation of new Canadians for citizenship. Some dissatisfaction was expressed with a general statement in which Mr. Martin said a program was to be provided using the co-operation of the Provinces and the services of public-spirited organizations.

After hearing suggestions from all corners of the House proposing suitable textbooks, instruction in languages and consideration for the particular problems of those settled in rural areas, Mr. Martin elaborated on his earlier remarks.

He said discussions had been held with some Provincial Education Ministers and conferences would be held with others. A comprehensive program was gradually taking form but it would require some time to put into full operation. The system followed in the United States had already received study by Canadian authorities.

Nation is Own Right

The question of whether Canadians should be defined as subjects of the King as sovereign of Canada aroused considerable debate. Mr. Stewart said Canada was a nation in her own right and there was some doubt as to whether the House had the constitutional right to define a British subject.

G. Belzile (L-Rimouski) supporting Mr. Stewart's amendment said there was need for a complete definition of the rights and responsibilities of citizenship.

The question of possible effect of the citizenship bill on orders-in-council providing for the deportation of Japanese-Canadians was revived during the discussion by John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre).

He said they would be clearly subject to the provisions of the bill when it became law, rather than to the orders. Mr. Martin said he had already asked for an opinion from the Justice Department but had not yet obtained it.

FIGHTERS POST BONDS

New York, May 4 (AP)—Heavyweight champion Joe Louis and challenger Billy Conn today appeared at the New York State Athletic Commission and posted $5,000 bonds for their appearance and signed officially with the commission for the June 19 Yankee stadium title bout.

Dr. William Walker, commission physician, reported both fighters in excellent condition.

SO I BULLDOZE MY READERS?

Reader says he has been reading my column tor years, and he notices I never mention the value of walking on all fours like a bear, but that I said I tried it once. The attitude, the reader imagines, is more than my refined dignity can stand.

Imagine anybody reading this column and still thinking I have dignity!

The reader says he has had three traffic accidents in the past year, hit the rear fender of a truck the first time and put a crimp in the front wheel. Next time he collided with military car and hurt his right knee and broke the handle bar of his bicycle and had to walk home. Being only 90 years old our correspondent manages to get around despite traffic hazards.

That's all well and good. But having coaxed me along with his story he suddenly hauls off and tells me it is foolish of me to try to educate readers, still more so to try to bulldoze them into calling cri kree.

Now, see here, sonny, I can't take time out to find the items in my files now, but I recommended walking on all fours in this column years before you were b—umped off your bike. I said here:

Dr. Cecikas (writing in Grece Medicale) reports eight cases of distressing paroxysmal tachycardia (which is Greek for attacks or spells of very rapid heart action) in which the patients obtained relief by getting down and crawling about the floor on all fours. One of the patients was older, corpulent and had a tendency toward angina pectoris, but crawling relieved him. Another was thin, nervous, unable to sleep, but she crawled out of it . . . . I recommend turning somersaults for the same things Dr. Cecika's patients crawled out of.

Moreover, I have repeatedly advised walking on all fours—the monkey walk—two or three times around the room, for early restoration of the figure of the woman who has just borne a child. On all fours—hands and feet—not hands and knees.

No sir, I do not try to bulldoze readers. I may scold 'em, sneer at 'em, call them names, and all that, but bulldoze, no. I'm the one who gets bulldozed.

But please write me again whenever you think I need more good advice. Your advice is good. I have to growl and grumble, but even so, I know good advice when I hear it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Itch of Ivy Poisoning

My husband is almost wild with ivy poisoning. I believe you told of some good remedies.

(Mrs. O. W. J.)

Answer—Boston physician reported that he obtained great relief by thrusting his intensely itching hands and wrists under the hot water tap, in and out quickly to avoid scalding. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet on Ivy Poisoning.

Tonsil Snatcher

Daughter, ten, catches colds frequently, and misses quite a bit of school. One doctor told me if I had her tonsils removed she wouldn't get colds. I did but she gets them as much as ever.

(Mrs. M. L.)

Answer—The doctor has no right to promise that. Smiley found that young college men who had tonsils removed were more subject to so-called "colds" than young college men who had not had such operations. Kaiser (Children's Tonsils In and Out) found that in comparing 2200 children whose tonsils had been removed with 2200 in the same schools whose tonsils had not been removed, those whose tonsils had not been removed had fewer "colds" than those whose tonsils had been removed.

Hearing Improved

I read a report from a lady who said she had recovered her hearing after doing the special exercises described in your pamphlet on Tinnitus and Deafness. My husband, discharged from the Navy after losing 55 per cent of hearing in left ear, wants to try the exercises. Navy doctors recommended removal of tonsils just to see. (C. B. E.)

Answer—They have 'em in the Navy too. If tonsils or adenoid obstructs throat or pharynx or orifice of Eustachian tube on the deaf side, it should be removed. Otherwise, don't be silly. For the pamphlet on Deafness and Tinnitus (head noises) send stamped self addressed envelope.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who was the Laughing Philosopher?

Democritus (460?-362? B.C.) a Greek thinker in the time of Socrates, was known as "the Laughing Philosopher."

Just why he was so called is not known for certain.

His moral philosophy was very stern and taught the absolute subjection of all passions.

According to a legend, probably unfounded, Democritus put out his own eyes so that he might think more clearly and not be diverted in his meditations.

Some ancient writers say that he became so perfect in his teachings that he went about continually smiling, from which circumstance he became known as the "laughing" philosopher but others say that the inhabitants of Abdera, the colony in Thrace where Democritus was born, were notorious for their stupidity, and that he was called the "laughing" philosopher because of the scorn and ridicule that he heaped upon his townsmen for their ignorance.

It appears that Democritus should rather be called "the Deriding Philosopher," since he derived and laughed scornfully at the follies and vanities of mankind.

Robert Burton (1577-1640), author of "The Anatomy of Melancholy," is sometimes referred to as "Democritus Junior."

Suspended Sentence For Truck Theft

A Prince Edward County minor was given one year's suspended sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city police court today, after pleading guilty to the theft of a motor truck in the city on April 25.

Another youth, said to have been with the minor pleaded not guilty and had his case enlarged until Tuesday.

Parents of the minor who were in court, told Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan that what they considered their rightful share of the costs of a broken hydro pole, smashed when the youths struck it with the truck, amounting to $26.35 had been paid. The total damage caused by the truck-pole collision was $51.45.

The boys, Police Inspector Hayes said on the witness stand, had taken the truck, said to be property of the minor's uncle, from in front of the City Hall and had driven it down Dundas Street where it had crashed into the hydro pole. They then brought the truck back to a house on St. Paul Street.

In view of the minor's clean record, and that his parents had taken an active interest in the case, Magistrate Wills imposed suspended sentence with court costs, and bond.

Strong Appeal for Support Made To Laymen at Anglican Advance Meeting Held at Kiwanis Centre

"After the First Great War, we had the League of Nations and now we have the U.N.O. We've tried everything else but the Church. There is only one institution on earth that will lead to peace and justice in the world and that is the Church of God." Such was the opinion expressed by H. R. Phillips of Brockville, general campaign chairman of the Anglican Advance Appeal, when he addressed a dinner meeting for the laymen and clergy of Prince Edward Deanery in connection with the Anglican Advance Appeal at Kiwanis Centre Friday night.

"The first objective of this Anglican Advance is worship. We've got to get the people out to church," said the speaker. "The church has stood fact down through the ages and preached the gospel of love, peace, justice and everything worth while. We've got to back the church up, not only with our money but worship. Worship is the main job of the church. We're going to try to Christianize the Anglicans and if we get them into the House of God regularly, it is bound to have some effect on them. They'll be thinking in terms of God and will be saturated with His goodness."

Must Work Together

"Secondly, we've got to serve God and the church and get the laymen and the clergy working together. A lot of us are of the opinion that the minister must do it all. One man can't do it all."

"There's one thing that we must admit and that is that we have to take a back seat to the women of the parishes as far as service is concerned. They have a job to do and they do it," continued the speaker.

"There are two reasons why we've asked every man to take part in this canvass in connection with the Anglican Advance. Firstly, it makes the load light for everyone, and secondly, it gives everyone the feeling that they have a stake in the movement."

Mr. Phillips urged the laymen to get behind the clergy and give them support. He also called on the clergy to provide leadership. "If you provide leadership," he said, "you'll have the laymen behind you 100 per cent."

"The third objective of this Anglican Advance is to give. If you are prepared to worship and prepared to serve, giving will be just a matter of course," continued the speaker.

Many Can Share Appeal

"All we have to do is to raise $150,000 in three years and there are 33,000 Anglicans in this diocese. This section of the country provided more money per capita than any part of the country in all Victory Loans. We have given splendidly to the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and all the other vital war services. Now, it's time to give for peace."

"The returning servicemen haven't found Canada the Canada they expected," commented the speaker. "Let's give them a country that is worthwhile, a country that is God-fearing and where men love their neighbors. That is the kind of a country they need."

"He that soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly and he that soweth bountifully shall reap bountifully. How do you propose to sow, not only in the Anglican Advance, but in the future?"

The speaker was introduced by Frank Creeggan, Regional Chairman for Prince Edward Deanery and thanked by John de B. Arnaud of Picton.

Success Indicated

The chairman, Arthur W. Simpson then called upon the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario.

"The enthusiasm and spirit of these meetings presages the success of the undertaking," said the Bishop. "Co-operation is the keynote of successful work in any parish or diocese, and love for one's church is the mainspring for work in the church."

"The foreign missionary field work in our own country is stupendous," continued the speaker. "Just think of the work of our early missionaries and what they had to do. The Church of England was the first church to go out into the outlying districts of Canada. Are we who say we love our church going to allow the work and struggles of our pioneer missionaries go for naught?"

"The whole Anglican Advance movement is putting the emphasis on the spiritual aspect, there must be an awakening" said the speaker. "We've got our church on the move, our next job is to keep it on the move — keep the people coming to church."

"You can't maintain a home or business without money. How then can we expect the church to be maintained without it? We have to provide the tools even if it means sacrifice."

Tangible Expression

"We ought to be willing to express our gratitude to God for victory with something tangible," said the Bishop. "There is a challenge in this movement to help the Church of God do what it is expected to do in the world."

"I know that the laymen are not going to let the church down in this day of opportunity to help make Canada a great country and I know that on May 19th, when the movement closes, the job will be done. I want the Diocese of Ontario to rank with the best in the country."

In closing, the Bishop urged the laymen to "think about it, pray about it, think of your church and its tradition."

The laymen were welcomed to the dinner by Rural Dean Grant of Wellington. "The attendance is most gratifying to say the least and we are very grateful for your efforts. We hope that you will continue your good work."

"The church people are not only interested in the Anglican Advance, they are enthusiastic about it. Keep going and we know that our movement will be highly successful."

Parishes represented at the dinner included St. Thomas', Christ Church, St. Mary Magdalene, Picton, Wellington, Waupoos, Milford, Carrying Place, Shannonville and Roslin.

Gordon Bankier rendered two fine vocal solos accompanied by Professor Wheatley.

The meeting closed with the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers."

SHOW TWIN SONS THE AIR FORCE WAY

These 19-year-old twins, Richard and Harry Paddle, of Duncan, B.C., get the lowdown on how to make a bed according to regulations from their father on their recent enlistment in the peace time R.C.A.F. He should know. He served in two world wars — as a medical orderly in World War I and a hospital assistant with the R.C.A.F. in the recent war. The boys were logging on Vancouver Island when they decided to chuck their $8 a day job for "A Career with a Pension in a Trade with a Future" with the permanent air force. The beds in the permanent force, of course, won't be the double-decker bunk shown here. The twins each will have their own.—(R.C.A.F. Photo.)

Negro Survives Charge of Current In Electric Chair

St. Martinsville, La., May 4—(AP) —A 17-year-old Negro who survived being strapped in the electric chair and having the switch thrown, said that "it tickled a little but didn't hurt much."

The 150-pound youth, Willie Francis, today was in a death cell in the Iberia jail at New Iberia while legal authorities wondered whether another attempt could ever be made, under the law, to electrocute him.

The Negro was strapped in the chair yesterday and the current was turned on. He squirmed and then astounded attendants by yelling under the hood, "take it off! Take it off!"

Governor Jimmie Davis granted a six-day reprieve. Sheriff Leonard Resweber said he would attempt to have the execution carried out next Thursday.

In Baton Rouge Attorney General Fred S. LeBlanc said there was one "line of authority" holding that if a death sentence was not carried out on the date set, it could not again be attempted. He added, however, that he could not attempt an off-hand opinion in Francis' bizarre case.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Thank-you Notes for Wedding Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how to word thank-you notes for wedding gifts? And will you tell me if it is good form for me to mention in each note what the gift is?

R. B.

I like a thank-you note. . . don't you?. . .that begins by thanking for the kind thought that prompted the sending of the gift: for example, "How wonderfully kind and generous you and Tom were to send us such a beautiful gift!" or to an intimate friend, "What a darling you are to make us so happy with the lovely gift for our new home!" Then mentioning the gift specifically (this is not only good form, but it is a must in writing thank-you note) comment happily and enthusiastically about special features of the gift. It's a very wise plan to put the gift in front of you as you write. Remember that you should word your thanks to include your fiance's thanks, as if the gift belongs to him too. And of course the sender will be enchanted if you will say something of your plans to use the gift in your new home.

Including all these elements may seem as if the bride's thank-you notes must be long. . .this is not necessarily true. For example:

Dear Margaret,

What wonderful friends you and Bill are. .. Bob and I are thrilled with the pair of silver candlesticks you sent us, and thank you most heartily. They are beauties, so distinguished in design, so radiant in finish. We have been planning how we're going to use them on the dining-room table in our new home, and we hope you'll come soon to dine with us when we return from our wedding trip, and to see what a lovely light they shed.

Affectionately,

Bridegroom's Attendants Should Not Provide Flowers for Bride's Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son, who is an American, is to be married soon to a Spanish girl. It is to be a formal wedding, with six bridesmaids, a maid of honor, and ushers. The bride-to-be claims that the best man should pay for the bride's bouquet and for the bouquet of the maid of honor; and that each usher should pay for the bouquet of a bridesmaid.

Is it really customary? It is certainly contrary to what my son and I think should be done.

P. W.

No, these "demands" are not according to American customs and regulations. . . .and your son's fiancee is (1) either taking over the customs accepted by the group of her relatives and friends and insisting that he and his attendants adopt them ,or (2) shifting certain of her family's financial responsibilities to your son's attendants, who shouldn't be assigned these expenses. I imagine your son wishes to send his bride her bridal bouquet (this bouquet is provided either by the bridegroom or by the bride's family); and I'm sure he would be embarrassed, as he has a right to be, to ask his best man and ushers to supply attendants' flowers that should be supplied by the bride's family.

A Mother's Note to a Teacher

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Will you please give me the correct form for a letter from a mother to a teacher; for example, explaining my child's absence? And will you tell me, please, exactly how I should sign such a note? I have recently entered my child in a school here, and this should demand a note explaining every absence.

Mother

Your note may properly read.

Dear Miss Marsh,

Because of the storm yesterday and because Cynthia is so suspectible to catching cold, I thought it wise to keep her at home. Will you please excuse her absence?

Very sincerely yours,
Mary Smith Robinson

Dieting Fad Has Waned

Since girls got into uniforms and began to present well-developed figures, due to exercise and rigid living conditions, the string bean shape seems to have evaporated. There are still skinnies among us, but bones are no longer fashionable. And aren't those whispy ones putting up a curve-building project? They are.

High school girls are huskies. Look at those bare legs. Look at the size of their saddle shoes. Shoes are not too full of feet, as they were when mama was a girl. "Be comfortable" seems to be the slogan of youth. This idea may have progressed a bit too far—with shirt tails hanging over blue jeans—but, even so, it is health-giving. The old-time waist-pinching, double-turreted, steel-riveted corset was banished by high school girls. Mamas were horrified. It wasn't decent to go without a corset. But the old girls have gone in and followed suit.

Surveys made by life insurance companies show that career girls are losing interest in reducing diets. They're putting their faith in figure molding through outdoor sports, according to the season. More of them have taken to swimming. Many of them are enthusiastic about tennis. Some have taken up archery, a pastime that makes for grace and loveliness of contour.

Insurance investigators say that there are more girls of normal weight than ever before. There are more underweight girls than overweight ones. Of 1286 office and professional girls who furnished detailed reports of their health records and habits, the average weight was 125 pounds, which is all right for the tall girls, but not so good for the shorties. Dress designers, with their ears to the ground, are evidently conscious of the new trend, are continuing to give us wide shoulders, and are making skirts fuller at the hips.

Despite the difficulty of restaurant service during the late war years, girls are eating more substantial food at mid-day. That is as it should be; as a general rule, breakfast is hurried, often consists of nothing more than coffee and toast..

The career girl may work under handicaps. Lack of ventilation in offices and shops is one of them. This condition leads to fatigue and complexions that do not qualify. So a girl should find time for a short walk at the luncheon hour, or should take a walk in the evening, air-washing her lungs.

Poor light should bring a protest from workers, so the eyes will not suffer from strain. Working under pressure will bring about a state of nervous exhaustion. The thing to do is to work as restfully as one can.

Girth Control for Plumpies

By HELEN FOLLETT

Rita Hayworth Wears the Proper foundation garments for her figure

IF THE heavyweight weakens, falls off the diet wagon, gives up in despair, settles down to accept her bumps and bulges, she should at least give thought and attention to the subject of corsetry.

The right foundation garment will compress where compression is necessary. It will do much to improve contour, create style, especially if she is minded of posture. No plumpie can afford to slump. It is the slumping, plus the cream puffs and the bonbons, that has made her what she is today.

Services of Expert

When selecting a foundation she should seek the services of an expert corsetiere who knows lines and the feminine shape. The first requirement is support south of the waistline. To give that and to confine the hips neatly, the cut of the model must be precisely right. Too much compression will often force the flesh up above the waistline to form an ugly roll beneath the breasts.

The garment for the lady of excessive adipose tissue must have firm supports if it is to fulfill the mission for which it was intended. The length must be right. If it is too short, there will be a line across the buttocks, revealing its presence. If it is even an inch too long, it will ride up when she is sitting.

Girth Control

The girth control with the inner belt has more strength and substance than the one without it. Some corsets have means of adjustments. Just the ticket for the brave plumpie who is sticking to her diet, deleting inches, shuffling off tonnage.

After the new corset has been carefully fitted, the customer should move around, walk, stand, sit, test it for comfort. The body must not appear rigid or hidebound. She will look much more like a perfect lady if she hits upon a model that is flattering.

Make the Most of Veal

The delicate flavor of veal lends well with other foods. It s particularly suited to use with he early spring vegetables which re also mild in flavor.

Veal is one of the more plentiul meats on the market at this eason.

The most satisfactory method f cooking veal is by long slow ooking. At one time it was hought that veal could not be ooked by true roasting in dry eat but experiments have shown hat a constant temperature of 25 degrees Fahrenheit, allowing 0 to 35 minutes per pound, will ook veal well and still keep it uicy. Veal lacks fat because it the meat from an animal not ully grown but this lack may be emedied by rubbing the surace of the roast with fat. Bacon t is especially good; occasional asting will also help.

When cooked on top of the stove, moist heat and low-simmering temperature will tenderize the meat and keep its texture. Boiling temperature tends to make veal stringy.

If veal is to be served often, the homemaker would be wise to alter the seasonings to add variety. Veal can be extended in numerous ways with stuffings, vegetables and gravies, thus adding more flavor to it.

The home economists of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture suggest the following ways of extending veal.

Veal Loaf

1-4 cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons fat (melted)
2 lbs. ground veal (shoulder or breast)
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 egg or 2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons milk
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1-2 teaspoon thyme
1-4 teaspoon sage
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1-3 cup fine dry bread crumbs

Saute onion in hot fat until tender. Combine with remaining ingredients and blend well. Shape into loaf and bake in a shallow pan, in a moderate oven 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

Liver and Veal Moulds

1-2 lb. beef or pork liver
1-2 lb. ground veal
1 medium-sized onion
1-4 cup catsup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
3-4 cup milk
1 egg, beaten
1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats.

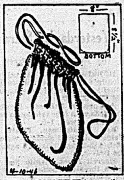
Cover liver with hot water and simmer for 5 minutes. Drain. Grind liver and onion using medium blade of food chopper. Thoroughly combine with the remaining ingredients. Fill well greased custard cups or muffin tins with meat mixture. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees Fahrenheit, for 50 to 60 minutes. Eight servings.

Veal Steak With Vegetable Sause

1 lb veal steak cut in 6 pieces
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1-2 teaspoon curry powder
2 tablespoons fat-melted
1 1-2 cup water
1 can vegetable soup.

Dredge meat with flour, to which the salt, pepper and curry powder has been added. Brown meat in hot fat. Add 1-2 cup water, cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Combine remaining cup of water with the vegetable soup and pour over meat. Cover and continue simmering, stirring occasionally, for 1 hour, or until meat is tender. Six servings.

It's About Time



IT'S ABOUT TIME to use those remnants from evening bags. Cut to make little go-with evening bags. Cut 2 pieces like diagram and round bottom corners. Cut lining the same. Blanket-stitch edges and top with crocheting. Crochet drawstrings and beading for strings at bag top.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This Marriage Ran Head-on Into Mother-in-Law Trouble

Nothing shows a man up in his true colors more clearly than the attitude he takes toward his mother after his marriage.

The attitude I'm talking about has nothing whatever to do with his love toward her, or his responsibility for her, or his desire to see her happy. Naturally, if he is the right kind of man, he's not going to change fundamentally in these things but will adapt them as may be necessary to fit in with his new life without letting them conflict with the rights or happiness of his wife.

But when these things do conflict with his wife's rights and happiness, his attitude demonstrates in short order whether he's a man or a mouse, an adult or a grown-up baby.

It doesn't take long to decide which of these describes the husband of the girl who writes the following letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am 23 years old and had been married about a year when my husband was discharged from the Navy. Shortly after, we separated, because of his mother I walked out. It was the only thing for me to do because we were living with her.

"She was very forward about everything. In front of me she was wonderful. Then, when my husband was alone with her, she put things into his head which he shouldn't have let her do if he really loved me. One thing was for him not to go to work. So I had to go, and then of course he wanted to go out very night on my money. I wouldn't have cared about that, but I had to go to work in the morning and it was hard on me and was wearing me down. I just couldn't stand it. Also, his mother kept telling me to leave her son, and I was losing weight just thinking about it. I really do love him but my future is more important.

"Now I have walked out, and I'm wondering if I'm right. I know in a way I am so right—that he'll never be what I want him to be if his mother is around. He didn't say one word when I walked out. If he had at least walked out with me, then I'd think the world of him.

'He is working now, in the same place with me, but on a different floor and we never speak.

"I guess we would have been all right if we had lived alone. Maybe he would have had some sense of responsibility. I guess his mother was the cause, but he was to blame, too.

"Needs Help"

You know, I have a feeling that you don't really want to leave your husband. If you are perfectly sure about it in your own mind, you'd hardly be writing to ask me if you were right.

What I think you'd like would be to start all over again with your husband, independent of his mother, and have another try.

You say you know your husband will never be what you want him to be if his mother is around, and of course you were hurt and disillusioned when he let you walk out without a word and stayed behind. Perhaps now he wishes he hadn't done that, but is too childish to admit he was wrong. For of course he is childish, when he'd rather be a "Mama's boy" than stand on his feet and be your husband. And perhaps if you were big enough to be the one to end this silly business of not speaking to each other and suggested that the two of you go far enough away so that his mother couldn't interfere with you, and see if you couldn't make a go of your marriage, he'd be only too glad to respond. Wouldn't it be worth a try at least?

Fashion Flashes

IT'S NICE, that idea of adding something to change a dress. As, for instance, a red crepe sheath-like dinner dress, that becomes ready for a formal dance with the addition of a tie-on pink and silver lame skirt lined with ruffled tiers of scarlet chiffon.

Little touches make gingham frocks nice for wear right through the day. A brown and pink plaid gingham frock has a slashed cardigan neckline, tiny pearl buttons closing the snug bodice, and brown lace edging the deep, ruffled peplum.

The demand for the frankly pretty hat goes on and on. Answering the plea are new and pretty models such as a small, open-crown sailor in soft pink satin bows in back. Pink dotted black veil.

The Brighter Better Half

By PRUNELLA WOOD

EVERYONE will admit that a suit isn't much good without a blouse. . . although a gilet helps a lot. So we con call a handsome blouse, better half of our great national costume, as it supplies changes which make a suit investment one to admire, not to tire of to the point of revolt.

This model picture here is a brilliant accessory, as refreshing to stark tailoring as a boutonniere. It is made of white crepe printed with a latticed plaid in vivid fuchsia and dark violet shades, handsome with dark or light suits. Big pearl buttons, tied in place with tubes of the waist's fabric.

A big change is apparent in clothes for the young junior shopper, the already style-conscious ten and twelve-year-olds. Green gingham, with a widowpane plaid in red, sounds very juniorish, but not when it is made with a bustle bow in back beneath which the skirt bursts into fantail pleats. Simple bodice, white pique collar in high, rounded neckline.

Still they come—those little bolero suits that, done in sheer wool fabrics, carry on nicely into summer. A new design is made with a big button fastening at the neckline for a brief bolero jacket that is very curved in front and dips in back. Skirt, with high waistband, has eight gores. Nice in silver gray or lighter-than-navy blue.

A high mark is reached by this season's blouse crop, never prettier, never more diversified. Nice for evening is a blouse of pure silk chiffon in white or pale pink. It fastens in back and has softly gathered high rounded neckline and bishop sleeves. Trimmed all over with tiny squares of tightly-massed black jet beads.

Golden Boy of Wrestledom, Billy Watson, Earns a Point Decision Over Von Schacht

Each Win One Fall and Bout Goes Full Hour Limit

"Whipper" Billy Watson, Golden Boy of wrestledom, the Pride of North York, and the darling of Belleville fans, pitted his superb torso against the barrel-shaped anatomy of one of the toughest nuts he has had to crack in his career, when he tangled with the Milwaukee mastodon, Frederick Von Schacht, at the Hume Arena Friday night.

The "Whippah" needed all his bag of tricks to combat the gorilla-like tactics of the Von, and he nudged out a referee's decision on points after splitting the first two falls with the enemy and wrestling the third to the time limit.

And Herr Von Schacht did not take to the decision kindly. As upwards of 2,000 excited faithful milled about the ring, and the look of astonishment had disappeared from his massive brow at the sound of the gong, the Mastodon offered the hand of friendship to the Whippah.

Parted on Good Terms

They apparently parted on good terms. Then to cinch the matter, the Von struck out a ham-like paw for the second shake. The Whippah obliged and the ponderous left of the Von crashed into his jaw, sending him flying out of the ring to the ground, plus bathrobe, plus towel and plus as hefty a sock in the Watsonian puss as one could wish to see.

The "mob" went wild. Women shrieked. Bobby-soxers wept. Small boys howled and strong men, safe in numbers, cried to high heaven what they would do to the snarling Von. It was some time before Referee Ernie Powers of Hamilton could restore order out of the shrieking chaos, and he finally got the enraged "Whippah" who had climbed back into the ring, on the way to the dressing room.

One Of The Best

Apart from that, however, the bout was one of the best seen here in some time—in fact the entire card from the prelim to the last "out" sized up as nifty an evening's wrestling entertainment as one could wish for.

Early in the main go, the Von proceeded to demonstrate to the pewholders that he was nobody's fool; that Watson's title of British Empire champ was so much duck-wash, and he didn't give a tinker's d.... for all the Watsons in captivity. He punished the Lawson pride severely during the first melee and took the fall after 18 minutes of strenuous milling.

In the second chukker it was another hammer-and-tong affair with the Whip having the edge in territory. He heaved the Mastodon out of the ring several times despite the fact that Von delighted in bumping his noggin against a ring post in a spirited woodpecker style. But the Whip flashed some smart action and tieing the Von up until the pair looked like a couple of octopi on a binge, applied his "Avalanche" hold and the Von said "uncle."

The two were battling fiercely when the gong ended the match and Referee Powers awarded the fall to the Whippah on points. That started the bedlam.

Battled to Draw

Brother Jonathan "The Beard" from Utah and Warren Bockwinkle went to a 30-minute draw in the semi-final after a splendid exhibition. Both men are good wrestlers and the famous Mormon Chest Crusher hold held no fears for the Bock. He met it halfway and the result was an outstanding brawl.

Brother Russell, another Mormon artist had a lot of fun with wiry little Jim Benedetti who gave the bewhiskered one plenty of action before he was thrown for the fateful count after eighteen minutes of smart action. Cliff Fox, Belleville, officiated in the first two events on the card.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS AGAIN BEAT LEAFS ON FREAK HIT

Winners Move Into First Place Deadlock With Baltimore Orioles

(By The Canadian Press)

Baltimore and Syracuse today shared the International League lead, with Newark only half a game behind, after a trio of contests in which visiting clubs came out on top by a single run.

Syracuse nipped Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 at Toronto last night to move into the first-place deadlock with Baltimore, whose game at Rochester was postponed because of cold weather.

Newark downed Buffalo 2-1 on a 12-inning homer by Al Clark in a night game at Buffalo and Jersey City nosed out Montreal Royals 4-3 in an afternoon contest at Montreal.

At Toronto, the Chiefs scored their second and third runs in the fourth inning when Kermit Wahl hit to the left-field fence with two mates on base and the ball disappeared, apparently through a hole in the barrier.

Wahl followed the two others across the plate, but the umpire ruled it a double and allowed only two scores. The remainder of the game was played under a Syracuse protest but Toronto managed only two runs, also in the fourth, when Red Chapman doubled and Al Brancato tripled, scoring later on an infield out.

Clark's four-bagger at Buffalo broke up a pitching duel between Billy Pierce of the Bisons, who yielded only one scratch hit in the first eight innings, and Dane Pillette of the Bears, who scattered nine safeties over the 12 frames. Pierce also went all the way, giving up eight hits altogether.

At Montreal, the Giants scored all four of their runs in the first three frames, three of them off starter Barney Deforge who was charged with the loss.

LORD BOSWELL HORSE TO BEAT IN THE DERBY

Race Will be Witnessed by 100,000 and Horses Will Race Over Muddy Track

By SID FEDER

Louisville, Ky., May 4. (AP)—Climaxing a celebration that was like several New Year's eves rolled into one, the richest Kentucky Derby of them all comes off today before what promises to be one of the greatest throngs ever to see a horse race in Canada or the United States.

There were 17 three-year-olds slated to go to the post for the $96,400 winner's end of a $100,000 pot at 5.15 p.m., (6.15 p.m. E.D.T.) as the traditional "My Old Kentucky Home" throbbed over picturesque Churchill Downs. And it was still Lord Boswell as the horse to beat in a wide-open gallop through mud and slop after six days of rain.

The only doubt about any of the starters came last night when automobile magnate R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, Ont., announced in Hamilton, Bermuda, that his high-speed Wee Admiral would be withdrawn before the 4.30 p.m. deadline for scratches because of the gooey going. But Trainer Arthur Brent here said his direct word was to make up his own mind, and he thought he would run the son of War Admiral.

Mr. McLaughlin, in ill health for some months and unable to attend the Derby, recently was reported to have refused a $100,000 offer for his chestnut colt. Wee Admiral has gleaned $25,615 in winning six of his 19 starts at two and three.

Heading the three-horse entry of the Maine Chance farm of Mrs. Elizabeth Graham, otherwise known as Cosmetics Queen Elizabeth Arden, Lord Boswell was the solid choice. With Knockdown, the Santa Anita derby winner, and Perfect Bahram as his teammates, it was the big hand.

But Lord Boswell was handicapped by an inside post position, bad for a slow starter.

8 Good Bouts Are Lined Up For Boxing Show

Another boxing show has been arranged for Belleville fans at the Hume Arena next Wednesday night, eight good bouts having been lined up.

The main "go," a five-rounder will bring together Belleville's George Polmanter and Cecil "Jiber" Ellis, the Trenton lad who displayed such a powerhouse attack on the last show. George is not picking any soft spot for himself in Ellis. He's a two-fisted puncher and what's more, there's dynamite in both fists.

The semi-final will feature the local heavyweight sensation, "Tony" Acerra. Tony has made only one appearance in the local "charmed circle" and made a real hit with the fans. He met "Tiny" Ainsworth, the Oshawa boy who has been making such a hit in Toronto. Although he dropped the decision to Ainsworth, Acerra showed lots of promise and proved that he can hit by sending the Oshawa lad home sporting a "fat eye." Ainsworth admitted after the fight that the local lad was the hardest hitter he'd ever met. "Tony" will meet Vic Bagnato's "Duke" Subraro from Toronto next Wednesday night.

In the preliminaries, Ron Mansfield, Belleville, will meet Harry Goulding, Oshawa; Bill Westfall, Trenton, will tangle with Kenny Cowle, Oshawa; "Singing Arthur" Duby, Belleville, will trade punches with Fred Harding, Oshawa; Harry Derushia, Belleville, will tangle with "Soup" Whitney, Trenton, and Don Thompson, Belleville, will meet Lorne Vieau, Trenton. Another bout to fill out the card will be announced later.

On paper, this card looks like the best one of the season. The interest in boxing is gradually being revived and cards such as this one will certainly do a lot to help it.

Chips Off The Sports Block

The Belle Cleaners, pin-toppers 1945 champions of the major "A" League at Stub Barrett's Recreational Alleys, won the title for the second consecutive time the other night, and are now entitled to wear the crown for another year.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle however, for the runners-up, the Belleville Golf quintet chased them right to the wire and it was by the slimmest of margins that the Cleaners came through. Up to a week ago, the two teams were tied on the all-season aggregate score and the pay-off game the other night, was just that in the real sense of the word. Cleaners just barely nudged Golf out of the picture by one point.

So Messrs A. Cruji; J. J. Lee (fish, dog and insurance maestro); Art Whalen; Ernie Colbourne and Gar Anderson, can treasure the Belleville Bowling Trophy for another year. On Wednesday night next the four leading teams in the league will battle for special prizes in the annual post-championship series.

The Eastern Ontario Golden Gloves Championships for 1946 will be staged in the Brockville Armouries on May 24-25, it has been announced.

Entries will be accepted from the area from Belleville east to the Quebec border, Ottawa included. In the novice class lads from 60 lbs. to heavyweight will be accepted while in the "Open" class boxers from 100 lbs. to heavyweight are eligible.

Large individual trophies and miniature Golden Gloves will be given to winners of the open class. Shields and miniature Golden Gloves will be given to winners in the novice class. Runners-up in both classes will be given suitable trophies. Entry forms may be obtained from John Phelan, 62 Garden Street, Brockville.

COSSA representatives are scheduled to meet tonight in the city regarding future activities. It is expected that people from Tweed, Albert College, BCI, Trenton and Picton will be present. The low-down will be forthcoming on Monday.

Belleville softball juniors will hold a practice tonight on the Collegiate campus at 6 bells. All younkers 20 and under who crave to participate in mushball are invited to attend. Bit of fog about the junior situation at present, but this is expected to be cleared up in the immediate future.

Coach Speedy St. Louis just to throw the rumors back in the teeth of those gents who hide behind anonymity and criticize in no uncertain terms, yesterday ordered a full and complete set of baseball uniforms for his Juniors with the cost coming from the St. Louis jeans. "That" opined Speedy "will show these birds who are all gab and no action that I am NOT in the baseball picture for what I can get out of it." Sic 'em, pal.

If you want to see a nifty, nobby, neat but not gaudy gift, merely approach "Red" Townsend at the first opportunity and ask him for a light. Red will search in his vest pocket and bring forth a little blue bag. From it he will extract as handsome a "Ronson" lighter as we have glimpsed since the CWAC corporal forgot to return ours up around Petawawa way, years ago.

The lighter, if you examine it closely, is engraved with the words "Senior Boys Basketball, 1945-46" Turn it over and you will find in the spot especially provided for the name of the owner the three letters "R-E-D". And they are colored the same. The lighter was presented to Red by his boys of the senior hoop squad at the end of the basketball tournament staged at Queen's U. last week, and in which the students made a creditable showing being beaten in the finals by Peterborough C. I. after going through a tough tournament schedule undefeated.

POME

Grass for athletes, the experts say,
Is quite the thing, this modern day,
Nebuchadnezzar, in days long over,
Fed his lads on luscious clover.
And Caesar too, ere Brutus knife
Chewed grassy shoots to prolong his life,
And modern docs endorse it, "Why it
Is just the thing, this alfalfa diet"
But in the slang of this modern day,
The pill may be grass, but the bill ain't hay.

IT'S DARBY DAY

This afternoon probably seventeen of the cream of American bluebloods, with a lone Canadian probably thrown in, will battle in the annual Kentucky Derby among the blue grasses of "Ole Kaintuck". From late reports the track is heavy and the "mudders" will be in favor. The Maine Chance Stable trio, Lord Boswell, the favorite, Knockdown and Perfect Bahram ran smart jaunts through the track mire yesterday and in some quarters are favored to finish 1-2-3.

But other eyes are keeping their glances on "Dark Jungle" who did so well in a recent workout that a famous jockey at the track remarked "He'll beat any nag out there on Saturday." The Jungle was scratched in the Derby Trial which the "Lord" won handily, merely because his owner and trainer were superstitious; they know that no trial winner ever repeated in the Derby and they didn't want to put the jinx on the steed.

"When the 'Lord' goes," said the "Jungle's" jockey, "I go." And he seems to have the idea that he's going on to the head end. If so it will be most interesting and perhaps educational to favorite players— because the colt is 30-1 at the moment.

The track was in bad condition yesterday and that fact was worrying Arthur Brent, Wee Admiral's trainer. Only if the going becomes good will the Canadian color-bearer be in there.

Toronto, May 4 —(CP)— Conn Smythe, genial manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, believes he will "in just about two years" realize a long-time ambition — that of offering Toronto hockey fans and the rest of the National Hockey League circuit a "kid line" that will equal in popularity and effectiveness the Charlie Conacher - Joe Primeau - Harvey Jackson combination of yesteryears.

Conn has two thirds of that modern kid line under contract and he hopes it will be completed before long. Tod Sloan of St. Michael's College and Harry Taylor of Winnipeg Monarchs have already signed their name on the dotted line while Don (Red) McRae, another member of the Memorial Cup-winning Monarchs, has asked for time to consider Leafs' offer before he decides whether to turn professional or to pursue his engineering studies.

Sloan, who turned 18 in February, is considered the outstanding player in Canada. He set an all-time junior record by collecting 133 points, on 86 goals and 47 assists, in 51 games this season.

Taylor was the top scorer of Monarchs in the Cup finals and Smythe thinks the 20-year-old rugged centre man will fit in as a perfect buffer for the high-scoring Sloan. McRae is a fast-stepping forward who would work in well with the other two, according to Smythe.

The trio will line up with Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League before they mature to N.H.L. ranks.

Things We Never Knew.

Many claim that Dave Castilloux, Canadian lightweight and welterweight champ who defends the latter title against Gus Mell in Montreal May 17, features such an elusive style because of a "glass jaw."

That's all wrong. Actually Dave has a silver jaw . . . or at least a silver plate in his jaw which he has been carrying for 10 years as a result of a compound fracture he sustained in a boxing bout in Quebec City. Incidentally Dave was hurt in the first lap of a 10-rounder but he went on to battle his opponent to a draw.

London, May 4 — (CP) — Rumors along sports row that the English Rugby League and the English Rugby Union would be combined, have been spiked by Robert F. Oakes, former president and member of the rugby union committee and now secretary of the Yorkshire committee.

"There is no possibility at all of there being any fusion between the league and union," he said at a meeting of the Yorkshire committee. The league, he added, is a professional game "and ours is an amateur body."

"It does not matter whether you are the son of a dustman or the son of an earl; all are welcome so long as they subscribe to our rules and play as amateurs. I believe there is room for both codes, but a fusion, never."

Abraham Waddington, 52-year-old former England and Yorkshire county cricket club player, was acquitted at Leeds assizes court on charges of uttering a forged document and fraudulent conversion arising out of the storage of fats at various dispersal points during the war. His acquittal came after a dramatic intervention by the presiding judge and a formal verdict of not guilty by the jury.

As the prosecuting attorney started his final argument, the judge intervened. "I have come to a decision in this case. It is my province to deal with the law and the evidence as a matter of law."

"It is for you to decide the facts and I should have to tell you if I were summing up now that in my view it would be extremely dangerous to convict Waddington, for whatever the evidence against him it would be open to the gravest doubt. I should have to warn you that you ought not to convict him unless you were in no doubt."

Waddington is a partner in a fat-refiners firm and non-salaried chairman of the North Eastern Division advisory committee for the control of oils and fats.

Derby County footballers who beat Charlton Athletic in the cup final at Wembley Stadium April 27 are convinced now of the stories of accommodation shortage in London. They had four matches, including the cup final, in four days at the month-end and wanted to stay in London in order to get some special Cup training.

The County tried nearly all the hotels for accommodation for a party of 20, but they received the same answer: "For one or two persons — yes; for more than that —no room."

Crowd limit for the Wales-Ireland all-ticket soccer match at Cardiff May 4 has been fixed by the police at 40,000. The international match record for the ground is 55,000, but police aren't satisfied with Ninian Park's present facilities and are careful not to have "another Bolton" when persons lost their lives la month.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 978

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When teaching leads, my thoughts go back to a sweet old lady who was once a student of mine. She believed in me when I was the only one else who would.

My lesson was on this rule: Leads follow the order of choice in tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

The class was going good. As the bell rang for the end of the session, I had started explaining: Against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

The following week she was not her usual cheerful self. To my whispered concern, she replied: "You spoiled a good time for me at a bridge party last night." And I inquired how come.

She explained: "Opponents bid four spades and it was my lead. But I had a king in each of the four suits. So, I couldn't lead. And I went home, missing the eats."

This was her hand:

♠K 8
♥K 10 4 2
♦K J 3
♣K 7 4 2

Early in your bridge life you may have heard that there would be days like this. But it is not the time to pick up your cake pan and go home. Follow the rule that applies in such cases.

Like all good bridge rules, the rule to follow is a credit to common sense. It is: With nothing but undesirable leads to choose from, select the one that is least undesirable.

From this hand, the lead of the heart deuce looks like the best bet. Such a lead may permit declarer to save the queen. But the same chance may be assumed with a lead from each of the other suits.

The decision here is influenced by the heart ten. It makes a tenace with the king when partner returns that suit.

With nothing better, man, you do the best you can.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 4 — (AP) — Telling writers how to run their business is a national pastime. Now Frederic March takes it up.

In recent years March has been associated with stories of social significance such as "A Bell for Adano" and "Tomorrow the World." Thus writers have assumed that only socially significant roles are naturals for him.

"That's where they're wrong," he said on the set of "The Best Years of Our Lives." "They should write a good story with no particular star in mind. A competent actor should be able to interpret any good role."

March has been away from Hollywood for a year and a half. One reason for his absence was his Broadway success. The others:

"I simply had no intention of making any more silly, milk-and-water pictures."

The trouble with the movies, he said, is that writers create roles expressly for the big name attractions, and the actor finds the script tailor-made for his personality.

"After all, a guy named Shakespeare didn't write plays with Booth, Evans or Barrymore in mind."

Through the efforts of Veronica Lake and designer Edith Head, the era of Harry Sherman's "Ramrod" will be the 1870s. The western takes place after the Civil War and the ladies pleaded for the most favorable decade for feminine fashions.

"In the '90s the necks were high and the hair too stiff," they said. "In the '80s the bustle was too uncomfortable and the ringlets and curls too difficult.

"But the '70s — ah! The neckline was low and graceful, the hair was worn loosely. The front line of the gowns was flattering, while the billow in back and on the sides was delightful."

Margaret O'Brien has completed her second book, "Small Fry Beauty Hints" . . . "Duchess Hotspur," latest sexy historical novel is attracting film interest . . . Payments for famous plays and books are reaching stratospheric heights. Latest deal concerns Taylor Caldwell's "This Side of Innocence," for which story productions paid $100,000 plus 10 per cent of the producer's take. That should net the lady $250,000.

AT THE CAPITOL — It took an unprecedented honesty and the courage of her convictions for glamorous Joan Crawford, Academy Award winner as the best actress of the year, to change her appearance to that of the scarred creature she plays in M.G.M.'s dynamic drama, "A Woman's Face," opening next on the Capitol screen. Never in Hollywood history has a feminine star risked her career by abandoning her own features. The added attraction "Dawn Express" stars William Bakewell, Michael Whalen and Anne Nagel.

ARMSTRONG K.O'D IN SIX ROUNDS BY SAL BARTOLO

Veteran Toronto Boxer No Match for Defender of N.B.A. Title

By BILL KING

Boston, May 4 — (AP) — Apparently as strong and fast as ever at 126 pounds, Boston's Sal Bartolo today was convinced he would have no weight worries when he and Willie Pep battle for all of the pieces of the featherweight boxing crown in New York next month.

According to reports, Pep is having some difficulty getting down to the division limit. But Sal, showed 7,614 boxing critics last night that he is well primed by defending the N.B.A.'s version of the featherweight title with a six-round knockout against veteran Jack (Spider) Armstrong of Toronto.

The stylish Sal had his rapier-like left jabs and lightning-fast hooks in perfect tune during all of the Boston Garden's abruptly ended 15-round title bout.

Sparring easily on fleet feet, Bartolo softened Armstrong in the first five rounds. Only once during that stretch was Armstrong capable of making a determined stand, in the third session when he lashed out with several stiff rights to the Bostonian's head.

Just when the crowd was settling down to a highly polished but monotonous exhibition of Bartolo's boxing skill, he suddenly surprised them with a savage two-fisted outburst. Bartolo had used up about two minutes of the sixth session working Armstrong into a neutral corner with smart boxing. Then he cut loose with a furious windmill attack to the head that beat the Canadian to the canvas for the full 10-count.

At least a half-decade Armstrong's junior, the 28-year-old Bartolo started as a 2-1 favorite. Those odds probably will be reversed when Bartolo meets Pep, for the Hartford, Conn., boxing master has humiliated him twice in recent years. But the Bartolo camp has hopes that Willie really is having trouble getting under 127 pounds. Sal made 126 with the greatest of ease while coming in only a half-pound heavier than the aged Armstrong.

The slim crowd, contributed a "net" of $17,802.

SOUTHPAW MAY BECOME ACE OF BROWNIE STAFF

Hurling in the Big Leagues Far Better Than the Hitting in Friday's Game

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Sam Zoldak, an obscure lefthander from Brooklyn, NY., who spent two long years trying to convince Manager Luke Sewell he could be a big league winner if given the chance, gives promise today of establishing himself as the ace of St. Louis Browns' mound staff.

The Polish portsider, who pitched the Browns into third place in the American League yesterday with a seven-hit 5-1 victory over Washington Senators, earned his spurs the hard way.

After waiting until the last day of the 1945 campaign to receive his initial starting assignment in the big time, all the 23-year-old youngster had to do was outpitch Bobby Feller. The Cleveland fireballer pitched a five-hitter that day but Zoldak went him one better, winning the game 2-1 with a four-hitter.

That victory was Zoldak's third in two years.

Even after licking Feller, Sewell hesitated to make Zoldak a regular starter, but after gaining the Browns' initial victory this season with a fine relief performance, Sam earned a starter's role. He rewarded his manager with a 2-0 three-hit job against Chicago White Sox last Friday and followed it up yesterday with his third straight victory to give the Browns an even 8-8 won and lost record for the season.

Hurling Outclasses Hitting

As good as was Zoldak's work, there were three better pitching performances yesterday in a day when hurling far outclassed hitting. Three shutouts were achieved with Allen Gettel's probably the most significant. Gettel thwarted Detroit Tigers with only two hits as New York Yankees handed the world champions their fifth straight defeat, 2-0.

The victory came at the expense of Dizzy Trout, an old Yankee nemesis.

Johnny Schmitz, Chicago Cubs' lefthander, was credited with a 1-0 shutout over New York Giants but a fine relief job by Hi Bithorn made it possible.

Al Jurisich, Philadelphia Phils' righthander blanked the Cincinnati Reds 1-0 with four hits to record his second victory.

Mickey Harris, undefeated lefthander, gained his fourth triumph as the American League leading Boston Red Sox stretched their winning streak to eight consecutive games by outscoring Cleveland 9-4.

Ken Heintzelman southpawed his way to his third triumph of the season and hung the first defeat on Johnny Sain as Pittsburgh shaded Boston Braves, 3-2.

Chicago White Sox overcame a four-run deficit in the sixth inning to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics 8-5.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Louisville, Ky., May 4 —(AP) —Even though you discount Col. Matt Winn's traditional estimate of 100,000 spectators at the Kentucky Derby, there's no doubt that today is the biggest race day Louisville ever saw. . . . Joe Stevens, of the celebrated catering clan, figures there'll be an honest 100,000 crowd at Churchill Downs and he has 1,500 people on hand to feed them and quench a rather notable collection of thirsts. . . . Joe admits that on previous occasions when the Colonel has given out that nice round figure, you could knock off 25 per cent, but he bases his estimates on demands for tables in the restaurant. . . . And incidentally, the box seats at the Downs could have been sold out several times. . . . This is one of those things you can't believe until you see it.

Today's Guest Star.

Buck Weaver, Louisville Times: "Putting it in feudin's words, where Main Chance and its back-to-back aces, Lord Boswell and Knockdown, are concerned, 'If you can't beat 'em, join 'em' would seem the logical conclusion." . . . P. S.: Buck forgot to say this is the first time Maine ever got south of the Mason-Dixon Line. Such geography!

PLEADS GUILTY

Montreal, May 4 — (CP) — Roger Chatelois, who turned King's evidence against three accomplices at their trial on charges of murder, yesterday in King's Bench Court pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter, reduced from one of murder, arising out of the fatal shooting of Edmond Boisvert, northeast-end St. Hubert street tavern keeper, during an abortive hold-up last December. Sentence was deferred until end of the May term of the court.

SPONSORED BY LIONS' CLUB

Kingsville, May 4 —(CP)— Work of dismantling a decade-old tin structure and plans for a projected modern recreation park in its place are under way here. The park, sponsored by the local Lions' Club, is expected to open May 24.

AT THE BELLE — Jungle family: "Boy" (Johnny Sheffield); Jane (Brenda Joyce) and Tarzan (Johnny Weismuller) are again co-starred in the latest Sol Lesser production for RKO Radio, "Tarzan and the Leopard Woman," based on the famous stories by Edgar Rice Burroughs, opening today at the Belle.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

The Montreal Gazette said in a sport page story today that R.C.T. Roe, chairman of the British Professional Golfers' Association, stated yesterday in a Transatlantic telephone interview from London that Britain "would not be sending a four-man team to Montreal's Beaconsfield Club for a best ball match against a United States team on June 26."

Roe was quoted as saying that Henry Cotton and other top-ranking British golfers had declined the invitation because of its close proximity to the British Open tournament which starts July 2.

The British soccer football players union yesterday accepted a weekly wage scale of about $45 during the season, with the equivalent of around $29 per week between schedules.

Derek Barton, candidate for England's Davis Cup team, and Jack Harper of Australia are meeting today in the final of the British hard court tournament at Bournemouth.

Added attraction for ladies day May 13 at Ebbets Field when Brooklyn Dodgers play Philadelphia Phillies will be a fashion parade prior to game time.

Australian tennis authorities have decided to appoint women umpires for major tournaments as the first in the world in that role.

Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League yesterday announced the sale of defenceman Joe Cooper to New York Rangers, with Leo Reise of the Kansas City club to replace him next season.

The French team of Alfred Letourneur and Al Bedard dropped from first to last place in the Chicago six-day bicycle race yesterday, with the CYR-ABT pair leading the field which was reduced to six teams.

Mexican players of the Davis Cup team, scheduled to meet Canada at Montreal in June, won both singles matches yesterday in tune-up competition at Mexico City.

HUGE TOTAL PAID

Montreal, May 4 — (CP) — A total of $1,780,000 in fines for offences against wartime regulations have been paid by Canadians since September, 1939, it was announced here last night by the Prices Board.

I'LL WAIT FOR YOU

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 17

He smiled again. "You made one inopportune entrance in your life, Edwina. The day you came to my house and found us together, the day you told her you and I were going to be married. I had just kissed her then and I was going to say it all. When you came, I couldn't. And when I telephoned her after she got home, she apologized for the whole thing! Apologized!

"I saw her tonight at the quarry and we said good-bye, good luck and all that sort of thing. Maybe I should be a better loser. But there have been times when I've felt she was in something that she couldn't get out of. A girl like Carol doesn't steal kisses in dark corners and then go off blithely and marry another chap. That's why I asked you about Alan Harding. What sort of person is he?"

An odd smile played about her bright mouth. She reached for a cigarette and he stood over her and lighted it. Then she curled up on the divan again and looked up at him, her expression amused and yet a little sad.

"A former wife should know, shouldn't she?"

"Former wife!"

"Yes. You'd better sit down. This is a long story, Norman, but it's not a secret. I'm surprised you haven't heard. I thought it was one of the first things that greeted a newcomer here. It was a juicy scandal that still sets tongues wagging occasionally. I suppose you haven't heard, because you and I have been together most of the time and perhaps because, when I wasn't with you, the people here didn't want to nip a budding romance — so they thought. Very considerate of them. That's mean of me. I'm sorry."

"You were married to Alan Harding."

"Yes. And you ask what sort of a person is he. I can tell you what he was five years ago. I can tell you almost, but not quite, because I don't think any one has ever reached the depths of him or understood him completely. But five years ago when I loved him he was sweet and high-principled and honest—and innocent where girls were concerned. He had faith and ideals, and he wanted to do something wonderful for humanity, all that a good lawyer is able to do. But there was a streak of cruelty in him, too. I knew it when he struck me...."

Norman said, "Suppose you start at the beginning...."

She shook her head. "It was the beginning, the beginning of the end of the Edwina Burke that you and I buried a couple of nights ago. It began at a party when I looked across a room and saw the only boy who hadn't danced with me—Alan in dinner clothes that didn't fit his big shoulders, rented clothes, Alan very blond, very aloof, very cold...."

While she spoke she was conscious neither of time nor of Norman. Her words flowed, making lucid pictures of a girl pursuing a boy, tempting him, teasing him, begging him and loving him with all the recklessness and impulsiveness of the eighteen-year-old Edwina. Her drives to the university to see him, her phone calls, her notes. And Alan's indifference to her, his scorn for her money. Then the night of her coming-out party and the events which had swiftly followed.

She said, "It's difficult to look back through five years to that time. Too much has happened since. You see, I thought of him as a god almost. He had more self-control than any one I've ever known. But he was a puzzle to me. He is still. He lives within himself and you never know what goes on behind the fine looking exterior. People who have suffered and struggled are that way, I suppose. I don't want to be unfair to him. The things he told me about his beliefs and ideals I shall never forget— but I shall never forget either that he struck me. He seemed to be a boy at war with himself— two enemy camps facing each other across his mind. I was conscious of a suffering in him I didn't understand." She paused. "Sometimes I thought he loved me. But that wasn't true. He never loved me."

She went on after a moment, "A person like that is attractive, interesting. It's like wanting to take a watch apart to see what makes it tick. And he's very good looking. That night at the club, when we walked outside together, he turned on me as if I were a snake in his path. He hates me, loathes me. And from what I can learn, he hasn't done much in the way of helping humanity, but he has done a great deal to help Alan Harding. People like him because he's quiet and smart. I probably haven't answered your question, Norman. It's the best I can do."

"I wonder if Carol could do it any better...."

"Alan learned about girls from me. He's probably been smarter with Carol. And yet the things about him which attracted me probably attracted her. I can't blame her for wanting him; I did."

Norman got up and stood at the fireplace beneath the portrait of her father. "Thanks for telling me about Alan, Edwina," he said, slowly.

"I haven't helped. I've confused you. I wish I could help to untangle it—and you."

"Stay out of it. There's nothing you can do. Helplessness is new to me. I've always been able to cope with problems. But not this. It's Carol and Alan—and you and I back to New York, Edwina. And I'd like to get away as soon as possible."

"I know. Back to the grind and the bright lights to forget. But you won't. Two years from tonight you'll still remember the quarry as it was tonight — the storm, the lights going out, her face and everything she said. Sorry, but you will. You'll kiss other girls in the meantime and tell yourself you're getting over Carol beautifully. But you won't You see, I know. It's been five years since I was eighteen and though I don't love Alan I still remember the lilacs on the campus that year and the shabby sweater he wore to school and his hands, hard from athletics, with the nails bitten down."

"I'll be over to help you with the books tomorrow."

"Fine. It's quite a job. We'll dig into it. And, Norman...."

He said, "Thanks, Edwina, but I'm not wearing a false face tonight. I think I'll run along."

She went outside with him and when he had gone she sat down on the velvety grass and touched it lovingly with her hands. She could be alone now. She could be alone and content with her own company. After a few minutes she drew up her knees and looked at the moon as if she were waiting for the moon to answer her silent question.

Throughout the morning Edwina and Norman had worked in the Burke library removing books from the tall shelves and packing them carefully. Edwina, in a yellow smock and flat-healed white shoes and socks, had dusty hands and a dusty face as she called to him across the large room. Her lively chatter often brought them face to face and she could see how tired he was. Probably he had not slept. His smile was telltale; he was trying to maintain the air of a young man who is a good loser.

"How did your father collect all these books, Edwina?"

"He went to New York and bought out a rich man's library. I've no idea how valuable it is. But I know that there are a good many first editions. The library people here will know. Also there are some original manuscripts. Dad....dad told me once he couldn't appreciate them but that his grandchildren would. Now a lot of grandchildren will."

"You're not sorry...."

"Oh, no. More people should do this. I hope the time will come when all people will have — not money or advantage particularly —but the opportunity to do what they want, the kind of work they like, I mean, and to see beautiful things. That's what is lacking for youth—opportunity. I sound like a social worker, don't I? But lately I've thought more about other people, the underprivileged." She paused. "We've been working for hours. Let's take time out and have a cigarette. I'm not as strong as you, you know."

She came down from a step-ladder and they sat on packing cases and lighted cigarettes.

"You didn't sleep last night, Norman...."

"Aunt Edwina...."

"Oh, stop. You don't have to stay and help after today if you'd like to put Newton behind you. Everything is settled for me. The people from the museum will be out tomorrow to see what they want, the library will take the books, and Mr. Lane told me he'd probably take a lot of the furniture along with the house. Some pieces I'm going to keep. And I don't have to worry about Sam and Mary. They have the income dad left them, and Mr. Lane said he'd like them to stay on at the cottage. Sam is a splendid gardener and he knows every tree and shrub on the place. All I have to do is to pack my clothes, say good--bye to Amy and get a train. There's one tonight. Why don't you get it?"

"I think you've got something there. All I have to do is pack my clothes, pay Benson, say good-bye to you and catch a train."

"Aren't you going to see Carol once more before you leave?"

He shook his head. "No. Last night was—plenty. In the daytime, when I could see her, it would be worse." He smiled. "Funny, I'd drive a hundred miles to see her walk across the street, her hair blowing. The things you take for granted in other girls, their little mannerisms, become things you remember in a girl you love. Carol's hair never seems to blow over her face but always back, leaving her profile clean-cut. Now it's time to get back to work...."

Her eyes were calm in their understanding. "I haven't finished my cigarette and you'd better get your talk of Carol out of your system before you leave. You won't tell anybody else. You'll get back to New York and call up people because you won't want to be alone, and next week end on Long Island nobody will guess you left a part of you in Newton. And in the daytime you'll be the efficient, successful young architect...."

"You were right last night. You can't explain love. I want her with me where I can see her and touch her and live with her. I love her. That covers everything. That's all any one can say about it."

She slid down from the packing case and stood very small and dusty and disheveled beside him. "That isn't quite all, darling. It—it hurts, doesn't it? There's an aching emptiness. All right. Let's go back to work. And you're going back tonight."

"If you won't think I'm running out on you. What time can I catch a sleeper?"

"Around ten. But you'd better make a reservation."

While she went to work again on the ladder, he phoned for a reservation. Then he came back and returned to his work without speaking. Edwina thought: His going away reminds me of when I ran away from Alan and from the gossip. You know you must go even though there are chains that still hold you....

When the bell rang and she saw Sam, bent and slow, crossing the hall to answer it, she turned on the ladder, laughed and asked, "Who is it, I wonder. My creditors? Let them in! I'm not afraid of them any more."

But it was Dick Fenton who came in and stood on the threshold, his eyes incredulous at what they beheld. After a moment he laughed and asked, "What is it? Housecleaning?"

The Inside Nerves

Fatigue comes from the nerves. When you are bodily tired, you feel it in the arms, legs and back. But the inside nerves which control the bodily organs are also tired and the result is indigestion, headaches, loss of sleep and general lack of energy. You will see by the illustration how the sympathetic nervous system, through the inside nerves, supplies energy to the bodily organs—The lungs, the stomach, etc.

By the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can very materially help to restore energy and vigor to these bodily organs and relieve the feelings of fatigue and languor which hold you down.

The result is better digestion, better sleep and renewed energy with which to enjoy life. Ask your druggist for the economy size bottle of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Saturday walk with pop, and I said, G, pop, here comes Admiral Tricker, shall wu cross over to the other side of the street so he cant stop and talk to you?

It's too late now, we'll just pray for the best and expect the werst, pop said.

Being what we got, Admiral Tricker sticking out his hand for pop to shake it and saying, It's nice weather for this time of year, it's a lot better than most people deserve.

Some fokes probably shouldn't have any kind of weather, pop said, and Admiral Tricker said, There's too much hate in the werld, that's the big trubble, and that's why people are going to keep on making war against each other till human nature changes.

The difficulty seems to be, how to change it and still have a few people left, pop said, and Admiral Tricker said, Every people of every country have their own manners and customs and their own way of life. Is that any reason we should hate them? They might as well hate us because we're different too, he said.

Dont worry, they do, they do, pop said; and Admiral Tricker said, I dont hate any people. No matter what language they speak or what native clothes they wear, I say they have a right to leed their own life without interfeerance. I say it takes all kinds of people to make a werld, and I say we all ought to respect that fact no matter which side of what ocean we live on, he said.

That couldn't be truer if it was in a 2 volume book, pop said, and Admiral Tricker said, Well, good bye now, I'm expected home, my wife's relations are there for dinner and they're the most inexcusibly shiftless, ignorant, bull headed tribe that ever blighted the face of the earth and I'd like to see them all in the middle of the A bomb experiments.

And he kept on going, and I said, G, pop, aint his wife's relations people? and pop said, Well yes, in a way, but they dont live on the other side of any ocean.

Council in Committee Give Consideration to Many Matters

Following objection of certain ratepayers to the construction of new sidewalk on the north side of Victoria Ave., from Front to Bridge Street, and on the east side of Dufferin Ave., from Dundas to Bridge Street, city council at their regular committee meeting Thursday night voted to ask the Ontario Municipal Board to view the two streets with the view of determining whether the improvements are necessary.

Ten of twenty lot owners on the east side of Dufferin Ave., in the area mentioned above have the petitioned council for the construction of a sidewalk, while 7 taxpayers have objected. Three owners remained non-committal. The same condition was seen with regard to the proposed new sidewalk construction on Victoria Ave., several owners claiming the present walk was still in good condition.

Committee Named

A committee of Aldermen Woodley, Allin, and Tice was appointed to investigate and make a report to council in relation to the west half of lot No. 3 on Benjamin Street, while the sale of lots 8 and 9 on Emily Street was recommended rescinded as owners cannot see their way to carry out building covenants. A city owned lot on the south west corner of Herchimer & Yeomans was re- that the portion of Yeomans St. for $25, the usual one year building covenant to apply.

Caretaker Appointed

Tender for painting of the city tourist camp signs was awarded to Wardhaugh, local sign painter, at a price of $48 while it was also recommended that tourist trailers only be permitted to park on the tourist park. William Dimnie, a returned veteran, North Front Street, was appointed as caretaker of the park for the summer months at a salary of $75 per month.

Also under the heading of special property, it was recommended that the portion of Yeomans Street recently closed, be sold to the Universal Moulded Products for $1. A new street light was voted to be placed in front of No. 13 Green St.

Aldermen Chamberlain, Armstrong, Clarke, Thompson and Hyde, with the city comptroller and Mayor Follwell were appointed as a committee to survey with the city engineer all streets in the city having vacant lots with the view of ascertaining the possibility of laying sewers and waterworks so that these lots might be open for purchase by prospective builders.

Maps Not Available

Following recommendation by council that new maps of the city be procured for use at the city hall, it has been learned that these are not obtainable at the present time and the matter of their purchase will be laid on the table for future consideration. Council voted to confirm their former recommendation regarding the purchase of two sidewalk snow-plows.

Manager of the Goodrich Oil Company service station on Dundas Street will be notified by the comptroller to clean up the rear of his premises adjoining the city tourist camp.

Proposed grant of $200 to the Belleville Baseball Association met with the approval of councillors in committee following indecision at the last regular council meeting when the matter was turned back to committee. Thursday evening councillors voted the $200 grant for the furtherance of baseball in the city.

By-law Read Twice

At a special meeting of council prior to the opening of committee, the by-law for the city to purchase the Hume Arena was given its first and second readings and will be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for written approval. Approval of the Board for the city's purchase of the rink had previously been given by telegraph. The by-law will be given its third reading at Monday night's council meeting.

Transportation In Los Angeles Stopped by Strike

Los Angeles, May 3 — (AP) — Public transportation in this widespread metropolis was paralyzed early today when approximately 4,000 motormen, conductors, bus drivers and maintenance men went on strike for higher wages.

Streetcars and buses rolled to a stop in carbarns and garages. Union officials said there would be no picketing and that employees had been instructed to "go home and stay there" in order that any possible violence might be averted.

Mayor Fletcher Bowron called in representatives of the Transportation Union (A.F.L.) and of the company. Afterward he said he was powerless to prevent the strike, but hoped to "make it as short as possible."

The union is demanding $1.36 an hour for a 40-hour week, against the present scale of $1.03 and 44 hours. The company countered with an offer of $1.15 and a 48-hour week, which was rejected.

Four thousand operating employees are involved. The company operates 700 streetcars over 221 miles of track, and 340 busses on a system covering nearly 400 miles. Approximately 1,000,000 persons ride the carriers daily.

Black Market Operations Existed Says Prices Board

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)—Serious black market operations, frequently of "an organized nature" existed in certain commodities last year, it was disclosed in the 1945 report by the Prices Board, tabled in the Commons Friday by Finance Minister Ilsley.

The report said the most pressing problem was the appearance "on a wide scale" of counterfeit sugar ration coupons. False butter ration coupons also appeared, but on a "much smaller" scale.

Some of the coupons were said to have been "almost indistinguishable" from the genuine, making detection difficult, but the laborious task of tracing them to their sources in a great many instances was successfully accomplished by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The report also told of a "heavy" volume of merchants who were prosecuted for obtaining replenishments of sugar and butter stocks by using counterfeit coupons obtained from illicit sources.

The report made no mention of current investigations.

Fellow Defendant Slaps Tojo's Shaven Head

By DUANE HENNESSY

Tokyo, May 3 — (AP). — Two lusty slaps on the top of Hideki Tojo's glistening bald head by a capricious co-defendant startled the courtroom today as 28 Japanese heard themselves accused of having plunged the Pacific into a war of greed.

The playful smacks were only part of the antics of Shumei Okawa, who long advocated an aggressive war to drive the white races from Asia.

Shooting gibberish that even the Japanese said they could not understand, Okawa had to be pulled forcibly from the courtroom by American military police at an afternoon recess.

As clerks droned through the lengthy indictments in both English and Japanese at the nine-power international tribunal's first session, Okawa — once an official of the South Manchurian Railway — prayed with gestures and unbuttoned his blouse to bare his thin chest.

Then, with a cunning grin, he leaned forward and slapped the unsuspecting Tojo on his shaven head.

The shocked former premier looked up quickly then gave a sad, understanding smile.

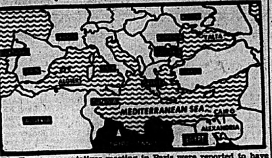
As the court recessed, Okawa again resoundingly slapped the glistening head.

Tojo just grinned.

Opinion was divided as to the reasons for Okawa's actions. Some thought he might be trying to impress the court that he was not mentally able to defend himself. However, his slapping appeared playful rather than in wrath.

When the day's session ended, clerks had waded through 47 of the 55 counts in the bulky indictment. All of the indictment must be read because the defendants declined to waive the right to hear it in court. Later the defendants will enter pleas, all of which are expected to be "innocent."

QUESTION BEFORE BIG FOUR



Big Four representatives meeting in Paris were reported to have worked out a new formula for solving the controversial question of Tripolitania (indicated in the map's black area). A compromise agreement is said to call for a joint trusteeship — but with Italy included. Italy had previously demanded guardianship over her former African colony. Britain has opposed both Italian and Russian trusteeship and a deadlock has been threatened. The U. S. has held out for joint control of the disputed area for a period of ten years.

Question of Price Increases Being Studied by Board

Ottawa, May 4 —(CP)— The question of price increases needed to stimulate production in the many branches of the building materials industry is undergoing "continuing review," the Prices Board said Friday in its 1945 report, tabled in the Commons by Finance Minister Ilsley.

The report concluded its review of the shortage of building materials with this statement:

"In view of the over-all increase in the cost of housing which has taken place in recent years and of the importance of keeping such costs down, the Board must be careful to satisfy itself that such price adjustments are genuinely necessary and likely to promote additional production."

It was the supply of construction products increased during 1945 but still was inadequate to fill all demands. The chief difficulty in the way of a further expansion of production of building supplies lay in the shortage of labor.

"In these circumstances, a number of war-imposed controls are still urgently needed, particularly price control, the rationing of some essential foodstuffs, the allocation of certain scarce materials, and the direction of production of some essentials in short supply."

In a general review of the world situation, the report said Canada had entered the post-war period in a "comparative strong economic position without the violent disruption of her economic affairs and the extreme distortion of her price structure which was unfortunately characteristic of conditions over so much of the world."

Supplies Still Not Adequate Says Prices Board

Ottawa, May 4 (CP) — No "immediate correction" of the war-induced shortages in Canada of food, clothing, fuels and certain other commodities can be expected, it was stressed in the 1945 report of the Prices Board, tabled Friday in the Commons.

The report, written by Chairman Donald Gordon of the board and tabled by Finance Minister Ilsley, attributed the situation to "acute world shortages" and said supplies in Canada still were "by no means adequate to meet unrestricted domestic demands."

It added:-

"In the case of food, indeed, the general shortage is such that rationing of meat, butter and sugar will be needed for some time to come.

"While substantial progress has been made in reconversion, it will also be a considerable time before sufficient supplies of such things as building materials and industrial equipment can be produced or before output of such consumer durable goods as automobiles and refrigerators can begin to fill the accumulated demand.

"Meanwhile, pent-up needs for consumer goods, for housing, for industrial and public construction eagerly seek fulfilment and demand for most goods and services continues to exceed the supply.

Billy Goat Gets the Mumps?

This story would get anybody's goat.

As a matter of fact, the hero of the yarn a three-year-old billy goat, is swelled up over seeing his name in print, even if, paradoxically he is down-in-the mouth about it.

The facts of the case are hard to swallow, even the goat will admit that, but here they are.

Over in Prince Edward County around the Gore Road vicinity near Rossmore, Roy Brickman's family have a pet goat. He's a cute cuss and spends his happy hours cavorting with his pals, the children of the Brickman family.

One day he missed one of them, and "Billy" was quite concerned. What he didn't know was, that his favorite playmate, a young son of Mr. Brickman, was down with the mumps.

In fact, "Billy" felt so bad about it, and showed it, that it was decided to let him resume play with his pal.

But now, alas, the goat is mournful. He has developed an anti-human complex. For a day or two after his renewed activities with his little pal, a suspicious swelling became apparent in the vicinity of the rear of the goat's chin-whisker. The swelling increased, and Bill refused to eat. He grew worse, as the swelling mounted. He refused to play. And there was sadness in the Brickman family.

You guessed it—the goat had contracted the mumps.

Capital Closeups

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 4 — (CP) — This is a now-it-can-be-told story of how Prime Minister Mackenzie King sat calmly in a transatlantic transport plane and waited for a German aircraft to deliver an attack that might have spelled his death.

The reason the attack was not delivered has never clearly been established. Mr. King believes the most accepted version and that is that the German aircraft—a heavy bomber—was a weather plane with little or no fighting equipment and its pilot was probably not sure just what opposition he would meet.

Mr. King's plane was a Liberator bomber en route to Britain in 1944 and to the German it might not have been positively identified as a transport.

The German cut across the bows of Mr. King's Liberator and flew alongside for some time.

Returning from the same journey, Mr. King had another experience that held less danger but which was at least startling at the time.

Flying over the Irish Sea, his aircraft was suddenly lighted with star shells bursting in the vicinity. The plane hurriedly flashed its identification signals and the bombardment ceased. It was a naval trawler just making sure who was overhead. The aircraft pilot had failed to see a challenge signal that flickered through the murk just before the flares were fired.

Sulky Politico: One of the Commons' keenest active sportsmen is Hon. Earl Rowe, member for Dufferin-Simcoe in Ontario and former minister in the last Conservative government.

At 52, Mr. Howe might be forgiven if he watched from the sidelines as his trotters, pacers score and break on the tough Grand Circuit tracks.

But Mr. Rowe is stubborn and prefers to handle his own reins and sulky. It wasn't so many years ago that he established something of a Canadian harness racing record by participating in 132 one-mile heats in less than 6 weeks.

When he can slide home to his Newton Robinson stable during parliamentary weekend breaks he spends as much time as possible grooming his likely-looking trotter — Variddell — for the Hambletonian.

Very few Canadian horses have been entered in this Goshen, N. Y., harness classic and fewer have been driven by their owners.

"A professional driver could probably do better with my horse than I can," Mr. Rowe said reflectively, "but I wouldn't miss that ride for the world."

Red Army Troops Reported Leaving Tabriz

Iran Evacuation According to Plan, Russ Attache Says

Ala Expected to Report Virtually All Reds Gone

By MAX HARRELSON

Tehran, May 6 — (Reuters) — Red Army troops today were marching out of Tabriz, capital of the northwest Iranian province of Azerbaijan, through streets decorated with Russian and Iranian flags and watched by crowds which had gathered early, Tabriz radio reported.

Russia had promised that Soviet troops — which entered Persia nearly five years ago — would be out of Persia by today.

Questioned whether the Red Army had carried out the evacuation, Soviet press attache Kimissarov said here today:—

"Evacuation will be carried out according to the agreement between the Red Army and the Persian government."

New York, May 6 (AP)—Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala was expected to arrive in New York today to report to the United Nations Security Council that virtually all Russian troops have been withdrawn from Iranian soil.

His report is expected to be in the hands of the delegates when the council meets to take up the Iranian case Wednesday. Russia has until midnight tonight to complete the withdrawal under terms of her agreement with Iran. Some delegates, however, have declared Iran's report might be submitted before the deadline. Unless questioned by a member of the council, it is expected to open the way for council action to mark the case as closed.

Reports yesterday indicated all Russian forces had left Iran, with the possible exception of some in the border territories of Azerbaijan Province.

Some delegates expressed belief Russia might make an official announcement in Moscow some time today or tonight on completion of the evacuation. Such a move, it was pointed out, would enable Russia to get her statement before the council without making a formal report.

Speculation as to whether Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko still would attend arose from the fact he had not indicated whether he would carry out his threat not to take part in any further discussions of the Iranian question.

Disposition of the Iranian case, which first came before the council in London Jan. 19, would leave only Spain on the agenda.

A five-man sub-committee is now investigating Poland's charges that the Franco regime is a threat to international peace. It must report back to the council by May 31.

Deny Rumor Italian King Has Abdicated

Rome, May 6 (AP)—The Royal House denied today that King Victor Emmanuel abdicated yesterday.

A French broadcast had reported that the Italian King abdicated after signing a decree in the presence of Pope Pius.

The Rome correspondent of the Daily Telegraph of London reported the King had signed an abdication decree and was "awaiting an opportune moment, probably this week to make his decision public."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 6 — (CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.—an area of high pressure centred northern Manitoba southeastward. Northerly flow of cool air from centre eastward to Quebec is bringing cool weather to Ontario and Quebec with snowflurries in northern districts and showers in southern districts. Weather is also cool from Manitoba westward to the Rockies with generally clear skies.

Bodies of Eight Sought After Car Plunges Into River

South Wellington, B.C., May 6 — (CP) — Diving and dragging operations were to be resumed today in the Nanaimo River, near this eastern Vancouver Island community, in an effort to find the bodies of eight persons who perished in one of British Columbia's worst highway accidents.

An automobile carrying Mr. and Mrs. Earle Sleen, their four children, the eldest six, Oran Sleen, brother of Earle, and Mrs. Kathleen Wyatt, all of Victoria, plunged through the guard rail of the River Bridge about midnight Friday.

Inspector Robert Owens of the British Columbia police said there was no doubt all were in the car when it took the plunge.

Divers yesterday failed to find the auto but did discover pieces of wreckage along the river's rocky bed. The water is from 20-60 feet deep there.

Police said the auto was reported to have been travelling at high speed when it approached the bridge. About 30 feet of the rail were torn away.

The party is known to have been at Parksville, about 20 miles north, Friday afternoon. When the auto was seen there, all four children were in the car. The baby was asleep in the front seat.

Earle Sleen was a former taxi driver and his brother a bus driver for the B. C. Electric. It was not known which was at the wheel when the auto took the plunge.

Exact Time Given On Four Tickets For $108,000 Pool

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 6 (AF)—The ice in the Tanana River broke at 4:40 p.m. Sunday — the exact time holders of four tickets in the $108,000 pool had picked.

Only one of the four tickets was held by an individual. He was Mike Johnson of Sitka, Alaska. It will mean $27,500 for him. The other three were held by groups.

SEARCH FOR MAN

Windsor, May 6 — (CP)—Police said today they are searching for a six-foot man in connection with assault of a 22-year-old city hall worker in an alley early Saturday. The woman told police she did not believe she was criminally assaulted.

Police said the woman told them the man grabbed her, warned her against an outcry, and said that as a prisoner of war he had killed some men in a prison camp and would kill her, if necessary.

Year Ago Tuesday Germans Signed Unconditional Surrender Terms

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 6—(CP Cable)—In the early morning in a schoolhouse at Reims, France, one year ago tomorrow German representatives signed the Allies' unconditional surrender terms for the Third Reich. The following day, May 8, the armistice became formally effective and the European war ended.

After 5½ years the crash of gunfire ceased and peace, however uneasy, came to the Continent.

The signing at Reims was the climax in a lightning development which brought Germany to complete collapse. Hammered from the west, east and south by Allied armies which finally burst across Germany's borders, the resistance of Nazi military forces was shattered.

The break-up showed first in the south where the German army in Austria and northern Italy surrendered to Field Marshal Alexander, then Allied commander in the Mediterranean theatre and now Governor-General of Canada. In the north, Field Marshal Montgomery's British forces reached Baltic while Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's 1st Canadian army penned up the German 25th army in fortress Holland and the Emden-Wilhelmshaven peninsula.

The United States forces and the Russian armies linked up in strength along the Elbe in Czechoslovakia and along the Danube valley.

Germany was in utter chaos and on May 4 on Lueneberg Heath near Hamburg Field Marshal Montgomery received the surrender of the German forces opposite his 21st Army Group in northern Germany. At 8 a.m. May 5 the cease fire sounded on the fronts of the 1st Canadian Army

FRENCH VOTERS REJECT PROGRAM LEFT-WING BLOC

Reds and Socialists Supporting New Constitution Lose By 1,181,860

By JAMES M. LONG

Paris, May 6 (AP)— French voters, delivering the sharpest setback to the Left-Wing bloc since the liberation of France, rejected a Communist-Socialist supported constitution in yesterday's referendum, complete official returns showed today.

Totals announced by the Ministry of the Interior indicated that the constitution was defeated by more than 1,180,000 votes. These figures, complete for the 93 departments of France, including all three in North Africa, gave:

Against the consititution —10,632,430.

For the constitution—9,450,570.

Approximately 80 per cent of registered voters participated.

Defeat of the proposal means France will elect a new constituent assembly June 2. This assembly will name a new provisional government and draft another constitution for the fourth republic.

The Leftist-supported constitution would have established an all-powerful unicameral legislature, empowered to appoint executive and judicial branches of the government.

The proposal was opposed bitterly by the movement Republican Populaire and other Right-Wing parties, on the grounds it would give a virtual dictatorship to whatever faction won control.

Opponents also maintained it failed to provide "checks and balances" necessary for a democracy, and declared the President of France would be merely a figurehead.

The M.R.P. and Gen. Charles De Gaulle, former President, advocated a two-chamber legislature, and strong executive and judicial branches of government. De Gaulle, now in retirement, did not have an elector's registration card and did not vote.

The issue now arises anew as to whether any of the three major parties—Socialist, Communist or MRP—can gain control of the new provisional government, or whether there will be another coalition.

There was a strong indication many Socialists either abstained from voting or voted against the constitution. Some belief was expressed that this might mean the Socialist-Communist accord would crumble.

French Opinion on Results

Paris, May 6 (Reuters)— Astonishment characterizes Paris press comment on the French referendum results. The rejection of the Communist-Socialist constitution is described in "Aube" by Maurice Schumann, President of the Mouvement Republicain Populaire as "rising above even my optimistic expectations."

The Conservative Figaro says "the verdict expresses the nation's rejection of the plebiscite imposed by the Community Party."

Italo-Yugoslav Border Issue is Deadlocked; Study Balkan Treaties

By LOUIS NEVIN

Paris, May 6. (AP)—Deadlocked on the Italo-Yugoslav frontier issue, the foreign ministers council today instructed its deputies to start examination of the Balkan treaties, beginning with Romania, an American informant said.

The four ministers of Russia, Britain, France and the United States reviewed their position on the Italian treaty and found the question of Trieste and the Italian-Yugoslav frontier was the key difficulty. Thereupon State Secretary Byrnes of the United States proposed that the deputies be instructed to start work on Balkan treaties.

Neither the Americans nor the Russians would budge from their stands on the Italian treaty at the meeting today.

Mr. Byrnes told his three colleagues, the informant said, that he was willing to accept either the proposed British or French frontier lines between Italy and Yugoslavia but that acceptance of the Russian proposal would violate the London conference decision to use the new frontier on ethic grounds.

Mr. Byrnes' proposal of Saturday to hold a plebiscite in the disputed region between the proposed American and Russian lines was not raised at today's meeting.

Other disputed points reviewed at the three-hour session were the future of Italy's colonies and reparations. It was stated that a report of a reparations study commission would be ready in a few days.

With the switch to Balkan problems, the possibility was seen that the United States might offer concessions in the Balkans to break the deadlock on Italy.

Coincidentally, reports indicated that whatever decisions were reached might result in violent reactions from affected countries. These reports included accounts of open defiance in Italy, strikes and strife in Austria and veiled threats from Yugoslavia.

The foreign ministers of Russia, the United States, Britain and France rested yesterday before tackling an American proposal for a plebiscite to settle the issue. Both Ernest Bevin, British foreign minister, and V. M. Molotov, Russian foreign minister, have opposed the plebiscite.

It was learned authoritatively that State Secretary James F. Byrnes of the United States and his top advisers had decided not to yield on the proposed Italian peace treaty and their insistence that Italy be allowed to retain Trieste.

M. Molotov was reported to have offered Saturday to meet Italian interests "halfway" on colonial and reparations questions if Trieste were given to Yugoslavia.

This proposal, regarded in some quarters as the first possibility of a break in the deadlock, was rejected. But an American source said the United States might be willing to trade with Russia on the Balkans in return for Russian concessions in Italy. Possible Balkan bargaining points involved differences over recognition of Bulgaria and the granting of a portion of Transylvania to Romania.

TRACTOR DRIVER MAY FACE SERIOUS CHARGE ON MAY 17

Tram - Truck Death Toll in Toronto Rises to Three

Toronto, May 6 (CP) — With three dead and 50 others hurt, police today continued investigation of the collision between a runaway tractor-trailer and a Bloor Street tramcar which resulted in the crowded trolley being set on fire at the mid-town intersection of Bloor and Bathurst Streets Friday evening.

Police said that Murray Boyce, driver of the tractor who on Saturday was remanded on bail of $5,000 on a charge of dangerous driving, might face a more serious charge. Boyce's statement that the brakes on the tractor had been checked last Monday and found working normally was confirmed by police. But the brakes on the 15-ton trailer apparently had not been checked and these failed when Boyce tried to apply them at the top of a steep grade leading to the intersection where the fatal collision occurred at the height of the evening rush-hour.

With the brakes not working on the heavy trailer, it and the tractor pulling it careened down the Bathurst Street hill out of control and was struck by the streetcar as the latter crossed the intersection. The tractor's gas tank exploded and within a few minutes the streetcar was in flames.

One Dead Saturday.

William Bartha, 64, and Harvey Matthews, 24, died in hospital Saturday morning from burns. Frances Weinstein, 28, died Saturday night. Of the 50 others injured, it was believed that only one, 58-year-old Mrs. Mary Hewitt, remained in critical condition. Her condition at Western Hospital early today was "only fair."

The transport driver is scheduled to appear in court again May 17. Whether the charge would be altered was up to a conference between Crown Attorney W. J. McFadden and Det. Sgts. Fred Storm and John Inshelwood who are directing the police inquiry.

Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson said there would be no inquest, because it is not permitted in cases where an arrest has been made.

POLICE, GUNMEN STAGE BATTLE IN MONTREAL

One Constable Wounded and Two Police Cars Riddled by Bullets in Chase

Montreal, May 6 (CP)—In an intensive manhunt touched off by two exchanges of gunfire Sunday afternoon, city and Provincial Police today sought two armed thugs who made their escape in the heart of Montreal following an island-wide chase west of the city.

When the smoke of battle had cleared, one city constable was slightly wounded and two police cars were riddled by bullets. In one instance, a Provincial Police constable fired at his own patrol car as the gunmen sped off with it.

One man, allegedly a companion of the escaped men, and two women friends were held as material witnesses.

The two wanted men, listed by police as Marcel Jean Brunet, 27, and Louis Arthur Levesque, 23, were described by detectives as "exceedingly dangerous." Deputy-Director Hilaire Beauregard of the Quebec Provincial Police had all available men on 24-hour duty in the manhunt.

The men first came to the attention of police shortly after noon Sunday when Constables Gilbert Grignon and Victor Carbeau of the Provincial Police checked a suspicious car that had broken down at St. Genevieve, northwest of the city.

Showed Satisfactory Papers

The occupants—three men and two women—showed satisfactory papers and were left alone.

Following a later report that two armed men had left the car and boarded a Montreal-bound bus, the same officers boarded the bus at Saraguay, six miles east of St. Genevieve.

The gunmen forced the constables to withdraw, and holding them at bay ran to the patrol car and sped away in a hail of bullets from the gun of Cst. Carbeau. When a description of the fleeing men had been broadcast, the officers returned to the car at St. Genevieve and took the three remaining persons into custody.

The fleeing thugs, meanwhile, swapped cars with a taxi driver, cut across Montreal Island by the Metropolitan highway and entered the city at the western limits.

FIVE ARE KILLED 15 WOUNDED IN ALCATRAZ SIEGE

Not a Single Prisoner Escaped and Three Survivors May Be Tried For Murder

San Francisco, May 6 (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation moved into Alcatraz today to collect evidence against three survivors of the half-dozen convicts whose vain break for freedom brought a bloody, 36-hour siege of their cell-block and left five men dead and 15 wounded.

Not a single prisoner escaped.

The three may yet die—in San Quentin's green-painted gas chamber.

"There is a good chance that evidence will be sufficient to indict the surviving participants of murder," asserted United States Attorney Daniel C. Deasy—and if it is, he said, the death penalty will be demanded.

Although there were only two guns in the entire group involved in the furious battle, he added, "where one or more participants (in a conspiracy to escape) actually killed someone, the others would be part of that conspiracy, and could be charged with murder."

The three surviving participants, said Warden James A. Johnston were Sam Shockley, 36, serving a life term for kidnapping and robbery in Oklahoma; Miran Edgar Thompson, 29, serving 99 years for kidnapping and life for killing a Texas policeman; and Clarence Carnes, 19, Oklahoma, serving 99 years for kidnapping and murder.

Guards broke into the last dark utility corridor of the embattled prison wing Saturday to find the bodies of three others.

Bernard Coy, 46, Louisville, Ky., bank robber who started the uprising by clambering up to a third-tier guards' gallery and forcing his way into it to slug and disarm guard Bert Burch, was defiant to the last. Death caught him with arms extended as though still gripping the rifle he had seized from the guard.

Also dead in the narrow, pipe-filled passageway were:

Joseph Paul Fretzer, 35, Los Angeles bank robber who had assumed command and carried on the fight furiously.

Marvin F. Hubbard, 36, Tennessee kidnapper, who had lived until Saturday morning — outlasting Coy and Cretzer by one night.

The rifle and pistol which Coy had wrested from Burch were found beside the convicts.

Battle of Rock Ends

There was no further resistance; the battle of the rock was ended.

Dead were two guards—one, Harold P. Stites, shot in a valiant early assault attempting to free hostages; the other, W. H. Miller, captured unarmed and killed when the blood-maddened felons turned their guns on their seven hostages. Miller had a key to the back door of the wing, but threw it into an empty cell and died without revealing it.

Canadian Army's Exercise Muskok Ends 4,000-Mile Journey at Edmonton

Edmonton, May 6 (CP) —Men and machines of the Canadian elaborate of all treks over the army's exercise Muskox, most fastnesses of Canada's Northwest Territories, end their 4,000-mile journey here today.

Since leaving Churchill, Man., last Feb. 15 the force, commanded by Lt. Col. P. D. Baird of Montreal, has travelled about 900 miles more than originally scheduled. The last 107 from Grande Prairie, Alta. were completed by train after the gravel and dust of the Alaska Highway threatened to damage permanently the 10 snowmobiles of the convoy.

The arrival, to be marked by the civic reception, will fulfil the better half of a prophecy made by Capt. E. V. Stewart of Riviere Du Loop, Que., intelligence officers with the force, the night before the take-off. He had said: "We'll either all arrive at Edmonton together or not at all."

Despite the extra mileage, the force is just one day later than planned and it might easily have made Edmonton on schedule if it had not been decided to make the last lap by train.

Army officers said the snowmobiles had functioned well in their natural element but were not equipped to withstand the gravelled highway. After 300 miles of it this became apparent.

"At the same time, it was seen that a longer run had no lessons to teach," spokesmen said. "Accordingly, it was decided to transport the whole force, personnel and snowmobiles from Grande Prairie by rail."

But Edmonton won't miss seeing the now-famed, tracked machines, some of which touched Denmark Bay, nearly 300 miles inside the Arctic Circle and northernmost point touched. They are in running condition and were driven through Grande Prairie Saturday.

Palestine Police Dismiss Throng At Jaffa Gate

Against Immigration Of 100,000 Jews Into Palestine

Jerusalem, May 6 — (CP)—A crowd of more than 800 shouting, veiled women who staged a demonstration in protest against the Anglo-American Commission's report on Palestine dispersed today after district officers and civic officials harangued them.

Police cleared the area in the immediate vicinity of the Jaffa Gate; where the women earlier tried to break through a cordon of police. The women also held a protest march through narrow bazaar lanes here.

Christian as well as Moslem Arab women were rallying to add their protest to the country-wide Arab condemnation of the Anglo-American Commission of Palestine, which recommended immigration as soon as possible of 100,000 Jews.

Some 800 Arab women, led by a Christian and a Moslem, paraded from the Mosque of Omar to the Jaffa Gate at noon.

Palestine police and military forces halted the procession at Jaffa Gate and prevented it from continuing outside the old city. Police erected a barbed wire barricade across the road and established an armed barrier.

The demonstrators carried banners proclaiming in Arabic "This decision is not democratic policy" and "Our grandfathers were born here and we are the voice of this land."

An Arab office spokesman said the Arabs of Palestine would stage another general strike Friday, and "this time we are supported by the Arab world."

Dispatches received by prominent Arabs said Arabs in Egypt and Iraq would join the protest strike.

Palestine Arab Catholics cabled protests against the report of the commission to King George, President Truman, the Pope, Generalissimo Stalin, French president Felix Gouin and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Baby Probably Slain Say Police

Hamilton, May 6 — (CP)—With disclosure that a baby found dead on the mountain side Thursday night was probably slain, police today quickened their investigations in an effort to find the child's mother.

Dr. C. J. McCabe, coroner, said the baby, a girl, weighed about 10 pounds and was normal in every respect. He added that the infant had probably lived anywhere from 10 days to two weeks and apparently had been well fed and cared for previous to death.

There were no marks of violence about the body but investigating authorities pointed out that the girl could easily have been smothered to death.

The infant was found on a ledge about 15 feet below the brow of Hamilton Mountain just east of Gage Avenue by Malcolm Hawkins, 11, and Murray Messenger, ten.

Kidnap-Slaying Three-Year-Old Child Probed

Minaki, Ont., May 6 (CP)—Police combed this Lake of the Woods resort community today for a clue which would take them to the slayer of blonde, three-year-old Joan Smith whose nude body was found by a search party early Sunday. Her skull had been crushed.

Until the findings of a post mortem were announced, there was no evidence the child, taken from her bed sometime within a two-hour period Saturday night, had been violated. But the flowered-pyjamas she had been wearing could not be found.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Smith, formerly of Winnipeg, had left Joan and an 18-months old brother in the care of a maid, Alda Leduc of Kenora, while they visited Holst Point near here. After the children had been put to bed, the maid went to her room. She heard no noise until Mr. and Mrs. Smith returned.

When they found Joan missing, a search party was organized hastily. One of its members, Ray Gustafson, found her body little more than 100 yards from the house. It was lying in a clump of bushes. No mud or dirt clung to her feet, indicating she had been carried from the house.

While immediate evidence was lacking to link the two, police recalled that a sex pervert still is being sought for the slaying in Winnipeg last Jan. 4 of Roy Ewan McGregor, 13, whose body was found in a Fort Rouge district coalyard. The boy had been shot twice.

The recalled, too, that three other 'teen-aged youths had been attacked in the district where the McGregor boy had been seen and the search for the slayer had extended to the Lake of the Woods district.

Wine Rationing Is Re-introduced

Toronto, May 6 — (CP)—William Griesinger, new Chief Liquor Commissioner for Ontario, today announced re-introduction of wine rationing on his first day in office. The ration, effective today, is two bottles of domestic wine each two weeks.

Mr. Griesinger said rationing was re-introduced because of the shortage of supply. He took over as Commissioner today from Hon. W. G. Webster.

The rationing move returns the wine sale situation to where it was before Jan. 1. At that time the coupon rationing system was abolished and purchasers were allowed two bottles a day. This amount was cut to one bottle in February.

MEETING CALLED TO APPOINT MEMBERS

Wellington and its consolidated school area taxpayers have been requested to attend a special meeting to be held in the village Wednesday night to appoint members of a Consolidated School Board. The former board resigned in a body in protest against the ratepayers failure by vote to approve a by-law to raise $50,000 for school purposes. One member resigned outright and the remainder consented to retain office until the end of May.

OPERATORS WARD OFF FROST THREAT

Greenhouse operators and owners of the district forewarned by previous night indications saved millions of tomato plants last Friday night from a heavy frost. On Saturday morning, in various parts of Prince Edward County ice the thickness of a pane of glass was apparent in watering troughs and buckets. Greenhouse men covered hothouses with canvas and tarps and warded off the frost threat.

MANY MOTORISTS ENJOY DRIVE THRU QUINTE DISTRICT

Although there was no attraction such as the miles of peach blossoms in the Niagara district to lure district residents into the open, motorists in Belleville and district were out in full force on Sunday, according to provincial police highway patrolmen.

For the most part, it was stated, motorists were out merely for a drive with the percentage of through traffic being negligible. Many of the motorists stopped along the highway to pick the wild plum blossoms which had been coaxed into bloom the day previous.

Despite the heavy highway traffic, no traffic accidents were reported in the immediate Belleville district, it was stated.

WALLET CONTAINING $80 IN CASH LOST

Last week Mrs. Arthur Galbraith, treasurer of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada Branch here, lost her wallet and its contents. Included were $80 in cash, the property of the Auxiliary, bank-book-chequebook and personal papers. The money was raised by members of the Auxiliary for its post-war activities of meeting British war brides and supplying them with comforts. Anyone finding the wallet is urged to return it to this office or to Arthur Galbraith, at the C.N.R. Ticket Office, Front Street.

48-HOUR WEEK WORKED AT BATA

Due to an error in composition, a help-wanted advertisement sponsored by the Bata Shoe Company which appeared in The Ontario Intelligencer on April 26 and 27 incorrectly read as indicating employees worked a 40-hour week in the above factory. The error has been pointed out by officials of the company, who stated that the advertisement should have indicated a 48-hour week was in effect at the plant.

TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS CHECKED BY POLICE

Apprehension of offenders who had gazed too much upon the wine when it was red and checking for traffic violators comprised for the most part activities at the local police station over the weekend. Several offenders were charged under the L.C.A. while a number of motorists were checked, either for driving through "stop" streets or for speeding on local streets.

One local truck driver reported his truck stolen from Front St., Saturday evening, but the vehicle was later discovered parked on Catherine St., near Sinclair. Local police on Sunday apprehended a woman passing through the city on a bus and at the request of Napanee police returned her to that centre.

Further Reductions In Taxes Forecast

Durham, England, May 6—(Reuters) — Further reductions in income tax for small wage earners through increases in personal allowances were forecast here Saturday night by Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in an address at a May Day demonstration of the Durham Miners Association. "I would like to see a state of affairs in which no income tax was paid by those who are living without any sufficient margin for a reasonable standard of existence," he said. "I would like to get a higher level of exemptions from income tax."

Uncompleted Minesweeper Breaks Line, Grounds

Owen Sound, May 6 (CP)—A Canadian minesweeper, built at Midland and never completed, was being towed down the lakes yesterday when the towline parted in rough seas and heavy wind and she went aground at Nine Mile Point, just north of Kincardine on the Lake Huron Shore. The only man aboard the minesweeper, Angus McLeod of Sydney, N.S., was taken off safely.

Clarence T. Stevenson, Senior Fruit Inspector for Eastern Ont., Honored on Retirement

Presented With Lounge Chair While Mrs. Stevenson Given Pressure Cooker

High-ranking officials of the Fruit and Vegetable and Marketing branches of the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, Ottawa, and Toronto; their staffs in the provincial field, and a number of personal friends, paid sterling tribute on Saturday night, to the loyalty and efficiency of 23 years of service with the government, of Mr. Clarence T. Stevenson, Wellington, senior fruit and vegetable inspector for Eastern Ontario, who is retiring from active duty on May 15.

In the fruits and vegetables branch offices here, upwards of forty governmental representatives, and other guests from Ottawa to Hamilton, forgot the dignity and decorum of officialdom and loudly cheered as Col. R. L. Wheeler, Assistant Director of Marketing Services, Ottawa, informally presented the retiring inspection staff chief of the district with a handsome lounge chair, and through him, a pressure cooker to Mrs. Stevenson.

The presentation followed a testimonial dinner to Mr. Stevenson held in the New Queen's Hotel shortly after seven o'clock.

Sorry to Lose "Steve"

"I must say that I am sorry to lose "Steve" as he is known, and the entire staff in Ottawa feels the same way," Col. Wheeler said in his brief presentation remarks. "We are going to miss him and I think he will miss us. I ask him to accept this small gift as a token of our high esteem and affection, and I ask him to accept this cooker for Mrs. Stevenson with all our best wishes for many happy years of retirement."

"Mr. Stevenson was chosen for this job 23 years ago, and since he has been in charge has done an exceptionally good job," was the tribute paid by R. E. Robinson, Chief, Fruit and Vegetable Inspection, Ottawa. "He brought to the post a tremendous fund of practical good common sense and a knowledge of the district and its people which has stood him and the department in good stead. I thank him for the steadfast way he has stood behind me and we of the Fruit Branch are indeed sorry to see him go. I thank him for the fine job he did, and the way he carried on."

Enjoyed All My Years.

Mr. Stevenson in an address of appreciation voiced his thanks and told his colleagues that "I have enjoyed all these years. I fully appreciate the co-operation and kindnesses you have shown me which have culminated in these splendid gifts. I can't fully explain it, but my experience has indeed been an education, and now I am sorry it is all over." He paid tribute to the loyalty of his own staff of inspectors stressing especially the efforts of Messrs. Morley Webster and John Weese, "who have done yeoman service in Eastern Ontario." Mr. Stevenson also thanked Inspectors Fred Vandewater, C. Rose, E. A. Walton and E. O. May for their efforts in the arrangement of the banquet and social function.

"I have an innate feeling of love and affection for an old friend, not merely admiration or passing fancy, but a deep-seated love for a man who has done well for his fellowman in the fruit branch of the department. He is one of God's own gentlemen," W. A. (Billy) Fraser, ex-M.P., Trenton, said in tribute to the retiring official.

"I have been associated with him for many years, and I did not think that Prince Edward County with its inbred clannishness (laughter) could produce such men as 'Steve' and George H. Carter, but it did."

Held in High Esteem.

"Steve has with him tonight," Mr. Fraser went on," people who know something of the fruit industry. The high esteem in which he is held by his colleagues and the government is evidenced in the presence of high-ranking Ottawa officials who are here in admiration of and to pay tribute to a man who has given his all for the Eastern Ontario fruit industry. Like myself, officially, they are losing a friend, one who understands them and what they have done. Steve is just another of the splendid type of conscientious men who are connected with the department at Ottawa."

Mr. Fraser evoked loud laughter from the gathering as in humorous vein, he poked mild fun at various officials, and related some of his experiences as an apple-grower.

Mr. John Weese, ex-M.P. said in his experience he had found Mr. Stevenson to be four-square. He had a difficult task, but he had used intelligence and tolerance. "Steve," he said, "has measured up to the education and diplomacy required in his job, and his integrity has earned for him the respect and esteem of the entire community. May he be spared many years to enjoy a well-earned retirement."

Senior Fruit Inspector Clem. E. Jackson, formerly of Ottawa, who succeeds Mr. Stevenson here acted as chairman for the function and introduced the various speakers. Mr. Stevenson, who has been given six months retirement leave-of-absence will reside at his farm near Wellington at the expiration of that time, to, as he put it, "do the chores."

Those in Attendance

Among those in attendance besides Col. Wheeler and Mr. Robinson were, E. G. Paige, Asst. Chief, Fruit and Vegetable, Inspection F. J. Perry, Asst. Chief, Fruit and Vegetable, (Canning); Karl B. Konger, Chief, Marketing and Merchandising; W. T. Stanley, Dept. Munitions and Supply, all of Ottawa; H. H. Ponton, District Fruit Inspector, Hamilton; E. A. Children Admit Firing Haystack

Two mischievous four-year-old boys who had a hankering either to see the fire reels in operation or to see black smoke rolling were responsible Saturday afternoon for a hay stack blaze on Parker Street which caused firemen three runs before the fire was totally extinguished.

Turned in as a fire alarm shortly after four o'clock firemen answered the call with both city pumper and ladder wagons and despite the fact that hay stack was considered thoroughly drenched with water, they were again called back shortly before eight and again at one o'clock. After questioning, the two young boys in the neighborhood were reported to have admitted to Fire Chief William Lynch that they had ignited the haystack.

Three other alarms were answered by the department over the weekend, the first on Saturday morning to Brock Street for a grass fire and the other two for chimney fires at 61 S. John St., Saturday evening, and to Cannifton Road on Sunday.

Work Among Blind Reviewed At Annual Meeting

Local collegiate teacher, Mr. A. D. Archibald was named chairman of the Hastings county branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind when the advisory board of that organization met in its annual meeting at Lattimer's on Friday evening.

Vice chairmen named included Mr. Harry Rollins, Belleville; Mrs. A. T. Fleming, Trenton and Mrs. Fred Houchin, Stirling. Secretary Treasurer is Mr. George Wishart of this city, while Campaign Treasurer is C. L. Jewell, Belleville.

Work of the institute among the blind in Hastings county was reviewed for the past year, it being shown that total expenditures in the county had totalled $3,873, of which $2,181 had been spent by the local board, and the balance by head office. Six blind persons had received instruction in Braille, typing, leather work, knitting, basketry and chair caning.

Field Secretary Mr. Timmins told some of the details of his work for the blind in Hastings, stating that two men from this county had been blinded during World War 2. Total registration of blind persons in Hastings county at the end of the fiscal year was 118 as compared with 105 the previous year. Field supervisor from Toronto, Mr. Lawley, addressed the meeting on the progress of education for the blind, presenting a vivid picture of the improvement of conditions throughout Canada as result of the activities of the Institute.

The expenditure of $16.50 for wood for J. Matthews and $22.90 for a radio for Miss Fleming was approved by the Board which also authorized the contribution of $50 toward burial expenses for Mr. Albert Bexeau of Deseronto.

Lancelot Coulter Lakefield, Killed; Falls Under Train

Trenton, Ont. — (Special) — Lancelot Coulter, 18, of Lakefield, Ont., was instantly killed near the Canadian Pacific Railway Station here on Sunday afternoon, following an unsuccessful attempt to board a fast-moving C.P.R. freight train.

Coulter, standing alongside the track leaped for a box-car, missed his hold and fell beneath the wheels of the speeding train. He was decapitated.

Coulter was accompanied by 2 friends, Bernard Piche, 9 Race Street, Hawkesbury, and Ronald Walker, Emola Road, Lakefield. The trio, according to a story told to Trenton police by Piche and Walker, had decided to get a ride to Toronto via a railway train, and had gone to the C.P.R. tracks near the north station.

As the speeding freight train came into sight, Piche and Walker decided it was travelling too fast to attempt to mount it. "Let's go down town and take a bus," Piche suggested.

Coulter demurred. "We can make it" he laughed. And as the train sped past, he leaped for a ladder on a car. He missed and his body rolled beneath the wheels.

Dr. E. A. McQuade was called to the scene and after investigation ordered the removal of the body to the undertaking parlors. Piche and Walker were held by police for questioning following the fatality.

MARMORA

Covered Rink A Possibility For Marmora

Marmora — A public meeting was held in the town hall on Thursday evening to consider the possibility of proceeding with a covered rink project for Marmora. The meeting was in the wake of a special meeting held on April 10 when Marmora Kinsmen conferred with representatives of the Municipal Councils of Marmora Village, Marmora Township and Deloro and also of the Marmora Athletic Association.

President C. R. Whittemore of the Kinsmen acted as chairman pro tem for Thursday night's meeting and Wesley Hamilton discharged the secretarial duties.

After representatives of various men's and women's associations of the village with the local clergy had expressed favor with the project, the Marmora District Rink Committee was formed to comprise the following:

Chairman — C. R. Whittemore
Vice chairman — F. R. Wells
Secretary — V. Lynch
Treasurer — W. Goodchild
Executive—W. A. Shannon, I. McCoy, Ross Barnes, W. Brown and John Wellman.

Proceed with Canvass

This committee is empowered to proceed with a canvass and also to implement the suggestions put forward at this meeting for the welfare of the project. A surprising wave of enthusiasm pervaded the meeting and despite handicaps which will have to be faced, the strong executive formed with the assistance of many hockey fans throughout the district it is expected to make good progress. It is felt after the fine showing of the Marmora hockey teams in the past season, that Marmora should have a good serviceable rink for its home games. It was also hinted at the meeting that the Rawdon League when reorganizing would find it a distinct asset to play its games also in the same arena.

Living Cost Index Higher in April Than War's Peak

Ottawa, May 6. (CP)—The cost-of-living index in Canada at April 1 was higher than at any time during the war, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The bureau said its official cost-of-living index, on the basis 1935-1939 equals 100, advanced from 120.1 at March 1 to 120.8 at April 1. The index slightly exceeded the wartime high level of 120.5 recorded in August, 1945.

Fluctuations in the index have not been reflected in wage rates since cost-of-living bonuses were merged with basic wage rates under the Federal Government's wage control order.

The bureau said the principal part of the increase came from the food group which rose from 133.1 to 135.1. Price increases for butter, pork products and vegetables were mainly responsible.

IN MEMORIAM

DOXTATOR — In loving memory of Roy Franklin Doxtator, who left us suddenly, May 6, 1942.

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears of sorrow often flow
For memory keeps him near us,
Though he died four years ago.

—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Helen, Perc and Franklin Ray.

DOXTATOR — In loving memory of our dear son, Roy, who passed away four years ago today.

No one heard the footsteps of the Angel drawing near,
Who took from earth to heaven
One we loved so dear.
The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said come,
And with farewells unspoken
He safely entered home.

—Sadly missed by Mother and Dad.

McCANN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Robert Percy McCann, who passed away on May 6th., 1945.

Time speeds on, one year has passed
Since death its gloom its shadows cast
Within our home where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will,
His vacant place there's none to fill.
Down here we mourn but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.

—Lovingly remembered by his wife, sons and daughters, also grandchildren.

Network Presents "Julius Caesar" In Weekly Series

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The radio serial, a form of entertainment hitherto limited for the most part to the troubles of Big Sister and Ma Perkins and the virtues of popular soap brands is entering a new field.

By tuning in same time, same station any Thursday night listeners across Canada can follow the adventures of one Julius Caesar, specially prepared by a big-name script writer name of William Shakespeare.

Shakespeare would have no trouble recognizing his script which has not been cut or specially adapted for radio presentation. The actors, however, deliver their lines in everyday Canadian, free from the traditional accent that often tends to make Shakespeare strange to Canadian listeners. Background music by Lucio Agostini is extremely effective and also a far cry from Shakespearean tradition.

Serialized Shakespeare is old stuff to high school students in Ontario and Quebec who heard "Caesar" in one-act instalments last winter. The production went over so well it was decided to repeat the series on a national network for adult listeners.

Full-length serialized drama was undertaken at the request of the students who preferred the instalment plan to abbreviated versions of the plays previously presented. Shakespeare's "Macbeth" and "Hamlet", Dostoievsky's "Crime and Punishment" and Dickens' "David Copperfield" were other serials presented for the high schools last winter.

Canada's youngest radio station manager as of next July 1 will be 22-year-old George Elliott who will be in charge of operations of CKDO, a new 100-watt station at Oshawa, Ont. George, already experienced in newspaper and industrial movie work, will head an all-Oshawa staff.

Scottish-Canadians in the Antigonish, N.S., who number 35,000, heard the call of the homeland recently when station CJFX carried a series of half-hour programs of Gaelic songs by outstanding Scottish artists, specially transcribed for the station by the BBC Scottish Division in Glasgow.

When a blizzard blocked roads into Dawsonville, N.B., preventing Rev. C. M. Hatheway from arriving for a funeral service, he made arrangements with station CKNB at Campbellton, 20 miles away, to have the complete service broadcast. Friends and relatives were told by telephone and gathered to hear the service over the radio at the home of the bereaved.

The BBC television service, closed since September, 1939, will re-open June 7 and plans to televise the Victory Parade and celebrations in London, June 8th. Television microphones and cameras will be located at points of vantage along the parade route and outside Buckingham Palace.

Wireless Cruisers For Scotland Yard

London, May 6 (CP) — Linking of police forces throughout the country by an improved radio system is part of Scotland Yard's new war on criminals.

Car bandits of the future will have a tough time as police radio cars, co-operating with county wireless stations, will converge on them from all directions.

Aim of the new plan is to bind county forces together in a radio-connected unit, each linked with other units. In addition to the many existing police wireless stations, new radio centres will be installed at strategic points.

Police cars in the country are gradually being converted to two-way radio telephony and this with the link-up plan will lead to greater mobility.

Skiing Hazardous On Mount Ruapehu

Auckland, N.Z., May 6 (CP) — Skiers in New Zealand are hopeful of a better season's sport than last winter. Some of the best ski runs in the southern hemisphere are on the slopes of the 9,000-foot Mount Ruapehu, in the centre of the North Island. Although thermal activity was evident, this mountain was looked on as a dormant volcano, as there has been no large scale eruption within living memory.

Last year, however it burst into violent activity. Boulders as large as houses were hurled thousands of feet into the air and huge quantities of ash covered the snow all over the mountain, making skiing impossible.

A lake which had filled the old crater disappeared and was replaced by a mass of red hot lava. Those who did visit the mountain had some unexpected thrills.

One climber was struck by a red hot fragment from the crater and had to be brought down by a rescue party. Activity in the volcano now has greatly decreased and observers who have been studying it predict that the mountain will be safe for skiing this season. The crater still emits steam, water and mud geyser shots, but they rise only 100 feet or so.

Strike Curtails Street Lighting

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Wartime "brownout" regulations today were ordered back in effect in Washington, as government conciliators sought to keep the stymied soft coal negotiations in session throughout the weekend, with no Sunday recess.

In a fuel conservation move, the district of Columbia commissioners issued instructions for immediate curtailment of street lighting and display lighting in commercial establishments. The order is expected to bring a cut of one-third in the capital's electric power consumption.

FLURRY OF EXCITEMENT

Ottawa, May 4 — (CP) — A shout of "fire" and smoke seeping through the walls of the Rideau Theatre here last night caused a flurry of excitement in the audience. A possible panic was averted when manager Angelo Stevens jumped to the stage to assure patrons the fire was not in the theatre, but in a nearby house. An unoccupied third floor of the building was gutted.

Legislators Get Weekly Pensions

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sydney, Australia, May 6 (CP) —Members of the New South Wales Legislative Assembly who have served more than 15 years in the state parliament will get a pension of about $22 a week under a plan just approved. Members with less than 15 years' service but who have served in three different legislatures will receive $18 weekly under the plan drawn up to provide for members who retire or suffer election defeats.

To enjoy the pension benefit members will have to pay $5.40 a week into a special fund.

Labor party members of the State House for several years have contributed about $7 each every month to what they call a "Waratah Fund" divided after elections among those who failed to be re-elected.

On one occasion, a member by the name of Tom Keegan, only Labor member not returned to his seat in state elections, pocketed the complete fund of something like $2,000. When the Labor party has had bad election times, defeated members have drawn as little as $35 apiece from the fund.

"Waratah" is the name of a native Australian flower which thrives in New South Wales.

One Year After

This week sees the first anniversary of the close of the war in Europe with the collapse of Nazism. Swiftly one year has passed and the anniversary finds that events have moved on and changes have come. In that year the world heard the first of the atomic bomb and ever since then the momentous character of the news has dominated the mind and soul of man. Not a day passes but there is reference to this mighty primordial power which man of the twentieth century has discovered and harnessed. What man now seeks is the guarantee and assurance that there may be such control that it will never be used in a war. Humanity has learned of the titanic power for destruction such a weapon holds.

In that year Japan fell about three months after the end of military Germany.

Trials of enemy leaders and enemy persons accused of crimes of horror have taken place and are still taking place. Persons guilty of the most awful atrocities in Europe and in the Far East have been sent to their reward after due trial. The trial of the Nazi leaders still proceeds, this tribunal dealing with one of the great fundamental questions of responsibility in the making of war.

Peace has found a great number of problems waiting solution. It has revealed the crying need of humanity in lands afar for food, the lack of which threatens dire famine and starvation, and the world of the producing nations and others have turned their hands to the task to save the millions who otherwise might die. The world before this great responsibility of being its "brother's keeper" can act only one way—organize to save the threatened millions.

A year after the close of the war in Europe finds peace treaties not yet signed. Foreign Ministers of the Big Four have been busy in Paris weighing the problems and finding them to contain many crucial questions. That is not to be wondered at since practically the whole world with its infinite number of problems was at war and these issues are related to the question of the entire settlement. Leaders of the nations expected many problems of supreme importance to develop. The thoughts of men are profoundly centred on the peace and its permanence.

Peace has brought most of the Canadian servicemen and service women home from their fields of effort in many parts of the earth. They have taken their place again in the economic and social life of Canada. Their presence is felt as a stimulating influence which is marked by sanity and good judgment. The debt this nation owes to them will be more and more felt as the years pass for it is not only the service they rendered during the war that counts but also the contribution they will make to the life of the Dominion that means so much to this country's future and to the Empire and the United Nations.

One year ago mankind gave way to joy in welcoming peace with an outpouring of emotions as only the end of the war can bring. The world of peacetime is getting back into its stride slowly because the disruption was so great, and the things of peace are more and more coming to notice. Yet so great was the struggle that the thoughts of men and women the past year have been largely colored by the great issues and the high hopes of man for security and peace.

Home From the Sea

Captain Bob Bartlett who made a name for himself in exploration is dead. He was known to large numbers of people through his addresses and his radio appearances.

He was typical of that class of men who make the sea famous and whose deeds arouse the enthusiasm of youth and other ages. He was born in Newfoundland and early shipped to sea on a schooner for the tropics. At the age of twenty-eight years he came to command one of the ships in the Peary North Pole expedition but did not himself reach the pole.

His life reads like a romance of the sea and the rugged captain had found the element in which he took delight more than in anything else.

The sea has an irresistible appeal for everyone, those who can find the means in some way to go to sea and those whose experience of the ocean must be limited to that which they read in fiction or biography or in the lives of such men as Captain Bartlett. This appeal will never fade. It puts one in mind of the men of the cast of Sir Francis Drake and the great explorers of the sixteenth century and other eras.

To those who explore the seaways the world owes a debt. Those who go down to the sea in ships find something new for the world. Columbus found a new world and the great line of seamen of the next two hundred years makes a story of which the world is proud and for which it is ever grateful. It added a new world.

Captain "Bob" was one of those who make life in the twentieth century interesting for others. He enjoyed the sea to the fullest measure and his stories thrilled.

In the Second Great War many thousands of young Canadians went to sea and had an experience by which they have learned much and in which they served nobly. What they learned they would not give up for anything else in the world. In the Royal Navy and in the Merchant Marine they gave service which will be of untold influence upon the Dominion of Canada and its future. They found that the seas are the great links of the continents, the great ways of commerce. Britain has seen the importance of the ocean ways for centuries as an exploring and civilizing medium and for this the world owes her a great deal of gratitude.

Captain Baltlett in death goes back to his old home in Newfoundland, fitting rest for the great explorer and navigator. In his passing one thinks of the lines of Stevenson:

Under the wide and starry sky
Dig the grave and let me lie,
Glad did I live and gladly die,
And I laid me down with a will.

This be the verse you grave for me
"Home is the sailor home from the sea,
And the hunter home from the hill."

Captain Bob Bartlett will rest in his native soil where the eternal waves of the ocean beat and sing his requiem.

It Took Tons

"The railroads reveal that they carried during the war a total of 1,300,000 carloads containing 62,000,000 tons of explosives of which 50,000,000 were military. No one was killed by explosion on a railroad.

"Not all of that deadly tonnage was fired in battle. On the other hand, we assume that the combined production of other nations was at least equal to our output.

"Dividing 100,000,000 tons by 8,000,000 (the approximate number of men killed in all theatres of war) we get an average of 12½ tons of explosives per man killed in combat.

"We have come a long way from the old saying of Washington's soldiers: 'It takes a man's weight in lead to kill him,.'

SMALL BOY DELIGHT

Once there was a little boy, on cookie-baking day,
Who loitered near the kitchen instead of being at play.
Some people thought he'd vanished, after twenty years or so,
And left behind a grown-up, but that youngster wouldn't grow.
Still on cookie-baking mornings, though his hair is turning gray,
He goes tip-toe to the kitchen in the old-time boyish way.

There's a lure to cookie baking and I'm certain it's the smell.
It's that fragrance most enticing and it gets me, truth to tell.
There's no other scent just like it. When I catch it on the air
My mouth begins to water, and enraptured, then and there,
I drop all other business and go hastening to the spot
Where I know they're baking cookies, for I want 'em while they're hot!

As that old-time little fellow, I stand reaching on the sly—
Hoping cook won't sense my presence, and my pilfering hand won't spy
As I snatch them from the paper, where to cool she's laid them out.
But, "You know you'll spoil your dinner!" comes the long, familiar shout.
Yes, there's gray about his temples; of his lifetime it is fall;
But that cookie-loving youngster hasn't grown up after all.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By the Ottawa Staff of the Canadian Press)

Ottawa, May 6 (CP) — Canadian scientists are expected to play an important part in commonwealth conferences to be held in London in June and July.

The great contributions made by Canadian scientists during the war and the plans for research in the future make the deliberations this summer highly important from a Canadian point of view.

The first conference has been called by the Royal Society and will be attended by scientists in the Dominion service and a number from Canadian universities. They will exchange views with scientists from other parts of the commonwealth. The attendance will not be confined to Fellows of the Royal Society.

The second conference will be confined to scientists employed by the various commonwealth governments and a third will be devoted entirely to improving scientific methods for agriculture which will be of particular importance to Canada.

When the International Labor Organization holds its annual convention in Montreal in September and October, its future still will be considerably in doubt according to officials here who have followed the situation. The I.L.O. was divorced from the League of Nations before that organization was wound up and it is likely the United Nations will not have decided to add it to their group of organizations by the time the convention is held.

Alaska Highway: The Canadian Alaska highway force have not only adopted United States system of hiring civilians to perform non-military duties but until such time as the post-war active force is on a more permanent and settled basis, Canada may use civilian employees in jobs that were formerly done only by servicemen.

Would Cut Tax For Mothers With Jobs

New York, May 6 (CP) — Working mothers deserve a break believes Morris Ernst, lawyer, writer and veteran champion of the under dog.

"A career woman who must hire a housekeeper to take care of her children while she works should be allowed an additional income tax exemption for this expense," says Mr. Ernst, whose tenth book, "The First Freedom" has just been published.

The problem first came to his attention, he explains, when a young woman lawyer was hired by his firm at the usual starting salary of $50 a week. Since she was married and had a small daughter, she had to hire a house keeper at a salary of $30 a week. This left $20 of her salary free. Out of this she had to pay for lunches and carfare, averaging about $5 a week, and in addition $6.80 per week was withheld for income tax. After paying the necessary expenses she had left a grand total of $8.20 a week.

After a few months the young woman brought the figures to the boss, and explained that she was resigning, because she couldn't afford to work.

"Here was a brilliant, well-qualified young woman lawyer," said Mr. Ernst. "She could make a real contribution to her profession, could expect to achieve real success in her work. But the price she had to pay for the privilege of working was too high. She couldn't afford it."

Would Interest Congress.

Mr. Ernst is trying to interest women's organizations in putting the problem before Congress. He is urging legislation to allow a special exemption for working mothers, recognizing the wages of a housekeeper or nursemaid as a necessary business expense. Says he:

"The government wouldn't lose any money. The working women thus aided would increase the national income so that the total revenue to the government would be greater. It's a free country, and I believe qualified women should not be required to pay a premium for the privilege of following their chosen careers.

"I don't follow the old theory that every woman's place is in the home. There are some women who are better qualified for business, who can make a real contribution to society outside the home. These women should be able to hire qualified persons to run their homes and take care of their children during the working day, with a proper provision in their income tax recognizing this expense.

"The working mother has enough problems already. The government should not add another in refusing her a fair tax exemption. I believe in encouraging individual enterprise, whether it be in the case of a man or a woman. One of the most important freedoms in our national economy is—freedom to work.

IODINE AND ADENOID TISSUE

Doctors fifty to a hundred years ago generally regarded iodine and iodides as "alteratives" and prescribed them pretty freely in cases of "scrofula" and enlarged lymphnodes ("kernels" on the sides of the neck. What they called scrofula is called tuberculosis lymphadenitis today—that is, inflammation, enlargement, swelling, sometimes softening or suppuration of lymph nodes on the side of the neck, due to tuberculosis.

It is still anybody's guess what an "alterative" is. The old timers imagined certain medicines changed the morbid condition for the better and they conceived the term "alterative" to describe such medicines or their effect.

But nowadays we are less credulous. No real doctor today imagines that sasaparilla, for example, has any medicinal value as an alterative or in any other way. Indeed, few laymen now believe sasaparilla is anything more than a flavor.

The medical schools still taught that iron iodide was good medicine for youngsters with "kernels" in the neck, enlarged tonsils, adenoids and undue susceptibility to respiratory infections ("colds" to you, stupid), when I was a young doctor. A great many kids with such conditions had to take syrup of iron iodide—a nasty dose to take, and now, happily, it is seldom prescribed.

Every child with enlarged tonsils and/or adenoids should receive a suitable iodine ration, but I doubt that iodine or iodide in medicinal doses is of any value in the treatment of either enlarged tonsils and/or adenoids or "kernels" or enlarged, inflamed or suppurating lymph nodes in the neck.

The reader should not confuse swelling or enlargement of lymph nodes, commonly called "glands" in the sides of the neck or under the edge of the jawbone with goitre, swelling of the thyroid gland in the middle of the neck just above the breastbone.

Please understand, it is just my opinion that iodine or iodides have no value in the treatment of these tonsil, adenoid and lymph-node conditions. Better doctors than I may not share this opinion. So, if the patient were my child and the doctor prescribed or used iodine or iodide in treatment of tonsils, adenoids or "kernels" in the neck, I'd keep my trap closed, for at any rate I don't believe there is any possible harm in trying it.

On the other hand, iodine or iodide is the best known remedy for "large neck," goitre—I can't advise what kind, how much or when to use it—that, of course, is a question which calls for the judgment of the doctor who knows the patient's condition.

Nothing I have said here applies to the application of iodine directly to tonsils or adenoids "vegetations" as an antiseptic or disinfectant.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Mother is Almost Right

Discussing methods of obtaining vitamins, minerals and the comparative value of foods and medicines mother said a person deficient in iron can get enough iron by putting several nails in a glass of water and then drinking the water after it has become rusty. (M.J.)

Answer—I don't know—mother may be right. If the water tastes metallic no doubt some iron oxide or hydrate (rust) is dissolved in it. That would be plenty of iron — the body requires less than one-fourth of a grain or iron a day — as much as you get in, say, a dish of stewed prunes, one-half head of lettuce, yolks or two eggs, or a serving of beef. Makes no difference whether the iron is mineral or vegetable or animal, organic or inorganic.

American, Not English

We have lived in Mexico for fifteen years. We were practically raised, back in Minnesota, or your teachings. We are able to see your column only occasionally now—but we were made curious by the allusion to English Stomach. (K.L.G.)

Answer—You probably mean Yankee Stomach. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (clippings not accepted) for the pamphlet "Yankee Stomach." Yankee means North American—and as far as the stomach trouble is concerned it means Mexico too. Plenty of stomach acidity from that highly seasoned food in Mexico.

Who invented glass?

When, where and by whom glass was first made is not known.

Legend says that the Phoenicians accidentally discovered glass when they placed cooking pots on blocks of sub-carbonate of soda and found glass produced by the union of alkali and the sand on the seashore.

Although the substance thus produced was not true glass, some such experience may have prompted the earliest experiments that resulted in early man's conversion of sand, soda, potash and lime into the amazing substance known as glass.

A piece of glass in the British Museum is supposed to have been made at least 5,000 years ago.

Archeologists have found glass beads in Egyptian graves believed to date back to 4,000 B.C.

Glass-making reached a high degree of perfection in the early days of the Roman Empire.

Apparently glass first began to be used in windows about the beginning of the Christian era.

Nero paid the equivalent of three million dollars for a vessel of rare glass.

Pliny says that in his day glass was made from a fine sand found in Syria and Palestine.

Window glass was found in the ruins of Pompeii.

Glass windows may have been introduced into England by the Romans. Such windows were rare until about the eighth century and not common until the 14th or 15th centuries.

Several glass-makers migrated to Virginia in 1608 and established a crude glass furnace near Jamestown. This first American glass works, however, was completely destroyed by the Indians in the massacre of 1622. A few years later another glass factory was established near Jamestown and began to make glass for windows, bottles, and beads for the Indian trade. The American Indians, of course, had never learned how to make glass.

Yanks May Lose Potential Prexy

Sydney, Australia, May 6 (CP) —Because he thinks that his unborn son may be a future president of the United States, an American naval storekeeper in Baltimore is trying to get his Sydney-born wife on to American soil before the baby is born in June.

Under the American constitution only natural-born citizens are eligible for the presidency. The father who has such high hopes for his son is Theo Worth Clem. Mrs. Clem who lives here doesn't expect to get her passage before September. Clem told the representative of a Sydney paper that he was confident the baby would be a boy.

"The question is important because thousands of other war brides and fathers with progeny pending are in the same position though they may not realise it," he said. "Unless something is done fast the U.S. will lose out on some fine raw material for the White House."

Clem is just doing the rounds of authorities he thinks may be able to help him.

RANCHERS FANCY GOLDEN PALOMINO

Unusually - Colored Horse Noted for Intelligence, Even Temper

Edmonton, May 6 (CP) — The Palomino, golden horse of the golden west, has captured the fancy of ranchers of the foothills province of Alberta — but — in the cold book of rules—he has a strike against him.

The Palomino, which boasts a golden coat and silver mane, was originally a thoroughbred. The type was crossed with the cream-colored "buckskin mare" of the Indians, the progeny having a distinctive golden tinge.

Alberta has possibly a dozen of the Palomino stallions, agricultural authorities say, but, not being purebred, they are not recognized as breeding stock eligible for registration under the federal stallion enrolment act.

The reason is that whatever the attractions of the type, they do not breed true to color. For example, a gangly-legged colt sired by a chestnut stallion bred to a Palomino mare probably would not be a pure color and hence would be ineligible for enrolment among the equine 400 as a purebred and hence recognized as of standard breeding stock.

The states of Colorado and Texas have Palomino stock books of their own, but even these states, which contain horse fanciers aplenty, do not recognize the other's breed.

These considerations matter little, however, to those Alberta horsemen who have turned to raising Palominos. Regardless of lineage, they say, the Palomino is a beautiful and intelligent animal of even temper, capable of turning with equanimity from the show ring to the bridle path or the work of roping calves.

Enthusiasts, regardless of federal government regulations, say they have developed bridle path, cowhorse and rancher types which can hold their heads up with the haughty thoroughbred.

One of the keenest raisers of Palominos in Alberta is Jerry Puckett, who on his Chinook ranch near Calgary has what he considers an outstanding sire in Bright Star, imported from Sterling City, Tex., and bred to thoroughbred mares.

'Bright Star's offspring bear such names as Chinook Golden Girl and Starlight, and Mr. Puckett says they have many attributes—the heart and equable temperament of their sire coupled with the speed and stamina of their thoroughbred dams.

Tojo, 26 Others Ordered to Trial Despite Protests

By DUANE HENNESSY

Tokyo, May 6 (AP)—Hideki Tojo and 26 other war-time leaders of Japan today entered staccato pleas of innocent to charges that they unleashed a war of aggression and murder in the Pacific and were ordered to trial June 3 despite their counsels' protest that the interval is too short.

The Far East tribunal, before which the 27 appeared for their first formal hearing, will convene again next Monday to permit the defence to renew its emphatic challenge that the court has no jurisdiction in the pending cases.

Tojo's attorney, Ichiro Kiyose, lost no time today in attacking the tribunal. He charged that the court's president, Sir William Webb of Australia, has been so biased by his investigation of Japanese atrocities in New Guinea that he cannot judge fairly.

The motion was promptly denied after a 10-minute recess conference. With Webb absent from the discussion, eight of the court's other 10 justices ruled that no objection to any member can be sustained because the court's charter provides that members shall be of MacArthur's choosing.

Kiyose had said he intended to object to each of the justices but the ruling prevented him from pursuing the point.

The only defendant not entering a plea of innocent was Dr. Shumei Okawa, absent from the courtroom undergoing a sanity examination by Allied psychiatrists as a result of his slapping Tojo's bald head in the court last week. Okawa, former director of the East Asia Economics Research Institute of Manchuria, is accused of instigating the Mukden incident that set off Japanese aggression.

Why the collection of INCOME TAXES from co-operatives, crown companies, government and municipally owned enterprises would put MONEY IN YOUR POCKET

If all businesses in this country paid Income Tax on an equal basis, it would mean a good many extra dollars in the pocket of every Canadian. The sharing of the Income Tax burden by co-operatives and businesses operated by governments and municipalities, would either bring about a big cut in the personal Income Taxes which you pay or a reduction in the price of goods and services you buy from these Income Tax exempt concerns.

You would profit either way

If Income Tax were levied on the profits of co-operatives, crown companies and corporations operated by governments and municipalities, these Income Tax free organizations could follow either one of two courses:

1. They could reduce the price of their goods and services to the point where they would have no profits. They would therefore have no profits on which to pay Income Tax. The public would benefit by paying less for the goods and services which it bought.
2. They could decide to maintain their prices and to pay Income Tax on their profits. If Income Tax were thus collected on the profits of all such tax-exempt organizations, the total would amount to as much as 125 millions of dollars annually.* The government could then, without decreasing its revenues, reduce the Income Tax by an average of $50.00 annually on every Canadian Income Tax payer.

It is thus quite apparent that the collection of Income Taxes from co-operatives, and corporations owned by governments and municipalities, would mean extra dollars in the pockets of Canadians, no matter what course such presently tax-free organizations might take.

Revision of The Income War Tax Act, insofar as it concerns co-operatives, will come before the current session of Parliament. It is of the utmost importance that such revisions shall bring tax equality to all groups. We urge that the income tax payers of Canada insist that their elected representatives in the House of Commons see that the heavy burden of Income Tax is shared by co-operatives and other presently tax-exempt businesses.

The Income Tax Payers Association has no objection to the principles of co-operative trading. It should be the right of every Canadian to trade as he desires. Our objective is to ensure that no section of business unloads its share of income taxation and cost of the war on other businesses or on individual income tax payers.

Kingston Presbyterial of W.M.S. Observes 60th Anniversary

Wednesday was a full day for the members of the Kingston Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society as they celebrated their 60th anniversary in St. Andrew's Church, Kingston. Delegates from all over the district, representing all the various auxiliaries, were in attendance at the day-long sessions. The meetings commenced at 10.30 in the morning and continued on to five o'clock with an hour break for a complimentary luncheon at noon. Mrs. William Shaw, Ivanhoe, presided.

Afternoon Session

Highlights of the afternoon sessions were a service of remembrance and an address by Rev. C. L. Wood, of the Bhil Mission in India. The former, under the direction of Mrs. Percy Ranson, Toronto, who read the dedications, was a tribute to each past president, and the present one, Mrs. Shaw.

For each year a president served the Presbyterial a candle was lit by a relative, a friend, or in one or two cases by the past president herself. The presidents of the Presbyterial and the years they presided since the organization's beginning 60 years ago were as follows: Mrs. Dickson, Kingston, 1886; Mrs. D. Following the Diamond Jubilee thankoffering, Rev. Mr. Wood delivered his address in which he outlined the work being done with the Bhil people in India.

An historical review of the various auxiliaries was given the many women present by Mrs. F. P. Smith of Kingston, in which she traced them from their origin to the present day.

Following this Mrs. Ranson was presented with an honorary life membership by Mrs. D. L. Fleming of Belleville.

A final hymn and benediction marked the concluding moments of the anniversary meeting.

Mrs. William Shaw, president of the society's Presbytery, was toastmistress at the complimentary luncheon served the delegates by the Women's Home Association of St. Andrew's.

Toast to "The Church", proposed by Rev. E. Larsen, of Madoc, was responded to by Rev. J. Forbes Wedderburn, minister of St. Andrew's. Dr. Wedderburn paid tribute to the work of the W.M.S. over the past 60 years, and urged a renewal of the pioneer spirit in all branches of the church in order to meet the growing part which will be demanded of Christian organizations in shaping the future of the world.

The W.M.S. was described as the greatest women's organization in the world, by Mrs. N. M. Hall, in proposing a toast to "The Society". The need of greater spiritual power and greater ability to give increasing weight to the work of the organization was stressed by Mrs. Percy Ranson, Toronto, in her reply.

Miss M. Cameron, Newburgh, paid tribute to the work of foreign missionaries in proposing a toast to Home and Foreign Missions. Rev. C. L. Wood, missionary to India, replied. Mr Wood told of the encouraging work of Christian natives of India in spreading the gospel to their fellow countrymen.

The vote of thanks to the women of St. Andrew's Home Association was voiced by Mrs. M. Cameron, Kingston. The luncheon was served under the convenership of Mrs. J. C. Hyssop, and tea was poured by Mrs. H. W. Davis and Mrs. A. E. Ross.

Morning Session

Mrs. H. M. Hall, Toronto, vice-president of the Ontario Provincial, appealed to the members of the different missionary societies to be interested in the boys and girls of the church, as they will be church leaders in years to come.

Mrs. Hall, who was introduced by Mrs. Eric Larsen, congratulated the Presbyterial on reaching the 60th anniversary of its formation. Mrs. Hall suggested that the missionary work of the Presbyterian Church should be expanded.

Speaking of the young men and women who served in World War II, she said these young people had seen missions and missionaries in action in far-away countries. Our boys found missionaries at work on the Solomon Islands in the Pacific," she remarked.

Mrs. C. A. Smart, president of the Kingston senior auxiliary, who extended a welcome to the delegates, said the Women's Missionary Society had been formed for a more efficient handling of the missionary work of the church. She paid tribute to the women who organized the Kingston Presbyterial, at St. Andrew's Church, Kingston, March, 1886.

Rev. Eric Larsen, Moderator of the Kingston Presbytery, remarked that the women who were instrumental in organizing the Presbyterial 60 years ago were women who had a conviction that something should be done to promote the missionary work of the church.

Mrs. William Hall, Ivanhoe, president, read greetings from Mrs. Inkster, Toronto, on behalf of the Council. Mrs. George Darling, Gananoque, read an historical review of the Presbyterial, which was started at a meeting held at St. Andrew's Church, Kingston, March 16, 1886. Fourteen auxiliaries and four mission bands were represented at the first meeting, which was attended by about 200 women who were keenly interested in the mission work of the church. The late Rev. Dr. John Mackie, for many years minister of St. Andrew's, was among the speakers at the inaugural gathering.

Mrs. H. S. Graham, Belleville, had charge of the devotional part of the service.

Mrs. Shaw Presided

The sessions of the 60th anniversary of the Kingston Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada opened at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Wednesday morning. Mrs. William Shaw, Ivanhoe, president, presided.

The morning program consisted of Scripture reading and prayer, Mrs. H. S. Graham, Belleville; words of welcome, Mrs. C. A. Smart, president of the Senior Auxiliary, Kingston; greetings from the Kingston Presbytery, Rev. Eric Larsen, Moderator, St. Peter's Church, Madoc; greetings from Council, Mrs. Inkster, Toronto, read by Mrs. C. A. Smart; greetings from the Ontario provincial, Mrs. N. M. Hall, vice-president, Toronto; historical review, Kingston Presbyterial, Mrs. George Darling, past president, Gananoque.

Library Corner

(By O.D.)

Our records for April show that 8,600 books were in circulation—6,360 adult and the remainder boys and girls.

Fifty five new members enrolled — making a total of 353 new borrowers since the beginning of the year.

Our activities for the month have been many and varied. At the first of the month a display of books on child psychology was loaned to the Queen Mary Hobby Fair. A list of the books available through the library on parent education was also prepared for distribution to the parents attending the fair.

Short reviews of the new non fiction books added to our shelves were written for Library Corner. Reviews included books on house repairs, gardening, house plans, post war jobs, etc.

Films have been shown to the boys and girls every Saturday morning in connection with Story Hour. We still continue to have an enthusiastic gathering of from forty to fifty boys and girls.

Most of our energy however, has been devoted to moving books. First the stacks in the Boys' and Girls' library were moved from the centre of the room and placed against the wall. This has given the room a much more spacious appearance and the books are easily located by the boys and girls.

The second move was in the downstairs library. All the non fiction books were moved around to make room for the travel books. The complete travel section has been used for our new "Young Moderns Bookshelf". This section includes books on natural science, useful arts, literature, history, travel, biography and fiction — all carefully chosen from recommended lists. It is primarily for the boys and girls transferring from the boys' and girls' library to the adult department, but will serve as an attractive section for any of our borrowers. This bookshelf is not completed but the greater amount of work has been accomplished and I am sure that our "Young Moderns Bookshelf" will prove a welcome addition to our library.

Australian Women Respond to Appeal

Sydney, Australia, May 6 (CP)—Sydney women, many of them well over middle age, have made a splendid response to the appeal by canneries for labor to can fruit for Britain. Spontaneous sympathy for food-starved Britain was the main reason behind applications by hundreds to start work at fruit-canning factories.

Manpower and canning factory officials had been advertising for weeks for women to come forward and help save the entire crop from destruction.

In one day more than 600 girls were employed and it took more than three hours for the staff to handle the applications. The new employees said that their reason for answering the appeals so suddenly was because of the urgent need of food for Britain.

An elderly woman said: "We shouldn't get publicity for doing the right thing for Britain. Every woman should feel it is her duty to help out."

A director of a cannery said that his firm had received applications from all parts of New South Wales and 250 girls had been employed at one factory and 300 at another. He added that the flow of new personnel had saved the almost certain loss of between 1,500 and 2,000 tons of fruit.

Another development recently was the departure of H.M.S. Urchin, for the United Kingdom with half a ton of fat on board. The shipment is the first consignment of fat collected under the scheme sponsored by the N.S.W. Division of the Meat and Allied Trades Federation. It was a donation from master retail butchers in response to the association's appeal. Another 100 tins are sealed and await shipment.

Women's Activities

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Williams on Thursday, May 2, with 20 members present. Mrs. Mills gave her report for the Presbyterial held in Trenton. Mrs. Williams expressed the wish for a Baby Band in Cannifton so the children would have every opportunity to learn of the love of God. Mrs. Roy Pound read correspondence for the Mission Band. The appeal for more clothing for Europe has been accepted and the drive will start June 17-29. Mrs. Williams will be chairman of the drive.

The current events were very interesting and covered a number of items of world interest.

The worship service taken by Mrs. Williams and assisted by ten members was on "The Christian Home". Mothers, grandmothers, teachers and any one in anyway responsible for the bringing up of children received much good advice and help from this program.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Williams for her hospitality.

Doris Morrow May Be Spared An Operation

Three-year-old Doris Morrow, of Bonarlaw, thirty-five miles north of this city was conceded a good chance today by physicians here, to be relieved of a two-inch needle, swallowed some day ago, without undergoing an operation.

Dr. G. S. Cronk, in charge of the case, stated today that X-ray examinations had revealed that the needle had travelled from the upper to the lower intestines during the past two days, without injury to the child.

The little girl was allowed to go to her home today and will be X-rayed again within a day or so unless complications set in.

"The child has a good chance, judging from the progress of the needle within the last 48 hours, of being spared the experience of a delicate operation," Dr. Cronk said.

To Make Your Lips Lovelier

Radio actres Jaqueline Waite applies a coating of cologne to keep her lips tick on.

By HELEN FOLLETT

BETTER watch your mouth lines, lady. We aren't referring to the gay coloring you put thereon, but the expression you carry. We see plenty of mouths that would look better if they looked a bit jollier or kinder.

Malicious thoughts create a mean-looking mouth. Discontent and selfishness form weak mouths. Lips are soft and always drooping, look as if they were about to pout or quiver. That kind of a mouth is no credit to a woman. We are supposed to be brave, to carry on in a troubled world.

The critic develops a mouth that reminds one of a bear trap. She usually has a machine gun face that goes with it. There is the prude, who finds pretty nearly everything in life disgusting. She purses her lips, squares her shoulders, casts dirty looks.

The sensitive girl, who fancies that everybody is about to be insulting, carries a mouth that looks as if it were about to burst into plaintive bawling. If this girl will cultivate a little healthy horse sense, realize that other people aren't always thinking about her or wanting to knife her, the lines of her mouth will improve.

Lipstick, properly applied, will keep your lips in the shape you want. Use a brush dipped in cologne to make it stay put.

What every woman should want, as a part of her pulchritude equipment, is a mouth that appears kindly, sympathetic and smiling, but which also carries an expression of strength and fearlessness.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This Wife Was Willing to Gamble on Her Chances of Happiness—And She Won!

It's always a bright spot in the day when a happy letter comes in. Especially when it tells of a difficult problem squarely met and wisely solved, so that it has something helpful to pass on to others.

That's why one that arrived in this morning's mail is a special joy, bringing, as it does, a message of hope to a recent writer to this column who was confronted by a tragic situation. The latter wrote that because she had serious heart trouble, and her doctor had told her she might not live long, she felt she should break off her romance, and without telling the young man the reason, lest he insist on marrying her out of pity.

With that point of view I disagreed, on the ground that such procedure hardly seemed fair to the young man, and that, since he loved her, he should be given the opportunity to gamble, if he wished to do so, on the chance of their having some few years of happiness together at least.

And here is a story, based on one woman's personal experience, which backs me up in this opinion:

Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I just read your column in which the girl wrote in saying she had heart trouble. I would like her to hear my story.

"I went with a fellow for two years, and we were very much in love. Suddenly he came to me and told me he wanted his freedom; that he had met somebody else.

"Six months went by, and then his mother came to me and told me the truth about her son. He had a very bad heart condition, and only had a few years to live.

"I went to my fellow and told him I was still in love with him and was willing to take a chance. We argued about it for a while, and then we both went to see his doctor. He told me I was taking a big chance, but I didn't care. I loved him very much.

"Two years ago I buried my husband after 33 years of a happy married life. He didn't die of a bad heart.

"I also want to tell this young girl we had six children, and I would do it all over again. I have never regretted it.

"So good luck to her. She should tell her man the truth and let him decide for himself. If it's really love they have for each other, everything will work out all right. Have faith. That really counts.

"A very Happy Wife and Mother"

This is a fine letter, and I hope the girl to whom it refers will see it and take courage.

Just think what this happy wife and mother would have lost out of her life if she had been afraid to gamble on her chances of happiness. Thirty-three wonderful years of companionship with the man she loved, and the joy of having his children to comfort her and continue to give her happiness when she finally had to give him up! Many a woman who never had any reason to believe her marriage would be anything but long and happy has had to be content with less, when entirely unforeseen misfortunes came her way.

All life is a gamble in the sense that it is unpredictable. That is a truism, of course, but one it is well not to lose sight of. For it is the sturdy souls, the courageous ones, those unafraid to take a chance when the chance seems worth taking, who draw the greatest satisfactions from life.

Royal blue wool suit

THIS MOST feminine of suits seems from Directoire period inspiration. It is of royal blue wool gabardine and subscribes to some interesting detail. The sleeves are of the modified leg o'mutton type, puffed at shoulders. Nice seaming detail moulds the bodice and flares the peplum. For a different color scheme, this suit was worn with lime green accessories and a plaid ribbon-trimmed hat.

Relaxation Makes For Poise

Tell me, my paper friend, are you a "self-exhauster?" Speak the truth, face the music, cross your heart and hope to die. Do you scamper furiously through the day, starting a task, then quitting it, using up your store of energy and, at bedtime, finding that you have accomplished exactly nothing? It is when one has little to show for one's activities that one feels spent.

If you belong in this bracket you need a manager. Some member of your family should take you in hand, urge you to get your life organized. Feel jittery and you're in prime condition for a case of nervous exhaustion, a state, which often leads to ills that are more serious.

One often hears the expression "I'm too tired to rest." It isn't just talk. If there is mental excitement, there can be no rest. For the body to relax, the mind must be at peace. Tenseness of mind is reflected in tension of the fibers of the body.

Get yourself in hand, lady, if you don't want to wear out early, lose youth's bloom. Do a flop. Lie down on your bed. Close your eyes. If worrisome thoughts gallop through your head, tell yourself to be at peace. Repeat the word "peace" slowly as you inhale and exhale slowly. You can hypnotize yourself that way. Try it. It works. The nerves controlling your muscles will get a respite.

Endeavor to exercise patience. If the daddy doesn't come home right on the dot, don't get into a stew. Husbands always come home eventually—as a rule.

Stand in a railroad station and watch the people who are waiting for trains. Some will sit quietly, reading a paper, apparently content, patient, resting. Others will walk about restlessly. They will look at the clock every three minutes. They smoke a lot. The train will leave when it leaves, will come when it comes, and biting one's nails won't make a bit of difference. The wise woman will grab the opportunity for relaxation. She will close her eyes and the doors of her mind and she will let her body go limp. She will be quiet and comfortable, will profit by the short rest period.

If worrisome thoughts beset you, tell yourself to be at peace.

Relaxation is a habit. It can be cultivated. It will break down the jumpy, restless feeling that comes to highly-sensitive individuals. Of course, extreme nervousness may be due to some undiscovered physical disorder. If a woman is so on edge that she can't sit through a movie or a sermon at church, she should see her physician, have a check-up. A healthy person should not give way to fussy, restless emotions. The moment there is a feeling of fatigue, one should rest. A ten-minute nap will sometimes put one all together again, bring a cheerier state of mind, a more pleasing reflection in the looking glass.

GOOD MANNERS

Buying Rings For a Double-Ring Ceremony

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When my fiance and I select the rings for the double-ring ceremony, do we go together to buy them and does each pay for the other's ring?

2. At my wedding I am going to have my sister as maid of honor and my girl friend as bridesmaid. I have two little cousins, girls of 4 and 5, and I would like to have one as flower girl and the other as ring-bearer. Or would it be more proper to have both as flower girls and a little boy, aged 5, a cousin of the groom, as ring-bearer?

D. W.

1. It is the way of wisdom for the couple to go together to the jeweler to select their wedding rings. Each pays for the other's ring.

2. My suggestion is that you don't overdo the number of children you plan to have in your wedding party. Since you are having only one bridesmaid, you might better have only one flower girl, no ring-bearer. However, there is no rule against your having if you wish, two flower girls and a ring-bearer.

Questions Concerning Semi-formal Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it proper to have a semi-formal church wedding if the circumstances will only permit a small reception with a few invited guests?

2. At a semi-formal wedding is it proper for me to have four attendants? I would like to have a girl friend as maid of honor, and my sister and two of my girl friends as bridesmaids.

3. Is it proper for me to have a flower girl?

4. How many ushers (if any) should we have?

5. At the wedding and reception should my mother wear a long dress?

6. Approximately 150 guests are to be invited to the ceremony and about 30 to the reception. Should we send engraved or written invitations? If the invitations are engraved, should we enclose with the church invitations engraved cards of invitation to the reception to those to be invited to both?

M. B.

1. Yes. As a matter of fact, it is proper to have a semi-formal church wedding even if there is no reception following the ceremony, or if the reception is to be small or large.

2. Yes, it is proper for you to have four attendants at a semi-formal wedding. If your sister is too young to be maid of honor (it is customary for the bride's sister to be maid of honor), she might be a junior bridesmaid, and walk alone in the processional and recessional.

3. Yes, if you wish to.

4. You should have at least two, and preferably more, ushers for every hundred guests invited. Not only are ushers convenient for the seating of the guests, but having ushers makes the processional and recessional more interestingly balanced.

5. At a semi-formal wedding, the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother may wear either floor-length or street-length dresses.

6. Your invitations may be engraved, or hand-written notes of invitation. If the invitations are engraved, reception cards are enclosed for those to be invited to the reception. Generally in these post-war days, formal engraved invitations are sent for semi-formal weddings when the guest list includes fifty or more people.

Summer Hostess Gown

Anglican Churches May Take Part In Joint Services

Ottawa—Revision in the canon law on discipline, ending restrictions, to a certain extent on the Anglican Church regarding participation with churches of other denominations in joint services, was announced last week at the Syned meeting of the Ottawa Diocese.

The Anglican Church is now permitted to join in services of an ecumenical character and services of national importance with other churches after permission has been given by the bishop.

Previously the Anglican Church was not permitted to join in services of any kind.

Another revision of the canon law was announced, that of lowering the voting age at vestry meetings from 21 to 18. This was done in view of the number of young people returning from the war and taking part in the church activities.

The registrar's report given by H. P. Hill showed a great increase in the collection of parish records in the diocese, dating back to the early part of the 19th century.

A report on the state of the church, given by Rev. W. L. Bradley, of North Gower, in his statistical returns, showed a large increase in 1945 of confirmations and marriages.

Fashion Flashes

A GARDEN filled with beautiful gowns blossoms at Spring dances. White net is used for a dance frock made with a three-tier skirt spattered here and there with large silver disc-paillettes. The softly-curved strapless bodice is trimmed with a band of the silver discs.

IT'S A BIG SEASON for the little dress, the apparently simple little frock that looks right almost anywhere. Sheer wool crepe in bright green, woven with tiny navy bdlue dots, makes a nice frock styled with a high, folded neckline—the folds forming a diagonal yoke—short sleeves and two deep slit pockets that are outlined by stitching.

A SHINING SUCCESS at the beach is the swim suit of satin. Honey brown satin is used for a suit made with adjustable bra and a flaring skirt with pockets.

THE RIGHT TYPE, youthful and glowing, looks wonderful under a derby hat. A nice summer version is in pale yellow Milan straw, the softly rolled brim edged with narrow ruching in caramel brown taffeta. Sheer matching brown veil.

COOL COMFORT is important for city children in summer, and it must be coupled with style. Black sheer cotton printed with clumps of rose-to-violet pansies is used for a pretty frock with deep square neckline and side-swept skirt caught with a wired bow of the fabric.

A RETURN to elegance is seen in the revival of the dress and coat ensemble. Navy rayon crepe is used for a dress made with puffed sleeves to match those of the coat which is of pale lime green twill. Under-section of the puffed sleeve is of navy faille. Bodice has a lowered waistline, skirt is moderately full.

Fashion Is in Print

THE PRINT FROCK, beloved of the American woman, is back in all its colorful glory, in all color combinations and in designs that range from the simple to the bizarre, big and bold. Not simple, yet not too striking, is this attractive print in navy and white silk crepe used for a Foxbrownie afternoon frock. The print is set off by navy crepe which is used for a border on the high, softly draped surplice bodice and for detail on the shoulder bow.

MALARIA DROPS

New Delhi (CP) — The year 1945 was the healthiest on record as far as malaria was concerned. Of a population of 1,050,000, only 3.09 per cent fell victims to the fever. Much of the credit for this low figure is due to the combined civil services anti-malaria drive last August, which used D.D.T. to keep mosquito breeding at a minimum.

St. Louis Cardinals Move Into First-Place Tie with Brooklyn Stan Musial Getting Six Hits

Star Outfielder May be First .400 Hitter in Past 16 Years

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Musial of St. Louis Cardinals may become the first big leaguer to attain a .400 batting mark since 1941 and the first National Leaguer to reach those heights in 16 years.

With most of the attention focused upon such pre-war power hitters as Boston's Ted Williams, New York's Joe DiMaggio and Detroit's Dick Wakefield, the 25-year-old outfielder has mauled enemy hurlers for 27 hits in 65 appearances at the plate for a batting mark of .415.

Musial got six hits yesterday as the Cards gained an even split with Boston Braves and moved into a first-place tie with Brooklyn. His trio of safeties in the opener helped give the Cards a 7-2 decision and Lefty Max Lanier his fourth victory without defeat. The Braves with big Mort Cooper holding his former mates to 10 well scattered blows, turned the tables in the nightcap 10-4.

Take Double Bill

Pittsburgh Pirates knocked the Dodgers out of undisputed first place by sweeping a doubleheader before an overflow crowd of 37,953. A pinch single by Jimmy Brown scored Jack Barrett for an 11th-inning triumph in the opener. Another timely hit by Frankie Gustine brought a 4-3 victory in the six-inning nightcap, halted by Pennsylvania's curfew law.

Rip Sewell, who hurled the 1st nine innings of the opener for Pittsburgh, was taken to a hospital suffering from a gastro intestinal upset. Pittsburgh's double victory put the heretofore disappointing Bucs in a fourth-place tie with Chicago Cubs.

Huge Ernie Bonham made his 1946 New York pitching debut a success by whipping the Chicago White Sox 4-2 before 33,938 as the Yankees' fifth straight victory moved them within 1½ games of the American League-leading Red Sox.

Losing Streak Snapped

Detroit's losing streak was snapped at seven when Hank Greenberg belted a homer and then set off a two-run rally with a single to give the Tigers a 5-4 victory over Philadelphia. The Athletics copped the opener 10-2 as Bobo Newsom, aided by Sam Chapman's fifth homer, notched his third victory.

Prince Hal Schumacher of New York Giants outpitched Johnny Vander Meer 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader against Cincinnati, but the Reds took the afterpiece 7-4.

After suffering a 13-1 drubbing at the hands of the Chicago Cubs in the first game, Philadelphia Phils came back to win the second 7-1 before a record Wrigley Field crowd of 45,505.

With shortstop Cecil Travis enjoying a perfect five for five at the plate, Washington's Senators overpowered the Cleveland Indians 12-4 to move into a fifth-place tie with the White Sox and drop the Tribe into seventh place.

The scheduled doubleheader between the Red Sox and St. Louis Browns was rained out.

TREMENDOUS QUAKE IS REPORTED.

Philadelphia, May 4 (AP) — Franklin Institute today reported a "tremendous quake" recorded on its seismograph.

Dr. Roy K. Marshall, institute director, said the tremor occurred about 6.25 p.m. E.D.T. yesterday about 1,200 miles from here in the South Pacific.

"It apparently was a tremendous quake," he said, "and resembled a trace of the quake about 1931 that did a lot of damage at Napier, N.Z."

Lacrosse Assoc. Preparing For A Boom Season

Twice the Number Expected to Register That Played Last Year

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 6 (CP) — Preparations of Ontario's lacrosse enthusiasts for a boom season, promises double the number of heads to be bashed with the webbed hickory stick.

With schedules due to open in a fortnight, spring fever has reached a peak among devotees of Canada's national game in the form of post-war revivals of old clubs and mushrooming new hotbeds.

"We expect 1,800 or more registrations this year and that's twice the number of players last season," reported Gene Dopp, Ontario Lacrosse Association secretary. "From pee-wee to senior 'A', applications are pouring in."

A big reason for Gene's enthusiasm is the return to Senior "A" play of the famed Orillia Terriers, only club to hold the Mann Cup for three consecutive years — 1934-35-36—as Dominion champions. Terriers dropped out early in the war years.

Two other new entrants —Toronto Lakeshores and Owen Sound Georgians— complete a seven-team circuit. The four regulars are Mimico, Brampton, Hamilton and St. Catharines.

Tentative dates call for the schedule to open May 13, St. Catharines at Hamilton. The next night, Lakeshores play at Owen Sound.

Young Players Hold Key.

Gene feels that the younger players hold the key to rebuilding the game to pre-war status (First war, that is), when Canadian teams toured the United Kingdom several times.

Lack of interscholastic participation makes this difficult, he added.

"Actually, lacrosse isn't so rough as hockey or football," said Gene with the fervor of a man who's felt both ends of the stick. "Maybe some refereees don't know it but the rules provide a penalty for beating an opponent about the head."

To encourage minor players, the association intends to provide trophies for each of its Ontario championship divisions — Pee-Wee, Bantam, Midget, Juvenile, Junior "B", Intermediate and Senior.

Peterborough to Join.

Centres indicating they will operate one or more teams include Peterborough, Orangeville, Simcoe, Fergus, Hespeler, Caledon, Paris and London.

Nucleus of the Junior "A" circuit will be St. Catharines, Hamilton, Brampton and Orillia.

A new four-team intermediate circuit is just about set to go, with Sarnia, Wallaceburg, Windsor and Detroit the entrants.

One holdback may be a stick shortage but Dopp thinks this will work out. He revealed he raised a supply for an Australian government official who made a special trip to Toronto, so there should be enough for the home market.

EARLY CONSCRIPTS

Conscription is known to have existed in the form of a national militia in Anglo-Saxon England, but its first use in modern times was by Napoleon in 1798.

C.A.H.A. REJECTS N.H.L. OFFER OF $20,000 YEARLY

Professional League Willing to Pay That Much for Amateurs Turning Pro

Vancouver, May 6 (CP)—Business transacted at the 29th annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was all in the minutes today and how kindly its professional big brother, the National Hockey League, would look upon one major decision was in the laps of the N.H.L. governors.

At its final session Saturday, a session which lasted well into Sunday morning, the C.A.H.A. rejected the N.H.L.'s offer of a flat $20,000 a year for all amateurs turning pro. It decided, instead, by an 18-6 vote, to hold out for a more attractive proposition, preferably one involving $2,000 for each player moving up to the "big time" and $1,000 for each signing a minor pro league contract.

The same five delegates who met N.H.L. representatives in Boston last winter to discuss the situation will return there in June to re-open negotiations.

Opposition to the N.H.L.'s offer was led by George Panter of Gravenhurst, President of the powerful Ontario Hockey Association.

George Hardy of Edmonton, President of the International Ice Hockey Association, and C. A. H. A. Secretary George Dudley of Midland, Ont., favored keeping relations with the N.H.L. on a favorable basis, the former because he felt the amateur organizations lacked the weapons to stage a fight and Mr. Dudley because the N.H.L. had paid for players who had been up only one season before getting army calls.

Many of these returned to amateur hockey as members of armed forces teams and had helped bring money to the C. A. H. A. coffers, he said.

If the meetings reached any decision on a reported N.H.L. request to declare the Quebec Senior Group and the Western Canada Senior Hockey League professional circuits, it was not announced.

It was decided, however, that $40,000 of receipts from Allan and Memorial Cup games in future would go to the C.A.H.A. with 80 per cent of the balance to be divided among the teams. 15 per cent to charity and the other five per cent to the C. A. H. A. reserve fund. No indication was given as to how the 80 per cent to teams will be divided.

For their part in the Memorial Cup series this year, Winnipeg Monarchs will receive $7,300 and the losers, St. Michael's College of Toronto, $4,500. The Allan Cup finalists, Calgary Stampeders and Hamilton Tigers, will get $5,700 each.

The entire executive was re-elected.

Derby Lament

"Give Boswell's Lord a pinch 'o salt,
And, egad, he'll set the pace"
But they didn't have to pinch Assault,
For the nag to win the race.
—Winnie.

Down in "Ole Kaintuck" where on Saturday twilighting the blue of the grass equalled the sheen of the backers of Boswell, an outsider named "Assault" galloped home seven, or was it eight? lengths ahead of the nearest opposition to win the blue ribbon event of racedom the Kentucky Derby.

• • •

And the moolah moguls, the lush Lotharios of the inner paddock, who played a hunch against Dame Misfortune who who was dogging the Graham Maine Chance Stables entries found that a hard-luck jinx once it becomes attached to a victim hangs on with the tenacity of a bulldog gone berserk or a leech with a lust for red corpuscles.

A few days ago horsemen of the continent moaned the tragic loss by Mrs. Elizabeth Arden Graham of $500,000 worth of horses and the continent's best two-year-olds. The wise lads of the track felt that a kind fortune might turn a smiling countenance on the hard-luck lady and send Lord Boswell, Knockdown and Perfect Bahram home in that order.

Although as one writer put it, Mrs. Graham (she's that Arden gal), needs $100,000 as as much as she needs lipstick—her company turns out several hundred million cartridges of womanly war-paint each year—she expects her horses to keep her extensive stables going without outside help.

• • •

Not only did Mrs. Graham lose her stable of two-year-olds, but she lost the Kentucky Derby and also the hope of bringing anything of equine importance to the 1947 running of the historic track classic.

• • • •

Her star performer, Lord Boswell, favored to win the race, finished fourth behind Hampden who trailed Spy Song in the second slot some lengths behind Assault. The nag paid $18 to those timid souls who had the brazen effrontery to put their money on his silken muzzle.

• • •

The sun was not shining brightly on the old Kentucky home stretch for a few days previous to the race and the result was a partially heavy track that resulted in Assault neighing "Here's mud in your eye" to any bold nag who dared come within kicking distance of his flashing hoofs.

• • •

Had Mrs. Graham won the julep jaunt she would have been upholding the race's tradition, for the gals have always been "tough" when they had a favorite going to the post. Eight times the fair sex have copped the blue ribbon, and each time the nag favored to win came through.

• • •

Mrs. John D. Hertz and Mrs. Payne Whitney are the big winners with two apiece. Mrs. Whitney scored in 1931 with Twenty Grand and again in 1942 with Shut Out. Mrs. Hertz hit the jackpot with Reigh Count in 1928, and again with the great Count Fleet in 1943.

• • •

The first woman to win the Derby was Mrs. C. E. Durnell, whose Elwood captured the rose run in 1904. And she set another record, too — because her horse was the first ever to be entered by a woman.

Other one-time triumphs were scored by Mrs. R. M. Hoops with Black Gold in 1924, Mrs. Dodd Sloan in 1934 with Cavalcade and Mrs. Ethel V. Mars in 1940 with Gallahadion. Mrs. Mars accomplished plenty, also, bringing in a real long shot.

Wladyslaw Talun, the Man who walks like a Derrick, has thus far been unbeaten in the wrestling ring here. On Friday eve Frederick Von Schacht, a miniature Empire State building on the hoof lost a split-hair decision to Whipper Watson. Since that bout several of the wrestling faithful have come up with an idea. "Match Talun and Von Schacht, and let's see wrestling in the clouds," they say.

Both pachyderms are about 6.6 in height. Heretofore they have been forced to bend over like a fish-hook to squint at the opposition. Both have the strength of seven ordinary guys, and have no qualms as to what procedure they use to gain victory. "It's a natural" burped one excited mat enthusiast. "Bring 'em along. At least the gallery fans won't have to stretch their necks to get a look — see although the ringsiders might need periscopes." There it is. It's an idea all right, and one that the powers-that-be might toy with for mebbe this week or next.

"Announcement was made today that Mickey Murray will be the coach of the senior Terriers of the inter-county loop while Dodo Hoffman will handle the Terrier Pups. Squads of 30 to 35 have been turning out to field practice. A local baseball war looms since George Weaver, deposed pilot of the Terriers, has entered a team in the intermediate "A" series." This is the same Mickey who used to star at third for the Petes in the old C.O.B.L. days with Cherrett, Swanny, et al. And also as a goalie in hockey, one of the best ever developed here. He has been living in Galt for some years now.

ASSAULT HEADS FOR BALTIMORE AFTER DERBY WIN

Horse With Deformed Foot Waltzed Home Eight Lengths in Front in Race for Roses

By SID FEDER

Louisville, Ky., May 6 (AP) — Stretch-running Assault, the Kentucky Derby darling with the deformed foot—bred by a Texan in Texas and trained by a Texan, but piloted by a jockey from Flatbush—takes a train ride to Baltimore today, trying to make history repeat.

If Assault gets the black-eyed Susans in the Preakness at Pimlico next Saturday, on top of the roses he won so easily in the 72nd and richest derby last Saturday before the greatest crowd ever to see a horse race in the United States—more than 100,000—he'll be doing just what his daddy, Bold Venture, did a decade ago.

But behind the try of this first Texas-born horse ever to take the derby is the story of all the heartbreak and the gamble that go into breeding and racing a thoroughbred.

When a year old, Assault hurt his right front foot. The doctors said he might as well be put out of his misery because he'd never recover. But the stable hands called in another veterinarian who cut the hoof almost entirely away—and Assault recovered.

Last Saturday as an 8-1 shot at Churchill Downs, the chocolate colt, bad foot and all, waltzed home by eight lengths. He wanted to run so much he pulled the little Brooklyn booter — Warren Mehrtens—clear out of the saddle trying to hold him in along the backstretch.

$96,400 Paid Winner

They paid him $96,400 for the job, and the colt now has earned $144,450.

Wee Admiral, first Canadian derby entry since Indian Broom ran third for A. C. Taylor of Vancouver in the derby that Bold Venture won, beat one horse in the field of 17. Owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, Ont., Wee Admiral had early speed but retired after going half a mile.

By bouncing to the wire by the greatest derby margin since Whirlaway, Assault stepped up front and centre as the horse to beat in the preakness. But there'll be a couple of other fellows giving him a "rassle" for it.

One will be William Dupont's Hampden. The Delaware dandy finished third Saturday, and might have been second with a stronger ride. He missed catching the sagging speed horse, Spy Song, by a couple of feet for second.

There'll also be the Maine Chance Farm's—Lord Boswell and Knockdown, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Graham. Even-money favorites, they finished fourth and fifth in the derby, on which an all time, one-race record of $1,202,474 was bet.

NEWARK BEARS IN FIRST PLACE OF INT. LEAGUE

Toronto Leafs Score Two Shutouts Over the Syracuse Chiefs

(By The Associated Press)

Newark's hard-hitting Bears are in first place in the International League today — the first time since April 21 — and they didn't have to swing a bat to get there.

Rain erased their doubleheader in Montreal yesterday and the Bears did little more than twiddle their thumbs to move up when Baltimore and Syracuse, the pacesetters, both dropped twin-bills.

Syracuse suffered a double shutout at the hands of Toronto, 5-0 and 4-0. Big Joe Coleman spun a six-hitter in the opener for his third straight win and his second shutout. Harry Jordan scattered eight hits in the seven-inning nightcap.

Buffalo nosed out the Orioles 7-6 in the 12-inning lid-lifter, and 3-2 in the afterpiece. The Bisons blasted across six counters in the ninth to deadlock the first game, aided by home runs by Chet Wieczorek, Vic Wertz and Johnny Radulovich, Johnny McHale scored the deciding marker in the 12th when he walked, advanced to second on an infield out and tallied as Bobby Repass booted Johnny Bero's grounder. Circuit smashes by Wieczorek and Wertz accounted for all of Buffalo's runs in the finale. Les Mueller, making his first start since he was acquired from the Detroit Tigers, held Baltimore to five hits.

Home runs also played a prominent part as Jersey City and Rochester split. The Giants won the initial contest, 7-4 on 11th inning homers by Bob Thomson and Mickey Grasso. Thomson also cracked one with the bases jammed in the fourth frame. In the wind up, Eddie Joost highlighted Rochester's 13-4 victory with a bases loaded clout in an 11-run Red Wing fifth inning.

Victoria Dominoes Take Three Straight From Assumption

Windsor, Ont., May 6. (CP)—The third one was the toughest, but the veteran Victoria Dominoes were still a shade too good for the youthful Windsor Assumption College squad, and today the cagers from the coast held the Canadian Senior Men's Basketball Championship.

Victoria defeated Assumption 47-36 Saturday night to take the best-of-five Senior "A" final in three straight contests. Victoria won the first game 53-35 and the second 51-37.

Tall, blonde Norman Baker, playing at right forward for Victoria, was again the star of the court Saturday as he amassed 16 poinhs, including seven field goals and two foul shots. The battling Assumption team, putting up their best fight of the series, were sparked by Freddie Thomas, who garnered 13 points on four goals and five foul shots.

But the Dominoes had to play like the champions they are to register their third triumph, meeting a determined attack from the Assumption youngsters after the coastmen had taken a 30-20 lead at half-time.

Experince was the only difference between the Windsor title squad of 1936 and the present young Assumption squad, said Coach George Andrews of Victoria. And he added: "For my money that lad Gino Sovran is the best player of the whole team, a very fine basketball player."

Sovran Saturday played a whale of a game at left forward and also scored five points, including three foul shots. Ralt Wade at left guard for Windsor had eight points, Roral at Centre six points, and Mudry at guard four points.

Behind Baker in the Victoria scoring column was George Andrews at left guard, with ten points; Hank Rowe had seven, Art Chapman six, Chuck Chapman, five and Jackson, three.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 979

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Some axioms should get the ax. But bridge has some adages that add to the enjoyment of the game. Like the one about leading "through" strength instead of "up to" strength.

The hand you play "through" is the second hand; the one playing (next) immediately after you. The hand you play "up to" is the fourth or last hand that plays to that trick.

When you lead up to a hand, he sees the other three cards before he has to play. When you lead through a hand, your partner plays after him. Better for you to lead through than up to.

The lead rule is: Follow the order in tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

Times are when opponents have bid all four suits. Of when all suits unbid by them contain either ace or king. If you must lead one of their bid suits, prefer the one bid by second hand.

Suppose declarer bid spades and diamonds and clubs; dummy bid hearts before assisting spades. The contract ends in four spades. Lead the heart deuce from this hand:

♠K 6
♥Q 8 4 2
♦K 7 2
♣K 8 4 3.

Don't lead a suit bid by opponents. That hits all four suits. Against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king. That hits all but your heart suit.

So, all but your heart suit have a double dose of don't. The heart suit is hampered by only one don't. Also it is a lead "through" instead of "up to." A lead from hearts is your best choice.

Remember. You must not lead an opponent bid suit if some other suit is unhindered by a don't. Nor an opponent bid side suit unless there is a better reason for not leading a trump.

To construe the whole kaboodle, you must exercise your noodle.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 6 (AP) — Not all the important people in this town are listed in the movie credits. Almost as exalted are the head waiters, those polished gents who can deal you a ringside table or a seat next to the dirty dishes.

To many Hollywood inhabitants it is a professional necessity to be seen by producers, columnists and photographers. That's why men like Pancho achieve a vast amount of importance.

Pancho Alliati has been around Hollywood since 1934 and is now maitre d'hotel of the Beverley Hills club. Born in Turin, Italy, 39 years ago, he has been in the business of feeding people since he was 17. He probably handles more famous eaters than any other man in his craft.

"Ah, it is not easy," he sighed, glancing about the room that contained such people as Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor, his divorced wife (they were together), Gene Fowler and Dame May Whitty. "Everybody wants a seat right in front. I have to angle them around to other tables."

Right now Pancho divides his domain into three rooms: a back room for doctors, lawyers, industrialists and others who don't have to be seen; a conference room where producers can manoeuvre deals "away from the Ya-Ta-Ta"; and the main room where the women can display their hats and the celebrities can be viewed.

Women are harder to take orders from than men, said Pancho, because the fair sex worries more about gaining weight. But for some reason, movie stars are the easiest to take orders from: they seem to know what they want, or can have. Joan Crawford, for example, "will eat anything."

Pancho, who looks more Nordic than Italian, has a mind which retains a vast number of names and faces. His only difficulty is in keeping up with the rising stars and producers' girl friends. And what does he do for relaxation after serving Hollywood's great

"I go to the Hitching Post Theatre to see a western movie," he admitted.

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 4 (CP)—Broadway's two most important recent openings were the unveiling of Walt Disney's long-awaited film, "Make Mine Music," and a theatrical first night that didn't happen.

Preceded by rave notices from the sticks and the thunder of press-agents' tom-toms, Irving Berlin's musical, "Annie Get your Gun," featuring the return of one of New York's favorite stage chanteuses, Ethel Merman, was set for last week.

The white ties were being pressed and the orchids were en route when a massive iron scenery-support crumpled backstage at the Imperial theatre and civic watchdogs snatched away the house licence until repairs—expected to consume at least two weeks—were made.

The show returned to Philadelphia for an interim engagement and several thousand dollars were refunded to advance ticket-holders who would much rather have had the pasteboards.

The setback, apparently, did negligible financial harm to the box-office with a boasted take in excess of $150,000 increasing daily for seats far into the summer.

Object of another lengthy and vociferous publicity campaign, "Make Mine Music" is a spotty production which some watchers found disappointing. To them, one local critic put his pro-Disney case neatly when he wrote: "The tendency to expect too much of Walt Disney is one of the highest compliments of his genius."

The melange of 10 short features—any of which could be played independently—approaches the artistry of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and "Fantasia;" but not consistently.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Charley Keller, Yankees — Drove in two runs with a homer and double to lead the Yankees to a 4-2 victory over the White Sox.

Cecil Travis, Senators—Smashed out five hits in five appearances at the plate and batted in four runs to pace the Senators to a 12-4 victory over the Indians.

Bobo Newsom, Athletics and Hank Greenberg, Tigers — Newsom spaced nine hits to win his third game 10-2, in the opener; Greenberg belted a homer and single in the nightcap to give the Tigers an even break, 5-4.

Stan Musial, Cardinals and Johnny Hopp, Braves — Each garnered six hits in twin bill, Musial's three safeties in opener helping the Cards win 7-2, while Hopp's two homers and one-baser in the night-cap sparked the Braves to a 10-4 decision.

Jimmy Brown and Frank Gustine, Pirates — Brown singled in the 11th inning to score Jack Barrett with the run that gave the Pirates a 5-4 opening game victory over the Dodgers; Gustine doubled home Frankie Zak in the second game to give the Bucs a 4-3 decision.

Buddy Kerr, Giants and Ray Lamanno, Reds — Kerr's seventh-inning double was the big factor in the three-run rally which gave the Giants a 3-2 opening game victory; Lamanno slammed two doubles and a single to help the Reds win the nightcap, 7-4.

Hank Borowy, Cubs and Del Ennis, Phils — Borowy spaced 11 hits effectively while batting in four runs with two doubles as the Cubs won the opener, 13-1; Ennis slammed a pair of homers to help the Phils win the second, 7-1.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 6 (CP) — Weighty problems of export trade are interesting many people these days, and even the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association seems to be having its troubles.

Out in Vancouver, where the amateur hockey officials are meeting, much attention is being given the matter of price tags on amateur players shipped out to the National Hockey League or to foreign countries when the shipments are stepped up a trifle.

That's a ticklish problem, both for the N.H.L. which doesn't feel it should lay out too much mazoola, and also for the individual clubs which feel they should get a slice of any such payments rather than having it go into the C.A.H.A. treasury.

Now all that's needed to make things exciting is to have Boston Robert Murphy organize his union of puck chasers so there'll be some one else to claim part of the proceeds.

Fisherman's Luck.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson relays this one about sportsmen, fish and international amity:

It seems that some time before the war Major Stuart Forbes, athletic director at McGill University here, was trying to promote an international university hockey league. The Canadian end of the proposed league was all right, and Princeton and Dartmouth in the U.S. were agreeable, but Harvard and Yale were shy, the latter college because it was then in the midst of a feud with Princeton.

So Major Forbes invited Yale and Princeton representatives to a fishing expedition on Lake Superior. The fish didn't bite, the chill between the rivals grew icier, and the international league was looking very down in the mouth.

The major, however, bethought himself of a shallow lake nearby, and transferred his strategy campaign forthwith. Continues the saga, the fish co-operated wholeheartedly, the hatchet was buried in a mutual joust of admiration and the birth of the league was assured.

Issue Between Baseball Groups In Legal Stage

(By The Canadian Press)

The issue between major league baseball and the Mexican League reached the legal stage at New York Saturday when the New York Yankees secured a court order restraining agents of the Pasquel loop and a New York sports-writer from attempting to induce any of the club's players to break his contract. The court hearing is scheduled for tomorrow. The baseball scribe named in the order was C. R. Rennie of the Herald-Tribune.

Stanley Woodward, sports editor of the New York paper, described Rennie as a veteran and respected writer and said he had been sent to Mexico City to report on the activities of the Mexican League. At Cincinnati, Rennie sent a denial that he ever was an agent for the Mexican League.

Outfielder Pete Resler of Brooklyn Dodgers announced Saturday at St. Louis he had definitely rejected a $100,000 offer to play three seasons with the Mexican baseball league.

Philadelphia Athletics yesterday announced the sale of Pitcher Joe Berry, 40, to the Toronto Leafs of the International League and also the unconditional release of Catcher Jim Pruett to Toronto.

There was a surprise finish to Chicago's six-day bicycle race in the victory of Tino Reboli and Erwin Pesek, after Rene Cyr and Mike Abt had led for three days. Torchy Peden and Jerry Rodman were last in a six-team field.

After the Minneapolis Millers of the American Association had lost their seventh game Saturday in eight appearances, general manager Mike Kelley announced the unconditional release of Zeke Bonura as team manager and named Rosy Ryan as successor.

The $5,000 one-mile handicap of Saturday's grand circuit card at Santa Anita Park was won by D. W. Spencer, a trotter from Wisconsin in 2:05.5 to pay $7.90. The favored Blue Boy finished 10th.

Professional Hockey is returning to Philadelphia next season but it is not the proposed N.H.L. Club controlled by Leonard A. Peto of Montreal. The team, announced Saturday, will operate in the American Hockey League and already four players have been signed.

Third-baseman Whitey Kurowski of St. Louis Cardinals announced last night at St. Louis he had rejected a $100,000 five-year contract to play in the Mexican baseball league. He was to have received a $20,000 bonus for signing.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

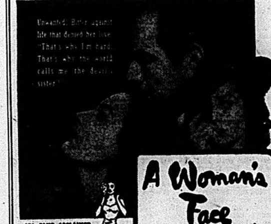
Louisville, Ky., May 6 — (AP) —This is the day that Louisville lays in a fresh supply of aspirin and starts thinking about next year's Derby . . . Some folks, even here, will tell you the Derby is not a true test of race horses but just a big ad for two of Kentucky's principal industries — horse breeding and whisky distilling... It's true that many winners have broken down as a result of racing 1¼ miles so early in the season. One was Bold Venture, sire of Saturday's winner, Assault... but the really great horses like Whirlaway, Omaha and Exterminator didn't seem to mind running in May . . . and that Derby prize is worth shooting for. Robert J. Kleberg, Jr., not only collected the $96,400 prize, but $2,000 as breeder of the winner. And don't forget the $3,000 award to trainer Max Hirsch.

First Tip

When Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's Jet Pilot made a shot of two-year-old field in the opening race Derby Day, a press box observer said "You may have seen next year's Derby winner there. Jet Pilot was supposed to be the fastest two-year-old in the barn even before Mrs. Graham lost all those good ones in the fire at Chicago" . . . And Assault has a full brother named Clean Slate which may be in next year's Derby.

End of the Line

Two of the Derby's first three, Assault and Hampden, are among the eligibles for Delaware Park's $25,000 Kent in June. Don't say they kent win . . . Billy Werber, former Cincinnati third sacker, has authorship to his accomplishments. He has written a pamphlet about life insurance, which he sells at a $2,000,000-a-year clip . . . Bill Carpenter, minor league supervisor of umpires, has written a "bible" for arbiters . . . . Umps should know they'll hear things that never came out of any Bible.



Unwanted! Bitter against life that denied her love. "That's why I'm hard. That's why the world calls me the devil's sister!"

CHAPTER 18

Norman said, "Edwina, look what the train from New York brought us!"

"Train?" Dick said. "Plane, my boy."

Then Edwina and Norman came down from the ladders and the three met in the center of the room.

"Our hands are dirty," Edwina said, holding out her small hands. "look! But I can't expect Sam and Mary to do a weekly dusting job on a library of this size . . ."

"I'm assistant librarian, Dick. My hands are dirtier than hers."

"I think you've both lost your minds or is this an outlet for boredom?"

"Did Cornelia come with you?" Edwina asked.

"No. I came in too much of a hurry."

"You'll stay for luncheon, won't you? I'll tell Mary to serve it on the terrace. They're my only two servants this summer. Meantime Norman and I will get cleaned up a bit. Then we'll explain about our housecleaning. . . ."

She found Dick alone on the terrace and she thought, walking toward him, her face clean, her mouth bright, her white silk frock tailored and expensive, that of all the people she knew in New York she would probably see only Norman and Dick when she was a working girl there.

He grinned. "A little soap and water and lipstick and a clean dress, and you're the Edwina I know. Before Norman comes tell me—or was I in a romantic mood the night you and he were together in New York. . . ."

"Cornelia's charming presence accounts for your romantic mood. No, Dick. Norman and I have discovered that a man and a girl can be together constantly and become only very good friends. How is Cornelia? I'll save the explanation of our tearing up the library until Norman comes. He deserves to hear your remarks."

"Cornelia is splendid. She has a choice to make—the stage or me. I'm not hurrying her."

"Are you staying long? I ask that because Norman is going back tonight and I thought perhaps you could go back together. Don't try to persuade him to stay. He's had enough of our fair city."

"You sound mysterious."

"So do you. What brought you flying down, or shouldn't I ask?"

He said seriously as Norman appeared, "That will come later, too, Edwina."

Luncheon on the terrace beneath the striped umbrella was a gay affair. Even Edwina's account of her decision to sell the house and give away the library and valuable furniture and pictures was gay and gave no hints of events which had led up to her decision. Yet all the while she spoke she was conscious that Dick listened with a divided mind and when Mary brought out the dessert she was intensely curious to know what had brought him hurrying from New York.

They lingered over cigarettes and when Norman snuffed out his, the last, in the glass ash tray, Dick said, "I don't want to interfere with your work, Edwina, your good deed, but business of a very confidential nature brought me and I'd like a few words with you alone. You don't mind, Norman?"

"Not at all. I'll get back to packing the books."

Edwina said, "If it has to do with me and my creditors, I'd like Norman to stay. He knows my affairs as well as I do."

"It has nothing to do with you or Norman."

When Norman left, Edwina turned to Dick, her eyes uneasy. "What is it all about? You scare me. It is about me, isn't it? What have I done? I hope I haven't murdered somebody in my sleep. . . ."

"Stop worrying. You haven't done anything. I simply want to ask you a few questions, and it probably isn't at all necessary to add that this is strictly confidential. Something has happened here in Newton which made me see red; drop everything and get here as fast as I could."

Leaning forward, he clasped his hands on the edge of the table and asked, "Edwina, how well do you know Alan Harding these days? You spoke of him when you were in New York and I gathered you had seen him this summer. I didn't arrive this morning. I arrived last night and stayed at a hotel in town. This that I have to do here is one of the nastiest jobs an attorney has ever had to tackle. . . ."

Edwina did not know why she was on guard against Dick. She sat back in the chair away from the protection of the umbrella and shielded her eyes from the sun with her hand. Disjointed thoughts and questions revolved wildly 'round and' round in her mind.

"Please explain, Dick," she said quietly.

"I'll try. Yesterday I received a letter written in pencil and written obviously by an illiterate person. But to go back. . . . Some years before I went to New York, I was attorney for John Hartley here. You must know him, Edwina. He used to own the old hardware store down on Center street. Everybody knew him. . . ."

"Of course I knew him. I went there with my father when I was a child. He was an old man then. And he's still living?"

"Living, yes, but blind. He sold the store but he still lives in rooms above it with an old colored servant. It was the colored servant who wrote me, I learned last night when I saw Mr. Hartley. . . . Alan Harding is the old man's attorney now and Alan Harding, Newton's promising and highly respected young lawyer, has been cheating Mr. Hartley in connection with rent collection and investments for more than a year. The old man got suspicious recently—he's still shrewd—and began checking up. He found that some of his old tenants—he has large real estate holdings— had moved, that Alan had rented the places to new tenants, increased the rents and was pocketing the increases. We call that embezzlement. . . ."

"It means. . . ."

"Jail, disgrace, the end of him as a lawyer. And the filthy business is up to me."

"And Mr. Hartley. . . ."

"Oh, the old man is terribly broken up about it. Cried last night. Oh, lord, it was pitiful! But he's going to press charges. Wants Alan exposed. The old man is angry and hurt, and he can be tough. Trusting Alan, he turned everything over to him and paid him fairly for his trouble. . . ."

Jail, disgrace, the end of him as a lawyer. . . . She felt a little sick—as you feel when you see a dog run down. . . .

Dick said, "I left my New York address with Mr. Hartley when I went to New York and told him if he ever needed me to let me know. You remember him, Edwina. He had the reputation of being a kind old miser."

She said slowly, "I once broke something in his store. Dad wanted to pay for it but Mr. Hartley wouldn't let him. Stealing, deliberately stealing, and robbing a defenseless old man. . . But how did Mr. Hartley find out about it?"

"By calling in some of his tenants and talking to them. He hadn't checked up before. Simply had left everything to Alan. He hadn't had any complains because all the complaints went to Alan."

"Have you seen Alan?"

"Not yet. I dread this business, Edwina, but I asked for it when I told the old man to let me know if he ever needed me."

She felt curiously rigid — as if she couldn't move. "But where do I come in, Dick? Why did you want to see me?"

"Because I could tell you the whole thing and ask you a few questions and trust you not to talk outside. Of course the lid will blow off and everybody will know about it. 'Alan Harding, embezzler!' Can't you see it? But tell me what you know of Alan from observation this summer. ."

She looked down at her hands and continued to stare at the chipped nail polish on her left thumb while she spoke.

"He appears to be very prosperous, if that's what you mean. I've seen him only once or twice. He's a member of the country club and you always hear his name mentioned when Newton people speak of up and coming young men. And he's—he's going to be married soon. Dick, this will kill that girl!"

Still looking at the chipped nail polish, Edwina said, "The night I saw him at the club I noticed that he had changed. There was something about his eyes. . . . I suppose it's a look you get when you're afraid of being found out. I imagine I've looked like that a good many times recently and didn't know it. . . ."

Her eyes came up. "I'm glad I'm going away. I don't want to be here when it breaks. But why did he do it? Why? He didn't have to. He didn't have to steal! He's made a name for himself. I don't understand why he did it, Dick. . . ."

He smiled. "Why does anybody steal—those who have and those who haven't? To get more if you have, and to get what you can if you haven't. Some people can't get rich fast enough. In Alan's case it was probably that. Simple, wasn't it, robbing a man who couldn't see, a man who had implicit faith in you, an almost childish faith?"

"I haven't helped you very much."

"It was just a chance you could. I didn't know how frequently you'd seen him or talked with him. I knew you'd help me if you could because I knew you didn't have any great affection for him. It was obvious when you mentioned him that night in New York. I've never quite understood that situation with you and Alan. But no matter. . . ."

"Last night I dug out facts and this afternoon I hope to dig out more. Two of Mr. Hartley's old tenants are co-operating. They're hopping mad. You know, public sentiment is going to be very strong in this case. In spite of Alan's popularity, nothing is more appealing to a jury than a blind old man who has been robbed."

Her eyes burning, she came under the umbrella again. "How do you feel about it, Dick?"

"Last night I was hopping mad, too. I've cooled off a bit. I'd like to be out of it and on my way back to New York, but my sympathy for Mr. Hartley will make me stay and see it through."

He sat back in his chair. "I've saved a surprise. After I left Newton and Alan took over Mr. Hartley's affairs and the old man became attached to him, Mr. Hartley called in still another attorney and made a new will, voiding the one I had drawn up for him leaving his estate to old friends and charities. The new will, which Alan doesn't know about, is in a box at the Equitable Trust Company. In it Mr. Hartley leaves everything to Alan. . . ."

She winced. And because she could no longer be still, she arose and walked about the terrace, adjusting the belt of her dress and touching her hair nervously. It was Alan's turn now to know defeat and shame and disgrace — as she had known it. But why wasn't she glad with the gladness of one avenged at last? The fates had a queer, slow way of "righting" things. She remembered Alan at the club that night in early summer, his coldness, his superiority, his well-cut mouth sneering at her. Carol Tallant had probably never seen him like that. Alan had never let her see him like that. But she couldn't be glad. Her thoughts were beating one against the other and she felt sick and heavy and sad.

She said finally, "What a pity! What an awful, awful pity. . . ."

"Yes, isn't it? If Alan just hadn't been greedy. Well, I've got to be off."

"Where are you going now?"

"To see Mr. Hartley. He's leaning on me now. Thanks Edwina."

"I haven't done anything."

"It was good to talk about it to you, to some one. I'll stop in and say good-bye to Norman."

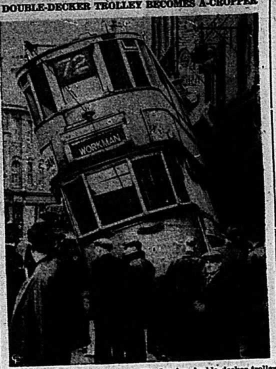
DOUBLE-DECKER TROLLEY BECOMES A-CROPPER



The driver and 15 passengers in this London double-decker trolley car had a narrow escape when it left the tracks and crashed into the front of a shop window. The tram is a combination of the familiar Fifth Ave. double-decker and New York trolley car. Now that the era of the trolley is about to close, we might take a cue from London and make all our buses double-deckers.

Prices Board Acts To Make Available More White Shirts

Cheer up, you white shirt addicts. Within a few weeks your sartorial troubles as far as white shirts are concerned may be over. That is, if the Wartime Prices and Trade Board's statement that there will be an improved supply can be construed as meaning "plenty".

The Board, according to authorities, has done three things to assure more white shirts. They have forbidden any manufacturer to use shirting material for anything except men's and boys' shirts unless his production of these shirts is up to the level directed by the Board.

Secondly, increased supplies of material are going to manufacturers out of the quota of cotton fabrics which the U.S.A. allocates to the Dominion. Arrangements have been made to have a larger proportion of this allocation supplied in the form of shirtings.

And thirdly no manufacturer is to be allowed to keep on hand more than one month's production of shirts. This is to ensure that the supply of shirts is not kept back from the retail market.

However for Mr. Belleville there is a little catch in the new shirts. They are going to cost him more than before. Since the subsidy paid on cotton has been reduced, manufacturers have to pay higher prices for their fabrics and the Board has authorized some increases in the price of shirts, pyjamas and flat-cut underwear.

However, according to the board the price will not be more than 25c and in the lower priced range, the tariff will remain unchanged in many cases.

So there is the shirt situation, as at the present, and hereby hangs the tale.

10 Per Cent Slump In Supplies To Dairies Since May 1

Toronto, May 6—(CP)—Frank Gaulfield, production manager of a large Toronto dairy, said today that reaction of milk producers to a cut in the government subsidy for whole and manufactured milk had resulted in a 10 per cent slump in supplies to dairies here since May 1. There was no danger of a milk famine, however.

(The federal subsidy was pared from 55 cents a hundredweight to 35 cents for whole milk, and from 30 cents to 15 on manufactured milk.)

"There is no doubt about it," Caulfield said. "The farmers are separating some of their milk and feeding the skimmed product to the pigs. However, the summer drop in consumption will take care of the reduced supply if this situation continues. A pinch, if there is one, will not come until next fall."

He said an average of 14,000 cans of milk would be a fair estimate of the normal quantity shipped into Toronto daily by producers. Since May 1, he said, this had dropped by some 1,400 cans — a supply reduction of 44,800 quarts.

and the British 2nd Army.

That afternoon in the village of Wageningen on the fringe of the German defence line in Holland, Field Marshal Blaskowitz formally surrendered his 25th Army to Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, commander of the 1st Canadian Corps, and Lt.-Gen. Guy Simmonds in northwest Germany received the surrender of German forces opposite the 2nd Canadian Corps which he commanded.

Then German representatives, headed by Field Marshal Alfred Jodl, chief of the German General Staff who now is among the Nazi leaders on trial at Nuernberg, went to Reims for the final act.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 6. (CP)—Stocks registered a considerable slump in the early session on the Toronto Exchange today, led by the Industrialh with a loss of $1.30. The Golds lost about a point and the Base Metals 3-4 of a point Volume was 822,000 shares for the first three hours.

The cut of the International Petroleum dividend by half to 25 cents for the current half-year had a depressing effect on the market as a whole. Imperial Oil, facing a drop in income from its subsidiary, weakened nearly a point and Pete was down about 3 1-2 points at mid-day. The Utility, Steel and Paper issues lost ground.

In Golds Aunor and Pickle Crown lost 20 cents. Smelters weakened 2 points or more, Falconbridge lost 10, Sherritt 5 and Waite-Amulet 5.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, May 6 —AP)—Steels and motors today lead the stock market on another slow retreat. Light selling again was attributed mainly to the stalemated coal strike and its serious effect on virtually all lines of industry. Declines of fractions to two or more points were widespread near the fourth hour.

Prominent on the backward shift were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, American Can, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Philip Morris and Standard Oil (N.J.). Modest resistance was displayed by Burlington Mills (on a boosted dividend), R-K-O (on an upturn in net), U. S. Gypsum, International Nickel and U. S. Rubber.

Canadian issues traded on the big board up to noon were weaker. On the down side were Canadian Pacific, off 1-4 at 18 1-4, Distillers Seagram, 1 3-4 at 107, International Nickel, 1-2 at 36 5-8, and Hiram Walker, 1-4 at 115 1-2. Dome Mines was unchanged at 23 7-8.

15 Lose Lives In Accidents During Weekend

Fifteen lives were lost in weekend accidents in Eastern Canada, including three who died Saturday from burns received in Friday night's Toronto streetcar-truck crash. Five others of the victims were killed in motorcar accidents.

The others included two drownings, one railway death, one missing person whose body was found near Brantford, two killed in falls and one in a stabbing affray.

William Bartha, 64, and Harvey Matthews, 24, died early Saturday and Miss Frances Weinstein, 28, died Saturday night from injuries received in the Toronto collision.

Near South Stukeley, 80 miles east of Montreal, three persons suffered fractured skulls and died immediately when their car collided with a provincial transport. The victims were Robert Lessard, 28; his wife Marie, 29, and their seven-year-old daughter Maria.

Antonio Guerra, 23, of Montreal, was killed Saturday when struck by a car as he was changing a tire at St. Martin, Que. Hugh Kelly, 40, of New York City, lost his life Sunday when his car missed a turn and plunged into the Lachine Canal at Montreal.

At Fort Erie 16-months-old Gary Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Storm, was drowned when he fell into a well used to water cattle.

Fell Out of Canoe

Marcel Morel, 19, of Kapuskasing, Ont., was drowned Sunday, when he fell out of a canoe on a small lake 12 miles east of his home.

The body of 77-year-old John Gerrard, missing from his home near Galt, Ont., since April 18, was found Sunday by searchers in a swamp 10 miles south of Brantford, Ont.

Harry MacDonald, 52, died in a Toronto hospital Sunday, after he was found unconscious on the floor of a police station cell, where he had been lodged on a charge of drunkenness.

The body of 55-year-old Craig Long, father of 11 children, was found at the water's edge of Lake Erie at Port Dover on Saturday. He had left his home on Friday night and apparently fell down Brant hill.

John Shaw, 30, second engineer of the freighter High Park and a native of Scotland, died Saturday as a result of a stabbing incident aboard his ship in Saint John, N.B., Friday night.

Previous Ruling Of O.B.A. to Stand

Hamilton, May 6 (CP) — The Ontario Baseball Association executive at a lengthy meeting Saturday decided that the previous ruling that intermediate B Ball be confined to places of less than 5,000 population should stand. Places protesting the ruling were advised they would receive consideration at the next annual session.

Requests from the Ottawa Junior City League and from the Nickel Belt League that their winners play off against the O.B.A. champions at the end of the season were laid over pending further information.

President Ralph Hall named J. J. Turner of Peterborough and Tony Gregg of Wingham as new members of the executive, joining Dr. H. J. McCann, Toronto; V. Hicks, Lindsay; Del Lewis, London, George Sullivan, Hamilton and Jack Bricker of Niagara Falls.

Ralph Hammond of Guelph was granted a transfer to Welland, and W. A. Creaser from Collingwood to Kerrwood. Application of Steve Kozlowski of Scranton to play in Welland was deferred.

Scene of death was this blazing street car at Bloor and Bathurst Sts. in Toronto, Ont., a few minutes after collision with a runaway truck. Gasoline tanks on the truck burst and the tram was enveloped in flames, trapping 100 persons in the car. Firemen were on the scene within five minutes and hurriedly extinguished the flames, but by that time 50 persons had been burned and cut, two of them fatally. Eye-witnesses said passengers unable to escape by exit doors smashed the windows with their hands and feet and then toppled from the trolley with their clothes a mass of flames. Several witnesses endeavored to aid them.

Murray Boyce, driver of the truck, managed to jump from the cab before the flames swept the vehicle. Arrested on a charge of dangerous driving(he is out on bail. This photo shows front end of the truck which was badly damaged.

Larger Receipts Promise to Ease Meat Shortage

Toronto, May 6 (CP)— Acute shortages of meat at retail stores in Ontario centres may be eased with an increase in shipments to livestock markets, it was indicated today with reports that weekend receipts at the Toronto yards would total some 2,000 head. This would be double the receipts a week ago.

Continued improvement in prices at the yards was said responsible for the increased shipments. Farmers had been holding cattle back since the large packers lowered their bids, contending they could not meet prevailing prices and still sell dressed meat at a profit under the ceiling prices.

Many butcher shops closed early in Toronto and Hamilton and other centres Saturday, and many a housewife had to settle for hamburger and sausage in place of a Sunday roast. Those that did get meat were forced to join long queues at the larger stores.

Weekend rains which brightened pasture prospects in many parts of Ontario however made it more attractive for farmers to withhold cattle from the market for the time being. How receipts would stack up in the remainder of the week remained to be seen.

Bulk of Forces To Leave States By June 30

New York, May 6 (AP)— The United Nations Security Council had assurances from France and Britain that the bulk of their forces in the Levantine States would be withdrawn by June 30.

Separate announcements that British and French forces had already abandoned Syria and would shortly quit the Lebanon were laid before the council as it faced a new crisis this week over the presence of Soviet troops in Iran beyond a March 2 treaty limit. Russia now has promised to have her troops out of Iran by May 6.

The British and French statements handed in Friday night to Chairman Hafez Afifi Pasha were expected to circumvent any mention here of the Levantine squabble.

Both France and Britain emphasized that their withdrawals were voluntary. They disclaimed any legal compulsion under the United States' motion presented in London expressing confidence that the foreign troops in Syria and the Lebanon would be withdrawn as soon as practicable, with the results to be reported to the council.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, in the first report to the council on the Levantine situation, said only a "small liquidation party" would be left in Lebanon by the British after June 30. French delegate Henri Bonnet said most of the French troops also would be gone by then.

Farmers Cheered By Steady Rains Over Weekend

Ontario farmers who feared drought conditions might develop into a serious threat to their crops were cheered by steady rains over wide areas of the province at the weekend—a downpour that was called "a million dollar rain" by farmers around Chatham.

More than a quarter of an inch of rain fell at most western Ontario points, and in some places the fall was heavier. Onion crops around Chatham especially were in need of the moisture, that area having suffered dust and muck storms in recent days.

Farmers in the dust-storm districts had held special church services to pray for rain, and their prayers were answered.

Around St. Thomas there was more than a quarter inch of moisture. Frost in the Hamilton area was said to have caused no injury to crops but some cherry orchards around Vineland were believed to have suffered.

Lambton county reports however were that frost had caused extensive damage to orchards, hitting early apples especially hard and with pears and sweet cherries perhaps a total l

Canadian Industry Feels Coal Strike

Lack of Shipments May Close Plants By End of Month

Great Lakes Shipping Operations Already Reduced

Toronto, May 7—(CP) —Shutdown of large Canadian industries using soft coal was seen today as an imminent threat if no settlement of the United States coal strike is reached quickly.

Lack of shipments due to the strike, which has been in progress for six weeks, has reached the point where Canadian industries are seriously digging into their reserves. Most immediate threat to Canadian operations is in Great Lakes shipping, already curtailed and likely to break down completely within three weeks unless supplies are resumed.

Officials of the Consumers Gas Company at Toronto said that the company, which uses soft coal for production of gas, "may be faced with a most serious situation" if the strike does not end soon.

Other industrial officials and coal dealers estimated that generally there is enough reserve to keep going until the end of May at the outside. But if the strike is not settled within the next two or three days curtailment of operations is inevitable due to the lag in shipments once the United States mines have re-opened.

On the inland seas the merchant fleets carrying vital cargoes of grain from the west and moving steel and iron ore among a multitude of other essentials were dwindling rapidly. At Sarnia yesterday it was estimated that traffic through Lake St. Clair had been cut in half.

Vessels have been tied up at lake ports from Kingston at the lower end of Lake Ontario to Port Arthur and Fort William, as stockpiles of coal dwindled along the piers.

Howard White, manager of the Century Coal Company, a subsidiary of Canada Steamship Lines, said yesterday that two thirds of the C.S.L. fleet is laid up for lack of coal right now "and there's only enough soft coal in stockpiles to operate those ships in use for another three weeks."

Lewis Calls Committee

Washington, (AP)—In an atmosphere of tension and crisis John L. Lewis assembled the policy committee of his United Mine Workers (A.F.L.) today to report on the status of negotiations for ending the 37-day-old soft coal strike in the United States.

The closed-door session conceivably might prove the forerunner of a "break" in the deadlocked bituminous contract dispute which Canadian sources say has affected Great Lakes shipping, but evidence of optimism was conspicuously absent among key government officials here.

There were veiled hints that some administration move was in the making to deal with the crisis, but no indication when it might materialize.

The effects of the strike meanwhile kept multiplying. Industrial leaders warned of impending large-scale shutdowns which could strangle reconversion. Interior Secretary J. A. Krug, in his capacity as Solids Fuels Administrator, asserted that Wartime coal rationing may have to be reimposed, even if the dispute is speedily ended.

Congressional voices were raised in angry denunciation of Mr. Lewis, and work was started on legislation aimed at sharply curtailing his power.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 7 —(CP)— Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.: Skies remain cloudy throughout Ontario and the eastern provinces this morning but no precipitation is reported other than in northern Quebec. Snowflurries are reported. South of the Great Lakes, rain is falling in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York State. In the central United States and the Canadian Prairies, fair weather prevails. No frost was reported this morning in Southern Ontario but temperatures were generally between 20 and 30 degrees in Northern Ontario.

NOT ONTARIO'S FAULT PARLEY FAILED SAYS DREW

Manning Blames Adjournment on Attitude of Ontario and Quebec Plus 'Rigidity' of Federal Govt.

(By The Canadian Press)

Provincial premiers returning from the Dominion-Provincial conference at Ottawa today had conflicting views on the record as to failure of the conference to reach an agreement on proposals for a new federal-provincial financial set-up.

Premier George Drew told a Kiwanis gathering at Port Stanley, near St. Thomas, that it was not through any fault of Ontario that the conference failed to reach agreement. Premier Drew said that it was "not Ontario and Quebec alone who were unwilling to accept the Dominion's proposals."

Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta, returning to Edmonton, blamed adjournment of the conference on the attitude of Ontario and Quebec plus the "uncompromising rigidity" of the Federal answer to provincial proposals.

And Premier John Hart of British Columbia, stopping at Winnipeg en route home, said British Columbia was ready to discuss any compromise.

Premier Manning declared that other factors could have been overcome if Ontario and Quebec had not adopted the attitude they did, and if the federal government's return offer had held some degree of compromise.

Not Provinces Alone

But Premier Drew said: "You may have heard suggestions that Ontario and Quebec made agreement difficult at Ottawa. It was not Ontario and Quebec alone who were unwilling to accept the Dominion's proposals. Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Alberta, all said emphatically that the proposals of the Dominion government were not acceptable. Every other province too raised some objections but expressed a willingness to accept in the interests of Canada."

It was the specific promise of the Federal government that when hostilities ceased, taxing powers in the personal and corporation income tax fields would be restored to the provinces, said Premier Drew. He paid tribute to former Liberal premier Mitchell Hepburn for his action in 1941 in placing "all the resources of this

BRACKEN CLAIMS PRICE CEILING POLICY UNFAIR

Contends Wheat, Hogs And Dairy Production Declining Because Of Inequitable Position

Ottawa, May 7 (CP)— The government's price stabilization policy on farm production came under fire during the night session of the House of Commons last night when Progressive Conservative leader John Bracken moved an amendment on a motion to go into committee of supply to study estimates.

His amendment stated that the government's price ceiling policy was discouraging production and putting an unfair burden on the farmer.

In moving his amendment, Mr. Bracken contended that wheat, hogs and dairy production was declining because of the inequitable position in which agriculture found itself.

For instance, wheat was selling in Canada at nearly $1 a bushel less than it was just across the border in the United States.

He said that if this policy continued farmers would be contributing approximately $200,000,000 a year to the maintenance of price stabilization in Canada. If production was to be improved, the government must give farmers some inducement.

Replying for the government, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the "most important phase" of the question raised by Mr. Bracken was that the reason for the present price level was an effort to conform with the requests of western farm organizations for stabilized prices for farm products.

It would require a "great deal more" than a resolution before the House to prove that declining production was the result of the government's price policy. Actually, production depended on weather and other conditions. No change in price ceilings could produce more food.

Discussing the current beef shortage, Mr. Gardiner attributed it to the decision of Canadian packers that they would pay $10 less a head for cattle. This action discouraged marketings and resulted in farmers holding their cattle back on the farms.

"I doubt very much," he added, "whether it should be open for any individual or group of individuals to come out and say that they are going to control the price level by making certain orders in connection with it."

The minister noted that cattle now were coming back to markets, indicating an end to the shortage of beef in Canadian butcher shops, as a result of prices moving back to their former levels.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said there should be a difference in the price paid for cattle marketed in the spring and those sold in the Fall because of the differences in production costs and added that there was an impression that the packing industry was a monopoly.

Gun Battle at Kentucky Coal Mine Leaves One Dead, Six Wounded

Harlan, Ky., May 7 (AP)—An early-morning gun battle at the International Harvester Company's captive coal mine at Benham today between Progressive Mine Workers and United Mine Workers—rival unions—left one man dead and at least six others wounded.

One of the injured was Robert Hodge, special representative of the United Mine Workers Union (A.F.L.) and former secretary-treasurer of U.M.W. District 19. His condition was reported to be serious.

The dead man was identified as "Senator" Brock, Stanfill, Ky.

Three of the wounded were taken to hospital at Lynch, which adjoins Benham.

They were identified as miners employed at U.M.W. mines in Harlan county, now closed by the country-wide U.M.W. strike.

Two others including Mr. Hodge were removed to Benham hospital.

A sixth wounded man was taken to a Harlan hospital.

Sheriff J. S. Cawood said he was informed that several trucks and automobiles carrying pickets arrived in Benham early today. Shortly before workers at the Benham mine were due to report for work. It is the only pit in Harlan county operating under contract with the Progressive Miners (Ind.).

Today's outburst, lasting about 15 minutes, was the first reported in the southeastern Kentucky coal field since the U.M.W. strike started April 1. Forty of Harlan county's 41 miners operated under U.M.W. contract.

The mine at Benham produces coal for use in operations of the International Harvester Company.

Two miners were killed near the Benham mine Aug. 21, 1941, in an outbreak of violence during a jurisdictional dispute between the Progressive Miners and the U.M.W.

Hope for Enduring Peace Is to Reach Understanding With Russia Through U. N.

—Churchill

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 7 — (CP Cable) — The city of Westminster, administrative capital of England since the 12th century, today welcomed 20th century Winston Churchill as its first Honorary Freeman in a colorful ritual of bygone days.

The wartime Prime Minister told the assembled dignitaries that "the supreme hope and prime endeavor" toward achieving lasting peace "is to reach a good and faithful understanding with Soviet Russia through the agency and organism of the United Nations."

"Only in this way can catastrophe be avoided," he said.

He asked the world to ponder "what happens if the United Nations themselves are sundered by an awful schism, a clash of ideologies and passions?"

"Failure to find an answer may lead the whole human race into a new period of misery, slaughter and abasement more agonizing and fatal than those which have twice been endured in the lifetime of most of us."

True Fellowship with Russia

He called on "the English-speaking world and the western democracies of Europe to move together in creating a true fellowship with Russia."

"I hope in this world organization there will be a strong France and a revived Italy," he added. "France after all her troubles may lead Europe into peace and plenty."

At another point in his address the wartime leader said:

"Of France particularly, I would say that without a full revival of the true greatness and culture of France there can be little prospect of restoring Europe to its former fame. In the darkest days I never lost faith in France. I feel confident that she has now a growing part to play in the peaceful establishment of a progressive western civilization and democracy."

Alluding to a figurative casting of boomerangs, Mr. Churchill said:

"Thus we may note how some of the actions of our Russian friends have helped to cement Anglo-American friendship and co-operation and how the activities of the French Communist party have given Gen. Franco a new lease of life."

He spoke of the possibility that the British Empire might "pass away" and recalled that "some voices bid us 'quit Palestine' and 'quit India.'"

"All the world should consider deeply what the consequences would be should the Empire die and thus leave a void," said Mr. Churchill.

He said the Anglo-American investigation commission on Palestine recommended that Britain remain as administrator of the country.

"Are we not entitled to ask our friends whose judgment is the same as ours to give us a helping hand?" he asked.

Mr. Churchill declared that to get out of India would mean leaving the sub-continent to "the cruel fate which has laid Europe with all its glories in dust and ashes and which now threatens China with a protraction of her long torment."

"India is no more united than Europe, except with superficial unity which has been created by our rule and guidance in the last 150 years."

In Pink of Health.

Looking in the pink of health, Mr. Churchill entered white-fronted Church House, scene of the first session of the United Nations Security Council, to the cheers of a crowd outside and received a more sedate welcome from the dignitaries gathered in the modern, white-walled room in the shadow of Westminster Abbey where the House of Commons held emergency sessions during the war.

He entered close on the heels of Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa and the ovation given the South African leader gathered renewed force as the black-coated wartime prime minister entered with Mrs. Churchill. Mrs. Churchill wore a navy blue coat and a red flowered hat.

Mr. Churchill mounted the platform with a grave deliberate step, but his face was cheery and he waved to the applauding audience.

He assumed his old warlike expression while listening to a ringing tribute from Alderman Hon. Arthur Howard, C.V.O., member of parliament for St. George's, who wore red aldermanic robes with a fur border.

Days of Heroes.

Room in Reims Schoolhouse Where Germany Surrendered Unchanged Since Year Ago

By G. K. HODENFIELD

Reims, May 7 — (AP) — The city of Reims, where one year ago today Col.-Gen. Gustav Jodl scratched his name on a document which sent the European phase of the Second Great War into the archives of history, marked the first anniversary of the surrender quietly — with too few soldiers in town to hold a parade.

Citizens and soldiers observed the day mainly by visiting the surrender room in the "little red Schoolhouse," the former "war room" of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Forces, which has become a French national shrine.

The room has been preserved exactly as it was at the moment of the German capitulation.

Maps and Papers

The war maps are there, the weather maps, railway maps and supply maps. A "lay-on" board lists air force missions of the following day. There is a chart of Allied casualties as of May 6, 1945 showing 122,072 killed in action, 468,267 wounded and 71,561 missing. Next to it is a chart in the form of a Nazi swastika, showing 4,035,051 German prisoners taken.

In the centre of the room is a long, scarred and begrimed table where the historic surrender document was signed. Placed around it are 13 straight-backed wooden chairs, with placards showing who occupied them.

Unless the visitor looks closely he is apt to miss a piece of paper pasted on the wall near a row of windows. The paper is the "top secret" war room daily summary, No. 335.

It reads:

"Surrender. The German government surrendered unconditionally at Reims, France, at 0241 hours 7 May 1945. The instrument of surrender was signed by Lt.-Gen. W. Bedell Smith for the Supreme commander and by General Oberst Gustav Jodl for the German government. Maj.-Gen. Ivan Susloparov signed as representative of the Russians, and Gen. Francois Sevez as representative of the French government. Hostilities officially cease at 2301 hours, Central European time."

Otherwise there is little to remind the visitor of the hustle and bustle of a year ago.

Few Soldiers About

Today the soldiers in the streets are numbered by the dozens, where there used to be thousands. Lt.-Col. Lowell A. Milligan of Los Angeles has fewer than 15 American soldiers to help him administer 14 hotels and billets, theatres and post exchange.

There are still 60,000 German prisoners of war in the Reims area, working in army surplus property depots. There are 22,000 in Reims itself and French civilians make no attempt to hide their chagrin at the freedom the prisoners have.

Frenchmen declare that prisoners of war should not be allowed to drive jeeps and cars without guards and should not be allowed to work in army messes and sales stores in this city where the army in which they fought acknowledged its greatest defeat.

BRIG. J. F. LISTER PLEADS INNOCENT TO FOUR CHARGES

Objection to Two Members of Six-man Court Disallowed By Court-Martial

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Amsterdam, May 7 (CP Cable) —Brig. J. F. A. Lister, 39, of Quebec City and Victoria, B.C., today pleaded innocent before a court-martial here to each of four charges involving misuse of an Amsterdam house requisitioned by the Canadian army.

Brig. Lister's objections to two members of the six-man court were disallowed after 45 minutes deliberations.

Following are the charges, all relating to a residence at No. 58 Oranjenassaulaan which the prosecution states Brig. Lister retained while he was chief-of-staff of the Canadian forces in The Netherlands from Aug. 15, 1945, to Jan. 9, 1946:

1. He improperly used for private purposes a building requisitioned for army use;
2. He fraudulently misemployed public property causing food and coal to be delivered to this address;
3. (Alternative to 2.) He improperly converted public property in the form of food and coal to his own use;
4. He utilized there for private purposes the services of four Dutch civilians paid from public funds.

Composition of Court

The court is headed by Maj.-Gen. Guy Turner of Ottawa and its members are Brigs. W. J. McGill, H. A. Sparling, L. C. Goodeve, and G. P. Henderson, with Brig. T. J. Rutherford as a waiting member.

Brig. Lister entered objections to the presence of Gen. Turner and Brig. Goodeve.

Lt.-Col. C. H. Gage, defence counsel, argued that the army's "mental attitude" toward requisitioned property at the time the alleged offences occurred, was only understandable to officers who had accompanied the army through the operation.

"Through no fault of their own, neither Gen. Turner nor Brig. Goodeve did so and the lack of the experience might prejudice the accused," Col. Gage said.

Moreover, Gen. Turner was a personal friend of Brig. Lister.

Addison on the steps of their home with a note attached to his clothing saying "I have no home to take my baby to. Please look after him as your own." The baby will remain in his temporary shelter till his case has been considered.

Problem of Germany Far From Solved Although a Year Since Peace Declared

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 7 (CP Cable) — One year ago on May 8 the Allies in a tremendous, united effort achieved a mighty military triumph, destroying Nazi Germany and bringing peace to devastated Europe.

The ensuing 12 months, however, have proved it to be an unsettled peace—a peace which has seen alarming divisions of interest and of policies spring up, particularly between Russia and the Western Allies.

The unity hammered out in the white heat of war gave way to wide differences in economic and political spheres in Europe—where millions are haunted by starvation or the threat of starvation.

It was one year ago this morning when Col.-Gen. Alfred Jodl, Chief of Staff of the German Army, at 2:41 a.m. put his signature to the Allies' unconditional surrender documents for Germany in the red-brick schoolhouse of Reims, France, which was Gen. Eisenhower's tactical headquarters.

When the tight-mouthed Jodl signed in that crowded, overheated room, it marked the end of Nazi Germany and the following day, May 8, the European war was officially declared at an end.

But peace brought massive proglems to Europe and the world. Above all there was the staggering question of the four-power occupation of Germany, crushed as no other country had been in modern times.

The proglem off Germany is far from solved. There are many differences on control policy among Britain, the United States, Russia and France but at least control machinery has been set up and a measure of Big Four co-operation achieved to run the Reich.

Evacuation Details To Be Worked Out By Negotiations

Mutual Aid Arrangements Being Made by Cairo Govt.

By MARTIN HERLIHY

Cairo, May 7 —(Reuters)— A far-reaching development in Britain's position in the Middle East was heralded today with the formal announcement by the British embassy here that all British naval, military and air forces are to be withdrawn from Egypt.

The statement precedes the official opening Wednesday of the Anglo-Egyptian negotiations for revision of the 1936 treaty of alliance. Preliminary talks have been taking place since April between representatives of the Egyptian government and a British delegation.

Today's statement makes it clear that the British evacuation will take place in stages, the details of which remain to be settled in the forthcoming treaty negotiations.

The British plan is believed to be based on the building up of Egyptian armed forces for defence of the country and the vital Suez Canal link with the east as British forces gradually withdraw to bases elsewhere in the Middle East.

It is possible that under the final agreement Egypt will be entitled to "demand" aid from her British ally in the event of emergency.

Some quarters argued that the phrase in today's announcement about settling the stages and date of the withdrawal in negotiations could mean that the evacuation of British troops might be spread over a period of years.

Quarters in close touch with the Egyptian delegation expressed the view that negotiations to settle the stages and dates of the completion of the British evacuation would be completed within the next fortnight.

Formal negotiations will start Thursday.

Informed observers believe that the primary idea behind the British plan for a gradual withdrawal was to give Egyptians time to increase and modernize their armed forces.

British troops first arrived in Egypt in 1882, when the Expeditionary Force under Sir Garnet Wolseley arrived for the campaign that culminated in the victory of Tel-El-Kebir Sept. 13 of that year.

From then until 1922, when the country's independence was proclaimed, Egypt was a British protectorate.

In 1936 the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty was signed.

Under this treaty were:

The military occupation of the country was ended;

In the event of a war involving either of the signatories, mutual assistance would be rendered;

Britain would retain a maximum army of 10,000 men in specified sectors for the defence of the Suez Canal;

An R.A.F. establishment of a maximum of 400 pilots plus ancillary personnel would be maintained;

The withdrawal of British troops from Cairo and Alexandria would take place on completion of a program of road and rail construction and when accommodation in the Canal zone was available for them;

The agreement would last for 20 years. If the Egyptian forces were able to take over Suez Canal defence at that time, British troops might be withdrawn by mutual agreement.

BELIEVE CHILD'S HEAD BASHED AGAINST ROCK

Members of Three Police Forces Comb Countryside for Clues to Brutal Slaying

Minaki, Ont., May 7 — (CP) — Shock and sorrow still reverberated through this resort area today as members of three police forces combed the countryside for clues relating to the brutal slaying Saturday night of pretty, blond three-year-old Joan Smith whose bruise-darkened body was found early Sunday not far from the summer home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Smith of Winnipeg.

Motive for the slaying, termed "the cruelest thing I ever saw in my life" by war veteran Ray Gustafson who found her body in this Lake of the Woods area some 170 miles east of Winnipeg, is even more baffling than the youngster's missing pyjamas and the method of her abduction.

Coroner D. J. Mason of Kenora, Ont., who examined the body said there was no indication of criminal assault.

Activity in the case centred in Winnipeg yesterday where Inspector J. Storey of the Ontario Provincial Police conferred with Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Winnipeg city police.

Inspector Storey said he couldn't "guess at any possible motive."

Meanwhile Inspector T. R. Wright of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Provincial Police was expected to arrive here today in time to attend a post-mortem.

Meanwhile in this quiet resort area where such incidents practically not even dreamed about feelings of sympathy were deep.

"I can't understand it," said John Conchla, a neighbor of the Smiths.

H. O. Weir, caretaker of Minaki Lodge, said "it's unreal."

The child's body was found in a clump of bushes about 100 yards from her summer cottage. Her tiny feet bore no trace of dirt or scratches to indicate she was carried outdoors. Her body was bruised and Inspector Storey said "it looked as though someone had taken her by the shoulders and bashed her head against a rock."

56.6 Per Cent Of City Taxes Now Collected

Already more than 50 per cent of the current year's taxes have been paid into the city treasury department it has been announced by Chairman of Finance, Alderman H. J. Clarke.

During Monday night's council meeting Mr. Clarke announced that already $269,610, or 56.6 per cent of the city's total levy of $476,386 had been paid by city tax payers, and the city was currently in a splendid financial condition.

All notes for money borrowed at the bank to meet current expenditures have already been retired with the city having a current credit balance of over $60,000. "Citizens of Belleville have much to be thankful for in the splendid financial condition of this city, and it is up to us as councillors to keep it that way," stated Mayor Frank Follwell by way of comment following Mr. Clarke's announcement.

$50,000 Improvement Program For Fair Grounds Draws Pointed Comment From City Council

Committee Formed to Further Investigate Request of the Parks Board

Recommendation from the local Parks Board that the city proceed to prepare a by-law for the borrowing of $50,000 to pay for proposed improvements and the building of new horse barns at the Belleville Exhibition Park drew considerable pointed comment from several council members at their regular meeting Monday evening.

When the recommendation from the Parks Board was read out, Alderman Clarke was almost instantly on his feet with an inquiry as to how the Parks Board was going to finance the payments on the $50,000 which was proposed for park improvements. Alderman Armstrong urged that the matter be placed before the taxpayers before any decision was made by council.

"I think that we have the cart before the horse," stated Alderman Thompson. "There is absolutely no use in drawing up the by-law when we do not even know if it will pass in council.

Asked to Name Committee.

In reply Mayor Follwell assured that the manner in which the cost would be financed by the Parks Board had already been worked out and he asked that the council be big enough to appoint a committee to go into the matter.

Alderman Clarke contended, however, that the recommendation to borrow the $50,000 should come from one of the council members. "$100,000 for sport in the city of Belleville in one year is a pretty big dose," he stated, apparently referring to the purchase of the Hume Arena.

A committee of Aldermen McDougall, Butler, Clarke, the city comptroller, and city solicitor and the Mayor was appointed to further investigate the request of the Parks Board that the city prepare the by-law to borrow the $50,000 for park improvements.

Objects to Recommendation

Alderman Charles Hyde, chairman of public works, objected to the committee recommendation asking that the Ontario Municipal Board come to Belleville to view Dufferin Ave., regarding the construction of a sidewalk on the east side of this street between Dundas and Bridge Streets.

"We should not bring the whole municipal board to Belleville just for that," he contended.

"Yes, but on the other hand if someone falls and breaks a leg, the city would be responsible," returned Alderman Thompson. The committee recommendation passed in council.

Passing of the proposed grant of $200 to the Belleville Baseball Association drew objection from several of the councillors who wondered if the council had the right to vote the grant after passing a resolution in January to the effect that no further grants would be considered without their being considered in the estimates.

Spending Too Freely Claim

Alderman Hyde felt that the city was spending too freely and stated it would have to cut down some place, while Alderman Thompson stated the baseball association asked for the grant merely because other organizations had received them.

Alderman Woodley felt however that the city was obligated to pay the grant "if it could do so legally". Alderman McDougall stated in his opinion there was no question of legality, while Alderman Chamberlain suggested that the opinion of the city solicitor be secured.

Mayor Follwell moved that the recommendation regarding grants being paid without first being considered in the estimates be repealed with Alderman Thompson asking for the yeas and nays. "This council has got to be a joke," he said. "It passes a motion one night and then rescinds it the next."

Yeas and Nays Taken

Mayor Follwell, and Aldermen Butler, Harvey, McDougall, Tice, Trudeau, Wilbur and Woodley favored repeal of the January recommendation, while Aldermen Armstrong, Chamberlain, Clarke, Allin, Hyde and Thompson opposed, the motion to repeal carrying by a 8-6 vote.

On the vote to give the baseball association the $200 grant, Mayor Follwell, Alderman Butler, Chamberlain, Allin, Harvey, McDougall, Tice, Trudeau, Wilbur and Woodley supported the recommendation, while Armstrong, Clarke, Hyde and Thompson opposed the grant.

To Entertain County Council

In a rural-urban get together of city and county officials, members of the city council will entertain members of the county council during their June session, it was decided. City and council officials and members of various boards will also attend the gathering.

The city comptroller, the city solicitor and Mayor Follwell with Dr. Jack Marshall, chairman of the local board of health, will meet the necessary county officials, town of Trenton officials and Department representatives to come to an agreement regarding the proposed government health unit.

Council took no action of a Canadian Legion recommendation asking that in view of the shortage of materials, building permits for other than residences and dwellings be temporarily Stayed. The recommendation from the Legion was written because of the current housing accommodation shortage.

Expresses Situation

In reply to the recommendation council expressed its appreciation toward the Legion for its interest in civic matters but indicated it was not possible to comply wih their proposal under present conditions without hampering industrial development and creating a very serious unemployment situation.

Under inquiries Alderman Wilbur asked that the Public Utilities Commission be required to investigate water service conditions on Ponton Street, and also asked regarding lights in the Dufferin and MacDonald Street district, as well as regarding the lack of fill on the recently developed Dufferin Ave., section. Alderman Woodley wanted to know when lights and supervision on Riverside Drive would be instituted and Alderman Allin asked what was holding up repairs to College Street following laying of water service to the Swift Canadian Company.

How Insurance Allocated

Alderman Tice asked particulars regarding the allocation of city insurance and was told by Alderman McDougall that city insurance was allocated by the Belleville Insurance Agencies among its members. If an agent was not a member of the agency, he did not get any of the city business.

Under general business Alderman Glen Thompson stated that proposed lights on the Bay Bridge Road could not be installed for two or three months. Public Utilities Commission was endeavoring to obtain the new type of light which illuminated the centre of the road through using a long extension arm, it was stated.

First and second readings were given by-laws authorizing installation of the Emily Street extension sewer and also for sidewalks on Olive Street and will be sent to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval before the third reading in council.

Sport to Have Greatest Boom In Next 10 Years

Aubrey 'Dit' Clapper, Coach of Boston Bruins, Special Speaker at Junior Board of Trade Meeting

"Sport is going to have the greatest boom in its history during the next ten years." Such was the opinion expressed by Aubrey "Dit" Clapper, veteran of nineteen seasons in the National Hockey League and presently coach of the Boston "Bruins" when he addressed the Junior Board of Trade in the Masonic Temple Monday evening.

"Sport is a very definite part of one's education" said the speaker "and competitive sport should be featured in the schools. There should be some great hockey players developed in Belleville. Most of the big-time hockey players come from the smaller centres and, to say the least, it's wonderful advertising for the community."

Mr. Clapper drew a round of laughter at the beginning of his talk when he said: "I know a little about hockey, I think, altho' I doubt that at times after what Canadiens did to us in the Stanley Cup finals."

Traced Hockey Career

The speaker traced his hockey career from the time he played school hockey in Aurora, interchurch hockey in Oshawa, in the Trent Valley League, Parkdale Canoe Club juniors and from there to Boston.

He predicted that within the next two or three years there would be three or four N.H.L. clubs on the west coast. "In that case, we'll use air travel primarily" said the speaker. "At the present time, the train travel between games tires the players more than the games do."

During the question period which followed, Mr. Clapper was besieged with questions. He predicted that the players who had returned from the services would hit their stride next season. "You couldn't expect too much from them last year."

When questioned about Maurice "Rocket" Richard, the veteran player had this to say: "I used to think he was great only because he was playing against inferior players but I have found out I was wrong. He is truly a great hockey player."

The Old Chestnut

The old chestnut came up: — "What gave you your biggest kick in your hockey career?" To this, Dit laughingly replied: — "When we have our annual banquet. I get a kick out of every game. Every big-league hockey player loves to play hockey or he wouldn't be a great player. I did get a thrill out of scoring my 200th. goal in the N.H.L. It was in Toronto and it happened to be the goal that won the game, 1-0."

The speaker outlined the method of scouting players for the big leagues. "Sometimes you make mistakes, however. For instance, we had both the Bentley boys at training camp one fall and turned them loose. We couldn't see any future for Elmer Lach at one time and so cut him loose."

The speaker was introduced by Charlie Cawker and thanked by Harold Cowain.

Kiwanis Club Praised

President Malcolm Robb acted as chairman and paid tribute to the members of the Kiwanis Club for their fine show "Pack Up Your Troubles." "It was a great piece of advertising for Belleville and a good job, well done", said Mr. Robb.

The sing song was led by Bill Bell and Jack McNabb with Bill Navan at the piano.

After the meeting, the members adjourned to committee meetings.

New Bandmaster, Ross Hunter, Welcomed to City

Members of the Belleville Municipal Band laid down their instruments at the conclusion of their regular rehearsal on Monday night, and in a social atmosphere extended through the band manager, Mr. Harry Moorman, an enthusiastic welcome to their new bandmaster Mr. Ross Hunter, Bachelor of Music, formerly of this city and more recently of Ottawa.

Bandmaster Hunter officially took over the band on Monday night. He succeeds Lieut. Fred Jobson, former bandmaster, who resigned his position a few weeks ago.

Welcome of the city was extended to bandmaster Hunter by His Worship, Mayor Frank Follwell and Aldermen Fred Chamberlain and William Harvey who attended the informal reception in the band chambers at the conclusion of the city council meeting.

Formerly in City

Bandmaster Hunter, who formerly was associated with Belleville schools in a musical capacity, has spent the last six or seven years in Ottawa teaching school musicians of the capital city. He recently retired on account of ill-health and at present resides in Harrowsmith, Ont., Later he will move to this city.

Manager Moorman in an eulogistic address formally welcomed the new conductor to Belleville and the "band". He told the members of the band that it had accepted an obligation and a trust and he sincerely hoped that with the full co-operation of the members, the band would enter into a new musical era, one that would place the organization at the top of brass bands of Ontario.

Assistant Bandmaster Reg. Hinchey, spoke of the versatility of Mr. Hunter and his long and useful experience in not only band music but orchestral and symphonic as well. "I have known Mr. Hunter for several years, and he will bring a vast knowledge of band music and experience to the younger members of the band," he said.

Bandmaster Replies

Mr. Hunter in reply, thanked the speakers and members of the band for the warm welcome. "I have got a job that I like," he told the musicians "and one that will need the whole-hearted co-operation of yourselves as musicians. I am only the bandmaster, I cannot do it alone. You play the instruments and I tell you what to do with the music. I was pleasantly surprised to see so many young members in the band besides the older veterans who have held the organization together during the darker years."

Mayor Follwell, who was celebrating his birthday, accorded Mr. Hunter the welcome of the city and its residents. "I have always been an admirer of the band," he said, in commenting on its wartime achievements for charity purposes. He personally welcomed Mr. Hunter as a friend of long standing, and, he said "under his direction, the Belleville Municipal Band should go on to heights hitherto not achieved."

Aldermen Chamberlain and Harvey also spoke briefly as did Bandsman Garn. Dobbs.

Refreshments served by members of the band concluded an enjoyable evening.

Theatre Managers Promised Consideration by Council

Theatre managers of the city are taking strong objections to the "nickle-in-the-slot" moving picture projection machines being placed in restaurants and certain other places of amusement in Belleville, it was learn Monday evening at the regular meeting of council when representatives of the Belle, Capitol and McCarthy theatres waited on council members.

As spokesman for the delegation, Mr. George Forhan told councillors that licences for theatres in Belleville were considerably higher than in many other centres of a much greater size and that local managers considered it only fair that they receive some protection against these picture vending machines.

The machines in question are placed in one or two restaurants in the city and at one bowling alley, although it was later pointed out the latter machine was not operating.

Councillors were almost unanimous in their feeling that something should be done for the protection of local theatres against what they considered "unfair" competition from the picture vending machines with several stating these machines should not be permitted.

Mayor Follwell expressed the opinion that these machines should be charged the regular "new business" tax of $250. He felt that the three Belleville theatres created a buying public in Belleville through outside persons coming to the city for amusement, and also tend to create a better feeling between urban and rural population. Theatre managers were promised the matter would be discussed and that action would be forthcoming.

In addition to Mr. Forhan, Belle Theatre manager, the delegation visiting council included Mr. Willard Fawcett, of the McCarthy Theatre, and Mr. Thomas Mascaro of the Capitol Theatre.

Assembly

The first assembly period of the term was opened with some rousing recorded band music because the band was on parade in preparation for cadet inspection.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Mr. Countryman who read from Proverbs, chapter twelve, verses one to ten.

The announcements were as follows: Mr. Townsend reported an invitation from the Dominion Field and Track Meet at Hamilton, open to those meeting his qualifications who will be sixteen or under on June 1st.

Student Council President Scott Denton presented the awards to the winners of the cross country race held before Easter. The winners in order of merit were: Morris Bradshaw, Merle Massey, Ron Baird, Bob Keyes, Terry Massip and Fred Waite. An expression of satisfaction with the race was voiced by Mr. Townsend.

Joan Hunter made an urgent appeal to the girls, needing more girl cadets to complete the organization.

Ruth Blatherwick made it known that a short course in stage make-up is open to the girls.

Scott Denton returned to the stage to announce that the invitations to the Spring Formal were ready to be mailed and could be obtained by application. The dance will be held Thursday, May 23rd, from nine to one p.m. The music will be supplied by the Commodores.

Mary Doyle of the Library Club presented the school with a number of books of various topics on behalf of that organization. There were seventy books in all making a very valuable addition to the school library.

Mr. Currie told us that the three boxes sent to Holland by the supporters of the Holland Baby Fund have arrived safely and are greatly appreciated.

Mr. Currie also stated in a well delivered lecture to the students that it is necessary for us all to settle down and make a good showing in our studies as we are nearing the end of our school year. An encouraging quotation from Mr. Currie's short talk was "a good Britisher does not give up. We must stick to our guns."

Mr. Ed. Shortt of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. was on hand to explain some of the activities of the H.Y.—Y group in Hamilton in connection with their radio discussions. These panel discussions by a group of seven boys and one girl are led by Mr. John Carrie, the Hamilton HY—Y leader.

He strongly recommended that the students should tune in to station CHML on Thursday evenings at eight o'clock and avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing these beneficial discussions.

Incidentally, Mr. Shortt made a very nasty remark about the penmanship of the Collegiate News Editor. You know who.

Girls' Sports

Although we are entering the final term of our school year and the weather is as mild as can be, the girls' gym is still the scene of the occasional basketball game. Since the exams, the following games have been played between Grades 10 and 12:

10C won over 10B with a score of 10-1. Barb Young seems to be the official scorer for XC; she gained 8 of the 10 points and Betty McGowan assisted her with two points. Dot Goodier achieved the solitary basket for XB.

In the game between XF and XD, the score was 10-3 in favor of XF. For XF, Barb Roblin and Eileen Reid each scored 2 points and Betty Soderberg gained 2 points. Betty Holway and Gerry Murray achieved the baskets for XD.

Three games have been played between the 12th grade teams. In the struggle between 12A and 12B, 12B came out with a victory of 7-5. Scoring for 12B were Dot Dobbs 4, Joan Hunter 2, and Molly Camp 1. For 12A, Eleanor Allen scored 4 points and Dot Bishop 1.

A close score of 6-5 was attained by 12D, when they played against 12C. Nina Lepore, Barb Maxwell and Violet Nokes scored for 12D, and Mary Tomaso, Helen Flindall and Norma Coleman gained the points for 12C.

In the playoff for the 12th grade championship, 12B walked off victorious with a 15-6 score over their opponents, 12D. This time Dot Dobbs scored 6 points, Molly Camp 5, and Joan Hunter 4. For 12D, Barb Maxwell and Violet Nokes each gained 2 points and Nina Lepore scored 1 basket.

Our basketball schedule will continue this week, as the teams compete for the 10th and 11th grade championships. Then the games will be over for this term.

Just a word to those who have listed their names on the Badminton Club Ladder. We would like to encourage you to get busy and challenge the others on the ladder. It's a lot of fun and you may win. So do come to the gym, which is open for singles every day of the week, and doubles on Thursdays.

We should also like to tell the Junior B.C.I. Girls' Basketball team that even if they did not win in Toronto, we are proud of their attempt. (You had a nice trip anyway, didn't you girls?)

Red Cross.

On March 18th a Red Cross meeting was held in Room 218 with the president in charge. After roll call the secretary read the minutes of the last meeting.

Our next meeting will be held in Room 218 on March 25. This will be our last meeting until after Easter.

Our president read a report of the work done by the Red Cross in the school during the war written for the Elevator by Miss Dwyer.

The meeting was adjourned about five o'clock.

The last meeting of this term was held on March 25. At this meeting Miss Dwyer read a letter written to Mr. Maybee's mother from the doctor in Holland to whom we have been sending our parcels of babies' clothing. They haven't received a parcel as yet but they are looking forward to getting them. So far we have sent three and there is more clothing to be packed.

The meeting was dismissed about five o'clock. The first meeting of next term will be held on May 6 after which you will hear from us again.

We hope you were successful in your exams and had a happy Easter holiday.

Cuff Notes.

Well, friends, now that I am sober enough to write after an arduous Easter holiday, here we go again; and I don't like it any more than you do. However, to get to the point . . . while browsing through a psychology text I stumbled upon the following information which I wish to pass on to you now that the exams are over and you have your marks back for better or for worse.

So you don't know just what your marks mean, hah? Well, kiddies, read this and weep.

According to statistics if you are below 18% you are an idiot; if between 18% and 36% you are a moron; if between 36% and 50% you are an imbecile; if just a 50% mark is yours you are a borderline case but don't worry, for 20% of the population falls in the classes just named. If you obtained 50%-59% you are dull; if between 59%-66% you are normal or average as is 60% of the population. You are superior if you wrote a paper between 76% and 86%; very superior from 86%-99% and if you got 100%, brother, you are a genius!

Now you know, and often the truth is bitter to the tongue. And the next yahoo who asks me what I got in Latin is going to get his obiscularis oris muscles mashed!

THE WINDING TRAIL

How I like to walk along the trail
And hear the lonely coyotes wail
And the lonely whisper of the pines
That bring you rest and peace of mind.

Oh I could walk the whole
long day
Along the trail that winds away
For joyous chirping of birds you hear
That sounds so pleasant to the ear.

When all my work at last is done
Up the winding trail I run
Away from all the toils and cares
That come throughout the passing years.

LOVE LAUGHS AT MILLIONS

Claudia Stone, 21, and Matteo Mezzanotte, 24-year-old concert violinist, ABOVE, are determined that neither wealth nor parental objections can stand in the way of their getting married. Miss Stone gave the high-hat to a $4,000,000 coming-of-age present and got a job when her parents disapproved of Matteo. Mezzanotte also kicked over family traces when his parents objected to the unfavorable publicity. So without parental blessing, they will be married and head for Hollywood, where Mezzanotte has a seven-year contract.

A THRILL FOR THEM
at Ontario's racetracks!

They come in hundreds from the States to watch the running of the King's Plate . . . one of Ontario's greatest attractions for racing enthusiasts. Whatever brings them to Ontario, we all have a stake in their return . . . so let's do what we can to see they enjoy every minute of their visit.

WHAT CAN I DO? The answer is plenty! Here are some of the things anyone can do. The suggestions come from a well-known Ontario hotelman:

1. Know the places of interest and beauty spots in your district and tell people about them.
2. When you write your friends in the States tell them about the places they would enjoy visiting.
3. Try to make any visitor glad he came.
4. Take time to give requested information fully and graciously.
5. In business dealings, remember Canada's reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it up, follow the "Golden Rule."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS . . . it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! The Province of Ontario profits to almost the same extent from tourist business as it does from the gold mining industry. It's up to each of us to see that it goes on growing.

This diagram shows how everyone benefits from the tourist income. Every dollar is shared this way . . . 1. Hotels; 2. Stores; 3. Restaurants; 4. Taxes, etc.; 5. Amusements; 6. Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally, when we visit them . . . we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday . . . so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend.

"Let's make them want to come back!"

Motoring in 1946

It is expected that this summer will see a great upsurge in the volume of motorcars using the highways on this Continent. From the United States comes the forecast of the possibility of a death toll of no fewer than 40,000 persons on American roads this year and of a million persons suffering injuries.

This forecast or prediction of the volume which road casualties may assume is enough to cause every person, driver or pedestrian to think and think seriously about the responsibility of those who use the roads and highways.

There will be a greater number of cars on the roads of Canada as well and the greatest care will have to be taken by every operator and every walker to prevent accidents.

It would be one of the most pleasant experiences motorists and others can have to have the season pass without mishaps. Many drivers, the most of them, have a record of no accidents in years past and will strive to uphold their past attainment by exemplary driving season in 1946.

The call goes out to everyone to use extreme care. Carefulness must be the predominant motive in driving or in walking along the roads. Nothing should be allowed to interfere with that motive.

One Year After

Who does not recall the flush of that day a year ago when word came that the Hun was defeated and in collapse? That thought summoned up vision of the return of many scores of thousands of servicemen in the not very distant future and the vision was realized.

It was one of the great days of the world in the East, in Europe and in the West. For it meant the return of peace. To China and the United Nations fighting against the Japanese it forecast the collapse of Nippon.

Peace has brought changes and a great responsibility. There has been the switch in industry back from the making of armaments to the making of needs for civilian life not only for the country that makes them but for other lands which will need all sorts of products to make up for the losses which war caused.

In Canada and the United States progress has been made in the switch in industry and in solution of problems.

Grafton Green in a cable from London on "The First Year in Britain Without Bombs" points out that Britain is settling down to win the battle of production and says what industrial unrest there has been may be fairly regarded as no more than the seething troubles of a new era." He comments "since Field Marshal Montgomery, shortly to take over his new post as Chief of Britain's Imperial General Staff, accepted on behalf of the Supreme Commander, General Eisenhower, the mass surrender of Northwest Germany, one of the greatest problems that confronts any belligerent has been largely solved in Britain. More than two million seven hundred thousand men and women of the armed forces — about half the total number — have been returned to civilian life and without any considerable unemployment such as occurred after the First World War."

Britain too has made steady if not spectacular progress in the solution of the housing problem. By the end of March 84,257 houses were in the course of construction and tenders have been approved or licences issued for another 66,637.

Britain has accepted without a murmur or complaint the task of helping to feed the people of the world even though the present situation forces upon Britain food stringency that not even the U-boat could force in war years. Green sums up "people in Britain recognize that planning on a world basis is as necessary for food as for peace and the new sacrifices are being cheerfully accepted."

Germany had caused great dislocation of the ordinary courses and channels of Europe for she made the war a war of world-wide effort for world domination. This was the gigantic evil which the United Nations were able to crush into the dust. The very dislocations the enemy caused are the proof of the greatness of the Allied victory over the forces of evil and tyranny. It was the greatest victory of all time because Germany was the most savage and powerful enemy of freedom and exponent of evil mankind has ever faced.

A year after the end of the war the world looks hopefully for the solution of the myriad of great problems which face the world's statesmen.

Caves Are No Solution

Disperse and go underground — such are the stern rules which would have to be laid down if there were to be any more wars. Industrial cities would have to be scattered and as far as possible hidden. The total appearance of the United States would be altered. From the air the country would seem quiet and idyllic, with workers coming to the surface at night and scurrying off in all directions to their neatly-camouflaged homes. Trees would wave their serene branches above diabolical machinery and explosives. The farmer would reap his wheat and corn to the vibrating bass song of subterranean activity.

We haven't reached the point of dispersal yet — and if it has to be for this reason let us pray we never will. But the army and navy, through their joint Munitions Board, are about to touch the fringes of the problem. They are sending experts into the nation's natural caverns to study such matters as floor and ceiling space for aircraft and machinery, natural concealment, humidity and temperature, overhead protection and cost of putting to use.

No one criticizes the army and navy in this detail. They are, as instructed, attending to the national defence They may startle some people into realizing the necessity for quick and adequate international action to prevent atomic wars. The news that the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission is now nearly complete, with the appointment of Mr. Gromyko as Russia's representative and Mexico's representative to be named, is more encouraging than would be the discovery of a cave big enough to take in the whole population of the United States.

Radar on Lake Ships

Announcement is made that the Canada Steamship Lines bulk carrier Lemoyne, is to be fitted up with radar. So far as known this 640-foot steamer, which is capable of carrying 500,000 bushels of grain in one cargo, is the first Canadian lake steamer, outside of government vessels, to be equipped with this new device which, according to information released afterwards, was one of the most important factors in winning the battle of Britain and in other war time successes.

Radar, as most readers, of course, are well aware, is a system by which radio waves are directed outward to be reflected or bounced back in a way that permits the making of a radar photo of what is ahead but otherwise not discernable because of darkness or fog. In effect it is a long distance vision under all conditions. The radar equipped steamer can see harbor outlines, lights, land, approaching ships, objects floating on the surface of the water or obstructions of any kind, day or night, fog or clear. Its advantage is, therefore obvious.

The use of this safety device opens up a field of speculation as to what it might have meant in years past in the saving of lives and prevention of ship losses. The probabilities are that the totals in both would have been large, reaching thousands of lives in the one case and millions of dollars in the other.

—Port Arthur News Chronicle.

Newspaper Facts

According to a statement by an officer of a Canadian Life Insurance Association: "Although radio, motion pictures and other media have an obvious appeal, the foundation of our public relations program has remained the press, and we feel that it will continue to do so."

It may come as a surprise to Ontarians to learn now that Winnipeg is the greatest fresh water fish distributing centre in the world, that Lake Winnipeg has now the largest annual fish production of any body of fresh water in Canada — topping the Canadian half of Lake Erie by 4,000,000 pounds — that this same Lake Winnipeg with its 9,000 square miles of area, is conceded to be the largest rendezvous for white-fish within any one Canadian province, London Free Press Notes.

LONELINESS

Starting out without: "Good bye!"
Coming in without: "Hellow!"
Never more the twinkling eye
And the kiss of long ago.

Smiles — the mask of sham at best,
Just an overcoat for pain —
Worn, as sentinels are dressed,
Standing duty in the rain.

Silence when you climb the stair!
Silence when you dim the light!
Then, what hardest is to bear:
Off to sleep without: Good night!"

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did "fixing political fences" originate?

A politician in office, particularly a member of Congress or a State legislature, who visits his home district to look after his political interests, to compose differences among his followers and to prepare for his re-election, is said to be out mending or fixing his fences.

The phrase arose from a casual remark made in a speech delivered at Mansfield, O., in 1879, by John Sherman, then Secretary of the Treasury in the Cabinet of President Rutherford B. Hayes.

In his "Recollections of Forty Years in the House, Senate and cabinet" (1895), the Ohio statesman—a brother of General William Tecumseh Sherman — related the history of the expression as follows:

"I went to Mansfield, and as my family was absent and the homestead occupied by comparative strangers, I stopped at the St. James Hotel, where, as was natural, I met a great many of my old neighbors and friends, both Democrats and Republicans, who welcomed me home.

"Among my visitors were several reporters from different parts of the country who wanted to interview me and especially to learn if I was a candidate for governor, and why I came home. In the afternoon I visited my farm near by and my homestead of about twenty acres adjoining the city. I found them in the usual neglected condition of the property of a non-resident proprietor, with many fences down. In the evening I was serenaded at the hotel and made a brief speech to a large audience, commencing as follows:

"'I am very happy to be again in your midst, to see your faces and to greet you as friends. The shaking of your hands is more grateful to me than the music of bands or any parade. I never felt like making an explanation in coming before you until now. I found when I arrived in my old home that the papers said I came west seeking the nomination for governor. I came purely on private business — to repair my fences and look after neglected property.'

"The reporters seized upon the reference to my fences, and construed it as having a political significance. The phrase 'mending fences' became a byword, and every politician engaged in said to be 'mending his fences'." said to be 'mending his fences.'"

BODY RECOVERED IN OTTAWA RIVER

Arnprior, Ont., May 7 — (CP) — The body of Leonard Lamourie, 48, of Arnprior was found exactly one month after he was drowned in the icy waters of the Ottawa River when a storm capsized a rowboat in which five persons were attempting to cross Chats Lake.

The body of FO. Thomas King, 21, of Ottawa, nephew of Lamourie has not yet been found. The other three occupants of the rowboat reached shore safely.

ARRESTED IN STORE

Windsor, May 7 (CP)—Arrested by city detectives in a store he recently purchased here, Michael Schwartz of Hamilton will return to that city in the custody of a Hamilton detective to answer a charge of receiving $400 in stolen bonds, part of a $20,000 loot taken from a private home there on March 5.

Hamilton police allege that Schwartz received the $400 in bonds, cashed them in Hamilton and came to Windsor province" at the disposal of the Dominion authorities in the war emergency.

Yields Greatest Field

"Now," said Premier Drew, "we come to the resumed Dominion-Provincial Conference at Ottawa when we found the Dominion government proposing a pact for three years whereby we still gave up our rights in corporation and personal income tax. These two taxing fields yield the greatest amount of money to the Province. The return is enormous, and the taxation is the most flexible of all. From these sources alone the Dominion collected $1,550,000,000."

If the Federal government was to have exclusive taxing power in these two fields, then it should vacate "minor fields of taxation where only $74,000,000 was collected. We asked that these fields be vacated to the Province, but Ottawa refused to allow these minor taxation fields for us."

Costs for social security were ever increasing. The Provincial government had the right and responsibility of maintaining such services as education, highway expansion and health service.

Conference Merely Adjourned.

"This government is not going to put the Province in the position of not being able to maintain its own standards in the fields of health, education and everything that affects the people," said Premier Drew.

The Dominion - Provincial Conference was merely adjourned, Premier Drew emphasized; it was adjourned so that all people might express their views "and that they should do so is of the utmost importance."

This led him to a discussion of democracy in which he said "there are fewer governments with control in the hands of the people than there have been for hundreds of years. The main reason for this is because the people lost interest in the details of their system of government. The result is that they lost strength and gave way to dictatorship."

Pays 48 Per Cent

Premier Drew also said it was sometimes forgotten how much the provinces pay to the Dominion in taxes. The Federal government's own figures showed that Ontario, with 32 per cent of the people in Canada, paid 48 per cent of all taxes collected by the Dominion. Ontario and Quebec paid 77 per cent; they with British Columbia paid 85½ per cent.

"It is no reflection on the remaining six provinces that they pay only 14½ per cent of the Dominion government's income. It is a matter of simple arithmetic."

Ontario admitted having some advantage in having many of the headquarters of industrial concerns within its bounds, but that feature was emphasized too much. "The fact is that the bulk of the taxes and the wealth from which they are drawn are not obtained from special advantages but from the hard work and effort of the people who make use of the resources of the province. We must be careful we do not produce a situation in which the capacity of the people of Ontario is limited. That would be disastrous to all the people of Canada."

Result of National Policy

It was also true that the production of Ontario was the result of some extent of national policy, he said. But many of these advantages were dependent on provincial and municipal administration.

He admitted also that much of Ontario's war-time production resulted from Federal contracts. These, he said, were merely "the green light" to the people's productive capacity. He mentioned that 90 per cent of the industrial production of Ontario relied on electrical energy produced by or for the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

"Ontario's production is no feature of any one government. It is a development of the whole organization.

"We should be willing to share our strength and wealth with others, remembering we are Canadians. But we should remember too our ability was not accidental, but the work of our people.

"We must give due regard to that in any arrangements we make"

Funk Denies Share in Nazi Economic Policies

Nuernberg, May 7 — (AP) — Walther Funk told the international military tribunal here Monday that Germany had kept her currency stable throughout the war and had "overthrown the old thesis that war disturbs monetary values," but he quickly disowned any share in Nazi economic policies.

The former Nazi economics minister and Reichsbank president, testifying in his own defence, said that Hermann Goering, as plenipotentiary of the four year plan, has dictated to the ministry of economics until 1942. After that it was Albert Speer who called the signals as minister of munitions, he said.

Funk admitted that he had issued decrees barring Jews from economic life after the anti-Semitic riots of 1938, but defended his actions on the ground that they served to insure the Jews from further terror. He said he gave them compensation for their confiscated businesses.

The moon-faced little defendant, who also served the Reich as press chief, said he had protested to propaganda minister Goebbels against anti-Jewish terrorism, but specified his complaint was based upon the fact that "valuable goods were being destroyed and relations abroad damaged."

IT'S UNWISE TO HAVE INDIGESTION

A man just past sixty, suddenly becomes interested in the prevention of cancer and in the early symptoms or warning signals which should send any intelligent person to his or her physician for examination. In some bulletin or pamphlet the man read that—well something about persistent indigestion—and presumably he is a pretty healthy man, for he doesn't seem to know what indigestion is. What, he asks, is indigestion.

Now, wait a minute before I get all tangled up trying to explain what indigestion is. Excuse me for thirty seconds, please, while I roll half a dozen somersaults—that'll give me a fresh start.

Thank you. Now, then, you want to know what indigestion is. I never consciously suggested that anybody ever has indigestion. But I imagine the cancer prevention people meant to tell you that any persistent ache, pain, discomfort or misery a mature adult feels in the region of the bread basket warrants examination by his or her physician instead of monkeying with diet, digestive tablets, antacids or just drifting along wondering or worrying about what it means.

At last that's all a complaint of "indigestion" means to me.

Quaint, the name indigestion. The old timers imagined that either your stomach ran out of pepsin or of hydrochloric acid or both, or your pancreas quit supplying the several enzymes of ferments which are essential for the digestion of carbohydrate, protein and fat. So they fed patients who complained of "indigestion" an amazing number of "digestive tablets", powders and liquids containing these things. There is precious little evidence that digestive tablets, fluids or powders are of any benefit. But don't let me discourage you, if you dote on one thing or another in that line.

In one way it is risky telling a modern doctor that you have indigestion. Right away he begins to think of your appendix or your gall-sac—and you know where that is likely to land you.

In another way it is risky even trying to kid yourself that you have a little indigestion—or acidity—or gas—because, my friend, between you and me and the operating-room that is as foolish as it is dangerous, that is, if you decide that all you need is something to neutralize the acid or absorb or drive off the gas. The truth is that excess acid or bloating by gas or "pressure" on the heart by gas cannot account for any serious trouble or distress.

All this is pretty unsatisfactory, no doubt, but let me give you one bit of good advice: If you have any trouble you ascribe to gas, excess acidity or indigestion, don't waste time or money on nostrums. Consult a physician.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Ca and D for Rheumatism

Within 48 hours after I started giving my 14-year-old daughter calcium and vitamin D as you suggest in the pamphlet all the arthritis pains left and before the end of two weeks the swellings were gone. That was a year ago, and no relapse since. She is well, thanks to your kindness.

(Mrs. W. C. A.)

Answer—We don't know how much old A. J. Coincidence had to do with it. However, the calcium and vitamin D can do no harm in any case. On written request (no clipping, please) I am glad to send the pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatiz" to any one who provides regular size (not top) envelope bearing stamp and address."

Poor Man's Insulin

Please tell me what is "poor man's insulin" and have you a booklet on diabetes? (P.L.)

Answer—I called an adequate daily intake of vitamin B1 (thiamine) "poor man's insulin" because it is essential for carbohydrate (starch and sugar) metabolism or utilization. Further information in booklet "Trainng for Diabetes"—for copy send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

The Grand Hotel at Borth, Cardinganshire, is going to become a Welsh National centre to train youth leaders in the 18-30 age group.

The 100-room building has been bought by D. J. James, native of Pontrhydfendigaid who made a fortune out of London movie theatres, for presentation to the Welsh Youth League—Urdd Gobaith Cymru.

Easily assessible from central, north and south Wales, the hotel overlooks Cardigan Bay, close to the two-mile beaches of Borth and Ynyslas. It will become the hub of the league's whole scheme of youth clubs, recreation centres and hostels.

Few changes will be needed to fit the hotel for its new use—but the pub licence is being dropped.

Shipping problem: Northern Ireland no longer is a stop for Trans-Atlantic passenger ships and Belfast Lough probably won't see them again for a long time.

Even the tender Robina has been sold because available traffic from ship to shore is insufficient to keep her in use.

Scots lagging: The old stories about the penny-pinching Scotsman don't apply to claims for family allowances.

Scotland is lagging well behind England and Wales in claiming benefits with more than 1,750,000 applications still to come in. And officials of the National Insurance Ministry say that was what they expected.

"Scots caution stops the people from committing themselves in a hurry," said a government spokesman. "Scots people don't like disclosing personal facts to other people; and returns from rural areas come in slower, anyway."

Reputation of Canadian Bacon Higher Than Any Previous Time

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 7 — (CP)—Grocers from Inverness to Southampton have responded to Canadian accents in their shops by saying Canadian bacon is good but it still is a question whether the ordinary British housewife knows that the three ounces weekly she can buy usually is available by grace of the Dominion.

The housewife may well be the deciding factor in determining what share of the British market Canadian bacon will hold when normal conditions return in the movement of food. Some 80 per cent of the bacon ration was maintained by imports from Canada during the war and the proportion remains large in spite of decreased Canadian shipments and the reappearance of Danish supplies on the market.

Food ministry spokesmen said the reputation of Canadian bacon in the United Kingdom almost surely stands higher than at any previous time.

"As a result, Canadian bacon should, when conditions return to normal, be in a better condition to stand up to competition of bacon of other nationalities than was the case in pre-war days."

However, grocers told The Canadian Press that while they knew unsliced bacon came from Canada because of markings on sides, there was no way for their customers, apart from actual inquiry, to know the sliced product was Canadian. One of the hopes of Canadian business men visiting the United Kingdom is that packaging regulations soon will be eased to the point where small Canadian goods like bacon may be marked and ordinary people will know what they are buying.

In the meantime, it is common to see a person smacking his lips over a piece of bacon and saying "That's good, must be Danish." The pre-war idea was that fine bacon came from Denmark and that North American bacon was too fat.

Canada provided 519,262 hundredweight of the total of 593,252 imported by the United Kingdom in the first two months of 1946. Denmark, completely out of field in 1945, provided 73,484 hundredweight in the same two months of 1946.

Municipalities' Finance Officials Discuss Problems

London, Ont., May 7 — (CP)— Financial officials of 125 municipalities, townships and counties in Ontario are attending the eighth annual convention of the Ontario Chapter, Municipal Finance Officers' Association of the United States and Canada here. Sessions continue today.

Financial problems facing the smaller communities were presented to the assembly by Lt. Col. W. D. Stalker, town clerk of Simcoe.

In the average town 90 per cent of the municipal revenue is derived from taxation on real estate, Whether or not this proportion of expenses for municipal services should be so collected is open for debate," Col. Stalker said, pointing out that large sums are collected in American centres from other sources.

"More than half the revenue of Kansas City comes from taxation sources other than property tax. An adoption of this method in Canadian cities may call for a revision of municipal finance structure," he said.

"Some of the revenues which towns might consider are those derived from parking meters, sewer rates, moving picture theatres and from a review of licences and permits generally with regard to revenue as well as regulation."

Russia Can Ease Food Situation Says Hoover

Tokyo, May 7 — (AP)—"The whole (world food) situation would be greatly helped," Herbert Hoover said Monday, "if Russia would release to China and Korea a part of the food stuffs they have secured in Manchuia."

The former United States president and chairman of President Truman's emergency famine committee made the assertion in a formal press conference statement which began:

"Japan must have some food imports. Without them, all Japan will be on a ration little better than that which the Germans gave to Buchenwald and Belsen concentration camps."

Hoover told the press conference he based his statement on information from Gen. MacArthur's occupation headquarters.

"The amounts (of food imports) required for Japan," the statement said, "will not prejudice supplies to China, India, the Phillippines or Korea— provided there is full co-operation in supply and distribution over the entire world during the crisis between now and next harvest."

Prof. Halperin Elects Speedy Trial by Judge

Ottawa, May 7 (CP) — Prof. Israel Halperin of Queen's University has elected speedy trial by judge, it was learned Monday a few hours before eight other alleged links in a Russian espionage network were scheduled to go before the Ontario Supreme Court here.

A former army ballistics expert, Halperin, 35, will appear before Judge Gordon McDougall of the Carleton County Court here May 21 as the third among 14 persons charged in Canada to choose this non-jury alternative.

The other two, Mrs. Emma Woikin and Miss Kathleen Mary Willsher, were sentenced to Kingston penitentiary for 2 1-2 and three years respectively.

Saturday was the deadline for election of speedy trial by accused here and only Halperin's name was entered on the future docket of the county court.

This apparently means that Mr. Justice J. C. McRuer will open the Spring Assizes of the Ontario Supreme Court at two p.m., E.D.T. today with eight espionage cases before him.

They are those of D. G. Lunan., E. W. Mazerall, Sqdr. Ldr. F. W. Poland, M. S. Nightingale, H. S. Gerson, J. S. Benning., Durnford Smith and Eric Adams.

Of the 14 detained in Canada, two now have been imprisoned, one—Dr. Davis Shugar—has been discharged as a free man, two will be tried in Montreal, eight before an Ontario Supreme Court jury and one before a County Court judge here.

The public is expected to hear little of what goes on in the Supreme Court for possibly a week. A grand jury will spend that time deciding whether there is enough evidence to warrant trial by a petit jury in the eight cases.

Teen-age Council Shows Example To 2,700 Citizens

Bracebridge, Ont., May 7 — (CP) — This Muskoka district summer resort town of 2,700 citizens tried out a new council last week composed entirely of teenagers and the citizens are looking for "as good a job" from the regular town officials.

The scheme was sponsored by a service club (Rotary) to acquaint young people with the problems of municipal politics and to encourage youth to take a greater interest in town affairs. The election was held at the high school with seven students running for the mayoralty and 23 for council seats.

Elected mayor was Keith Minns, 17. He whipped his council into shape and after a conference with the "real" mayor and council members took over entirely.

The first matter on the crowded agenda was a town clean-up week. All merchants and residents who kept untidy places were fined $2. Then the "mayor and council" set about ordering an improvised traffic control system, sign posts, rest rooms in the business district, improvement of the parks and numbering of all houses.

SUSPEND TWO HOTELS

Toronto, May 7 — (CP) — The Liquor Authority Control Board of Ontario Monday announced suspension of two Toronto hotels and a Chatham club. Scholes Hotel at Toronto was suspended for two weeks for overloading tables, permitting the beverage room to become overcrowded and for permitting men unaccompanied by women to enter the women's beverage room. The White Castle Inn at Toronto was suspended for one week and the Chatham Golf and Country Club at Chatham for two weeks, both for failure to observe regular closing hours.

Europe Watching Czech Elections

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Prague, May 7—(CP)—Europe is carefully watching the general election campaign in Czechoslovakia which reaches its climax May 26 when men and women of 18 years of age and up will elect a 300-member constituent assembly from candidates of the four permitted parties.

This is Czechoslovakia's first free vote since the country's liberation one year ago and there is no question but that it will be a free vote. Czechoslovakia is no police state although it is in the dead centre of Europe between the conflicting ideologies of Russia and the Western Allies.

Czech leaders are unanimous that Russia is not seeking to influence the elections or Czech politics directly or indirectly.

One of the most objective members of the government told The Canadian Press he thought the Communists and Czech Socialists would be about equal in the vote followed by the People's party, also called the Catholic party, with the Social Democrats trailing.

At present all four parties share in the coalition government and they agree that regardless of how the election goes, the coalition will be continued. The top member of the leading party will become prime minister, a post now held by Zdenek Fierlinger, a Social Democrat and a supporter of Russia.

The new assembly will draft a new Czech constitution and the real parliament of the republic will be elected as soon as it becomes law. In this respect the situation here parallels France. Another similarity is the prominent position of the Communist party which claims more than 1,000,000 members in the country's population of 10,000,000.

So far, no political organization has appeared which formally opposes the four-party coalition.

The most respected Czech figure, Dr. Eduard Benes, stands aloof from politics now although he used to lead the Czech Socialists.

Two Crew Members Washed Overboard

Prince Rupert, B.C., May 7 — (CP) — Two crew members of the halibut boat, Edward Lipsett, were washed overboard Saturday by a giant wave which almost took the life of a third man when a sudden storm blew up over a calm sea. Missing are Andrew Sorensen, 59, and Ragnar Fredericksen, 36, while a third member of the four-man boat, Gilbert Ervick is recovering from bruises suffered when he clung to the gear hanging over the boat's side after he, too, had been swept into the sea.

All Business Brokers, Salesmen Must Be Licensed

Toronto, May 7 —(CP)— On and after June 1, all business brokers and salesmen in Ontario must be licensed under the same provincial legislation as real estate brokers and salesmen, it was announced today by Harold A. Tanton, registrar of the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act 1946, who will administer the Act intendent of insurance.

The new act, which replaces on June 1 the Real Estate Brokers Act currently administered by the Ontario Securities Commission under which real estate brokers and salesmen have been operating since 1937, requires all persons and companies acting as agents in the sale, rental or exchange of real estate and businesses to qualify for license and be bonded. The bonding requirement covers salesmen as well as brokers.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She Wants an Indifferent Young Man to be More Interested in Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 22 years old and in love with a boy 24, but he isn't in love with me. He says he likes my company very much but doesn't want to go steady.

When we are out together, he always likes to kiss me. He asked me for two dates and quit. He always has to be asked to come again and he does. I can't quite make him out. He acts as if he was afraid of me, or afraid of falling in love with me.

Should I forget him or go on trying to win his love? I have tried so hard to forget him. We worked in the same place, and I even quit my job and went to work somewhere else, but he's still on my mind.

Mixed-up.

Why waste your time over a young man who is so indifferent that he has to be coaxed to come and see you? I doubt if the trouble is that he's afraid either of you or of falling in love with you. I think he's just plain uninterested, don't you—honestly now? And I wouldn't try to kid myself that it means a thing because he kisses you when you're out together. That's routine, you know, with many young men these days.

I think you'd be smart if you dropped him like a hot potato—or like the cold fish he seems to be—and started having good times with other young men. That's the way to get him out of your mind fastest.

She Was Too Hasty in Brushing Off This Young Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About two years ago I met a very nice young man in a defence plant where we were both employed.

One day when he asked me to go out with him I said yes, and then someone told me he was married, so I broke the date. A few months later I found out he wasn't married, but it was too late then, because he had asked me out every day for over a month, and then just before I found out he wasn't married, he stopped, and said he would never ask me again.

As soon as the war was over, I left the plant and didn't see him any more. I've tried awfully hard to forget him, but every time I'm with other young men, I just keep wishing it was him I'm with, and I keep hoping that some day he'll call me up. I don't really want to forget him, but if you think I should, can you tell me how.

"Very Much in Love"

Now weren't you the silly girl just to believe what someone told you, instead of telling the young man right out that you'd love to go out with him but you'd heard he was married, and was he or wasn't he? Then he could have set you straight at once. Why in the world did you let him keep on asking you out and never give him an inkling of why you wouldn't go?

I don't see that there's anything you can do about the situation now, unless you know his address and could write him a little note giving him a belated explanation and suggesting he come to see you. Otherwise, you'd certainly better just forget about him, and you can if you really want to by concentrating on the young men who take you out instead of thinking about this other man all the time you're with them. It's sort of silly, isn't it, to say you've tried hard to forget this man and then in the next sentence say you don't want to forget him? It would be closer to the truth, I think, to say that the reason you haven't been able to forget him is because you don't really want to. Better start really wanting!

A Thirteen-Year-Old Feels Lonely and Friendless

Dear Miss Fairfax:

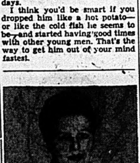
I am a freshman in High School and have just reached the ripe age of 13 years. I am lucky enough to have two parents, but they are inclined to be old-fashioned and quite strict. Because of this, I find myself quite lonely and friendless most of the time. I do not think my mother understands me, and I almost know she does not try.

I am considered a baby by most of my schoolmates, and because, I do not attend the canteens, etc., I know nothing about them, and when consulted, I feel very ignorant. I tried to impress upon my parents that even though I'm 13, I am in a class with older girls and boys, and not the 11- and 12-year-olds I would be with if I hadn't jumped two grades in public school.

"Forlorn"

I have an idea that the real cause of your trouble is not your mother so much as it is the fact that you jumped the grades and now find yourself in a class with older girls and boys, who feel themselves older than you, and so do not, perhaps, make you as welcome as they should. Don't you think, maybe, this is true? It is rather a difficult position for you to be in, and I can quite understand how you might often feel lonely.

I'm sure your parents would want you to have friends and good times like all the others, except that they probably feel you are pretty young to be out late nights and that sort of thing. How about asking them if you can't have a party and invite some of your schoolmates? They'd probably be glad to help you plan one and do their best to make it a success. That might open the way to more good times with the other boys and girls of a kind your parents would approve.



Mrs. W. Sloan, 265 Hunter St., Peterborough, writes: "I have used Super Suds for years and I find it wonderful for washing clothes. Dirt comes out without rubbing. The EXTRA-SUDSY Super Suds sure proved to me that the more suds you have the less work you have to do to get things clean."

Thank you, Mrs. Sloan, for your grand letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power . . . livelier, richer suds, without hard rubbing. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

"SALADA" TEA

A meal for Mother's night out!

Here's how I make one wonderful hurry-up supper dish.

First, I toss those left-over vegetables, lettuce, ham or chicken into a salad bowl. Next (and here's the trick) I add golden zestful strips of Borden's Chateau Cheese.

There you are—the kind of exciting treat the family really goes for!

For working meal-miracles there is really nothing like Chateau.

..."And Then There Were None"

Harold was just an old sheep-counter. Every night, before he got to sleep, he counted thousands of sheep . . .

Then one day an Experienced Friend suggested maybe it was the caffein in the Tea and Coffee he drank that kept the sheep jumping over the fence . . .

So Harold STOPPED tea and coffee, and changed to POSTUM . . .

And right away he only got a few hundred sheep over the fence before sleep overcame him . . .

And in a few nights only a dozen . . .

And then there were none!

Many people can safely drink tea and coffee. But others are upset by the caffein these beverages contain. If you find yourself sleepless, nervous, irritable—try changing to Postum. You'll like its rich, heart-warming flavor. Not like tea, not like coffee, just a grand flavor all its own.

Easy to fix—make Postum right in the cup just by adding boiling water or hot milk. Costs less than 1¢ a serving.

Big Success

By ALICE ALDEN

ONE FASHION that came out of the war has not only persisted but is going bigger and better than ever. We have in mind the ubiquitous over-the-shoulder bag, ideal for the busy woman who wants her hands free, smart for the simply attired girl in town or country. Richard Koret uses calf in timber shades and in black, blue or red for this finely detailed whopper which features a "Butterfly" opening, and which looks as though it would be a good pouch in which to carry important State documents! It is swell in the city or at a restort, and ideal for the commuting shopper.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S EASY—and fun, too—to dress up a bolero suit. A simple white pique blouse sets the pace for office wear, while for dates the suit becomes transformed with an old-fashioned lace ascot and ruffled jabot.

Luscious frocks—of soft, fine woollens in delicate hues—are here for late Spring wear. Deep cream yellow sheer wool crepe is used for a dainty frock made with deep, scooped-out oval neckline and push-up sleeves. Soft, full-in-front skirt is held by a very wide belt of softly crushed yellow calfskin that has a self-bow with gilt metal ends. Closes with gilt buttons in back.

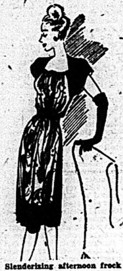
A good way to tie up the vogue for the plastic patent handbag and shoe is to supplement one or both of these with a matching belt. A nice choice might be a wide belt of black plastic backed with plaid taffeta and closed by a large mother-of- pearl buckle.

A fine beach companion is a pancho of Terry cloth in bold red or blue and white stripes. Open on the sides, it can be spread out flat and used as a throw. Made with a tie-belt stitched on in back and two big patch pockets.

Evenly divided is the comment on consumer demand for bags of the dressy and the tailored type For those preferring the latter style, there's a smart square bag in suede or faille with shell side panels. It opens out like a book to reveal nice inner compartments and a zipper change purse.

The finishing touch to the fine suit or dress is the right glove. Cited for wear with town sheers or prints is an eight-button length glove in very thin, supple glace kid, in navy or black with perforations in the form of a plume all the way up the arm.

Scarf-Front Dress



Slenderizing afternoon frock

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

THE SCARF has worked itself nicely into the mode, doubling as a blouse, as an apron and also as an integral part of a dress, as is the case with this design. It is a pure silk scarf in an exquisite design in flamboyant colors that forms the entire front of a dress the balance of which is fine black crepe. It is gathered from a round neckline which ties through a drawstring in a string bow. A black patent belt helps achieve a slim waistline. This is an especially good model since the dark part makes for seemingly slender hips.

Try a Lemon and Oil Pack

Dip a heavy washcloth in hot water and give your face a good steaming

By HELEN FOLLETT

SHOULD it happen that your complexions looks all tired out, and you have a spare half hour in the evening, you may like to spread on a lemon and oil pack. This treatment is of value as a cleansing agent. It digs out black points, softening the little masses of sebaceous wax that clog tthe orifices.

It has mild bleaching properties, and it will smooth a rough surface. Doesn't cost anything, either. That makes it extra nice.

Bland Soap

Wash your celestial countenance with a bland soap and warm water. Rinse and dry, apply a light cream, go over the skin surface with tapping movements to make the blood streams dance.

You will tone the tiny fibres under the skin, which is a good idea if you fear that birthdays revealing, that tissues have softened. Just as well to have a weather eye on the future. Remove the cream.

Take the strained juice of three lemons, combine with three tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Dip a pad of absorbent cotton in hot water, press it fairly dry. Dip the pledget in the dressing, slap it on the flesh until all the surface is covered, including the neck.

Good Steaming

Sit down and read your mystery story for twenty minutes. Dip a heavy wash cloth in hot water, give your face a good steaming.

At this point you trot to the refrigerator for an ice cube that is to be frisked around over the skin to bring a quick reaction.

The girl who has to battle freckles all summer long will do well to give herself the lemon and oil treatment once or twice a week. She should make it a practice not to use soap and water just before exposure to strong sunlight, or right after coming in from out of doors.

A foundaton cosmetic protects against winds, sun and atmospheric dust that are enemies of the complexion.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Middle-Aged? What of it?

Youth and Beauty Inc., has plenty of business to do. It has to keep a keen eye on the latest fashions as well as the latest dance steps. If there is a new hair-do budding, Youth and Beauty, Inc., plucks it before it is in full bloom. Being attractive—in one's young days—is an occupation, a pursuit, a vocation.

When this state of exhilaration continues middle-age does not mean a thing. If a woman of fifty isn't well-dressed and good-looking it is because she has never tried to learn what can be gained in the way of modern improvements. One must not lose enthusiasm or faith in one's efforts to be charming.

In middle-age life may have laid heavy responsibilities on one. Even so, they will be lighter if the spirit is gay and cheerful. If a woman is not to be jostled to the sidelines, put out of social circulation, she must give consideration to the reflection in the mirror. It won't do to slip up on good-looks chores. When one does that the old-age bogy is waiting for her—the old-age state of mind, rather than state of body. External defects are overlooked and forgotten if the step is light, eyes bright, laughter on the lips.

The woman of fifty must remember that she is midway in the 100 year war against Time. She must keep on fighting.

Those little wrinkles around her eyes! Laughing wrinkles, they call them, but they're no joke. They must be massaged lightly with a cream every night. Ice-cold compacts are helpful; they make the blood streams romp, restore tissues that have become relaxed.

The neck must be watched. Thin ones and fat ones often take on furrows. Start the face-creaming at the line of the collar-bones, then the neck will not be overlooked. Stroke up and down with flattened fingers. Turn the head from side to side to keep muscles strong and resilient. When powdering, be sure to include the neck.

If a woman isn't well-dressed it's her own fault

A hat can give a look of age or youth. She who places upon her head a stiff, kettle-shaped lid may consider it suitable to her dignity and years, but why must she treat herself unkindly? There are plenty of cute tricks to be found. After all, middle-age is only a little extension of one's younger days.

Only certain women should wear black; it drains the skin of coloring. Don't be afraid of wearing gay colors; they'll do things to your soul.

There is that all-important matter of the figure. Not for a moment must one's back bend, one's shoulder slump, feet push along. Keep alert. Be fully alive. And never forget how to play.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Beau for her Spring Formal

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My school is soon to have a Spring Formal, and each girl is to invite a boy. I would like very much to ask a boy I know only slightly and with whom I have never had a date. Is it proper for me to do this? And if it is, how should I invite him?

M. R.

Of course you really should, if possible, invite to such an important occasion a boy whom you know better. However, if you want to take a chance on inviting this boy you mention, I suggest that you write him a note of invitation. . . . this makes it easy for him to accept or regret, as he wishes.

Wedding on Limited Budget

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Because of a limited budget, I am planning my church wedding as simply as possible. I will have a maid of honor and two bridesmaids.

1. If we do not wish formal afternoon wear for the men in the wedding party, and they do not all own dark blue afternoon suits, is it permissible for them to wear tuxedos?

2. We would like to avoid, or at least cut down on, the expense of having engraved wedding invitations and announcements. Would it be proper to invite the guests personally and by informal notes? Or could we have engraved invitations for only those who are going to be invited to both ceremony and reception? We have many relatives and are planning a fairly large family reception.)

3. To whom would be send announcements under the above circumstances?

R. P.A.

1. Tuxedos are appropriate for evening wear, and they shouldn't be worn before six o'clock in the evening at the earliest. Rather than have the men wear tuxedos at an afternoon wedding, it is better for them to wear whatever shade of business suit they have. . .or perhaps those who haven't dark blue suits can borrow these from friends of similar size!

2. For such an informal wedding as you are planning your guests may properly be invited verbally or by notes. Or if you especially wish some engraved invitations, you may have these for the ceremony—invitations, and invite the reception guests verbally.

3. Announcements of the marriage are sent only to those who were not invited to either the ceremony or reception.

Cronin's Critics Handcuffed By 11-Game Red Sox Streak; Top American Loop by 3 Games

Team Has .316 Batting Average and Ten of Eleven Pitchers Go the Route

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Joe Cronin's critics must be hard up for ammunition today with Boston Red Sox winging away to an 11-game winning streak and topping the American League by three lengths.

Cronin's gang is the hottest thing in baseball this springtime season with the sluggers beating out a .316 team average during the victory spree and 10 of 11 starting pitchers going the route.

The letdown may be terrific later on for the Sox haven't been far from home during the first 3 weeks of the campaign but they have proved to be a well-balanced club with a little more pitching than had been expected.

Tex Hughson, Dave Ferriss and Mickey Harris were supposed to carry the weight but Joe Dobson, generally overlooked in the early calculations, has been taking the bows with Harris on a 4-0 win record.

It was Dobson who handed Hal Newhouser his first loss of the season last week and it was the same 29-year-old righthander who kept the Sox streak alive by winning yesterday's 5-4 second game from St. Louis after Ferriss had taken the opener, 7-5.

Makes Few Mistakes

Although Cronin's managerial qualities were the subject of considerable debate during spring training, he has made few mistakes. George Metkovich, his choice to plug the right field gap, has been hitting hard and Rudy York, a doubtful factor at Sarasota, has regained some of his old power. Rookie Eddie Pellagrini has done a good job at third base, another vulnerable spot in the Sox lineup.

Left fielder Ted Williams has been living up to all expectations with a .411 mark (.481 during the winning streak); shortstop Johnny Pesky leads the league with a gaudy .430. Centre fielder Dominic DiMaggio and catcher Hal Wagner give Boston the first four hitters in the circuit.

Lee Beat Yankees

Boston gained 1½ games on New York Yankees who fell before Chicago's Thornton Lee, 2-1. Lee, a 38-year-old lefthander, came up with his first decision of the year on an eight-hit effort against Floyd Bevens, winning his own game with a two-run single.

Steve O'Neill could find encouraging signs in Virgil Trucks' six-hit performance for Detroit against Philadelphia as the Tigers earned a 3-1 decision over Penetanguishene's Phil Marchildon, making his first start of the year. Jimmy Outlaw's homer helped the Tiger cause.

Walt Masterson's relief chucking enabled Washington to make it two straight over Cleveland, 7-4, despite homers by Hank Edwards and Ken Keltner. Jeff Heath hit a two-run home run for the winners in the fourth off loser Steve Gromek.

No games were scheduled in the National League.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS AGAIN HEADING INT. LEAGUE

Down Rochester on Dick Wahl's Single in the Eleventh Frame

(By The Associated Press)

Syracuse was back at the head of the parade in the International League today, aided by inclement weather which continued to disrupt play.

The Chiefs downed Rochester Red Wings 7-6 on Dick Wahl's eleventh-inning single at Rochester yesterday to take over the League lead from the Newark Bears, whose scheduled game at Montreal again was rained out.

Jersey City's contest at Toronto also had to be postponed, because of cold weather, and Baltimore and Buffalo were not scheduled.

Thus the Newark Bears jumped in and out of the top spot in a matter of some 24 hours, without having a hand in either move.

At Rochester, the Chiefs and Red Wings banged out a total of 32 hits in their extra-inning struggle and Bill Sinton, who led the 18-hit Syracuse attack with four blows, started the winning rally with a double, scoring later on Wahl's timely single.

All eight teams are scheduled today and, if the weather does not interfere further, the Newark Bears will have an extra chance to recapture the lead since they meet the Montreal Royals twice.

Philadelphia May Have Three Hockey Teams Next Year

Philadelphia, May 7 — (AP) — Possibility that Philadelphia may have three hockey teams next season was indicated today.

An arena spokesman said the arena planned to continue to operate its eastern league franchise — the Falcons — as a "farm" club for its American League team.

At the same time, spokesmen for Leonard A. Peto, Montreal sportsman who is attempting to have a National League franchise transferred here, said his plans remain "unchanged."

Peto has announced plans to construct a $2,500,000 arena on the site of the Phillies' old ball park.

Meanwhile, the arena disclosed taking steps to strengthen its American League team, the first here since 1942. The team's manager, Herb Gardiner, said he would go to Canada in August to inspect several training camps, one in Cornwall. Gardiner said he would complete plans for setting up a training camp system with drills to begin Sept. 15.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Cincinnati, May 7 (AP)—From the viewpoint of an interested outsider, it seems that baseball's current plagues—the Mexican Jumpers and the Players Guild—offer Commissioner A. B. Chandler a grand opportunity to show that he's the real foreman of the baseball ranch… If Chandler can work out some plan of vigorous action to cope with these two problems and put it into effect, with or without the co-operation of the club owners, there'll be no doubt about his being the head man… So far no one in organized baseball has done much, except the Yanks and Dodgers with injunction proceedings and Clark Griffith with his remarks about the players' organization… This might even be the time to devise a new form of baseball contract which would lessen the "evils" the Guild complains about and which the players might regard with more respect—even in the face of $100,000 offers.

Silent Man

These various thoughts were suggested to Chandler yesterday and the Commissioner, with the wisdom accumulated during a year in office, kept his lips tightly closed… Come to think of it, maybe the fact Happy won't talk is a news item in itself… He certainly did plenty—as he admits himself—when he first started in the game.

A Too-Hot Tamale

Chandler won't even say "Mexico" out loud, but he points out the situation might have been different if "those people" had approached organized baseball… "We could have helped them get organized," Happy maintains, ignoring the fact that the Mexican League has been organized for years. "We have plenty of players now and could do it… We could even play off against their winner. It would be fine to have a series between, say, New York and London… I never noticed those fellows offering to help carry the burden when there weren't enough ball players to go around. Now that baseball is prosperous, they try to start something… And if somebody comes out and says he's going to destroy baseball, what would you do?… Just roll up your sleeves and say 'let's see you try it.'"

• • •

A lot of desks in the U. S. A. and Canada were the cynosure of derisive eyes of other members of newspaper staffs on Blue Monday morning. Heroes of the athletic mills who went out on the limb to call the win place and show entries in the Kentucky Derby, are, in a number of cases, hiding behind chairs; left the city because of sudden illness of the mother-in-law, or facing the ribbing music with complexions which come under the color head of scarlet.

• • •

Take Jim Doyle of the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Jimmy's Derby eyes could see nothing but Lord Boswell, Knockdown and Perfect Bahram, the Maine Chance entries as finishing one-two-three. You know the rest.

And here's the reason why Jimmy's chest has shrunk to a 24; his hat sits down prettily on his ears, and he wears cotton batting in those members whenever the Derby story is brought up in the office. For Jimmy not only climbed out on a limb, in fact he covered an entire forest. Here are some of his pre-Derby prognostications:

• • •

Louisville, May 3—Slopportunity is calling, and you've got to like Lord Boswell to be the first to answer on the morrow in the 72d and the richest and perhaps the soupiest Kentucky Derby of them all.

Comment: Jim rates 50% on this one. The race was the richest, but not the soupiest.

"With the Lord on her side, along with Knockdown and Perfect Bahram, Mrs. Elizabeth Arden-Graham comes up with a triple threat that shouldn't be stopped or topped, and if all three of them should get their come-uppance, you'll have the winner."

• • •

Comment: Tsk, Tsk. Look where they finished.

• • •

"The Lord or one of those other mudlarking Graham crackers will be hotter on this fourth day of May than a firecracker on the Fourth of July."

Comment: This one burned up the bettors. They must use those Fourth of July crackers in Cleveland in place of ice cubes.

"Hampden might have enough hop in the slop to fetch the Foxcatcher Farms' silks into the place pocket, and Mr. Bill Helis' Rippey could be zippy enough to show and you can have the rest of them."

Comment: This one is the only call that Jim gets any consolation from Hampden finished exactly where he said he would—but as far as Mr. Helis' Rippey is concerned, a lot of wise ones are wondering where in helis the nag.

• • •

"Assault, did somebody say?… Why, Lord Boswell will be an assault shaker any time Sharp Stirrupper Eddie Arcaro asks him to do the shaking."

Comment: Yuk, Yuk, Yuk—Lord Boswell in the role of Assault shaker apparently needs more seasoning. Foot of the class, James.

"Spy Song… The Song may lead a hit parade later on…not tomorrow."

Comment: And how the Spy sang. Why shouldn't he? The "Lord" was behind him.

• • •

"Lord Boswell will give them a fast answer — long distance."

Comment: The only long distance connected with the race as far as the Boswell was concerned, was the telephone call home relaying the bad news.

"The Graham crackers are cookies just too tough—that's all—for the plentiful sloposition."

Comment: Not the cookies that mudder used to make, nor do they make mudders. Like wartime girdles, when they came to the stretch, they were done.

"When Lord Boswell comes tearing up that home stretch, there'll be great tearing-up of tickets on everything but the Graham crackers."

Comment: Take out everything but and you have it.

• • •

Mrs. Graham, who made her fortune in mud (beauty preparations, you know) before she entered the racing game, is said to agree with Heady Eddie Arcaro that Lord Boswell is THE one of her three to beat.

Eddie had his pick of the Maine Chance hot ones, and he said he reckoned that nothing could knock down Lord Boswell—not even Knockdown.

Eddie's Glorious Fourth will be—on this Fourth of May.

Comment: You forgot to add "In Fourth Place," Jimmy.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By PIERRE LE MOYNE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 7 — (CP)—The one unmistakable fact emerging from the three-way "rhubard" involving golf groups in Canada, the United States and Britain is that the top-notch British golfers do not wish to participate in international competition for another year, writes Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll. They just aren't ready, that's all.

The "rhubard" of course was all brought about by statements in the British press expressing doubts of the authenticity of the phenomenally low scores posted by American pros in tournament play this past winter and early spring.

The Americans contended that Britons couldn't match U.S. scores because there wasn't anyone in the old country capable of carrying the clubs of Byron Nelson, Sam Snead, Ben Hogan and others Canada came in at this juncture with the Montreal, Beaconsfield Club offering Henry Cotton and 3 other top British pros, $2,000 in cash prizes and all expenses to meet four top United States golfers in a best-ball match June 26, the day previous to the opening of the Canadian Open on the same course, to settle the matter once and for all.

Cotton and other top - ranking British golfers declined the invitation because of its close proximity to the British Open tournament which starts July 2 and Fred Corcoran, tournament manager of the U. S. Professional Golfers' Association, is another who thinks the time alibi is "just a way out of it."

Corcoran sympathizes with the British shotmakers, however, in their desire to postpone international competition for a year as he figures it will take them that long to get "tournament tough" again. He thinks another advantage the British may have is that the top-ranking United States golfers may not be by that time equal to the par they set this year.

"You can be overgolfed as well as undergolfed," he said, "and I think that's what is wrong with Byron Nelson right now."

It has been said that Nelson and other American pros would not be able to score on those wind-blown British courses with their jungle-like rough and acre-large greens but a peek at the past reveals that those conditions didn't give Bobby Jones or Walter Hagen too much trouble. Both managed to win the British Open and, in fact, Jones won it three times — in 1926, 1927 and 1930. He also won the British amateur tournament twice. When he won at St. Andrews in 1927, he carried the lowest score — by six strikes — ever returned in a British Open up to that time.

Conditions on this continent seem to bother the British pros far more and not one of them has done anything phenomenal in tournament play this side of the water.

WRIGLEY SAYS NO NIGHT BALL FOR CHICAGO CUBS

Will Not Install Lights at Wrigley Field Believing Baseball Daytime Sport

Chicago, May 7. (AP)—Let all the other major league club owners thump a "night-and-day" tune on their cash registers, P. K. Wrigley says baseball is a daytime sport and his Chicago Cubs are going to keep it that way.

Wrigley, who nearly installed arclights at Wrigley Field during the war, said today he has wrapped those plans in mothballs.

In the American League, Boston Red Sox recently voted to put up lamps in 1947. Thus, Detroit Tigers in the junior circuit and Chicago in the National are the only lightless contenders among the 16 major league entries.

"There is only one thing might make me change my mind, and that would be if the public demanded night baseball," said Wrigley. "Our attendance, however, indicates that fans want their baseball and sunshine at the same time."

In eight home appearances this season, including last Sunday's doubleheader with the lowly Philadelphia Phils which drew a record crowd of 45,505 fans, the Cubs have played before nearly 180,000 paid admissions. A Saturday game with the St. Louis Cards April 20, attracted 40,887.

The Cubs were in the process of installing lights in 1941 and had 165 tons of steel, 35,000 feet of copper wire and other equipment on hand when the Japs struck at Pearl Harbor. The steel and copper wire immediately were turned over to the government.

"We had good reason then for wanting lights," Wrigley explained. "Defence workers were on round-the-clock schedules and night play seemed the only answer to the game's problem. Now, we'll continue to play in daylight where baseball belongs."

Semi-Final Go Is Attracting Lot of Interest

The semi-final "go" at Hume Arena Wednesday night is attracting a lot of interest from Belleville boxing fans. It brings together "Tony" Acerra of Belleville and "Duke" Subraro of Toronto.

The local heavyweight has only made one public appearance in the "charmed circle" and that was in the first card of the season when he tangled with "Tiny" Ainsworth of Oshawa. Ainsworth is quite a seasoned performer and is regarded as one of the best amateur heavyweights in southern Ontario. Acerra was an unknown quantity as the only ring experience he had was when he was in the army.

The main bout, too, is attracting a lot of attention. Promoter Geo. Polmanter certainly didn't pick any soft touch when he matched himself with "Jiber" Ellis of Trenton. Ellis made short work of Dave Thompson of Oshawa on the last card and showed lots of "steam" in both hands. Nevertheless, Polmanter feels quite confident that he can slow Ellis up considerably.

Six other bouts round out the card.

Dodgers Step Into Legal Arena, Secure Injunction

(By The Canadian Press)

Brooklyn Dodgers stepped into the legal arena yesterday in connection with the battle with the Mexican Baseball League by securing an injunction at St. Louis to restrain officials and agents of the circuit from interfering with players. Among those named in the order was Ray J. Gillespie of the St. Louis Star-Times sport staff who is alleged to have met catcher Mickey Owen before he jumped his contract with Brooklyn.

The hearing of Case of New York Yankees vs. Mexican League is scheduled to be taken up by the Supreme Court at New York today when a permanent injunction will be sought.

Pitcher Rip Sewell of Pittsburgh was reported by his physician yesterday as having suffered a form of stroke when he collapsed after taking part in Sunday's game at Brooklyn. Sewell was ordered to take a long rest.

Spain was eliminated by Switzerland yesterday in European Davis Cup competition when in the deciding singles match Hounder, Swiss netter, defeated Pedro Castella in five sets.

A new world trotting record of 2:35 for 1¼ miles was established yesterday by War Glory, California entry, in winning yesterday's feature at Santa Anita. The previous mark of 2:35.5 was set by Calumet Epsom in 1937.

Ed Harrison, centre star for St. Michael's College who lost to Winnipeg Monarchs in the Memorial Cup finals, said in Toronto last night he has signed to train with Boston Bruins of the N.H.L. at Hershey, Pa., next fall. Harrison was first tabbed by a Bruin scout when playing junior B hockey for St. Michael's a year ago.

Belmont Park opened a 24-day meeting yesterday with Polynesian, winner of the 1945 Preakness, capturing the Toboggan Handicap by a nose from Cassis. Polynesian paid $14.30.

After winning the recent Grand National with Lovely Cottage, Capt. Bobby Petre, amateur jockey, announced at London yesterday he was becoming a professional trainer.

WOW! IS MY FACE RED!

Jimmy Hatlo, the amiable creator of the popular comic "They'll Do It Every Time," knows now what his catch phrase really means. The nation's druggists are shaking their heads and saying to him, "He'll do it every time."

Recently Jimmy turned out a cartoon in which he good-naturedly griped about the way the doc prescribes "these few pills"—only to have the druggist fill a bottle with a year's supply. Jimmy meant to add a line inquiring, "But, doc—what was it YOU wrote on the prescription blank?" but maybe his income tax was overdue or he was thinking of the trout season.

Anyway, he didn't—and Jimmy was snowed under by a virtual blizzard of mail from outraged druggists all over the nation and the other continents haven't been heard from. As Tex Rickard used to say, "We never seed anything like it." This little sketch is by way of an apology to the druggists. It also is a sly pat on the back to ourselves for publishing Jimmy. If all the druggists read Hatlo and perhaps all the grocerymen and all the mechanics well, it looks as if everybody does.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 980

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Pity an opening leader at a time like this. I mean when each unbid suit has it in an ace or a king. And when the trump suit also has a king with only one other card.

Rule says: Leads follow the order of choice in tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

When all four suits are bid or each unbid suit has an ace or a king, lead a trump. If trump also has a king, choose a lead that may do your side the least harm.

If you finally decide to lead one of the suits bid by opponents, which should it be? Prefer the one bid by dummy rather than the one bid by declarer. Better lead through than up to a bid suit.

If dummy has bid two suits not rebid or supported, lead the one he bid second. This is with the hope that his strongest suit was the one he mentioned first.

The contract ended in four spades after dummy bid diamonds and then clubs. Lead from this hand:

♠K 5
♥K 7 5 3 2
♦9 7 5
♣9 7 5

The heart suit has a king. Diamonds and clubs were bid. There is a king in the trump suit. Each of the four suits is hexed. But refrain from shuffling your 13 cards to pluck a card at random.

The last suit bid by dummy was clubs. Lead your club nine and keep your fingers crossed. Your decision was made by a process of elimination. Even if it turns out wrong, it had reasons behind it.

Telling you these hairline decisions satisfies your curiosity and my ego. Now that you have listened to them, forget it. You are better off confining yourself to fewer and more essential rules.

Realize that the lead of a trump or bid suit may show ace or king in another suit. Chalk up the rest on the ice.

Hollywood, May 7 (AP)—Betty Hutton is going to finish her education, thanks to her unborn child.

The Battle Creek blonde knows everything there is to know about show business, but her formal education ended in the 11th grade when she had to leave Detroit's southeastern high school to earn a living. Since then she has been too busy with her career to fill a yearning for learning. Now with motherhood impending, she will have the time. She stated her desires simply:-

"More than anything else I want my marriage to Ted Briskin to be a success. But a marriage cannot be based solely on love. Ted has a wonderful knowledge of art, music and literature. .—I want to be able to talk with him about those things." She also feels she could give her baby a better upbringing if she had a good educational background.

The Hutton course will first involve lessons in conversational French, which will come in handy for her next picture, "Madame Sans Gene." She plans to attend art lectures with Constance Collier and will be tutored in a literature course.

The Amber replacement won't be decided until the studio sees if Peggy Cummins gains more certainty in her work on "Bob, Son of Cattle"...Alice Faye is still turning down scripts..Frank Latimore and Virginia Huston a steady couple...Joan Fontaine's Mexican honeymoon . will end May 16 when she scoots to Jasper National Park in the Canadian Rockies for "The Emperor Waltz" ...Jean Pierre Aumont writing his war memoirs at Lake Arrowhead.

Baldy Baldwin Appointed Coach Of Rough Riders

Ottawa, May 7 — (CP)—Fred (Baldy) Baldwin, former intercollegiate football star and later physical director and coach at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph has been officially appointed coach of the Ottawa Rough Riders for the 1946 season, it was announced last night.

Succeeding Ross Trimble, who coached the Ottawa Interprovincial Rugby Football Union entry for the last six years, Baldwin had been rumored for the last week as a possible candidate for the position.

Baldwin starred with the Queen's University Dominion championship teams in the 1920's and led the O.A.C. "Aggies" to 7 intermediate intercollegiate championships. He will take over Rough Riders for a three weeks' stretch of spring training starting May 13 and return to Ottawa in the fall to continue his coaching duties.

WATCHMAN MAKES STATEMENT

Chicago, May 7 (AP)—Police said last night that a watchman at the Arlington Park stables of Mrs. Elizabeth Graham had signed a statement that he went to sleep after turning on an electric heater in the barn housing 30 thoroughbreds last Wednesday night.

Fire which swept the barn destroyed 23 of the 30 race horses, with an estimated loss of $500,000.

Officers said the watchman, Gilbert Jones of New York, signed a formal statement saying he became intoxicated during the night and went to sleep in another part of the barn. He is being held on a charge of disorderly conduct.

PESKY POLE MEETS WHIPPER HERE FRIDAY

The match of the year — that's what Arena Manager Walter Gerow calls the meeting here of Wladyslaw "Blockbuster" Talun and Whipper Billy Watson the British Empire Champion on Friday night. Talun, the colossal out-sized Polish Giant who weighs well over three hundred pounds and stands some six foot eight inches makes a really terrible opponent for any human to face. Watson got a mixed up decision over the Polish Skyscraper in Toronto last winter and the big fellow has been screaming for "justice" ever since. Well they come together here on Friday and if the Whipper is at his brilliant best even the mighty Pole may find there is some one who can make him work. Talun is almost in the freak class he is so big, but his strength is undeniable and with those over-size hams of hands he is capable of wringing out most wrestlers like a dishcloth.

But never before have Belleville fans seen their ideal Canadian matman go into the stern kind of struggle that Billy will be called on to face on Friday night.

The real Jumping Joe Mazzetti comes in finally to wrestle Fred Von Schacht in the semi-final. The name of Joe Bennedetti got mixed with Mazzetti last show and the lighter man was sent here. But this time the real Jumpin' Joe will make his appearance and is expected to show the big Von man a thing or two. In the third bout Leo Numa returns to meet the classy Dean Detton.

PANDEMONIUM BREAKS LOSE IN SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA

Sydney, Australia, May 7 — (Reuters)— Pandemonium broke loose at Sydney town hall Monday during a meeting of citizens protesting against continued industrial hold-ups.

One woman broke her false teeth biting an official and men and women were carried bodily from the hall.

More than 2,000 persons attended the meeting. Amid cheering, heckling, catcalls and free fights motions were approved protesting against continued hold-ups of food and essential requirements, and calling upon the government to enforce law and order and set up a citizens' rights committee to "take all necessary action."

Exercise Muskox Stamped Success In Its Broad Aims

Edmonton, May 7. (CP)—Exercise Muskox was stamped today a success in its broad aims—to prove men and machines against northern conditions and to gather scientific data.

Lt.-Col. P. D. Baird of Montreal, commander of the Canadian Army's Research expedition which completed its 81-day trek through Canada's Northwest Territories yesterday, voiced his pride in his men and his belief in the exercise's success as he relaxed, tanned and tired, in a hotel room yesterday.

"I would say it will probably lead to other, similar expeditions," he said.

He said the R.C.A.F. had done a "wonderful job" in supplying the moving force with food, gasoline, engine and snowmobile parts along the 4,000-mile journey. Without their watchful eye the expedition just couldn't have operated.

Many of the things discovered must await tabulation and a careful check before being released. Some may come under the head of secret and remain in the possession of Canadian and United States governments for some time.

While he did not know, Col. Baird said it was possible there were uncharted islands in the Bering Sea and Arctic Ocean. Some country might claim these by right of discovery.

'A lot of countries. . . do not agree with the practice of using longitudinal lines up to the North Pole to designate the territory of a nation. One of those countries is the United States."

He deftly parried questions about how vulnerable Canada was from the north but he didn't mind telling about the Eskimos encountered. The Eskimos weren't interested in what the expedition was all about but they did ask what was the gasoline consumption of the force's snowmobiles.

Two Guns Will Be Filed as Exhibits In Murder Trial

Toronto, May 7. (CP)—Trial of four youths charged with the murder of Meyer Tobias, dress shop proprietor, continued today after outline of the Crown case, in which the prosecutor promised to link two pistols said to have been used in the robbery-slaying, with the accused quartet.

In outlining the Crown case yesterday, the Crown Prosecutor, W. O. Gibson indicated the two guns will be filed as exhibits and that spent cartridges dug up in the dress shop will be linked with the guns. One of the guns wrapped in paper, was found by children on the roof of a garage, adjacent to the home of Edwin Martin, 18, one of the accused.

So far the case against the four youths, Harold Mullen, 20; Howard Urquhart, 19; Edwin Martin, 18; and Donald Warren, 17, has been taken up with a steady procession of technical details, broken momentarily by a heated clash between one of the defence counsel and a police headquarters photographer regarding reproductive qualities of police photographs of the scene of the slaying.

In contrast to the confident manner of the four youths when first apprehended, they were all serious-faced during the first day's session and appeared keenly interested in everything that went on.

In his 15-minute opening address, Crown Counsel Gibson stated that the most graphic account of the slaying will come from a crown witness, Ian Malcolm, with whom Martin is said to have taken shelter.

WATER AT TWO CENTS GLASS

Atlanta, May 7—(AP)—Drinking water is on sale here at two cents a glass, five cents a quart or 20 cents a gallon — but not because of desert or drought conditions. The county health department condemned wells at between 75 and 100 suburban homes. Scarcity of labor and materials prevented piping city water to the premises.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smoking to himself in his private chair, saying, William, it's a long way till next winter and nothing is still ferther from my mind than a new fur coat.

For Peet sake you've got a new fur coat, pop said, and ma said, I know it, and that's what makes the who situation so rediculiss. I mean the stiles are going to be compleetly different next season, so I thought maybe I better take advantage of the summer by having an idle furrier do my fur coat over, she said.

An idle furrier costs more than a busy silver fox nowadays, pop said, and ma said, Now William, what's going to happen to my self confidence if I appear in an out dated fur coat next winter and all my frends, or even half of them, blossom out in the latest models?

It's a risky business trying to prop up your self confidence by artificial means, pop said. I'll never forget the case of my frend Aleck Highboy, he said, and ma said, Now William I never heard of any such person and I dont beleeve you did either.

Why my dear, Aleck Highboy was the werld's outstanding example of an inferiority complex, pop said. He never even had a straight part in his hair because he didn't have the nerve to look at himself in the mirrer while he was brushing it. Well my dear, he finally invested in a box of paper matches, with his name printed in gold letters on the front cover of each packet. He handed the packets out right and left every time he saw somebody fishing for a match, but not a living sole noticed poor Aleck Highboy's name on the cover, and the experience lowered his self esteem still ferther, so now he's living in a hole in the ground with 2 moles and a muskrat. So dont say I didn't warn you if nobody notices the expensive change in your fur coat, pop said.

Maud Hews knows the name of a good little furrier, ma said.

Proving she hadn't hardly even been listening.

Tillsonburg, May 7 — (CP)— The Canadian Pacific Railway is meeting the present coal shortage by delving into a 25-year-old stockpile of 48,000 tons of soft coal, cached in Tillsonburg in 1921, with such an emergency as the present one in mind.

Dublin, May 7 — (CP Cable)— Hunger strikes of two leading members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army — one imprisoned at Maryborough, County Cork, Eire, and the other at Belfast—roused public interest Monday as the men were reported in critically weakened condition.

At Belfast, David Fleming, 27, serving 12 years for the attempted murder of a police constable, is in his 14th day without food, while at Maryborough, Sean McGaughey, 35, former adjutant-general of the I.R.A., has been starving himself for 17 days.

Government authorities at Dublin and Belfast have been bombarded with resolutions demanding release of the men and posters have appeared here, saying: "Release the hunger strikers." Both demand treatment as political prisoners.

I'LL WAIT FOR YOU

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 19

When Dick left, Edwina put on the dusty yellow smock, went back to work at the books and said to Norman, "If you're curious, and can't help but be curious, Dick wanted to ask me some questions about some one I used to know here. I couldn't be very informative. Didn't know anything, Norman...." Turning on the library ladder, she caught his eyes as he looked over a book at her. "Have you ever wanted revenge? That's a cheap, dramatic word—revenge...."

He smiled. "Who hasn't? But when the time comes for the tables to be turned against your enemy, you're sorry for him. You're angry enough to kill a dog that bites you but if you see some one else abusing that same dog, it's a different story."

"The thing to do then is to get hurt last, not first."

Was she sorry for Alan? Her hands, shaking a little, moved slowly along the shelves. How could she be sorry for a thief? Sorry for Carol, of course, the innocent one to be dragged through the ugliness of a trial. And Carol would be loyal. If Carol's loyalty and love could be doubted, then Norman need not leave tonight. But they were not to be doubted for a hopeful moment, and it was better for him to go to New York rather than remain and be a helpless, miserable bystander during the trying days to come.

Why didn't she go, too, tonight with him? Why not escape it, too! The people from the library and museum to which she was giving her father's rare books and art treasures she could easily reach by letter, and she could come back for the final settlement and see Mr. Lane about the sale of the house after this horrible mess was over.

"Let's call it a day, Norman."

"But we haven't finished. I'm not going to run out and leave you with it."

"I'm running out on it myself. I'm going to New York with you."

"That's great. But why?"

In the short distance from the ladder to the rug she changed her mind. Her thoughts were still chaotic—like water rushing down a mountainside. Looking at Norman guiltily, she tried to smile.

"No. I'm not going. I can't — yet. I can't run out. It isn't wise for me to leave now."

"Then it's good-night to Newton, and au revoir to you."

"Won't you stay for a drink?"

"Thanks, no. I'd better be getting along. I'd like to give Benson a few hours' notice. He's such a capable man I'd like to take him to New York with me. I'm going to suggest that he drive my car back. I prefer the train this time. But I'll expect to see you in a couple of weeks or sooner. Your typing job will be waiting. Let me know when you're coming. No good-bye, please. I'm beginning to hate that word."

"I'll sneak in a 'Thank you' whether you like it or not."

Standing at the window, Edwina watched him go and the instant his car was out of sight she promptly and fondly forgot him. Removing the smock, she went to wash her hands and then went out to the terrace where the shadows had begun to mingle with the sunlight. A half-smoked cigarette she threw away; and she could not be still in the chair.

All afternoon she had put it from her—this unexplainable pity for Alan. And all afternoon it had rushed back at her. Voices spoke in her ear; Edwina, you fool! Let him take his medicine to the last bitter drop! He's a thief, a parasite!

But another voice said: But if I warn him, he'll have some defense and perhaps not everything he has worked for and everything Carol hopes for will be destroyed. And perhaps in some way I'm responsible for this. Who knows Alan's mind, the quirks of his introvert nature, the reason, the reason behind all this?

Alan in trouble gave her a strange sense of being a part of his life, making his trouble hers. Funny, the strength behind the words that a sleepy clergyman had said over them that night five years ago. Words you never forget and promises before God which created a vital bond that five years had not completely severed. She had been his wife and there was no other person who could say that.

Even as she went to look for her car keys, she thought: Edwina, you fool, you sentimental fool! Don't go! What does it matter what happens to a boy you loved and married five years ago? Stay and finish the books and have a leisurely bath and a good dinner and curl up on the chaise lounge in your room and listen to music and think about your new, decent, useful life. Alan wouldn't warn you! On the contrary, he'd do everything to harm you.

There were so many more reasons for not going than for going ....Yet she was outside now, hurrying to her car, starting the motor, passing between the stone pillars and pressing her foot hard on the accelerator as the open road stretched ahead.

In the business district of Newton she parked her car. She hurried into a drug store and went to the telephone directory for Alan's office address. On the street again, she heard the five o'clock whistles and presently she saw men and women pouring from stores and office buildings. Later she knew that in the crazy, fighting puzzle going on in her mind she had hoped as fervently that Alan would be gone as she hoped he would be in his office. See saw...See saw ...People stared at her bare legs and hatles head. She wondered if she had a smudge on her nose.

On the elevator she said "Ninth please" to the operator just as she caught a glimpse of her face in the mirror and saw that she looked frightened—like a thief, herself, running away. No, not a thief, but a betrayer of a confidence, and when she thought of Dick's trust in her she felt sick.

At the door bearing Alan's name in dignified black letters she did hesitate but went into a handsomely furnished waiting room. A sensible-looking middle-aged secretary was tidying her desk, her last act for the day.

The unexpected caller startled her for a moment. Then she asked pleasantly, "Yes?"

"Is Mr. Harding here?"

"Why, yes."

"Will you tell him that Miss Burke is here and that it's very important that I see him?"

The secretary's glance said it must be important for one to call after five o'clock.

When Edwina disappeared into Alan's office, she thought: I suppose Mr. Hartley's money paid for this, too....

The secretary came back. "Mr. Harding will see you, Miss Burke."

"Thank you."

Alan's office was handsomely furnished, too. Alan looked up from the blueprints spread across the large mahogany desk when he arose to greet her, his keen blue eyes asking questions....

"What can I do for you, Edwina?"

She took a deep breath. "I haven't come to ask you to do anything for me. Aren't you going to ask me to sit down? I'm rather breathless...." Because she was shaking so and the beating of her heart had risen to her throat.

"Certainly. Won't you sit down?" he asked, inclining his head toward a green leather chair.

As she caught her breath and steadied her hands on the arms of the chair, he sat down and folded the blueprints carefully. Then with another questioning glance, he waited for her to speak....

She said simply, "Mr. Hartley knows, Alan. He sent for Dick Fenton in New York and Dick is with him now. You're going to be arrested for embezzlement.."

He did not move. He just sat there staring at her, the late afternoon sun that poured through the windows turning his fair hair into gold.

She said, "Dick told me. He thought perhaps I'd seen quite a lot of you this summer and could have thrown some light on your activities and financial situation. You're in a bad spot. Public sentiment in this case will be all against you. A helpless old blind man—and you robbed him."

He shielded his face with his hands and his voice had no malice, no hate in it but only weariness when he asked hoarsely, "Why did you come to tell me?"

"Will you always think of me as an impetuous eighteen-year-old trying to buy my way? People grow up, Alan, and I've grown up. And if you really want to know about me, I'm — I'm broke. I'm selling the house to clean up my debts and I'm going to New York to take a typing job in Norman Alexander's office. The Edwina Burke you knew isn't any more. For five years I felt like a thief. I stole something I had no right to — you. Now you know how it feels...."

Edwina's voice was edged with sharpness.

"Why did I come?" she said, repeating Alan's question. "That's what I've been asking myself. But here I am, betraying Dick's confidence and giving you a chance to defend yourself when they come for you....a chance to defend yourself or run away."

When he removed his hands and she saw his face, resigned and guilty, she pitied him with all her heart—hated herself for her pity.

He said slowly, "I'm not as smart as I thought I was. I didn't think he'd ever find out but I'm glad he has. I'm glad it's —it's all over. I'm not going to run away. I'm going to stay and take it...."

"I haven't quite finished. Mr. Hartley has made a will. He's left everything to you....."

He winced as she had winced when Dick told her. Nor could he still his nerves. Rising, he walked several paces away from her and, with his back to her, said, "That's what I've been afraid of since the night Carol suggested that he liked me so well he'd make me his heir. I wanted to stop then but I was in it and I'd made plans to build a house and I needed the money. You'd better go. They may come and find you here. I'm in this alone. Carol doesn't know."

"Why did you do it, Alan? You didn't need money desperately. You were doing well without it. I've heard...."

"I can't go into details now. I did it and I'll face the consequences. I've been living in hell ever since it started, kidding myself that I was getting away with it. It was like living close to a trap and you fear every day that you'll forget yourself and walk into it. You'd better go. I suppose I should thank you.."

"Don't bother...."

But by the time she reached the door and had her hand on the knob, she could not go. Questions plagued her. Her old insatiable curiosity, she thought.

"Why won't you tell me why you did it, Alan?

He turned; the movement was slow and heavy.

"Why did I do it? All right. I'll tell you." He was breathing as if breathing hurt. "I've had a plan to my life for—for five years. You walked out on the scandal and gossip but I had to stay with it. I had to listen to it and live with it.

"One day on a bus I heard two women talking. They had a newspaper with your picture on the front page. One woman asked, 'Who is Alan Harding?' and the other woman said, 'Oh, he's a nobody. Married her for her money and now she's left him.'" A nobody....

"Well, for five years I've worked for one thing—to cease being a nobody and to be a somebody. The people here never knew the truth. It was a joke to them. I was the joke. You were Edwina Burke and I was a nobody. People smiled behind their hands. And my mother was hurt and embarrassed and she'd never hurt or embarrassed anybody. I learned then how cruel people can be and I decided to give it back to them with everything I had."

Shoots Self In Demonstration

Montreal, May 7 (CP)—Jean Guindon, 29, lies in critical condition in hospital today following removal from his head of a .38 calibre revolver bullet, inflicted Saturday night at suburban Verdun as Guidon was demonstrating to his fiancee how he would "commit suicide."

Police said Guindon, who found an old revolver in the home of his fiancee, Miss Florence Cadorette, held the weapon against his chest and pulled the trigger twice. Nothing happened. He then held the revolver to his head and pressed the trigger again.

There was only a weak powder charge, police said, and the bullet entered the skull less than three inches.

BRACKEN CLAIMS

He agreed that price stabilization was desirable but said he felt production was being discouraged by increasing the price of farm needs, such as farm machinery, without making a corresponding increase in the price of farm products.

Labor Minister Mitchell entered the discussion briefly, stressing that countries which did not have price stabilization had suffered from severe inflation and drastic shortages. Every increase had the effect of decreasing the people's purchasing power.

John Sinnot (L-Springfield) said one farm implement manufacturing company, Massey Harris, had not increased its dividends since it started operations while farmers had increased their income over the last five years.

Mrs. Gladys Strum (CCF-Qu'appelle) adjourned the debate.

PROBLEMS

Some anticipated disasters, such as epidemics sweeping Germany and the continent, failed to materialize during this first year. Food conditions, while extremely bad, have not yet reached overwhelming starvation proportions. The winter was comparatively mild.

Europe has not seen any outbreak of minor wars and revolutions such as followed the First Great War but there have been flashpoints of trouble across the continent which leave Europe far less easier now than a year ago when every Allied city and hamlet the world over deliriously welcomed Germany's collapse.

The Foreign Ministers of the major Allied powers in two meetings failed to reach agreement on peace settlements with Italy and four German satellites and at their current third meeting in Paris are running into the same obstacles to progress encountered at previous conferences.

This is only one phase of the disturbed peace. In every capital of Europe government leaders anxiously try to cope with the current political and economic troubles which are a legacy of war and look to the future with ominous concern.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, May 7 (CP)—Industrials had a sizable recovery in the early session of the stock exchange led by the liquor stocks and the western oils improved slightly. Both mining groups were down at noon.

Trading was comparatively light at 805,000 shares for the first three hours.

The liquor stocks were leaders. In the gold group weakness was displayed by a majority of the secondary and junior issues. Western oils showed only minor changes.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, May 7 — (AP) — Special stocks exhibited strength and the market, as a whole, did better today after an early mild retreat.

Many initial losses running to two or more points were reduced or converted into advances near the fourth hour. Dealings picked up at intervals although slowdowns were plentiful.

Canadians were generally stronger on the big board at noon. Distillers Seagram gained 3½ to 111, Dome Mines gained 3/8 to 23 7/8 and Canadian Pacific 1/4 at 18 5/8. Down 1/8 was International Nickel at 36 5/8.

HOGS

Toronto, May 7 (CP)—Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Barrie at $19.75 delivered, in market reporting early today.

Stratford reported prices unsettled.

HOPEFORENDURING

His expression lightened, however, when Mr. Howard said "he reminded us that the days of heroes will never pass while the heroic spark can inflame an English soul."

Mr. Churchill's lips moved in a silent "hear hear" amid the applause.

Mr. Churchill read the solemn oath of office in grave tones, then picked up the old-fashioned quill pen and signed the freeman's roll.

Meat Situation Still Unchanged Across Canada

Toronto, May 7 —(CP)— The meat "famine" that has spread from Toronto to all sections of the Dominion remained unchanged today, with most retail butcher shops closed and with little sign that a break may come in the deadlock between the producers and large packing houses over the latter's lowered livestock bids and a consequent reduction in shipment of cattle to market.

There were, however, two significant developments on Monday. Fred Dowling, Canadian director of the Packinghouse Workers Union said the union would demand that the government appoint a comptroller and assume operation of the large packing houses, in the same manner as was done last fall when employees of the large packing houses threatened strike action over wage demands.

The other development was the arrival yesterday in Toronto stockyards of 2,800 cattle, more than the combined receipts for the two previous Mondays. Despite this, however, there was very little buying by the large packing houses and the reason given for the market increase was lack of grass feed and other feeds, forcing the farmers to ship their cattle.

Mr. Dowling, referring to a repeated assertion that the present meat shortage has been brought about by the packing houses, in a drive to have the price ceiling abandoned, said last night, "our investigations are beginning to show that the packers paid more money for cattle in 1943 than the price which they now claim they are unable to pay and sell meat within the price ceiling at a profit. So we can't see how they claim they are losing money."

Value of Home and School Associations to Education Outlined by B.C.I. Principal

Serve Vital Link Between Home and School Says Mr. George Currie

At a supper meeting held in the cafeteria on Monday, members of the Collegiate Home and School Association heard an address by Mr. G. Currie on the Value of Home and School Associations to education. "Their use is to serve a vital link between the home and the school. It is an organization most closely linked to the school and can interpret purposes of education to the public."

Enemies Still Rampant

"Although the war has been won the real enemies of humanity: greed, cruelty and competition are still rampant. We must learn to control these undesirable qualities by learning to live together. The politician and economist have not produced results that society expects. Either the Golden Rule must be our guide or chaos will result.

In outlining a philosophy of education Mr. Currie continued: "The job of education is tremendous. It must not only afford the rudiments of learning but pupils must be trained to become good citizens. Education must develop their skills and foster right attitudes. Only by parent and teacher linking arm in arm can these wider objectives in education be obtained.

School Tool of Society

"School is the tool of society and only by fitting the needs of the pupils can it fulfil its purpose. On this fulfilment both teacher and pupil make their contribution."

Using a large chart the principal pointed out courses of study planned to meet the varying needs of pupils.

A comprehensive report of many addresses given at the Home and School convention held in Toronto April 23-25 was given by the delegate, Mrs. G. Wright. The keynote of all meetings was the great need of cooperation and individual responsibility on the part of each member to make every association a success.

Urges Large Attendance

Mr. J. M. Wood in his address as retiring president urged a larger attendance. "A year of carefully planned programs has been accomplished and by patient and intensive study much can be accomplished in the future."

At the conclusion of his address he administered the oath of office during the installation of new officers for the years 1946-47. These will be:

President—Mrs. G. G. Wright

Vice president — Mrs. Morley Ward, Mr. J. J. Bowden

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. Joss.

Treasurer—Mr. W. Lockyer

Recording secretary—Mr. Heard

New members of the Executive will include: Mrs. G. Wishart, Mrs. H. Rollins, Mrs. H. Seldon, Mrs. Ernie McCormick and Mr. 'Gib' Stackhouse.

TRENTON

Death Accident Jury's Verdict

Trenton (Special)—A coroner's jury probing the circumstances surrounding the death of eighteen year-old Lancelot Coulter, Aviation Road, Lakeview, Ont., killed instantly when trying to board a speeding Canadian Pacific Railway freight train on Sunday, exonerated the railway from all blame and brought in a verdict of "accidental death."

The inquest was held here yesterday under Coroner Dr. E. A. McQuade and a jury composed of Messrs. Oswald Newton (foreman), Ralph Huffman, Keith Hadley, W. H. Heaney and Victor Ryan.

Bernard Piche, Hawkesbury, and Ronald Walker, Lakeview, companions of the ill-fated youth, who were with him at the time of the tragedy were held over to appear as witnesses at the inquest. B. C. Donnan, K.C., Belleville, represented the Crown.

Evidence adduced at the probe revealed that Coulter had attempted to board the fast-moving train as it passed a point beyond the C.P.R. station, and failing to secure a grip had fallen beneath the wheels of a freight car.

Other witnesses at the inquest were Dr. J. V. Byrne, and Police Constable W. D. Cooper of the C.P.R. Railway. Constable C. E. McColl, Trenton Police Department investigated the fatality.

POLICE COURT

Case Dismissed In Alleged Breach Of Ceiling Price

Charged with quoting over the ceiling price for potatoes on the Belleville market last October, Mr. William Bedford, Prince Edward county, had his case dismissed in local police court Tuesday morning by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Wartime Prices and Trade Board investigator claimed that Mrs. Bedford last fall had quoted him $2.35 per 75-lb. bag for No. 1 potatoes and 55 cents per peck, when the ceiling price was $2.08 per bag and 48 cents per peck. The investigator did not know if any potatoes had been sold at above the ceiling price.

Defence counsel Richard Arnott brought out that the price had been quoted by Mrs. Bedford in the absence of her husband and suggested that Mr. Bedford was unaware of the prices which were being charged. When Mr. Arnott moved for dismissal of the charge the request was granted by the magistrate.

Drunk Driving Charge

Arthur McCauley, Trenton, appeared on a drunk driving charge which had been laid over since March 23 when the accused was arrested by local police following a complaint by two transport drivers that McCauley had been crowding them off the road. McCauley pleaded not guilty to the charge and was defended by Richard Arnott. Evidence for the Crown was taken Tuesday morning with proceedings adjourned until Wednesday.

A local youth was given suspended sentence and ordered to pay costs of $9 after pleading guilty to theft of a truck.

A number of cases involving traffic violations and drunkenness were settled out of court with fines and costs paid.

Alcan Highway Subject of Talk To Rotarians

The Alcan Highway, a tortuous slash cutting in a westerly by north direction through the rugged mountainous terrain of northwest Canada from Dawson Creek to Fairbanks, Alaska, was the theme of an informative travelogue given by the Rev. Don Amos, minister of Bridge Street United Church, to the Rotary Club on Monday.

Illustrated by two colored motion picture films taken by the narrator, the address brought out in startling clarity, not only the hardships and mode of living of those who pioneered the 1,500-mile long highway, but the majestic grandeur of mountain, lake and stream through which modern construction pushed its way to complete one of the most amazing engineering feats of the present day.

Mr. Amos, who with Mrs. Amos, spent eighteen months travelling by motor truck and in the summer living in a tent (they have summer there when the Chinooks blow) related his experiences as a member of an interdenominational quartet of ministers who spent lengthy periods in the highway areas.

Primitive Buildings.

The motion pictures brought home the sometimes primitive buildings of those who pioneered in the construction of the highway. The long winding road when completed stretched ahead in a winding ribbon-like slash through heavily forested areas and across bridges that spanned foaming mountain streams. Quiet lakes, teeming with fish lay placid in the shadow of majestic snow-topped mountains. The flashing golds and reds of autumnal foliage splendor was brought out in the films.

The pictures took the audience through the many construction camps, American army cantonments and showed powerful bulldozer and other modern construction machinery at work. It depicted the small settlements with their temporary buildings valleyed in the shadow of the mountains.

Rigors of North Seen.

Ice-shackled lakes and snow-swept terrain brought home the rigors of the Alaskan and Northwest Canadian winters. Parka'd workmen and officials, oblivious to the zero temperatures went about the daily task with as much ease as they did in milder weather.

The speaker himself was portrayed on several occasions as he took off in his small yellow truck loaded with supplies, sleeping bag, and other equipment, for the far-flung settlements and camps where he held his services.

Mr. Amos was introduced by Rotarian Jack Houston and club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Art. Francis.

BLAZE IN STOREROOM DAMAGES TOWELING

Brown Trout Nearly 6 Pounds Caught in Stream

This is the story of the "persistent fisherman."

Some time ago during treks to the trout fishing grounds of the county, he had come across a stream that harbored a tiny beauty.

On his first trip, he had noticed the fish lazily searching for food in the shadow of willows.

The second time, he saw him. And the third "He's a beauty" he commented to himself, "he must weigh at least two or three pounds."

The season opened and he hied himself to the stream which for the information of envious Waltons, is situated "somewhere south of No. 7 Highway."

Luck was with him. The fish was still there. Inwardly invoking the aid of the Providence that is said to guide the destinies of clean-living seekers of fish, he cast his bait into the brook shadows.

There was a brown flash in the morning sunlight. The line tautened, loosened, grew taut again as the fish staged a desperate battle for freedom. A few minutes later it lay gasping on the bank.

And J. A. (Kelly) Kemp, member of a hydro construction gang here gazed in wonderment at his catch. It was a handsome brown trout which later tipped the scales at 5 3-4 pounds. Mr. Kemp is one of the newest members of the Fish and Game Association here and has entered his catch in the "Big Fish" contest of that organization.

Interdenominational Meeting Addressed By Rev. R.D. Harmer

The third interdenominational meeting of Belleville Young People's groups was held Monday evening in Holloway St. United Church with Mr. John Barker presiding. The meeting, which was very well attended, was opened with a sing song of hymns, directed by Mr. Eric Naylor. The singing was led by the newly-formed Young People's chorus. Personal testimonies were given by Mr. Cyril Magor, Miss Margaret Sullivan and Miss Vivian Bell, followed by an address of welcome by Mr. Barker. The Scripture reading was given by Miss N. Morlay, followed by a piano solo by LAC Hoskins, R. C. A. F., who played a medley of familiar hymns.

An announcement was made regarding a Youth Group chorus from Toronto which is being brought to the city by the Salvation Army in the end of May, after which Mr. Barker introduced the speaker of the evening, the Rev. Ronald D. Harmer, B.A., B.D., from Lindsay. Mr. Harmer based his address on the question "What really happens when a youth finds Jesus Christ as his personal saviour?"

First, he stated, the youth must give himself entirely to the Lord, and he will experience in return a fullness of life he never knew existed. He will have a conversion experience, either sudden or gradual, and find his mind and heart changed as he begins to live for and with God. Secondly, said the speaker, he will feel a sense of estrangement removed and he will no longer shun the presence of God.

"The third great thing that happens when a youth finds God," said Mr. Harmer, "is that there is a shift from a self-centred life to a God-centred life. Education should be gained with the idea of using it for the glorification of God". The fourth thing that happens to the youth is that he has a new appreciation of himself and a new sense of what he may become. His personality is unified.

In closing, Mr. Harmer urged the young people to take as their motto that of Paul— "Life is Christ and Death is gain."

Following a solo by Mrs. Clifford Millard, the meeting was brought to a close. The large number of young people who attend these meetings is evidence of their value to the city.

Many Cities in United States Have Installed Parking Meters Dr. Jack Marshall Tells Council

The matter of parking meters and of general traffic problems was brought up in city council at the Monday evening meeting when Ex-Alderman Jack Marshall, chairman of the local Board of Health, addressed council members regarding traffic observations made during a recent trip through the United States.

Having in mind traffic problems in Belleville, Dr. Marshall stated he had made it a point to be observant of such conditions in centres the size of Belleville on his way to Florida and had been struck by the almost general adoption of parallel parking and of the use of parking meters.

"From observation I found that the majority of cities the size of Belleville through which I passed had adopted parallel parking in their business section, this always being the case where the volume of through traffic was heavy."

Inconvenience experienced by motorists in getting their vehicles into parallel parking spaces had been overcome in many instances in the United States by Police giving lessons in proper handling of cars, it was stated.

Many Cities Install Meters

In reference to parking meters, Dr. Marshall stated the majority of centres on his route to Florida with over 10,000 population had installed meters as a measure to control parking space. He found no centre where meters had been installed and were not in operation. After initial objection merchants seemed in favor of parking meters while they had the entire approval of police department.

As result of meters traffic was generally diverted to outlying streets, where parking areas were available. These were mostly well lighted and in charge of attendants.

Fines Draw Comment

The matter of parking fines in Belleville also drew comment from the visiting ex-alderman. "I've just heard," he said, "that theatre licences in Belleville are double what they are in Toronto —and so are overtime parking fines."

"The two-dollar overtime parking fines in Belleville are due to Justice of Peace fees, and I think the public should know about it," he concluded.

Trade Minister Against Lifting Controls

Relief Shipments To Europe Would Be Disrupted

Trade Conditions Represent A Great Sellers' Market

Hamilton, May 8 (CP)—Immediate lifting of controls would disrupt relief shipments to Europe and might drain the Canadian market of goods which could be sold at higher prices in the export market, Trade Minister MacKinnon said today.

Mr. MacKinnon, in an address prepared for delivery to the foreign trade conference of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, gave assurance that controls administered by his department would be relaxed or lifted as soon as possible. The fact some controls were continued did not remove the onus of leadership from business.

"It now is admitted by almost everyone that the state cannot assume the responsibility for keeping employment at a high level, as it has done, without at the same time accepting responsibility for the general policies which alone can make this achievement possible," he said.

New Outlook

"A new outlook is shaping the economic life of our time. But I wish to make it emphatically clear that as far as the government of Canada is concerned, its whole conception of the role to be taken by the state is based upon its belief in private enterprise as the best way to achieve expanding production and growing prosperity. Let there be no mistake on this fundamental point. Everything the government has done and will do, is designed to supplement private enterprise, not to replace it."

Mr. MacKinnon, in the course of a comprehensive review of Canada's trade position, urged businessmen to use careful planning in their export programs and to give practical as well as moral support to the introduction of an import section in his department. Plans were outlined for an extension of the trade commissioners' service.

No Fee For Permits

He expresed belief British markets would re-open to Canadian manufacturers as soon as the financial position of the United Kingdom improved and repeated the government's determination not to abandon imperial preferences.

As a practical example of his department's policy on controls the minister announced that effective immediately no fee would be charged for export permits. It did not follow, however, that it would be immediately possible to issue permits more freely.

Present trade conditions represented the greatest sellers' market ever known, almost anything could be sold at any price.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 8 — (CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.: A storm situated off the New England coast is bringing rain to the Maritimes and the New England states this morning. In northwestern Ontario skies are overcast with intermittent rain reported as a fresh flow of Polar air pushes southeastward through that region. Elsewhere fair weather prevails this morning.

Says One Of Accused Given Loaded Gun

Toronto, May 8 (CP)— Less than two hours before Meyer Tobias was slain in his dress-shop here one of four youths accused of murder received an automatic pistol loaded with seven bullets, a half-an-hour after the clothier was killed, the same pistol had only five bullets.

This was part of crown testimony as trial continued yesterday of four young men charged with murder in the death of Tobias, shot and killed during a hold-up at his dress shop on Mount Pleasant Road in North Toronto on the night of Dec. 28.

Accused in the first case of four men charged in a single slaying in Toronto are Howard Urquhart, 19; Edwin Martin, 18; Donald Warner, 17, and William Mullen, 20.

One witness was Donald Mitchell, a friend of Urquhart. He testified that he had an automatic pistol and that Urquhart told him he might be able to sell it. Shortly after 5 p.m. on Dec. 28 Mitchell said that Urquhart drove up with some other men and he handed the gun to Urquhart. He testified that it had seven live bullets in it. The gun was a souvenir of his service in the merchant marine.

A second witness was youthful Mrs. Noreen Watson, who said that Mullen—another of the accused—had been in the habit of visiting her mother's home. At about 7.30 or 7.45 p.m. on Dec. 28 Mullen walked into her parents' home and handed her an automatic pistol.

She explained that Mullen previously had promised her a gun "as a souvenir."

"Souvenir of what?" asked Crown Attorney W. O. Gibson.

"Just as a souvenir," she replied.

She said the gun was loaded; that there were five bullets in it. "He counted them," she added.

She identified a gun produced in court as the same weapon.

On the day after the shooting, Mullen was reading newspaper accounts of the crime. "Bill said he was in on it," the witness testified. "I told him I didn't believe it."

"What did he reply?"

"Nothing."

ATTLEE GOVT. GIVEN A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Accused by Churchill Of Presiding At Destruction of The British Empire

London, May 8 —(AP)— Britain's Labor government, accused by Winston Churchill of presiding at the destruction of the British Empire, won a vote of confidence, 327 to 158, from the House of Commons last night after heated debate on a government proposal to withdraw all British forces from Egyptian territory.

The vote, culminating an argument which marked the Conservative party minority's first open split with the Labor majority on foreign policy, came after Herbert Morrison, Labor party floor leader, declared that the alternative to pulling the British military establishment out of Egypt was "almost certain disturbance, riot and possibly even revolution."

Prime Minister Attlee earlier described the proposal as the best means "to calm rising Egyptian Nationalism" as he rose to defend the government policy against Conservative attacks, including an accusation from Sir Ian Fraser that the government was beginning "to unbutton the British Empire."

May Revise Treaty.

In Cairo, where negotiations now are under way for revision of the 1936 British-Egyptian treaty of alliance, highly qualified British sources estimated it would take at least five years to complete the proposed withdrawal of British forces from their positions astride the lifeline of the British Empire.

The proposal, these sources said, envisions a strengthened Egyptian armed force under King Farouk, which would defend the vital Suez Canal.

Mr. Churchill, terming the proposal "one of the most momentous I have heard in the House," was backed solidly by his Conservative minority in challenging the government.

Anthony Eden, foreign secretary when the 200-year British-Egyptian pact was negotiated in 1936, contended security of the Suez Canal "cannot be ignored, however strong the national feeling may be," and questioned Mr. Attlee persistently about Dominion aproval of "the terms and timing of the announcement."

"I did not come to this House . . .," Mr. Attlee shouted, and then broke off, adding a moment later: "the government takes full responsibility."

World Observes First Anniversary Without War But Also Without Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, May 8 (AP)—The world observed the first anniversary of victory in Europe today without war anywhere — but also without peace.

In fact, the best estimate of diplomatic authorities here is it may be several years before real conditions of peace are restored among countries. The prospects even for this, they say, have been darkened by the evident failure of the Foreign Ministers Conference in Paris to make progress on European peace settlements.

The situation in Europe is matched in Asia by the dispute between the Chinese Communists and the central government; and in the Middle East by the tensions over the war-born Palestine crisis revolving around proposals for admittance of 100,000 Jewish refugees to the Holy Land.

Almost the only major problem in Europe on which Britain, the United States, Russia and France seem able to find a common denominator of agreement at the moment is the one presented by the Franco government in Spain. They don't like Franco.

But in the major political disputes concerning Russia's rights in the Balkans, the future of Germany, British domination in the Mediterranean—there is no basic agreement. And officials here hold little hope of early settlements.

There is widespread belief among both American and foreign diplomats that the Paris Foreign Ministers Conference actually may result in splitting Europe for a long time between the Western Allies and Russia, rather than in unifying it in peace.

The problem of the conference is to write peace treaties for Italy, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Finland. Failing in this the conferees may have to resort to a system of modifying present armistice agreements with the ex-enemy satellites.

Conflict exists even on the relief of millions suffering by food shortages due partly to crop failures and partly to economic upheavals caused by the war.

Along with the famine problem and the immediate and long-range political issues go the economic issue yet to be settled. These involve announced United States policy of seeking freer world trade, Britain's economic future and the great question of how private capitalism, British socialism and Russian communism can trade and work together.

Heads of 2 Packing Firms Explain Why Operations In Beef Are Reduced

Toronto, May 8—(CP)—Reason for their reduction of beef operations was set forth yesterday by the heads of two major packing firms following a House of Commons statement by Agriculture Minister Gardiner that beef shortages did not arise because of the government's price control policy.

Mr. Gardiner told the House Monday night that beef shortages occurred "due to the fact that some persons take actions they are not justified in taking and possibly something should have been done about it . . ." He said the shortage was caused by the decision of Canadian packers to pay $10 less a head for cattle, discouraging marketings and resulting in farmers holding cattle on the farms.

Commenting on Mr. Gardiner's remarks, J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers, said yesterday in a statement: "The facts regarding the present situation in the cattle industry are quite clear. A ceiling price has been set by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at which processors are enjoined to sell beef to the retail butchers.

"Certain processors have been selling beef to the butchers at higher than this ceiling price, and paying correspondingly higher prices for live cattle. Packers were forced to buy cattle at these higher prices or else pass them up. If they bought the cattle, they lost approximately $10 per head.

"After three months of continuous losses, packers announced they would not any longer buy cattle except at a price equivalent to the ceiling. They took this step in the hope of re-establishing the scale of prices set by the Board. The cattle producers know that these are the facts, and so does Mr. Gardiner."

A. E. Millard, vice-president of the Swift Canadian company, Limited, declared in a statement: "The reason is meat packing companies such as Swift Canadian Company, Limited, are observing W.P.T.B. ceiling regulations are unable to buy enough beef cattle to operate their plants anywhere near capacity.

"The prices of good cattle have been driven above figures which packers can pay and sell the beef within the ceiling prices. Swift Canadian Company last week was able to buy only 100 head of cattle for our Toronto plant although a total of 2,000 were sold on the Toronto market during the week.

"On Monday of this week the cattle receipts at Union Stock Yards (Toronto) were about 2,700. We were able to buy only eight cattle. Top quality steers were sold yesterday at the stock yards for $5 to $10 per head higher than the equivalent beef ceiling prices."

HOUSE APPROVES $1,250,000,000 LOAN TO BRITAIN

Only Six French-Speaking Members of Commons Oppose the Measure

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 8. (CP) — The Commons yesterday gave emphatic approval to the $1,250,000,000 Canadian loan to Britain and then resumed consideration of a Progressive Conservative amendment to incorporate a "Bill of Rights" in the Canadian Citizenship Bill.

A long, drawn-out debate on the loan, featured by the opposition of a handful of French-speaking members, was concluded when the House voted 167-6 to give the enabling bill third and final reading.

The measure now awaits approval in the Senate.

In the loan division, opposing votes were recorded for Jean Francois Pouliot (Ind. L—Temiscouata), Wilfrid Lacroix (L—Quebec Montmorency), Frederic Dorion (Ind.—Charlevoix-Saguenay), P. E. Gagnon (Ind—Chicoutimi), J. I. Hamel (BP—St. Maurice-Laflenhe) and Liguori Lacombe (Ind. — Laval-Two Mountains).

Replying to a question from Mr. Bracken, Finance Minister Ilsley said he did not know exactly what course would be followed by the Canadian Government if the United States Congress failed to approve the $3,750,000,000 American loan to Britain.

He said:

"We would immediately get in touch with the United Kingdom and consider the situation. I cannot say whether the full amount of the Canadian loan in that event will be made or not. Quite a lot of money would already have been advanced by that time anyway, and whether he would saw itoff then or go the full way is something that would have to be taken up at the time."

The Minister said he could not commit the government as to what would happen if the American loan failed to get approval.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, expressed belief that failure of the United States loan would force Britain to withdraw from the Bretton Woods monetary agreements and thus Canada would have to review the situation in the light of that fact.

Mr. Dorion said there would be no opposition to the loan if the government took the money from those who had made undue profits during the war but the government should not force veterans to use part of their savings to pay interest on the credit.

HARRY C. HATCH, NATIVE OF P. E. COUNTY, DIES

Noted Horse Race Owner and President of Hiram Walker and G. & W.

Toronto, May 8 — (CP)—President of one of the largest distillery firms in the British Empire, Harry C. Hatch, 62, died early today in hospital. He was one of Canada's most successful breeders of race horses.

In indifferent health since last fall, Mr. Hatch entered hospital Monday. Doctors did not expect his health condition would prove fatal but today he took a turn for the worse and died at daybreak.

He was president and chairman of the Board of Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts, Ltd., vice-president of Canada Malting Company and a director of T. G. Bright and Co., Ltd., and of Canada Steamship Lines.

Born in Ameliasburg, Ont., in Prince Edward County, he attended high school and then became his father's partner in a hotel near Belleville.

In 1911 he bought a liquor store in Whitby, Ont., for $2,500 and managed it so well he sold it for $14,000 about 18 months later. He used the proceeds to open a liquor store in Toronto. He ran the store here until 1916 when prohibition in Ontario forced him to shut up shop. Two days later he was in business in Montreal, serving his Toronto customers by mail order.

Associated with Corbys

Later he became associated with the Corby distillery near Belleville. The distillery then had a monthly output of 500 gallons. Within a few years he built its export trade until it alone amounted to 50,000 gallons a month. Stock he had purchased when he joined the distillery increased in value with the firm's progress and built the foundation of his fortune.

In 1923 he arranged the purchase of the Gooderham and Worts firm in Toronto for $1,000,000 and three years later the Hiram Walker plant at Walkerville, Ont., for approximately $15,000,000. He became successively president of the two companies and later president and chairman of the board of the combined firms.

Successful Breeder

Mr. Hatch entered the horse racing game in 1927 with his purchase of the Agincourt farm, with its half-mile track, at Agincourt, Ont. Nine years later he achieved his first notable success as a horse breeder when his speedy gelding, Monsweep, won the King's Plate,

DOENITZ CHARGES GERMANS SHOT AT IN BOATS, SEA

Tries to Show Allied And Nazi Navies Fought War In Identical Fashion

Nuernberg, May 8 — (AP) — Charges that British warships and planes attacked German sailors in lifeboats or swimming in the sea were submitted to the international military tribunal by Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz today in an effort to show that the Allied and Nazi navies fought the war in almost identical fashion.

"It is not my intention to criticize any war measures by the Allied powers," defence counsel Otto Kranzbuehler told the tribunal in his argument asking that the documents be accepted as evidence.

"I want to show what naval warfare was really like. I could not do that by showing only German methods. I must also show Allied methods in order to prove that German practices, like those of the Allies, were legal."

Doenitz, who as Adolf Hitler's successor surrendered Germany to the Allies a year ago, sat stony-faced in the prisoners' box as his fight for life began. Apparently neither he nor the tribunal took any cognizance of the anniversary of his surrender of all Nazi forces.

Prosecution Challenged

The prosecution already has challenged the relevance of a large portion of Doenitz' documentary evidence.

One of Britain's naval heroes, Rear Admiral Philip L. Vian, who commanded the destroyer H. M. S. Cossack in a bold attack on the German prison ship Altmark in Norway Feb. 20, 1940, was among those accused of tactics rivalling those charged to Nazi U-boats.

The defence cited the Altmark's captain as stating that Rear Admiral Vian's boarding parties swarmed over the ship driving the crew together with bayonets and pistols.

"They opened savage fire against other members of the Altmark crew, especially on those who tried to swing out a lifeboat," the Altmark captain was reported as saying. "Shots were fired on those in the water as well as those crawling across the ice, even on such as reached land."

Vian Praised

The defence noted that Rear Admiral Vian was praised by wartime prime minister Winston Churchill and the late Neville Chamberlain for the action.

Other documents alleged that the British fired on helpless survivors of three German destroyers sunk or disabled off Narvik, and cited several similar incidents in the May, 1941, Battle of Crete."

An affidavit by George Messersmith, now United States Ambassador to Argentina and former Consul General in Berlin, declaring that Doenitz "was not always mentally balanced" also was included among defence documents.

Atomic Piles Are Likely to Become Sanatoria for Treating Diseases

(By HOWARD BLAKESLEE)

New York, May 8. (AP)— The atomic ovens, or piles as scientists call them because their bulk is mainly a pile of graphite bricks, are likely to become health sanatoria.

All that is necessary to make their rays available for treatment of disease is to cut parts through the massive concrete walls shielding the piles at Hanford, Washington, or to arrange similar openings in the piles of smaller dimensions at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Ardennes, Ill., and elsewhere.

The methods are told in the bulletin of the atomic scientists of Chicago. The Hanford piles are great cubes of graphite surrounded and covered by walls of concrete about three feet thick. These walls confine radio-active rays equal to hundreds of tons of radium, and neutron rays equal to thousands of great cyclotrons.

The rays issuing through a port cut in a wall could be fatal to anyone standing at the port just as were the flash radio-active rays that killed Japanese at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Possibly the rays issuing through a single port would be more intense than those that have been available in all the hospitals of the world, if all could be placed together.

This true death ray would be made harmless by what the radiologists call filters. These are plates of steel, aluminum, lead and other materials that filter the energies down to the dosage that physicians would want to use.

Many patients could be treated at one time, since the quantity and intensity of rays is sufficient to fill many channels, one for each person.

In this way, for the first time, the rays of radium and X-rays, would become really cheap. And for the first time there would be a large supply of neutron rays, not given off by radium.

Toronto May Close Public Buildings To Conserve Fuel

Several Ontario Cities Report Shortage of Stocks

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Board of Control today considered a recommendation that the heat be cut off in public buildings in Toronto as a coal conservation measure — one of many repercussions as the six weeks' old soft coal strike in the United States began to have serious effects on Canadian industry.

The Dominion Fuel Controller, E. J. Brunning, is planning to allocate shipments of soft coal from the Alberta producing area to meet the most serious industrial emergencies in Eastern Canada. A supply of 16,000 tons of Alberta coking coal has been earmarked for industries at Hamilton, and at the other end of the country shipment of Nova Scotia soft coal to Montreal for manufacture of gas is being considered.

Deliveries Had Been Limited

A directive applying to Ontario and Quebec had been issued by the Coal Controller at Ottawa on April 18, limiting delivery of coal to all consumers, except householders and hospitals. Other consumers, under the order, may obtain one truck load when their present supplies fall under the figure needed for 10 days' operation.

Apart from Great Lakes shipping and industries using soft coal, the shortage was beginning to be acute generally. At Toronto Property Commissioner Graham Bland prepared recommendations for the Board of Control today that all but the most absolutely necessary heat be cut off in large buildings in order that all available coal might be diverted to public utilities and essential industry.

"We have been keeping the heat at a minimum for some time," Bland said last night. "By cutting it off entirely the fuel saved would be available for other more important industrial purposes."

The Toronto Terminal Railways Company which heats Union Station, the federal post-office building and a large hotel nearby, was hoping for something to turn up quickly before deciding on its own policy.

Enough to End of May

The Consumers Gas Company at Toronto estimated its reserves would last only to the end of the month. Steel production already has been reduced.

Mayor Robert Saunders of Toronto, said yesterday the city is not in any danger of curtailing essential services such as water-pumping stations and generating plants, and large hospitals reported enough supplies for the next few weeks.

But coal piles were dwindling everywhere and the shortage was most apparent at lake ports where more and more vessels were being laid up.

Dock supplies of industrial fuel are "wearing thin" at the lakehead. No industrial shut-downs have occurred at Port Arthur or Fort William but when these run out of their own reserves they'll have to shut down.

At Port Colborne only one coal dock had any appreciable amount on hand, receiving daily supplies from a small independent mine. Even this source was not expected to keep vessels fuelled for more than a month.

Part of the city gas plant was shut down at Guelph. Shortage was said to be acute at Peterborough and Kitchener. Plants were still operating on reserves at Woodstock and Stratford and Galt, but the story generally was the same—that if the U.S. strike is not settled quickly serious consequences will result. Even after re-opening of the mines there will be a time lag before imports again reach Canadian consumers.

Lewis Adamant

By HAROLD W. WARD

Washington, May 8 (AP) — John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers (A.F.L.) refused to budge an inch today from their original contract demands, forcing even more stringent government controls over the United States fast-dwindling soft coal supplies.

Industry was hit harder.

Ford Motor Company, suspended "virtually all operations" indefinitely because of the coal strike, curtailed rail transportation and parts shortage. The shutdown hit 110,000 workers. Chrysler Corporation, indicated it may follow suit. The Association of American Railroads reported about 51,000 railroad men had been laid off in its ranks, and another 250,000 in industries it serves.

Against such a background, federal mediator Paul W. Fuller redoubled efforts to break the negotiations deadlock between Mr. Lewis and the mine operators and end the 38-day-old stoppage which the miners insists is due them.

In legislative circles congressional tempers grew shorter, and support gathered behind demands that strike control legislation get No. 1 priority unless a prompt end to the coal shutdown is effected.

Court-Martial Dismisses One Of Four Charges

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Amsterdam, May 8 (CP Cable) —A court-martial trying Brig. J. F. A. Lister, 39, of Quebec City and Victoria, B.C., today dismissed one of four charges against the officer after deliberations behind closed doors, but denied a defence application for dismissal of two other charges.

The charge dropped was that Brig. Lister, former chief of staff of the Canadian forces in The Netherlands, had fraudulently misemployed public property by causing food and coal to be delivered to his residence at No. 58 Oranjenassaulaan in Amsterdam —the property he is accused of using improperly for private purposes after it was requisitioned for army use.

The prosecution case was completed at the morning session and the defence against the three charges still standing against the officer was begun this afternoon.

Short Supply Of Soft Coal For Gas Plant

Result of inability to augment coal supplies because of the soft coal strike in the United States, only ten days to two weeks' supply of soft coal is on hand for operation of the Belleville gas plant, it was announced Tuesday by O. H. Scott at the regular monthly meeting of the local Public Utilities Commission.

Mr. Scott told commission members that as an alternative to the use of soft coal for the manufacture of gas, he was surveying the coke situation to ascertain if adequate supplies would be available for operation of the water plant to make gas for use of local customers.

Installation of water services to new city residences will be materially affected as result of a noticeable shortage of needed materials, according to the commission manager.

The local public utilities have recently received their 13th power bill from the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, the power rebate to the local commission being $19,718 below that of last year. A letter from the office of secretary of The Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario is self explanatory:—

Belleville Public Utilities
Commission,
277 Front Street,
Belleville, Ontario.
Attention: Mr. Oswald H. Scott
—Secretary
Gentlemen:

Within the last few days we have sent you a statement of the cost of power supplied to your Municipality by the Commission during the year 1945. In it you will see that in the cost of power supplied to all Municipalities on the Southern Ontario System for the year 1945 is included a special contingency charge of $2.00 per horsepower.

The reason for including this special contingency charge is that, during the past year, 1945, the Southern Ontario System was operated under abnormal conditions, that is, the generating stations were operated to maximum capacity without any spare capacity being available in case of major breakdown. This condition, of course, resulted in a maximum revenue for the System and a minimum cost per horsepower delivered, giving a greatly distorted financial picture for the year's operation.

The Commission, of course, cannot continue to operate the System under these conditions without jeopardizing the efficiency and reliability of its power supply to the Municipalities and it now becomes necessary for the Commission, during a period of high construction costs, to proceed with a program of heavy expenditures covering deferred maintenance and the construction of new generating plants, stations and lines, the carrying charges on which expenditures will considerably increase the cost of power supplied by this System during future years.

The Commission therefore considers that in view of rising costs of construction, which even now are 50% above 1939 costs, immediate steps must be taken to improve our financial position to meet more unfavourable operating conditions in future years.

Yours very truly,
Osborne Mitchell,
Secretary.

The saying, "Children should be seen and not heard," has been traced back in England to the 15th century.

Official Surrender Documents Were Signed Year Ago Today

A year ago yesterday the greatest war in the history of the world ended with the unconditional surrender of Germany.

Joy at the news was tempered only by the realization that the war against Japan remained to be solved, with many casualties still ahead. Three months later, a war-weary world lifted thankful eyes as the news was flashed around the world that Japan had capitulated to the Allied armies.

The end of the European conflict, greatest, bloodiest and costliest conflict in human history—it claimed at least 40 million casualties on both sides in killed, wounded and missing — came after five years, eight months and six days of strife that overspread the globe.

A year ago today, May 8, the official surrender documents were signed.

Residents of this city, forewarned by press and radio announcements, impatiently awaited confirmation of the official word. And shortly after ten o'clock on the morning of Monday, May 7th, it came through.

Residents of all ages and creeds gave vent to pent-up emotions. From collegiate institute and public school poured shrieking students. They converged on the downtown areas and their appearance was the general signal for what was nearly an all-out celebration.

They mobbed department store counters in search for flags. They commandeered rides on moving automobiles, drivers of which gladly joined in the celebration parade. Pavements were packed with a yelling, cheering mob of humanity.

Up and down the main thoroughfares paraded the celebrants, on foot in and on cars and on decorated bicycles.

Later when the first thrills of celebration had worn off, city officials took over and proceeded with a victory program, which had been previously planned.

Four Families Face Eviction States Mayor

Shortage of living accommodation in the city is being brought to the attention of Mayor Frank S. Follwell in no uncertain terms, it was learned by members of city council Monday evening when His Worship announced he was being besieged by families facing eviction from their present homes and with no place to go.

Four families living in one large residence on Highland Ave., are presently facing eviction from their present homes with the owners having turned off water and light in an effort to force the tenants to vacate the property. These four families cannot find accommodation in the city, Mayor Follwell told his councillors.

"I am just bringing this unhappy situation to the attention of the council," stated the Mayor. "I don't know what we can do; but certainly something should be done to assist these people."

And the above four families are not alone in telling to the Mayor their desperate need of living accommodation.

During the past three months approximately 100 persons have come to the chief magistrate asking that something be done to assist them in finding accommodation while around May Day ten or a dozen persons indicated they were facing eviction from their place of abode and with no place to go.

The Archdeacon spoke of the service of witness to be held in St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Napanee on May 10th and urged as many as possible to be present.

Rev. H. C. Secker read a splendid paper "A Study in Evangelism."

It was announced that the Autumn meeting in conjunction with the Woman's Auxiliary would be held at Sandhurst.

A discussion of the cost of living bonus and the minimum stipend of clergymen followed.

92nd Birthday Celebrated By Fred Slater

One of the comparatively few nonagenarians in the city, Mr. Fred Slater, North Front Street, today is quietly celebrating his 92nd birthday within the confines of his home and attended by only a few of his close friends and relatives.

Although born in Sussex, England, Mr. Slater has spent practically his entire life in Canada, coming to this country with his parents when only three years of age. Since coming to Belleville he has lived in this city and district where during his active years he followed his trade as a plasterer. Following his marriage he followed his trade for a number of years in the Tweed district.

Enjoys Fair Health

Still enjoying fairly good health, Mr. Slater is unfortunately afflicted with failing eyesight but despite the handicap manages to get about his North Front Street home. Listening to the radio, is one of his foremost enjoyments, "the news" taking first interest during week days while on Sunday he takes great comfort from the radio sermons. He is a faithful listener of Andy Clarke, well-known Sunday morning speaker who in his program "Neighborly News" gives the highlights of the week's rural happenings. Last Sunday Mr. Slater had the satisfaction of hearing his name mentioned by Mr. Clarke on his over ninety birthday club.

Interested in Masonic Lodge

Formerly a regular attendant at Baptist Church, Mr. Slater has had a lifelong interest in the Masonic Lodge and last Spring was presented with a fifty-year jewel by a local lodge. His wife, the former Maria Drewry of Sidney township, died two years ago.

Mr. Slater has three children, one daughter, Mrs. George Masters and two sons, Louis Robert and F. E. Slater, all of Toronto. A niece, Miss Mary E. Stapley, makes her home with Mr. Slater and performs the household tasks.

GALT FACED WITH BOOM

Galt, May 8 — (CP) — This city is faced with one of the biggest building booms in its history. There are between 60 and 70 residences under construction — two projects, one for 37 dwellings and the other for 22, are expected to begin soon and in the first quarter of 1946 a total of 135 permits with a value of $429,662 were issued, compared with $358,000 for the corresponding period in 1945.

Optimist Club To Be Organized

In acknowledgment of the petition signed by a representative group of the business and professional men of the city, Robert J. Taber, Extension Counsellor for Optimist International, has arrived to complete arrangements for the organization of an Optimist Club in this community. Taber is making his headquarters at Hotel Quinte.

The local club is being sponsored by the Optimist Club of Kingston. Jack Monk, President of the Kingston Club said that the chartering of the Club here will be another link in carrying out the objectives of Optimist International. These objectives, Monk said, are to develop Optimist as a philosophy of life; to take an active interest in good government and civic affairs; to work for international accord and friendship among all people and to aid and encourage the development of youth. The motto of the organization is "Friend of the Boy."

At the first organization meeting which is to be held in a few days, Monk said that a delegation of Optimists from Kingston will be present. Every effort, he said, will be made to make this one of the active clubs in the organization. Since the first Optimist Club was formed in 1911 in Buffalo, New York, Optimist has spread throughout the United States and Canada, to Porto Rico, Mexico and Hawaiian Islands, with clubs in most of the leading cities.

J. L. Armstrong, Esq.,
Specialist, Ottawa, Ont.
Dear Sir:

For some time past it has been my intention to write you in appreciation of what your appliance has done for me.

Ruptured in early childhood, cause unknown, the hernia eventually descended into the scrotum, and at times caused me considerable inconvenience, pain and anxiety, in later years greatly interfering with my work. Upon reaching manhood I wore trusses for several years but they could not hold my rupture. Your patented appliance being highly recommended, I had you adjust one. It fitted perfectly, held securely and was very comfortable to wear. IT CAUSED A COMPLETE CURE OF THAT LONG-STANDING RUPTURE IN LESS THAN SEVEN MONTHS. I have not worn it or any other support for over 10 years now and there is not any sign of rupture whatever. As I was ruptured for over 25 years, one can readily appreciate what a cure has meant to me. I am now 45 years of age, still actively engaged in farming.

I do strongly recommend your patented appliance to any who are ruptured. I know of others who have worn it with entire satisfaction. You may use this letter if you wish to.

Yours faithfully,
ERASTUS JESSUP.

U. K. Likely to Require All Beef Canada Can Ship In 1946, '47 and Possibly '48

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 8 — (CP) — The United Kingdom is likely to require all the beef Canada can ship in 1946, 1947 and possibly 1948 but further retention of the vast market gained by this Canadian product during the war will depend on price, food ministry spokesmen said.

During the first two months of 1946 Canadian beef imported by the United Kingdom totalled 487,- [illegible]. In 1938 the average of imports of Canadian beef was just over 1,000 hundredweight monthly. Canada now is the second largest supplier of beef, surpassed only by Argentina which shipped 1,733,742 hundredweight in the first two months of 1946 at prices substantially less than those of Canada.

Asked for their opinion on future prospects for Canadian beef sales in the United Kingdom when normal conditions return, the ministry spokesman replied:

"It is very difficult to say whether there will be a continued dean dmrof

ed demand for Canadian beef in this country in the future.

"It must be borne in mind that the price is very high, being about double what we pay other producing countries and in ordinary times if the supply were equal to the demand, we could not afford to pay Canada as much as the United States would be willing to pay."

Imports statistics indicated that prices now being paid Argentina for beef are about half those paid Canada. In one classification, fore and hind quarters including bone, the import value of Canadian beef was more than £2 ($8.90) a hundredweight more than that of Argentina.

This higher value was evident although Canadian beef cattle shipments to the United States were halted during the war and Canadian prices therefore did not benefit from higher prices paid across the borders. In 1945 Canada processed and sent overseas the equivalent of 500,000 head, more than twice as many as could be exported to the United States, when exports were permitted under the quota established by Washington.

Australian Liquor Laws Archaic, Will Be Changed

By JACK HOLDSWORTH
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, May 8 —(CP)— Australian liquor laws — a state responsibility — are regarded in Australia as archaic. In Tasmania, the hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., in Queensland 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and in other states 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Under wartime regulations, the Commonwealth government took over the governing of liquor laws and made standard the opening and closing hours of 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. These regulations now have lasped and power has gone back to the states.

In New South Wales, the Labor government has been quick to follow up the return of its powers to introduce and have passed by parliament a bill designed to liberalize its liquor laws.

This is the first move by any state government to provide what one minister has called "civilized drinking." The bill provides for a referendum on closing hours of either the present 6 p.m. or 6.30 p.m., 9 p.m. or 10 p.m. The 6 p.m. closing was decided by public referendum in the First Great War and the government considers that if the hour is to be changed the public should change it.

It also provides for an opening hour of 10 a.m. as against the present 11 a.m. Before the war, the hour was 6 a.m.

The bill also provides for the establishment of licensed community hotels by municipal and shore councils.

At present, such hotels are not possible by law but the success of this type of hotel in other states and overseas has prompted the government to include this provision.

It also provides for sale of beer and light wines in restaurants and cafes until 8:30 p.m. Only licensed hotels at present are allowed to serve liquor with meals and then, only at the stipulated hours, to non-residents.

The bill does not meet all objections but is regarded as a step in the right direction. It does not make drinking hours as liberal as they are in England, nor does it provide for unlimited "off-premise" licences on the New York model.

Tribunal Told Reichsbank Turned Into Depository for Gold Teeth, Jewels, Watches of Camp Victims

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Nuernberg, May 8 —(AP)— Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz opened his defence at the war crimes trial Tuesday one year after he surrendered the Reich as successor to Hitler.

He followed Walther Funk, last Reichsbank president and economics minister. Nine of 21 defendants still are to be heard after Doenitz.

The tribunal was told Tuesday that Funk, by arrangement with Himmler, turned the Reichsbank into a huge depository for gold teeth, spectacles, jewels, watches and other valuables seized from concentration camp victims.

Thomas Dodd, United States prosecutor, showed a seven-minute motion picture made in the Reichsbank vaults at Frankfurt, where troops found scores of cases of such valuables a year ago.

Mr. Dodd also offered an affidavit by Emil Puhl, Reichsbank vice president under Funk, in which Puhl was quoted as saying:

"In the summer of 1942 Funk told me he had arranged with Himmler for the Reichsbank to receive gold and jewels from the S.S. I asked Funk the source of the gold and he replied it was confiscated property from the eastern occupied territories but I should ask no further questions. Funk said we should go ahead but keep the matter absolutely secret. The gold was taken from Jews and concentration camp victims with Funk's approval and knowledge."

Funk, who now is presenting his defence, protested that he did not see such things in the Reichsbank vaults, that "many people deposited valuables but the Reichsbank was not authorized to look upon them."

"Nobody ever deposited his gold teeth in a bank," Mr. Dodds said.

"Where they came from I don't know," said Funk.

The Reich's last economic chief expressed surprise at Puhl's affidavit. He had described Puhl Monday as credible and trustworthy.

"I declare," he testified Tuesday, "that this affidavit of Mr. Puhl is not true. It is incredible to me that a man in such a position now tries to put the blame on me. I request that he declare in my presence these details."

Dynamite Thrown Into Terminal Of Breweries

Montreal, May 8 —(CP)— Two packages of dynamite were hurled into the National Breweries railway terminal on St. James Street West early today, marking the third "bombing attack" on the company's property since April 30.

As on the two previous occasions when home-made bombs were thrown from passing automobiles into beer delivery trucks, no one was injured but the property damage was clearcut.

One of the dynamite-filled bundles exploded, causing a hole 30 inches square, while the other had its hissing fuse removed by Constable Charles Francoeur of the C.N.R. Police.

Upon being notified of the explosion, city police threw a giant cordon around the premises. It was believed that the two packages of explosives were thrown from inside the property grounds.

A partial strike has been in effect at National Breweries' four plants since March 28, but the company has denounced the work stoppage as an illegal strike and production was brought up to normal. The International Union of United Brewery Workers (A.F.L.) has demanded a wage increase and a shorter working week.

Both company and union officials have condemned the use of violence in the disagreement.

War Bride Fails To Patch Differences With Her Husband

St. Catharines, May 8 — (CP)— Doris Shaver, 22, British war bride, Tuesday announced she had decided to return to England after failing to reach an understanding with her husband who, she said, failed to claim her on her arrival in Canada last March.

"I love Canada and I hate going back to England, but I'm going to go anyhow," she said. "My husband and I talked most of the evening, but it seems to be impossible to iron out our difficulties. I think it's a great misunderstanding and I'm sorry about it all."

A Canadian Red Cross official in St. Catharines said Mrs. Shaver would be taken back to Toronto today to await return to England through the R.C.A.F.

The pretty, blue-eyed girl has been cared for by the Red Cross in Toronto since her arrival in Canada March 24. Police found her walking on rainswept No. 2 highway near Burlington, Ont., Sunday, and she told them she was walking the 70 miles from Toronto to St. Catharines to see her husband and seek his support. She had slept Friday night in the open in the rain near Oakville.

Monday night she was brought to the St. Catharines home of Mrs. Elsie Barron, sister of Mrs. Shaver's husband.

Mrs. Shaver said she spent four years as a transport driver in the British Women's Auxiliary Air Force and met her husband, an R.C.A.F. mechanic who worked at the same base headquarters in England. She was under age to enlist, she said, and to join the forces she told authorities she was an orphan. She told her husband the same thing when he was going with her and he did not find out that she had parents and two brothers until he returned from service on the continent. The misunderstanding between her and her husband started then she said.

Publicity Unfair

Mrs. Shaver, wife of 27-year-old Carl Shaver of St. Catharines, said newspaper publicity about her case was "unfair" and refused to divulge her maiden name or her home address in England.

Shaver, a corporal in an R. C. A. F. demolition squadron, married her two years ago after knowing her eight months. Discord overseas followed his return to England from Germany last September.

Shavers said today that after he returned to Canada he received word from his wife that she had decided not to follow him to Canada. The next he heard of her was a telephone call from R.C.A.F. officials who told him she had arrived in Toronto. He paid her $25 since her arrival, he said, and since March she has worked as waitress in a Toronto restaurant.

Truman Urges Inter-American Military System

Washington, May 8 (AP)—An inter-American military system streamlined into a closely - knit striking force appeared to be President Truman's ultimate goal in asking Congress to perpetuate the wartime hemisphere role of the United States.

Such a force—entirely equipped with United States arms, its individual units organized along United States staff lines and led by officers trained in the United States—would be ready for instant action against any future aggressor.

In asking specifically for a law to permit the United States to help train, organize and equip the armed forces of the American nations—including Canada — Mr. Truman emphasized that it is "highly desirable to standardize military organization, training methods and equipment."

(In Ottawa, a cabinet member who declined to be quoted by name said he believed that as far as Canada was concerned the President was seeking extension of the Canadian-United States Defence Board.)

Behind Mr. Truman's request to Congress is the history of several Latin American countries which over a long period relied on German and French military missions to train their armies. Some continued to use German and French equipment as well as methods.

Even the Brazilian expeditionary force which fought as part of the United States 5th Army in Italy still had German artillery when it first began to train for its overseas assignment.

Agreements With Individual Countries

If Congress goes along with Mr. Truman the first result is expected to be a number of agreements with individual countries to continue the program of military assistance formerly rendered under lend-lease and other wartime arrangements.

Eventually, however, the requested law would permit the United States to play its full role in carrying out the projected inter-American defence alliance, scheduled to be drawn up at a conference in Brazil sometime this year.

Most of the 21 American Republics have different ideas on the details of that alliance, but all agree on one major provision: That if one of their number is attacked, the rest will come to its assistance immediately.

How Argentina will figure in the defence alliance still is problematical. The United States indicated last month, however, that it might relax its stand against including Argentina if President-Elect Juan Peron's administration adheres to its hemisphere obligations.

Canada, as a member of the British Commonwealth, does not hold membership in the Pan American Union and hence will not participate officially in the hemisphere defence treaty.

Mr. Truman took pains however, to assert that the military collaboration could be extended as well to Canada, "whose cooperation with the United States in matters affecting their common defence is of particular importance."

When Second World War Ended

Exactly one year ago on May 8th at 10:01 p.m. Greenwich mean time (6:01 p.m. E.D.T.) the Second Great War ended. Canadians had begun the celebration on the seventh on receipt of dispatches that the Germans had signed unconditional surrender terms and also marked May 8th as a holiday. The people in Britain and Continental Europe observed the coming of peace in the Western World on the announcement made by Mr. Churchill on May 8th. It was on that day that a special Allied communique from Supreme Headquarters announced the signing of the surrender terms which "became effective at 23:01 hours Central European time (10:01 G.M.T.) May 8th. The surrender of the Germans at Reims was signed at 12:41 a.m., G.M.T., May 7th and was re-signed at Berlin two days later as ratification and confirmation of the first ceremony.

All the titanic might and fury, all the evil and criminality which Germany and Hitler used in their attempt to enslave humanity had to come down and yield in a little schoolhouse in a land that Hitlerism had overrun in 1940. In that little place, a schoolhouse in Reims, France, Germany passed from a belligerent into a defeated power and a few strokes of the pen set the seal on Germany's collapse. German might had shrunken and her military power could be confined to this little room, the symbol of peace.

At least the consummate evil of Nazism could go no more, it was crushed and Nazism that wielded instruments of the second war of aggression had within the bare walls of this room to take the peaceful pen and admit defeat.

Germany, the nation that had gone to war with the raucous voice of Hitler directing her in her aggression, had been beaten in the conflict of arms by the power and ideals of a world that loved freedom and would stand no domination from the Hun.

Many a small building like that schoolhouse which had been Supreme Headquarters of the Western Allied Command, had disappeared in the fury of war. But this building was destined to have a place in history. For a year it has been in the quiet of a continent at peace and Reims, the city in which it is, is so quiet that very few soldiers are to be seen. Things in the rooms are as they were on that memorable day of the surrender of the Hun. Mad Hitlerism could not disturb its quiet and repose for the evil Nazi power was crushed and the material fury Hitler's government had directed against the free nations had blown itself out, helpless to carry on aggression.

That this peace and calm may ever remain, that great difficulties which cause anxiety and concern in the world today a year after the surrender of the enemy may be and can be evened out is the hope and faith of men.

Big Increase in Pupils

Miss Ellen Wilkinson, British Minister of Education, recently told the annual conference of the National Union of Teachers that as a result of raising the school-leaving age to fifteen next year there would be 390,000 additional children in state schools by the end of 1948. To meet this increase the Ministry is planning a total inflow of fifty-six thousand teachers in three years — ten thousand former teachers returning from war service, twenty-seven thousand from universities and ordinary training colleges and nineteen thousand from emergency colleges whose present capacity of three thousand from students in fifteen colleges is to be quadruped.

Against this, eighteen thousand teachers will normally return in three years and seventeen thousand abnormal retirements are expected, for example teachers past retiring age and married women who stayed to help during the war. The net increase in the number of teachers in England and Wales will therefore be twenty-one thousand. This will not only meet the raising of the leaving age but also enable a start to be made with a reduction in the size of classes.

Miss Wilkinson added that most of the planning for the six thousand additional prefabricated classrooms was completed during the winter and she hoped for real progress with this scheme during the summer. She concluded with three ideals for England's teachers and school children —a sense of quality, a sense of the standard of craftsmanship or finish and the development of self-created interests necessary to substitute "the good life" for "the goods life."

Buds of Ancient Seas

Now that spring is here the welcome sight of unfolding buds is one that everywhere meets the eye. Most of us nowadays think of buds only in connection with flowers, shrubs, and trees, but Dr. M. Fritz of the Royal Ontario Museum states: "Millions of years ago, at the time our great coal deposits were forming in widespread swamps, sea-buds or "blastoids" were among the characteristic shell-fish in the oceans. They are now known only as fossils, having become extinct soon after the time of their greatest development.

Blastoids are closely related to sea-lilies and also to starfish, though they do not greatly resemble the latter in outward form. The animal itself was lodged in a limey cup, which was supported on a hard, limey stem that fastened it to the sea-bottom. From the cup extended numerous slender, flexible, food-gathering arms. The five areas in the cup to which the arms were attached resemble the petals of a flower about to unfold, hence the name blastoid, meaning 'springing forth like a bud'."

British Radar With a "Memory"

One of the latest pieces of radar equipment in use by the British Navy was demonstrated in London recently. This robot, known as the A. F. (automatic following) device, possesses an electrical "memory." When radar warning of an approaching aircraft is received a button is pressed on the A.F. equipment and an aerial immediately begins to search the sky. Within a few seconds it locates the target and "locks" on to it, indicating its achievement by flashing a green light. The aerial then automatically follows the target, "memorizing" its course and speed if it passes behind another object, and the equipment transmits a continuous flow of electrical information about it to the gun predictors.

Well Told Off

Just before he passed a ten-year penal servitude sentence on Dr. Alan Nunn May for giving secret information about atomic research to a foreign agent, Mr. Justice Roland Oliver had something to say that should be quietly framed and remembered, says the Hamilton Spectator, quoting the learned Judge as follows:

"I have listened to what your counsel has said about your being a man of honor who only did what you believed right. I don't take that view at all. I cannot understand how any man in your position could have had the crass conceit to arrogate to himhelf to do what you did, knowing you were giving away one of the country's most precious secrets."

Newspaper Facts

Nationally known educators, public school teachers and business men are loud in their praises for the training and experience gained by carrier boys in newspaper sales and delivery. Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the late Governor Alfred E. Smith and Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador of the United States to the Court of St. James, were carrier boys in their youth.

Wooden legs are fast becoming a thing of the past, now that artificial limbs of paper have stepped in to take their place, says Rotarian Magazine. Soon the entire limb, except for the metal joints, may be made of paper fiber of great mechanical strength, toughness, and resistance to wear. Layers of chemically jellied paper are combined to make the hard fiber. After drying and receiving a smooth finish, we have a product of regenerated cellulose.

BEYOND TODAY

Never quite sufficient skill;
  Never all content the mind!
Men look forward, hoping, still,
  Something better they will find;
Hoping there are fairer ways
Than have marked their yesterdays.

Always luring men ahead
  Shines the dream that may be true.
Spent are all the moments fled;
  Pride is in what's still to do!
This their hope, till strength is gone:
More to learn lies further on.

Never triumph all complete!
  Never whole today's success!
Men forever hope to meet
  More of good; of evil less;
Sure some near tomorrow may
Better be than seems today.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What does "Boston" mean?

Boston, Massachusetts, was named after Boston in Lincolnshire, England.

"Boston" as an English town name is a corruption of St. Botolph's Town," which was so named because an English saint founded a monastery there in the seventh century.

The peninsula where Boston, Massachusetts, now stands was originally called Trimountaine (modern Tremont) because it contains three hills.

On September 17, 1630, the General Court of Massachussets Bay ordained that the settlement "shall be called Boston."

What is now Boston Common was first owned by a man named Blaxton. In 1634 the General Court purchased this land from the original settler and set it aside for militia training and common pasturage after the manner of village commons in England.

The first Bostonian is reputed to have left Boston because he preferred the company of Indians to that of Bostonians.

He was William Blackstone (1595-1675), a clergyman in the Church of England who immigrated to America in 1623 and was the first white man to settle on land where Boston now stands.

There was no love lost between him and the Puritans who arrived later, and the newcomers soon restricted the hermit's domain to fifty acres. He had left England, according to his own statement, because he disliked the lord-bishops and he would not now submit to the lord-brethren.

Preferring the society of Indians to that of the Puritans, he sold all his Boston land except six acres and removed to the vicinity of Pawtucket, where he later married and had one son. Blackstone was scholarly in his tastes, lived somewhat as a recluse from the society of whites, associated chiefly with Indians and is remembered in history chiefly because of a certain mystery surrounding his life. He is said to have had the distinction of planting the first orchards in Massachusetts.

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

British Proposal To Withdraw Forces From Egypt

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Britain's proposal to withdraw her military establishment from Egypt, after occupying that vitally strategic base on the Imperial life-line since 1882, is sensational and daring, but we shouldn't make the mistake of assuming that it's a harum-scarum scheme cooked up over-night by the new labor government, since it most certainly has been under consideration in one form or another for the last 25 years, and probably longer.

Winston Churchill in a heated attack in Commons on the project characterized it as one of the most momentous he had heard in the House. He added ominously that "after 60 years of diplomacy and administration, things built up with great labor are cast away with great shame and folly."

Prime Minister's Reply

Prime Minister Attlee's reply to his Conservative opponent was that the plan was the best method "to calm rising Egyptian nationalism." Attlee said the decision was agreed to by the chiefs of staff and Dominion prime ministers. From Cairo we learn that the British offer is contingent on revision of the present Anglo-Egyptian alliance so that the defence of the Suez Canal would be entrusted to Egypt.

Well, now, just what is behind this Empire-rocking proposal? The British military occupation of Egypt began 64 years ago, but we needn't go back further than the beginning of the First Great War when Egypt in theory was still a province of Turkey. As soon as the Turks entered the war on the German side, England deposed the Egyptian Khedive and established a protectorate under Sultan Husseim Kamil.

That protectorate lasted until 1922 and it not only bred strong anti-British feeling but simulated nationalism.

It was during this period that the British government canvassed the position to see what solution might be possible for a permanent settlement of a dangerous situation.

Three Ways

The conclusion was that the problem would have to be handled in one of three ways. First, the protectorate might be carried on without bringing Egypt into the Empire. Second, Egypt might be incorporated in the Empire and accorded some self-government. Third, Egypt might be accorded independence with the requirement that she make an alliance with Britain which would meet the latter's requirements for Imperial security.

The third course was adopted in general form in 1922. The protectorate was abolished but Britain reserved certain important privileges among which was the maintenance of armed forces in Egypt. There was a revision of this treaty in 1936, but still giving Britain the right to continue military occupation.

Lumber Industry In British Columbia Facing Strike

Vancouver, May 8 — (CP) — The threat of a strike hung over the British Columbia lumber industry today after an official of the International Woodworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) issued a wage and work-hour ultimatum to employers of the province's 37,000 lumbermen.

Harold Pritchett, the union's district president released a 600-word statement last night advising operators the workers would walk out at 11 a.m. May 15 unless a "satisfactory settlement" to the union's 'just demands' were given before that deadline.

The employers offered a 12½ cents an hour wage increase, a 44-hour week and up to three years extension of the master agreement but the union turned this down in favor of its demands of a 25-cent hourly general wage increase, a 40-hour week and union security provisions in the 1946 agreement.

The union president said all preparations for the strike had been completed. Arrangements had been made for skeleton crews to remain at work to maintain property and prevent fires.

Early this year a strike vote gave 92 per cent of the workers in favor.

THREE OBJECTIVES

Frankfurt, May 8 — (AP) — Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States Commander-in-Chief in Europe, said in a VE-Day message today that the "difficult" task of restoring Germany to self-government would "continue far into the future." He said "The three great initial objectives of occupation were demilitarization, denazification and de-industrialization" for Germany.

ELECTED MODERATOR

Toronto, May 8 — (CP)—Rev. Walter Patterson of Millbrook was elected moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of Toronto and Kingston last night at the opening session of the Synod's annual meeting here. More than 200 ministers and lay representatives are taking part in the three-day meeting.

WHY HAVE HEADACHE?

A reader describes her experience with headache:

About four times a month I have extremely painful headaches, which medical advisers call migraine. They have told me the trouble is hereditary and that nothing will cure it.

But I read in your column about calcium for periodic sick headache. I sent for your pamphlet "Why Have Headache?" and began supplementing my diet with calcium and vitamin D. Since then (a little over a year ago) I have had only four mild attacks. This is wonderful when one considers the amount of pain suffered and the loss of time from work ...(Mrs. F. J. B.)

Calcium is no specific or cure for headache of any kind, but calcium deficiency seems to be a common contributing cause, not only of ordinary so-called neuralgic headaches but also of periodic sick headaches. The medical term for periodic sick headaches is migraine. The characteristic of migraine is that the attack is preceded by an "aura", which is some sort of premonitory sensation or signal that warns the patient the attack impends. Frequently the "aura" is the appearance of scintillating or jagged dancing light —called "fortification spectra" at one side of the field of vision.

I have come to believe that most individuals who are subject to periodic sick headaches or frequent neuralgic or "nervous" headache should increase their daily calcium (lime) intake. Whether they get their calcium entirely in foods that contain much calcium (milk, cheese, egg yolk, peas, beans, peanuts, greens, other nuts) or by taking calcium preparations to supplement their ordinary diet, they should increase also their daily intake of vitamin D or their daily exposure to sunshine, the ultraviolet rays of which generate or manufacture vitamin D in the skin, for vitamin D is essential for metabolism, assimiliation, utilization and re tenton of calcium.

In my opinion this increased intake of calcium and vitamin D is the best corrective or preventive remedy we have for periodic sick headache or "neuralgic" headache.

Please remember, it is nutritional, not medicinal and you must continue it practically all the year around—just as you take bread and butter the year around, if you want to get the full benefit of it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Shortage of Vitamin A

I was born with excessively dry skin, have been troubled with a kind of acne for a number of years, and have also had night blindness to a marked degree. Shortly after I began taking 100,000 to 150,000 units of natural Vitamin A daily I experienced quite an improvement, have continued taking 50,000 units daily for three months now, and all my troubles are gone (J. T.)

Answer—Dry skin, night blindness (which means difficulty in seeing in a dimly lighted place or against the glare of traffic lights) small hard pustules around the hair follicles, in many cases just dry skin (xerosis) and an appearance of "fishskins" or alligator hide or frog skin or nutmeg grater roughness upon outer surfaces of legs and arms. These are characteristic of vitamin A deficiency. Therapeutic test: Take 100,000 units of natural vitamin A (not carotene) daily for a while—if the trouble is from insufficient vitamin A you should experience distinct improvement within a week. After you notice improvement, continue taking not less than 25,000 units of A daily for several months. If you fail to obtain improvement — well, no harm has been done, anyway.

No Guessing

We think our daughter is in the same condition as that "tired college girl." She has taken all sorts ...her metabolism was .... if you think your treatment would do for her what it did...

(M. H. R.)

Answer—But, Madam, I did not treat the "tired college girl." I cannot guess what your daughter's trouble may be. On request I am glad to send anybody who provides stamped self addressed envelope Instructions for Taking an Iodin Ration. I believe nearly everybody needs it, but I call it ration —it is nutritional, not medicinal.

TRENTON

Forty-Two Cases In Police Court

Trenton (Special) — 42 cases were heard in Trenton police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and B. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney.

An elderly lady was fined $200 and costs for having liquor not purchased on a permit. A large quantity of beer and some whiskey was seized and ordered confiscated by the magistrate at today's court.

10 persons were fined $10 and costs for breach of Liquor Control Act and one case was enlarged for a week.

Carl MacDonald, Sidney Williams, Eugene Monaghan and Gordon Campney were all charged with taking part in an affray. The fight took place in a local dance hall. Police were called and arrested three, one had disappeared. Each was fined $5 and costs or 7 days.

Charge Dismissed

Joseph Cannon was charged with driving while intoxicated. He was defended by Malcolm Robb of Belleville. The charge was dismissed. Cannon was also charged with careless driving. On this charge he paid $25 and $7.50 costs.

Gerald Lafferty and Dean Summerville were both charged with assault on a Trenton man. They were arrested in the small hours of the morning. Lafferty pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and $7.00 costs. Summerville had his case enlarged for one week. Summerville was also charged with an offense under the Criminal Code for wearing an army uniform without permission. He asked for an enlargement in this case and asked for bail. Bail was set at $200. At a late hour he had not obtained it.

Charged With Trespassing

Ronald H. Walker and Bernard Piche were both charged with trespassing on the C.P.R. railway. They were allowed to go when the Crown offered no evidence. Both youths were pals of 18-year-old Lancelot Coulter of Lakeview, and were with him when the ill-fated boy was instantly killed while attempting to board a fast moving freight train here Sunday afternoon. It was thought they had experienced enough when they had witnessed the tragic accident in which their pal was killed.

Illegal Fishing

Gerald Radway was fined $10 and costs for illegal fishing in the Trent River.

Keith Beckwith was charged with assaulting his wife and non-support. He asked for a week's enlargement. It was granted.

A local merchant appeared on 3 charges of breach of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board Regulations. Had a week's enlargement which was asked for by the Crown.

Charged With Fraud

Fred VanNorman was charged with fraud. He obtained food and lodging at a local hotel. For making restitution and paying costs, the charge was withdrawn. He, it seemed, served with the armed forces.

A young Trenton man who recently returned from four years overseas, was charged with assault and fined $10 plus costs.

Jack Mosier, a youth from north of Belleville was charged with removing a lantern placed on a barricade on West Street. A local citizen observed the car which Mosier was driving stop at the barricade. The driver got out picked up the lantern and drove away. The licence number was obtained and police were notified. Before the driver had gone very far he was apprehended and in today's court fined $25 and costs. The lantern was returned to the barricade immediately by police, thus probably preventing a serious accident.

Geo. Bird was fined $5 and costs for speeding.

Everett Prindle fined $10 plus costs for defective brakes.

Wilfred L. Bedore fined $2 and costs for failing to produce a driver's licence.

Five persons were fined the usual $2 for breach of the parking by-law.

Three children were made temporary wards of the Children's Aid Society at the request of Thomas D. Ruston, Children's Aid Inspector.

MARMORA

Tennis Courts Will Be Used This Season

Marmora—Tennis has not been played on the Marmora courts since the 1943 season, at which time. Tim Byrnes was president, and Eugene Brady the secretary of the Tennis Club. At a meeting held in May of last year, election of officers was carried out with Hugh Forbes receiving the office of president and Eugene Brady being returned as secretary. Interest was not forthcoming to the extent that the courts could be put into shape and again they did not function. However with revenue coming into the club's treasury, it was decided at a meeting held in the council chamber on Monday evening to put the courts into shape and procure a weed killer to expedite the work. Charles Clairmont was given the job by the old executive which will function until renewals of membership are sufficient to call a meeting for the election of a new slate of officers. Ways and means of increasing the membership is engaging the attention of the old executive at this time.

NO STATEMENT GIVEN

Toronto, May 8 (CP)—George R. Donovan, Secretary of the Dominion Marine Association representing the majority of Lake ship owners, said here last night he would have no statement on action of the Canadian Seamen's Union in rejecting proposals of operators and calling a strike tentatively for June 7, until he has received official notice of the C.S.U. action. If reports of the C.S.U.'s action were correct "the union is breaking its contract with us, which does not expire until Aug. 1," he said.

125 Chickens And Garage Destroyed by Fire

Roslin—Early Tuesday morning fire destroyed a garage, the property of Mr. Harry Sayers. Also lost in the blaze were 125 five-weeks old chickens, a brooder stove, some grain, and a number of tools which were in the building.

The fire had gained considerable headway before it was noticed. Assistance from the men from Chisholm's Mill who rushed to the scene kept the blaze from spreading to the other farm buildings.

School re-opened on Monday after the Easter vacation with no new scholars being enrolled. Daylight saving time was adopted for the spring term.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. MacDonald, Mrs. W. Fitchett, Mrs. D. Leslie, Mrs. W. White and Mrs. M. Fargey attended the sixtieth anniversary of the W.M.S. of the Kingston Presbyterial held in Kingston on Wednesday last.

A number from here attended the funeral of the late Mr. James Hall at Latta on Thursday afternoon.

The Roslin cheese factory commenced operations for the season on Monday with Mr. E. Pascoe as cheesemaker.

Friends, relatives and neighbors gathered in the Anglican Church hall on Friday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elliott (nee Carmel Coulter) a recent bride and groom, and presented them with a gift of money for which they very graciously expressed their thanks. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening, music being furnished by the Tracey orchestra.

Mrs. S. Stirk, of Brampton, is spending a week with her son here.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Knight, Douglas and Ruth of Napanee, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Sayers and Helen.

Mrs. E. McKee left on Friday for Calgary and Victoria after visiting her brother Mr. and Mrs. W. Gillespie for two weeks.

Police, Gunmen Trade Shots In Running Battle

Montreal, May 8—(CP)—Montreal's current shooting wave continued unabated last night as police and gunmen traded shots in a running battle in the north-central section of the city. No injuries were reported.

Constables Eugene Leclerc and Gilbert Trepanier of the radio police department were called to the Leduc drug store on Maplewood Avenue and as they approached were met by a burst of fire from the men in a nearby automobile which accelerated and shot off, pursued by the police.

A running battle, punctuated by bursts of gun shots from the gunmen and police, took place for several blocks before the police lost their quarry at Laurier Avenue and Cote St. Catherine Road.

Meanwhile, police intensified their search for the gunmen who eluded them Sunday following an island-wide gun battle and for perpetrators of a $2,000 snatch-grab jewelry store robbery who injured a municipal policeman when he returned their fire.

Glasgow Barmaids May Continue In Employment

Glasgow, May 8 — (CP)—The behavior of Glasgow barmaids has been exemplary during the war and so they may continue in employment from which women were banned for 40 years.

The Burgh of Glasgow licensing court heard an appeal for a re-imposition of the pre-war ban on women barmaids from Mrs. Trevelyn Smith who said she spoke for 17 groups representing churches and social organizations working for young people. She said it was not desirable that young women should work in licensed premises where they were subject to temptations.

Douglas M. Campbell, appearing for the Glasgow and District Licensed Trade Defence Association, said the barmaids employed during the war, all more than 25, had not only been models of behavior but their presence often had resulted in premises being kept cleaner and brighter while the conduct of those visiting bars had been improved, especially in respect to language. He asked the barmaids be allowed to continue their work.

Chief Constable Stable Malcolm McCulloch said that premises where women were employed were kept in better condition and the presence of women had a desirable restraining influence on patrons.

The court voted 9-5 to allow the barmaids to remain.

Three Puzzles To Solve In Child Killing

Minaki, Ont., May 8 —(CP)— Inspector T. R. Wright, ace investigator of the Ontario Provincial Police, "sorted out" clues today as the body of three-year-old Joan Smith, abducted and slain here Saturday night, went forward to Winnipeg for burial.

Her body was released after a post mortem examination by Dr. A. E. Allin of Fort William established the cause of death as a fractured skull and that she had not been criminally attacked.

As police hinted at "surprising developments" but gave no indication what they might be, Inspector Wright had these puzzles to solve:

Who kidnapped the blond, blue-eyed tot, stripped off her pyjamas and then pounded her head against a rock only about 100 yards from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Smith?

How did that person enter the house, windows of which were sealed and the doors difficult to open, without being heard by a maid in an upstairs room or being barked at by a dog whose devotion to Joan and her younger brother was a by-word in the community?

Why was it done and where are the pyjamas she was wearing?

While residents puzzled over the dog's failure to bark, Mrs. Leslie Muncer, to whose house Joan's body was brought when it was found, recalled the part-collie had behaved strangely while the search for the girl was going on.

"I said to the dog," 'come on, let's find Joanie,'" she said. "Instead of jumping up as he would ordinarily have done, he cringed and lay on his back and raised his legs in the air like dogs do when they think they are going to be hit by someone they don't want to bite." Police were fairly confident the slayer was still in the neighborhood. Fire Wardens and Indian guides have been warned to watch for strangers and the community is isolated except for train and water communications.

One resident said no stranger could get out after dark. "The roads are too treacherous and they could hardly get away without it being known here. No one left by air. That leaves only the railway as a way out and all movement by that route has been double-checked."

The 80th annual session of the Incorporated Synod of the Diocese of Ontario opened at St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, yesterday, when the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of the Diocese, delivered his charge.

The annual synod service was held in the cathedral last night when the Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, B.A., B.D., was the special speaker. At this service, Rev. S. E. Harrington, Kingston; and the Rev. R. N. Stout, Gananoque, were installed as canons of St. George's Cathedral.

Hutchinson, incumbent of the newly formed mission at Madoc; Rev. A. S. McCinnell, Trenton, and the Rev. A. J. Anderson, recently appointed chaplain at the Kingston Penitentiary.

Bishop Lyons, in his charge to the diocese, urged the membership of the church to support the Anglican Advance Appeal.

The choirs of St. Thomas Church and Christ Church, Belleville, assisted in the Tuesday evening service at St. George's Cathedral.

TO WORRY ABOUT

Unless you shift the burden

When a relative or friend names you in his Will as executor of his estate, the time will come, (if you survive him), when everything that is his; —business, investments, debts and family problems—will be all yours—to worry about.

If you are a busy man or are not experienced in estate administration, you would find that arranging for Probate, valuing Assets, establishing Debts, paying Succession Duties, dealing with Investments, setting up Trusts, making Distributions, and attending generally to the many details of Administration, would be more than you could handle, with justice to either the estate, the heirs, or your own affairs.

Should this happen to you, the thing to do is appoint The Royal Trust Company your Agent, to administer the estate, which would relieve you of all but superficial functions as executor.

Conversely, and in consideration for the friend you might yourself appoint, be sure to name The Royal Trust Company in your own Will as executor and trustee of your estate, to act alone, or with a relative or friend as co-executor or adviser.

It often pays in many ways to have the job well done.

WEDDINGS

WICKENS—DOWNS

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Downs, 276 Front Street, Trenton, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, Saturday, April 27, at two o'clock when their eldest daughter, Joy Gwendolyn, was united in marriage to Francis Carl Wickens, second son of Mrs. Miles Thompson of Niagara, Falls, Ont., and the late Wm. Wickens of Ivanhoe. The Rev. J. D. Martin of King Street United Church officiated.

The ceremony took place under a circular canopy of pink and white, arranged at the large bay windows which were banked with flowers.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a softly draped white sheer dress, flower headdress with shoulder-length veil, and carried a bouquet of roses.

Her attendant, Miss Patsy Millar, was charming in blue crepe with scalloped neckline and white accessories. She wore a blue headdress with shoulder-length veil and a corsage of roses.

Mr. George Hutley assisted the groom.

Mrs. Downs, the bride's mother, received the guests in cafe au lait crepe with turquoise, and Mrs. Thompson, the groom's mother, wore navy sheer with a touch of white. Both wore corsages of pale pink roses.

After the ceremony the guests partook of a very dainty and delicious buffet lunch, highlight of which was the beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake. Later the happy young couple left by car for Niagara Falls, Ont., for a short honeymoon and on their return will reside in Trenton. For travelling the bride wore a turquoise faconne crepe dress under a light topcoat and brown accessories.

There were approximately ninety guests in attendance and many beautiful and useful gifts were in evidence. The groom's gift to the bride was a single strand of pearls. The bridesmaid received a gold compact and the groomsman a silk tie.

Those from out-of-town included Mr. and Mrs. John Wickens, Mrs. Arthur Cooney and Mr. and Mrs. German Wright, Ivanhoe; Mr. Irvin Wickens, Niagara Falls, Ont., and Mrs. Mildred Howden, Hamilton.

Miss Beatrice Jones, recently deceased, left to the association a bequest of $300 to endow a cot in the new hospital for convalescents and chronics, to help towards the furnishing of a room there.

Mr. Barclay gave an interesting report on some new equipment and alterations that have been and are in progress. The lady on duty for the Home for the Aged for the month of May is Mrs. Edwards.

The following gifts were donated to the home during April: Miss Niblock, 3 dozen oranges; Mrs. Draycott, candy, oranges, bananas, cake and buns (these were done up in individual packages and each resident received three for Easter), Mrs. F. Wills, playing cards; Col. T. Wills, ladies' and men's clothing; Roblin's Dairy, a pint of cream; children of Queen Mary School, 45 dozen eggs. The service for the first Sunday of the month was conducted by the Salvation Army; weekly services by the Rev. J. W. Houston, Tabernacle United Church.

Q. I intend to visit relatives in the United States for a few days. Will I be allowed to take them gifts of butter and meat?

A. Whether or not you would be allowed to take butter and meat into the United States is a matter which comes under the jurisdiction of the United States customs officials. We suggest that you enquire at your nearest customs office.

Q. I wrote you a while ago about the price of $2 for having my coat shortened and you asked for more information. The cleaners did not shorten the coat where I had it marked and now it is so short I cannot wear it. Is there anything I can do to make these people replace my coat?

A. As we explained to you before this firm would be allowed to charge the same price for the same work as was charged by them in 1941. As far as the poor workmanship is concerned we would advise that you consult a lawyer in the matter. As you say that the coat is ruined to the extent you cannot wear it we would think that you had a good claim against this firm.

Q. When a house is sold should the notice be given by the present landlord or the persons who buys the house?

A. If it is possible to give notice to the tenants then such notice to the tenants must be given on the proper form provided by the Rentals Administration by the new owner.

A. Only the public can stamp question about butter spoiling and being sent to the soap factories. The conditions mentioned have actually been seen and I would like to know why some of the black markets cannot be dealt with?

A. Anly the public can stamp out black markets. It takes two persons to create a black market ... an unscrupulous buyer and an unscrupulous seller. If you know that black market conditions exist in your community or that butter is being allowed to spoil we would appreciate if you would please write us again giving more details and we will investigate immediately.

WOOLER

50th Anniversary Friends Church Is Celebrated

Wooler.—The 50th anniversary of the building of the Friends' Church was celebrated at the Spring quarterly meeting held on May 4 and 5. There had been a Meeting House erected on the same property about 1846 by the early settlers as there was no other place of worship at that time nearer than Trent village, ten miles to the south at the mouth of the Trent River. This was known as the Cold Creek Meeting House but was changed later to Wooler Friends' Meeting House after a visiting Friends' minister rode horseback along the bank of the creek to Frankford and failed to find the Meeting House. Many of those present were able to tell of incidents that occurred in those days and revived loving memories.

The present Meeting House, about 45 feet by 30 feet, was erected in 1896 at a cost of $827. The building committee was Jonathan Dunn, Simon Terrill and Samuel Palmer.

Other names associated with the Friends' Church are, Valentine, Terrill, Alley, Teal and Nelson and many others.

The names of the Friends' ministers who had been present at other quarterly meetings were Hester Hawley, a talented woman preacher, William Wetherald, William Allan, William I. Moore and Asa Rogers.

Rev. Harry Parry, of Wellington, who was celebrating 45 years in the ministry, was the visiting minister on this memorable occasion.

Music Lovers Enjoy Concert By Ottawa Trio

A large number of music lovers thronged Holloway Street United Church on Tuesday evening to hear a trio of Ottawa musicians present a very beautiful program. Clifford Templer, who is organist and choir leader at Parkdale United Church, Ottawa, appeared as lyric tenor and organist. Gladys Templer appeared as coloratura soprano, and Edith Brearley as concert pianist. The trio presented their program in a series of solo and dual numbers and were called back again and again for encores. Seldom do three musicians of their calibre appear in this city, and those who attended, voted the concert one of the finest to be presented here for some time.

BEAUTY

Hints to the home Shampooer

Every hairdresser has had this experience: The cash customer comes in for a permanent, gets a swell-elegant one. When the happy lady departs she has a perfect wave set, tress ends are in snug little ringlets. Four or six weeks later, she returns, eyes afire with anger, flashing indignation. She has no wave, she claims. Hair is stringy, won't stay put. One look and the beautician knows what is wrong. Hair shafts are gummed with soap scum, have lost the spiral quality.

The indignant lady is escorted to the shampoo bowl where her fevered head gets a thorough laundering. There is a prolonged hot rinsing. Seated before the dressing table mirror, Mrs. Customer is astonished to see that her head is so curly it resembles a busted mattress. Well! So that's what was the matter!

It is not easy to get the hair clean, especially if it is inclined to be oily. You're fighting a combination of sebaceous exudations and atmospheric dust that does not give way to casual treatment. Young girls are especially careless about washing their pretty heads. Their hair often looks dull. The teeth of the comb may show a grey substance clinging to them, as do the bristles of the brush. To remove soap deposits is not a simple matter. Operators in beauty shops have been known to resort to cleaning fluids or an egg shampoo, since soap will not always remove soap.

She is astonished at seeing her hair go curly

We offer some suggestions to the girl who has neither leisure nor inclination to seek professional attention at the beauty shop.

Start by giving the hair a thorough brushing, throwing it forward over the face after first brushing it away from the forehead. Much surface dust can be removed that way. Turn on the bathtub spray, using a strong current of water, fairly hot, as a preliminary rinsing.

What ever is used as a shampoo agent should be well frictioned in, thoroughly distributed. Do little circles around the hairline, front and back. Use the spray again. There should be three soapings, as many rinsings. Unless the soap foams up like egg white, the hair will not be clean. Fill the washbowl with warm water, and add four tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Slosh over the head, using a cup for the purpose. Have a final clear water rinsing.

If you have no favorite shampoo, you can make your own. Place a bar of castile soap in a quart mason jar, add one-half teaspoonful of borax, fill the jar with boiling water; let it stand three days before using.

Pour off some of the clear top liquid, add a little hot water, friction over the scalp. As the liquid is used, more water can be poured into the jar. There will be enough for six or eight shampoos, depending upon the length of the hair.

Cream and oil shampoo agents are popular. Usually, only two applications are necessary.

a Birthday Card to Her Doctor?

Mrs. Beeckman:

ver two years I have been he care of a doctor who n most kind to me and my I have always sent him tmas card, and he has sent istmas cards. Last year year I have sent him a Easter. The other day were chatting after my treatment, he happened to mention that his birthday was the first part of June, and now I have found out the exact date, I am wondering if it would be sending him too many cards if I sent him a birthday card too. I want to show my appreciation for all he has done for us, but I wouldn't for the world want him or his family to get the impression I am forcing my affection on him. What would be your idea?

B. C.

My idea is that, under these circumstances, discretion would be the better part of appreciation, the wiser way to show your gratitude for this doctor's skill and friendly service. Since you have a definite surmise that your generous post-carding of the doctor may very well be misinterpreted by him or his family, I think you'd better follow that hunch and postpone sending any card until next Christmas. A birthday card, in its very nature, is so much more personal than a Christmas or Easter card, that it shouldn't be sent when there is any question of its being unsuitably personal.

Invitations or Announcements to Co-Workers?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is to be married soon, and we would like to have you answer a question concerning wedding invitations. He is still in the service and is working in a War Department Building in an office with a group of co-workers. He is "chummy" with some of the other officers, but he doesn't know the older officers so intimatey. Shall he send an invitation to the office force or a marriage announcement?

B. S.

It would be the best taste for your son to have individual invitations sent to co-workers whom he regards as friends, and marriage announcements sent to those whom he regards as acquaintances.

Dress for Convention-Banquet?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There is to be a Convention Banquet in a large hotel in our city, and the girls from our office are in doubt as to what would be proper for them to wear. Is it proper to wear a suit? If not what type of dress? What about hat and gloves? The banquet is at 7 o'clock and the dance at ten o'clock.

S. T.

I hope you girls will be able to get direct information from the banquet committee as to what type of attire guests are expected to wear. But if this isn't possible, I suggest you wear not suits (these would be unnecessarily informal) but either dressy afternoon dresses or short dinner dresses, with small dinner-type hat (perhaps one of the new crown-less flower hats). It isn't necessary for you to wear gloves into the dining-room . . . you may check them with your wraps.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Boy Friend Treats Her Like a Lady—She Can't Understand It.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Do you think a fellow can be interested in a girl if he goes with her for four and a half months and has not tried to kiss her, or do you think she's wasting her time? He's very good in all ways, takes me out four times a week, buys me little presents, telephones me on the nights he doesn't see me.

But in spite of all this, he has never kissed me, which I don't understand. I do know, however, that he has not gone out with many women and may be a bit bashful. He has also hinted about marriage. What should a girl do when she has a man like this? He's not a child, either, being 34 and me 29.

How many presents does a girl give a fellow for the year, and on what occasions?

M. W.

For heaven's sake, M.W., what's the matter with you anyhow? Do I think you're wasting your time, if you accept the attentions of a man who's obviously a gentleman and treats you like a lady? Well, I'd say that all depends on what you're looking for. And nobody but you knows that.

You also ask what a girl should do when she has a man like that. Most girls would get down on their knees and say a prayer of thanks for such a rare prize. But you don't seem to know a lucky break when you see one.

It sounds much more to me as though he were the one who's wasting his time, rather than the other way around. You'd better wake up before he realizes it.

As for the presents, you don't give presents by rule of so many a year. A Christmas and a birthday present, I should think, would cover the situation at its present stage.

She Knows He's a "Mother's Baby" But Wants Him Just the Same

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was going with a fellow from my neighborhood, but things didn't go right.

He asked me to quit smoking. Well, I quit smoking, but he claims I didn't. He says he saw me doing it after he asked me to quit. I don't lie, and I know he didn't see me smoking. Then he asked me to quit drinking. I did everything to please that boy, but didn't succeed.

He was good to me, took me everywhere I wanted to go, and bought me a swell coat. He said he liked me very much and I cared for him a lot. We were planning to be married, but his mother put her nose in it, and he always listens to his mother. In other words, he is a mother's baby. I know most of our trouble is through her.

I would like to go back with him, but I don't know how to win him back. Please tell me how.

D. K.

Don't you know when you're well off, D.K.? If this boy behaves so badly to you now, don't you think, he'd be even more of a fault-finder and a mother's baby if you married him? That's the way those things generally work out. I can't imagine why you want to be silly enough to go back with him. The best advice I can give you is to be thankful you found out what an unreasonable, selfish and childish person he was before it was too late.

Here's a Letter From Me to You For a Change

Dear Everybody:

Here's a letter from me to you, for a change, instead of the other way round. There are some suggestions I'd like to make which may keep some of you from being disappointed when you don't get answers to your letters as quickly as you'd like, or even don't get them at all. So here goes:

First, please don't ask me for an immediate reply on something you must make a decision about within a few days. It's impossible for me to get letters into print that soon. My mail is very heavy, and letters have to take their turn, so that it may be a little while before yours can be published.

Second, please don't ask me how to take orange juice out of the baby's bib, or where to apply for an insurance policy, or what time you can get a plane for Seattle, or how to get that song or book you've written into the hands of someone who's bound to publish it, or what medicine to take for heartburn.

Those things aren't my business, and this is the type of letter to which I referred as the ones that don't get answers. My job is to try to help you with problems that are too difficult for you to figure out by yourselves, not to serve as an encyclopedia, a timetable or a household almanac!

Clothing Outlook Not to Improve For Year at Least

Toronto, May 8. (CP)—Canadian males will have to dig out that old suit and brush it up if they expect to out-ride the present men's clothing shortage, a survey of Toronto tailoring establishments shows. Present indications are that the acute situation in suits, flannel trousers and tweed jackets is not going to improve for at least another year and possibly for 18 months. Clothing manufacturers and retailers attribute the bottleneck to the British spinning industry, hard hit during the war and suffering now from labor problems and factory reorganization generally. There is no shortage of wool, they claim, but a shortage of plant and labor.

Investigate Death Of 64-Year-Old Pensioner

Cobalt, May 8 — (CP)—Police are investigating circumstances surrounding the death on Sunday night of John Hutman, 64, a pensioner from the First Great War, who died after a fall down the stairs of the Miner's Home Hotel in Cobalt. Hutman had occupied room 13 in the hotel for the past six months.

Chief Constable J. C. Currie of Cobalt is conducting the investigation which centres on Hutman's fall down the hotel stairs some time on Saturday night. He had suffered from asthma and a heart condition, but it is not known yet whether these ailments or injuries received in the fall caused his death.

Recover Eight Bodies From River

Nanaimo, B.C., May 8—(CP)—An inquest will be held here tonight into the Nanaimo river bridge crossing bridge crash which last Friday claimed the lives of eight persons, four of them children, when the automobile in which they were riding hurtled through a wooden railing into about 40 feet of water.

Diving operations carried on since Saturday, concluded yesterday when the smashed car was hoisted from the river bottom with four bodies in it. The other four bodies had been brought to the surface by divers.

Harold Lang, diver, found the grey sedan resting in an upright position lodged against a ledge, the rear end badly smashed in. The car had apparently done a complete sommersault after hitting the railing, landed on the rocks below the bridge and then rolled into the river.

The party of eight riding in the car was from Victoria and had been to Nanaimo on a pleasure trip.

They were Earl R. Sleen, 28, taxi driver; his wife, Jessie Carolina Sleen, 24; their four children, Diane, 6; Denice, 4; Derrick, 2; and Douglas, 1; Sleen's brother, Orin Allen, 27; and a friend, Mrs. Kathleen Wyatt.

Near midnight Friday the automobile, reported travelling at high speed, crashed through the bridge railing and plunged into the water 50 feet below after carroming off a rock embankment.

Carried by the swift current, the death car when found was 60 feet downstream from where it entered the water. Divers discovered it after numerous attempts.

Two of the children's bodies were beside the car. The legs of a man and woman could be seen hanging through the rear door as the car was hoisted from the water.

Clock Goes On Striking Binge

New Dundee, Ont., May 8 — (CP) — An ideal soporific was discovered by Mrs. L. H. Cassel when her mantel clock began to make up for lost time in a big way.

Mrs. Cassel was awakened one night by the striking of the clock. She began counting the strikes to asertain the hour. She counted on and on up to 842 and the clock still kept striking. By that time the clock had produced the same effect as counting sheep and Mrs. Cassel again drifted off into dreamland.

The clock had not struck for 15 years up to that time.

Girl Suffering From Amnesia Is Identified

Galt, May 8 (P) — Toronto's "Who am I?" girl has been identified.

She is Ivy Vinson, of this city. Missing from her home since last Wednesday. A girl friend picking up a morning paper carrying the story immediately identified Miss Vinson from the picture and notified police who got in touch with the girl's parents.

Miss Vinson has been a patient in a Toronto hospital since last Thursday, an amnesia victim.

Toronto,— Mystery surrounding the identity of a 20-year-old girl, picked up by police on a Toronto street last Thursday, apparently suffering from amnesia, had deepened when a check of lists of missing persons and visits of relatives of missing persons failed to give any clue to police. The girl, police said, cannot remember anything prior to Thursday but she recalls everything that has happened since.

Calls for Councils To Pass Resolutions Opposing Change

Guelph, May 8 — (CP) — All cities in Ontario will be asked to pass resolutions against changing the name of Dominion Day, Canada's national holiday, to "Canada Day," city council decided Monday night.

A resolution placed the council on record "as being opposed to the suggested change in the name . . . and we strongly recommend that the name Dominion Day stand as it has since Confederation." Copies of the resolution will be sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and to R. W. Gladstone, Liberal Member of Parliament for Wellington South.

Council didn't take any chances on Victoria Day, either. They instructed Mayor Gordon Rife to proclaim Friday, May 24, as a civic holiday in Guelph.

Applicants Must Establish Eligibility To Enter Universities

Ottawa, May 8 — (P) — Defence Headquarters Tuesday announced that applications for admission to Canadian universities had increased following a recent statement that overseas men would be given priority repatriation if accepted for college courses.

Headquarters said many soldiers and relatives, acting on their behalf, are applying to universities for letters of acceptance without providing information establishing eligibility for the courses they want to take.

Universities have declared that letters of acceptance can be granted only where the eligibility of the applicant is established by means of certificates covering previous educational record and present standing. Failure to submit such proof with the initial application results not only in delay, but also in a heavy exchange of correspondence, placing an unnecessary burden on university administrative staffs.

Mussert, 'Quisling' Of Netherlands, Executed for Treason

The Hague, May 8 (Reuters) —Anton Mussert, Holland's chief "Quisling" was executed Tuesday. His appeal against the death sentence had been rejected by Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands.

Mussert was sentenced for high treason December 12.

Formerly a waterworks engineer, he formed the Dutch National-Socialist Party in 1931, and collaborated with the Germans when they entered Holland in May, 1940.

In 1942, Hitler appointed him "Fuehrer of The Netherlands".

NO COMPENSATION

Toronto, May 8—(P) — Onion growers in Ontario who have lost their first one or two crops this year will receive no compensation for their lost seeds, fertilizer and wasted labor, officials of insurance companies said today.

"Possibly 70 or 80 per cent of farmers place hail insurance on standing crops and tobacco," one insurance representative said, "but I know of no company that handles erosion or sandstorm insurance."

Approximately 75 per cent of Canada's onion crop was destroyed last week by driving winds in Western Ontario that blew the surface soil of the fields and took onion seeds and fertilizer along. The Erieau marshlands along the Lake Erie shoreline in Kent county were the worst hit.

Ilsey Cites Figures Showing British Position

Ottawa, May 8 (CP)—The Commons divided its attention Tuesday between the proposed $1,250,000,000 loan to Britain and the effect of the government price stabilization policy on farm production—and made little progress on either.

The loan discussion, arising during clause-by-clause study on a bill seeking ratification of the credit, reached into the intricacies of high international finance, with Jean Francois Pouliot (Ind. L—Temiscouata) conducting what virtually amounted to a one-man filibuster against progress of the measure.

In the loan discussion, Finance Minister Ilsley said the government did not consider the movement of Canadian securities to foreign countries large enough to warrant any move to halt it. There was nothing alarming in the movement of securities to the United States or elsewhere.

Mr. Pouliot injected the question of securities into the debate and said he would prefer to see them kept in Canada because the assets were Canadian and Canadians should reap the profits.

As for the loan itself, Mr. Pouliot said he questioned whether Canada had the means to make a loan to Britain. It was not a good business proposition and would not be a good proposition until Britain began to repay the debt.

Mr. Ilsley cited figures showing that from Jan. 1, 1941, to Dec. 31, 1945, British expenditures in Canada totalled $8,365,000,000. These were covered by a transfer of $254,000,000 worth of gold and United States dollars to Canada, by $3,775,000,000 obtained from exports and by mutual aid from the Dominion.

Giving details of the settlement of war claims between Canada and the United Kingdom, the minister said the claims were settled by Britain paying Canada $150,000,000 in gold and added that after this payment the accounts indicated a balance of $3,410,571 in the Dominion's favor.

Prague Making Spirited Bid To Succeed Vienna

By JAMES DEVLIN

Prague, May 8 — (AP) — This picturesque capital of Czechoslovakia is making a spirited bid to succeed Vienna as the focal point of eastern Europe.

An old world city of towers and statues, Prague is working hard to become a centre for commerce, culture, air travel, tourists, recreation and sports.

Prague came out of the war with much less physical damage than was suffered by the shell-torn Austrian city 125 miles to the south. Some of its buildings were demolished by bombs, but most of the visible damage consists of bullet nicks around doors and windows of scores of buildings, a reminder of the civilian revolt against the German occupying force May 5, 1945.

Culturally, Prague lost no time in returning to prewar standards. The opera 'season' lasts the whole year round and tickets must be purchased weeks in advance. Concerts, musicales and art exhibits are frequent. Museums, escaping war damage for the most part, are back in operation. Bookstores, magazines and newspapers flourish.

Despite shortages of food, housing and clothing, life is gay in Prague.

Scarcely a night passes that there is not a ball in one or another of the city's hotels, giving the young women a chance to don evening gowns after years of repression.

Night clubs, though legal, usually are located in hideaway spots down dark side streets with inconspicuous doorways in the style of American speakeasies of a bygone era. Inside, the layout and decorations are similar to those in New York or Hollywood.

Waiters wear impeccable evening dress.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN WELL

Washington, May 8 — (AP) — President Truman, 62 today, "feels no older and a little healthier, if anything" than he did a year ago.

Close associates of the chief executive who provided this report yesterday emphasized that Mr. Truman "doesn't take his worries to bed."

A few pounds heavier than last year at 175 the president attacks the extra poundage by pre-breakfast walks and by swims in the White House pool with members of his staff.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman plans to spend his birthday "working as usual."

Planting Generally A Month Ahead Of Former Years

Toronto, May 8 — (CP)—Cattle are pasturing in several districts of the province, planting is generally a month ahead of former years and with the exception of Elgin County little frost damage has resulted, the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture said Tuesday.

Farmers in Elgin County said that severe frosts on April 26 and 27 "caused considerable damage to apple crops." Elsewhere throughout southern Ontario frost damage has been slight and fruit crops are reported to have survived the cold spell.

In western Ontario growth has been slow especially in pastures. Scattered herds are out on pasture and farmers have started to plant their late potatoes.

Peterboro county farmers report that fall wheat is suffering and meadows are drying up. Throughout the entire central Ontario district a combination of continued drought, high winds and soil drifting has caused considerable damage.

Many districts in eastern Ontario report 50 per cent of fall wheat has been plowed and reseeded.

Seeding operations are well under way and a large quantity of early potatoes have been planted in northern Ontario. In Algoma county more than 80 per cent of spring grains have been seeded. The lamb crop is strong and healthy while local hatcheries report heavy sales of baby chicks.

Spare Hand With Red Sox Stretches Win Streak of Team To Twelve With 4-Run Homer

St. Louis Cardinals Now in First Place Alone in the National League

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Leon Culberson, a spare hand who never quite made the Varsity, is Boston's fair-haired boy today because of his 14th-inning home run with the bases loaded that stretched the Red Sox streak to 12 straight victories.

Although Culberson has been with the Sox for three years and played in 97 games last season, Manager Joe Cronin has used him primarily for defence and switched to lustier swatters when he needed runs.

The 26-year-old Georgian has played all the outfield positions, filling in for Ted Williams in the late innings when superior fielding has been more essential than punch playing other fields against southpaw pitching.

Even yesterday, his day of glory, he started the afternoon on the bench, coming in to bat for third baseman Eddie Pellagrini in the third frame. He didn't hit as a pinch-hitter but he remained in the game at the hot corner. Cronin never made a wiser move.

As the Red Sox rallied and finally tied the score, 6-6, Culberson still was hitless. But in the 14th after Rudy York walked, Dom Dimaggio singled and Hal Wagner drew an intentional pass, Culberson drilled Tex Shirley's first pitch into the left field screen for a 10-6 Red Sox edge over St. Louis.

Boston goes after a team record today in a game with Chicago. No Red Sox team ever has won more than 12 in succession.

The triumph boosted the Red Sox first place margin to 3 1-2 games over the idle New York Yankees whose series finale with the White Sox was postponed because of threatening weather.

While the Sox were cementing their advantage, St. Louis Cardinals were taking undisputed possession of first place in the National, trimming Boston Braves, 6-4.

Cincinnati edged New York 2-1.

The Chicago-Philadelphia tilt was rained out.

Detroit downed Philadelphia, 7-2, on Paul (Dizzy) Trout's nine-hit effort.

Washington eked out a 2-1 verdict over Cleveland in 10 innings.

Brooklyn was kept idle by cold weather in Pittsburgh.

He arose Tuesday morning and collapsed while dressing.

Others on his list of champions were Harry Greb, Ted (Kid) Lewis, Vince Dundee, Pete Latzo and Mike McTigue.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Cincinnati, May 8 —(AP)— Ever notice how often the Reds come up with a good double-play combination? . . . They're leading the National League in that department again this year. Cincinnati has had good men at short and second most of the time. The Durocher-Cuccinello combination tied that record and then came Myers-Kampouris, Myers-Frey and now its Eddie Miller and Lonnie Frey — "and we've missed more double plays than we've made," Boss Warren Giles moaned after that pair completed three yesterday. . . . "Sure," agreed Manager Bill McKechnie, "but you have to expect such things when you're rebuilding a team."

A Good Boy Bandit.

It is going to be tough to return to New York and not hear the hoarse voice of Jimmy Johnston on the phone, praising a fighter you know very well isn't too good. . . . He's gone now to join Hype Igoe, Sid Mercer, Harry Cross and many others who were tops in sports and sports writing. . . . Jimmy's accomplishments and his words are legendary and it's enough to say he will be missed more than 99 out of 100 guys along Broadway.

WLADYSLAW TALUN

"WHIPPER" WATSON

Wladyslaw Talun, the six-foot-four Pestiferous Pole, who ambles about the ring with all the speed and dash of a grandfather clock pendulum, will use his ponderosity in an attempt to lift the British Empire wrestling crown from the Adonis-like brow of dapper "Whippah" Watson at the Hume Arena on Friday night. The "man who walks like a derrick" has yet to suffer his first defeat in a Belleville ring, and the "Whippah" will need all his speed and agility to keep clear of the far-reaching tentacles of the elongated shadow of the Polish underground. It should be a brilliant exhibition of speed and science against brute strength, for the "Vody" can toss an ordinary man about the ring like a basketball player does the ball. On the same card is Frederick Von Schact, the Milwaukee Mangler, who ruffled the Watsonian curls to no end in last week's main bout. He meet Jumping Joe Mazzatti, while in the prelim of the all-star card is Dean Detton and Leo Numa, a pair of big toughies who know all the wrestling questions and the answers as well. Tickets are on sale at Cook's Tobacco store. Doors open at 8, and the first bout gets under way at 8.45 Daylight Saving Time.

BASEBALLERS OFF TO START

Enthusiasm and good fellowship marked the special meeting of the Belleville City Baseball League conclave in the Hume Arena the other gloaming. Prexy Don Thomas, staging a social ten-minutes-late entrance, got the brain trust together and the outcome was genuinely satisfactory to all concerned.

• • •

In fact the meeting was so amiable that some of the boys who were expecting fiery arguments, wondered at times if they had inadvertently strayed into the Podunk Creek Knitting Society Annual. The box-score noted no errors, several hits and no home runs until the affair was over.

• • •

Coming down to earth, it looks as though some seven teams will face the starting barrier come the 24th of May, tentative opening date of the loop. Guaranteed starters are Trenton Air Station; Latta; Stewart - Warner - Alemite; Belleville Juniors; Batawa, While Roblin's Dairy and Napanee will send the loop exec definite word of their intentions before the weekend.

Joe Kilgorin, representing Napanee, stated that while the Lions Club of that town is sponsoring a four-team junior loop, there is enough baseball material in Walt Gerow's old home town to fashion a couple of intermediate squads. He was, he told the meeting, not representing the Napanee Intermediate squads, but if an entry for the Belleville League would be considered, Napanee would pool its intermediate material and come into the fold.

• • •

Representatives of the teams present greeted the suggestion with open arms, after Kilgorin stated the Napanee squad would be willing to play all its games here. Later they decided that in all fairness to the outside club, that each team in the loop would play at least one game on the Napanee diamond. It was a lovely party, with agreement following agreement, the boys all a-smile and no one reaching for boxing gloves, verbal or otherwise.

• • •

.. Perfect harmony reigned even when the names of potential umpires were laid before the trust. There was not a dissenting voice—well—there may have been a murmur of disapproval, but it didn't exceed that, when one or two names were mentioned. Some one muttered something about "Jessie James, Dillinger", but it ended at that. Walt Gerow, Sr. is the umpire-in-chief and he will assign appointments to his staff of arbiters. No "umps" must have any connection, direct or othewise with any participating team.

Decision was also made to the effect that the schedule would be so arranged that half the games would be played on the Alemite diamond and the remainder in the Exhibition Grounds. Representatives of the league have already approved the layout of a new diamond in the fair grounds, which brings the home plate some distance closer to the front of the grandstand.

• • •

RCAF representatives were out in goodly numbers from the Trenton Air Station. Incidentally it must be noted that the former entries from Sixardee and Mountain View have been withdrawn. The Mountain Viewers were under the impression the loop was a mushball affair, and pulled out on discovery it had to do with baseball, while Sixardee couldn't field a team. The South Stationers proved to be an enthusiastic crowd headed by Flight Looey Hinton, and the only concession they asked, that their games to be played on any day but Friday, Saturday and Sunday. (forty-eights are still the style in air force circles.)

However the air force lads were extremely co-operative and agreed to all the decisions of the exec. Among those present was the perennial "Moose Matthews" well-known baseball figure in Eastern Ontaro and who still wields a potent bludgeon and can field with the agility of a player fifteen years his junior. "The Mose" will play with the air force team. Speaking of "oldtimers" the name of Ken J. Colling was added to the roll of arbiters, in an honorary capacity.

• • •

A special meeting was ordered by Prexy Thomas for Tuesday, May 14 at the Arena when, it is expected a tentative schedule will be presented to the executive and representatives, and where any changes necessary, will be made. It was suggested that the league open in a blaze of baseball glory on May 24th with two games, one at the Fair Grounds and the other at Alemite. That will be settled later.

• • •

A dress rehearsal for at least two teams of the league will take place at the Trenton Station diamond, weather permitting on Thursday at 6 p.m. when "Lefty" Whitman and his Stewart Warner Alemite squad will take on the Air Force entry in an exhibition tilt.

• • •

Doc Empson and his Latta hopefuls in the City Loop, will hold a practice Thursday evening at 6 of the clock on the Alemite diamond. Opening date is getting closer and the popular medico mentor requests all his potential major leaguers to be on hand.

• • •

Back to the loop meeting, for the nonce, and lest we forget, "Sonny" Green has notified the exec that he will be unable to enter his team of "Braves." "I have the team all right" moans 'Sonny' but, brother, sponsors are scarcer in Deseronto than steaks in a butcher shop."

• • •

Frankie Dyer, eighteen year old Picton pitching star is giving the Kingston railbirds something to ponder over. Working out on the Cricket Field with Manager Ben Lady's flock of potential Pony pros, the kid surprised even the experts with his uncanny control and wide assortment of curves. Then by way of diversion, after throwing a couple of dozen pitches with his right flipper he nonchalantly looked up at Lady and said, "wanta see me throw some with my left arm?" Lady did, and the ambidextrous youngster obliged him. Dyer has never played in any kind of organized ball, and the Pony mentors are of the opinion that with proper training and coaching the youthful "Spaniard" might go places, baseballically speaking.

TORONTO LEAFS DEFEAT GIANTS TO MOVE UP

Don Richmond Hits Three-Run Homer in Seventh Frame to Decide Issue

By The Associated Press

By blasting out 170 hits in 17 games and averaging eight runs a contest, Montreal Royals are belting their way toward the top of the International League.

The Royals vaulted into third place yesterday, one-half game behind the pace-setting Syracuse Chiefs and 12 percentage points behind the runner-up Baltimore Orioles, by nosing out the Newark Bears twice, 10-9 and 5-4.

Montreal, which has tallied 137 runs and clouted 18 homers — tops in the league—probably would be leading if it weren't for the unimpressive performance of its hurling corps.

Only six Montreal moundsmen have gone the distance in 17 games and they have been touched for 102 runs. The only poorer record is possessed by Jersey City Giants who have given up 123 tallies in 15 engagements.

Both Montreal victories over Newark yesterday were decided in the final innings. In the opener, the Royals scored two runs in the last of the ninth to overcome a 9-8 Newark lead and in the nightcap Montreal broke a 4-4 deadlock with a single counter in the last of the seventh.

In the only other contest, Toronto Maple Leaf defeated Jersey City 6-5 with Don Richmond's three-run seventh inning homer deciding the issue. Richmond's clout was the 100th fourmaster hit in the league this year in 61 games.

Cold weather caused the postponement of games featuring Syracuse at Rochester and Baltimore at Buffalo.

Hatlo Does It Every Time

(Reprinted from Newsweek)

One Monday morning in 1925, the automotive editor of the old San Francisco Call (now The Call-Bulletin) dropped a cartoon on his managing editor's desk. The drawing, a take-off on the Monday-morning quarterbacking which followed the University of California's first football defeat in five years, appeared next day on The Call's sports page and the artist's boss sent him this note: "Do some more of these, Jimmy."

That was the beginning of Jimmy Hatlo as a fixture on the nation's sports pages. From a semi-weekly feature, "Swineskin Gulch," Hatlo went to occasional editorial cartoons, then to filling in for syndicated drawings lost in the mails. The fill-ins, called "They'll Do It Every Time", were broad-ax satires of such office pests as the blowhard, the chronic cigarette cadger, the boss's bootlicker, and the chronic bellyacher.

This week, Hatlo was in New York celebrating his tenth anniversary with King Features Syndicate, Inc. From a slow start in The Call-Bulletin and The Los Angeles Herald Express, "They'll Do It Every Time" has climbed into more than 400 papers in the United States and Canada. A Pocket Books paper-bound version has sold 400,000 copies and gone into its fourth printing. An offspring of Hatlo's panel, "Little Iodine," archetype of brattish little girls, appears as a Sunday strip in 75 papers. Today, Hatlo's pen earns him more than $60,000 a year and his fans accolade as the successor of great Tad Dorgan.

Tremblechin Himself

Hatlo never lacks ideas. They come to him in a torrent of 200 letters daily. A reader wants him to blast the fellow in the office who borrows money but never pays back. Hatlo complies with his familiar credit line: "Thanx to——."

Even with such reader help, Hatlo works hard. His panels often parade from six to ten merciless caricatures of white-collar Americans. Hatlo figures fill balloons above them with robust, everyday lingo: "lug", "squares", "big mouth", and "hold-up boys". They bear such searing surnames as "Lushwell', "Gliblip", "Squatwell", and "Tremblechin"; such first names as "Vermin", "Linseed", "Moronica", "Grenadine", and "Arson".

Like most cartoonists, Hatlo indulges in self-caricature. His Tremblechin is a harassed version of the 48-year-old, genial artist with the receding hairline and thick-lensed glasses. Hatlo's barbed humor springs from the source of all good satire: the commonplace. Tremblechin, for example, sells his house at peak prices and "makes a nice bundle" but is outraged to find he must build at inflated prices. Bafflement, chagrin, and rage at life's everyday tricks permeate "They'll Do It Every Time".

Hatlo's back-door route to his career still leaves him a bit baffled. Born in Providence, R.I., he grew up in Los Angeles, where his father was a printer on The Times for 43 years. Young Hatlo started out to be a Times printer, too. But a $9-a-week job in The Times' art department lured him from the composing room. Then he left the paper to dabble in automobile advertising. This led him, oddly enough, back into newspapers, first The San Francisco Bulletin, then The Call. As Hatlo, who now lives at Carmel-by-the-Sea in California, explains it: "I used to do some funny drawing for the ads, and the newspapers liked to print them". He supposes they still do.

Yankees to Use Own Airliner On West Trip

(By The Canadian Press)

New York Yankees will be up in the air, starting next Monday, when they adopt plane transportation for travel between western cities of the American League, their first stop from New York being St. Louis. The squad, plus sport writers, will occupy a 44-passenger four-engine craft which has been named "Yankee Mainliner." One result will be that the players will be able to spend every night in a hotel while on road trips.

The Yankee announcement yesterday came at a time when major league clubs are worrying about train travel which may be curtailed because of the coal strike.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro, who rode Lord Boswell to fourth place in the Kentucky Derby, has switched to Assault, winner of that classic, for the 56th annual Preakness stakes at Baltimore Saturday. Ted Atkinson is expected to take over Lord Boswell.

Catcher Ray Mueller of the Cincinnati Reds yesterday concluded his string of 233 consecutive games, a National League record, when Ray Lamanno took over the backstop chores against New York Giants.

..The New York Yankees' application for a permanent injunction to restrain the Mexican League from luring contract players was adjourned to May 16 at New York yesterday to permit the defence to prepare evidence.

Because of transportation difficulties, Turkey has withdrawn from European Davis Cup competition after being drawn to play Czechoslovakia before May 16.

Axomite, a New Jersey entry, equalled the world record of 2:35 in winning yesterday's 1¼-mile feature in Grand Circuit racing at Santa Anita Park, in the $5,000 one-mile pace, King's Counsel scored his 34th victory over Adios.

CARD LINED UP FOR BOXING SHOW

The feature "go" at Hume Arena tonight should be a dandy. It brings together George Polmanter of Belleville and Cecil "Jiber" Ellis of Trenton. Certainly George wasn't picking any soft spot for himself when he signed to meet Ellis. The "Jiber" is a terrific puncher and what's more, he packs the "sleeping potion" in both hands.

Polmanter isn't a bit worried about the outcome however, as he figures he can outbox the Trenton walloper. Remember too, that George himself is a puncher of no mean ability.

The semi-final effort could "steal" the show. "Tony" Acerra win a host of admirers on the first card of the season and the Belleville boxing fraternity will be pulling hard for the local heavyweight when he tangles with "Duke" Subraro of Toronto in a four round engagement.

Bill Westfall, "the old lefthander" will meet Kenny Cowle of Oshawa in what should be another good bout.

Other local fighters on the card include Don Thompson, Harry Derushia, Ron Mansfield and "Singing Arthur" Duby.

In all, there will be eight bouts.

Vancouver, May 8 — (CP) — It may sound like an odd comparison, but in a way the footballers are like the fashion designers.

Now that spring is well entrenched, the style setters are turning avid thoughts to what outfits milady will wear next fall, while at the same time the guardians of the gridiron are working industriously at moulding the pigskin outfits that Mr. Sportfan will view when the leaves start to turn color.

Foresight is another word for what the chieftains of the Western Interprovincial League are using. Newly organized with teams from Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Regina and Winnipeg, there seems to be an air of determination to show the east a worthy opponent for the far distant Grey Cup final.

Edmonton, coached by Steve Olander, started spring training a couple of days ago, as did Winnipeg Blue Bombers under Jack West. About 70 candidates were out in the Manitoba capital. Calgary Stampeder workouts got underway Monday night with Dean Griffing in charge, and Regina has drawn up its plans for the coming season.

Circuit Smatterings:

Vancouver's Kenny Lindsay, Canadian bantam boxing champion, is given a fair chance of dethroning Manuel Ortiz, holder of the world crown, when they meet in Hollywood May 18. Lindsay dropped a close one to Ortiz in Portland before he joined the RCAF a couple of years back. His manager figures Kenny has definitely improved since then while Ortiz has slipped. The Canadian is doing his training in the film capital . . . Jean Pusie, famed as the fiery puckchaser for Montreal Canadiens, is drawing a lot of attention as a wrestler across the prairies. Blessed with a natural talent for losing his temper, he ran into a lot of trouble during his hockey playing days. However, that trait should prove profitable in his present profession in which it's quite legal and even a good idea to know how to lose one's temper.

JUNIOR BIG FOUR LOOP IS FORMED

Toronto, May 8 — (CP)—Teddy Morris, coach of the Dominion champion Toronto Argonauts, last night announced organization of a junior Big Four Rugby League with the blessing and financial support of the Big Four senior clubs — Argos, Hamilton Tigers, Ottawa and Montreal.

Teams in the new junior loop are Argos, Toronto St. Michaels, Oshawa and Hamilton Tigers. Argos and Tigers senior clubs are looking after their junior teams, the St. Mikes club will have the support of St. Michael's College and the Oshawa Junior club will be backed by Oshawa General Motors which long has supported a junior hockey team.

Big Four officials will officiate at the Junior Big Four games and although many details remain to be ironed out the juniors will be helped in every way possible. Earl Selkirk, manager of the Toronto Argos, said "proper coaching will develop the players and football generally will benefit."

Two of the junior teams already have coaches lined up — Berni Thornton for the junior Argos, and Father Ted Flanagan for St. Mikes.

CARRIED DAUGHTER TO SAFETY

Chatham, May 7 — (CP) — When she found herself trapped in her flame-filled cottage in Dover township near here Friday, Mrs. Garnet St. Pierre broke down the front door and carried her two-year-old daughter, Marie, to safety. The cottage was destroyed with damage of $4,000.

LESSON NO. 981

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Hush, little duffer, don't you cry. You can learn leads if you will try. Maybe it's tougher than I say. Give it a tryout anyway.

My rule for leads is: Follow the order of choice in tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

First, eliminate the suits bid by the declarer and his partner. Next, if the contract has ended in a trump bid, leave out the suits in which you have either an ace or a king.

From what is left, prefer first a sound top honor lead. With no top, your second choice is a fourth best from a long suit. With neither a top nor a long suit, lead highest of a short suit (three cards or less.)

On rare occasions, all four suits may have been bid. Or each unbid suit may have either an ace or a king. In such a case, simply lead a trump.

Lead from this hand:

♠9 7 2
♥K 7
♦A 8 6 4
♣Q 10 7 5

Opponents have bid clubs before ending in spades. Clubs were bid. Do not lead that suit. Your heart suit has a king. Do not lead that. There is an ace in your diamonds. Do not lead that suit.

This tells you to lead a trump. Which trump? It has no honor top. It is not a long suit. Being a short, the lead from it is your highest; the nine of spades.

By leading your trump, partner knows you have an ace or a king in each red suit. If dummy or he has the heart ace, he learns you have the king. If he sees diamond king, he knows you have the ace.

This makes it sound foolish when a player says: "When in doubt lead trumps." There is no doubt about a trump lead. It means that you have some kind of don't in each of the other suits.

Paste that in your compact. You can glance at it when you go out to powder your nose.

APPEAL BEARS FRUIT

Toronto, May 8 — (CP) — The Anglican Advance Appeal already has borne fruit both spiritually and financially, Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen, Primate of all Canada, said last night at a dinner attended by 1,000 clergy and laity of the Toronto Diocese. The appeal is for $4,300,000. Leonard W. Brockington, K. C., principal speaker at the dinner, called upon all members of the Church of England "to reaffirm and intensify an ancient and adventurous church."

Hollywood, May 8 (AP)—There was scant celebration when Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse learned they had won a Pulitzer Prize for their play "State of the Union". "Crouse doesn't drink," explained Lindsay, "and I refuse to drink alone."

The play wizards received the news in the Warner Brothers commissary and were told by their general manager that the Chicago "State of the Union" company will not be shut down by the coal shortage as it has a generator.

Lindsay and Crouse are here to supervise the filming of their "Life With Father" and they are taking their task seriously. In fact, they are on the set from morn till night and eye every production detail meticulously. "Our contract calls for complete supervision," said Crouse, "so we thought it would be less costly to the studio if we supervised while the picture was being made."

The writers manage to keep their California nights busy too. When they end their day at the studio they work on the Clarence Day sequel, "Life With Mother," which will reach Broadway next season. For all I know, they might have been working on it last night.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 8 — (CP)—Glamorgan county cricket club, short on finances but long on sport, has, in common with nearly all other county teams, appealed to supporters for help.

The man behind the fund, for £10,000 ($45,000) is H. H. Merrett of Cardiff, who says the fund has two main objects. They are to establish coaching facilities for all young cricketers in South Wales with the ultimate aim of building a Glamorgan team comprised entirely of Welshmen, and also to provide spectators with seating and other amenities on Glamorgan grounds to compare favorably with others in the country.

Stanley Matthews, Britain's best-known football player, is on the move these days.

He has had so many invitations to show the illuminated address presented to him by Stoke City council — in commemoration of his record 43 appearances for England — that it is to be shown in the principal towns of the pottery district.

Finally, it will be hung over the mantel-piece in Matthews' Blackpool home.

Britain has probably seen the last of Sydney Wooderson as a champion miler.

The great little runner, who has by-passed the Amateur Athletic Association mile in the British championships here July 19-20, is entering for the three-mile event instead.

Wooderson means to concentrate on the longer distance this summer and hopes to run the 5,000-metres for England in the European championships at Oslo in August.

It was believed he would run another "mile of the century" in the United States this summer but Wooderson, just past 30, says he "cannot entertain it."

England has an ambitious pre-Olympic Games program mapped out in an effort to bring a title to the country after 22 years.

Weekly matches are scheduled and racing enthusiasts have hopes that Reg Harris, triple British track champion, will be able to win the amateur sprint championship.

It was quite a feat when Billy James, Cardiff City's inside-right, scored three goals in five minutes in the Welsh Football League match with Newport County. James came home from a prisoner-of-war camp practically blind and generally in a bad way, but careful nursing restored his health.

Cardiff won easily 8-0.

Toronto, May 8 — A purse-snatching epidemic broke out on Toronto streets Moday and Monday night with five women reporting purses containing money had been grabbed from them by youthful thieves.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was walking around the living room pushing crooked things straight and straight things crooked, and pop said, I know you dont like the cuss, my dear, but I dont see any way out of it. I'm afraid I'll have to bring our district manager home for dinner tomorrow. I'll be with him all day and it wont look right if I dont invite him up, he said.

Oh dear, that gassly Mr. Sibberly? ma said. He strews oceans of salt and torrents of pepper on the most tastefully prepared food, and his entire conversation consists of either doubting grunts or outright conter dictions, she said, and pop said, That's the cuss, all right.

Oh well, the longest cloud has a silver lining, if we only have the patience to look for it, ma said. I mean Mr. Sibberly is a bridge player, because I distinctly remember him bragging about it in an offensive sort of way, so that's the solution. We'll get up a bridge game, and in the herly berly of bidding and playing we'll lose sight of Mr. Sibberly's disagreeable personality, she said, and pop said, The dooce we will. There's no such animal as 3 handed bridge, and that's the platnum trimming of the silver lining, as far as I'm concerned, he said.

But William, just as it happens, tomorrow is the night for Yewstace Hew's bowling club, so Maud will be more than glad to come over and make a 4th, she said, and pop said, For Peet sake I've been exposed to 2 bridge games this week and that's already one more than my quota. Oh well, I guess I wont actually have to invite Sibberly up. He's got such a thick hide he probably wont even notice it, or I'll cook up some excuse, I'll tell him we ran out of salt and pepper, he said.

Well, it would be nice to have a little bridge tomorrow, but of course, if you insist, after all, ma said.

And she pushed the bottom of a picture about a half an inch different and started to sing to herself like somebody feeling better instead of werse.

Six-Point Order by Prices Board For Distribution of Used Cars

Ottawa, May 8 (CP) — The Prices Board today launched a determined effort to stamp out black market operations in used cars and announced a six-point order which it said would "make it impossible for either dealers or private sellers to charge illegal prices, if buyers will co-operate with the board."

The new order, issued with a warning that dealers permits would be cancelled when violations are proven, established the following regulations:-

1. Dealers must sell used cars to any person offering to pay cash, and are prohibited from demanding an exchange or trade-in of any kind. (Previously dealers were compelled to sell only to holders of essentiality certificates.)

2. Every used car offered for sale by a dealer must carry a tag showing the lawful price and model, model year and other particulars.

3. A used car in a dealer's possession which he has sold or on which he has received a deposit, must display a tag stating that the car has been sold or optioned, date of the transaction and name and address of buyer. No car may be held on deposit or option longer than five days.

4. When used cars are delivered to dealers for repairs or storage, dealers must keep a written record of the name and address of the owner, together wth particulars as to the identity of the car.

5. Dealers must register with the nearest board office every car which he has for his personal use or as a service car.

6. Any person advertising a used car for sale must insert the proposed sale price, which must include cost of any option or accessory.

Leaders of Revolt in Milan Draw Terms Up to 30 Years

Milan, May 8 —(Reuters)—Sentences up to 30 years' penal servitude have been passed by a Milan court on the leaders of the four-day revolt which started at the San Vittore prison Easter Sunday.

Giacomo Reganini, the leader, was sentenced to 30 years and Ezio Bargieri to 24 years. Six other rebels were sentenced to penalties ranging from seven years to 18 years.

Fighting in the prison began when prisoners armed with guns and grenades dashed from their cells and disarmed their guards. This was the start for a mutiny in which 2,500 men took part, and which threatened at one time to develop into a mass escape attempt.

To prevent this, the Italian authorities sent tanks and armored cars to surround the prison. The prisoners fought back for four days before they surrendered.

I'LL WAIT FOR YOU

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 20

Her hands dropped from the knob as she thought; I'll know him now, really know him. Why didn't I try sooner? I never looked at his side of it. I never thought of his mother. I ran off and he had to stay....

Alan said, "For almost a year my mother wouldn't go anywhere. Too sensitive, you may think. Yes, but she couldn't shrug her shoulders at people who were laughing at her son. I saw then that there was only one way I could live it down—work for money and position. I wanted to show you and the whole pack of them! I wanted people to come to this nobody and his mother...

"I lost the qualities I valued, the qualities I began with. The world was tough and I was tough. And slowly I began to dig my way out, to make a little money, to wear decent clothes, to live in a decent place, to give my mother a few of the luxuries she'd never had. But it was too slow! Then I began to take money from Mr. Hartley...I had to make the grade quickly, I thought. I was impatient. I couldn't wait. I didn't want anybody to say that Carol had married a nobody." Closing his eyes tightly, he said, "Carol..Carol.."

Edwina said, "You've never been happy in your life, have you, Alan? It's been all fight and struggle, hasn't it?"

He nodded. "You can't be happy with a sword hanging over your head." His eyes quickened. "I don't want your sympathy. I did a rotten thing. I've never once tried to deceive myself into thinking that it was anything but rotten."

Edwina's hands were clasped now; the knuckles were white.

"But it all goes back to me — to my selfishness and my dishonesty. The things you do when you are eighteen and you think you should be forgiven—because you are young and foolish!" There were tears in Edwina's eyes when she said, "I haven't anything to offer you now except myself. I'll give that and I'll stand by. At least I won't be against you."

He looked at her as if he were seeing her, actually, for the first time since she came.

"That's decent of you. I've been rude and cruel to you. Why should you care what happens to me?"

"I do care. I cared enough to marry you once."

"You should be very glad you aren't married to me now. You'd better go."

"Is there anything I can do?"

"No. I'll stay."

"Dick doesn't like this job of his here, Alan."

"I'm guilty. I'd do the same if I were in his place." When her hands turned the knob, he said, "Thanks, Edwina."

The streets were almost deserted when she came out and walked to her car. She sat there quite a long time before she drove away. She would go to Mr. Hartley, she thought, and beg him to drop the charges against Alan.

But how could she make the old blind man understand what had happened to Alan five years ago? How could she make anybody understand the humiliation of a boy and his mother; people laughing and pointing to the boy Edwina Burke had eloped with for a thrill, a caprice on her part, they thought, and on his part the desire to marry her for her money. Alan was an admitted embezzler and that fact stood strongly against the seeds of hate and bitterness planted five years ago by a spoiled, wilful girl who had thought only of herself and who had conveniently run away from what she had done.

No, she would go to Carol and tell her, and spare Alan the painful task. Certainly she could not go home and be alone with her sense of guilt.

Carol came downstairs to welcome Edwina and at sight of her, disheveled, she thought of Norman—that something had happened to Norman. They went in the living room together and nervously Edwina lighted a cigarette as she looked cautiously about her.

"Is your father here?"

"No. He was called out before I came in from shopping. Are you ill?"

"No. A little jittery, that's all." How to tell her—how to tell her tha the boy she loved would be arrested... To put off what she had to do, she said, "This is a charming room, Carol."

Carol smiled. "Thank you. You can cover a multitude of sins with chintz." But her eyes were waiting, questioning, troubled. What had brought Edwina at six o'clock in the afternoon to sit, smoking furiously, in her living room? She felt that she could bear no more drama, no more good-byes. And she thought again how strange it was that she felt nothing but friendliness toward the girl who had made Alan so unhappy. Had not Norman said, "Edwina is a girl you can trust?"

"Carol, I'm probably not the person to tell you what I have come to tell you. Alan will want to—painful as it will be."

"Alan?" Edwina and Alan had seen each other?

"Yes. It's bad news, terrible news. I'm sorry. But I want you to listen very carefully and you'll realize I'm in it, too. I'll go back and come up to the present. I don't want to miss anything..."

Carol sat very still and listened, the color coming and going in her face as Edwina's terse words made incredible clear pictures in her mind. And so fast did Edwina speak, her voice hoarse and tired, that Carol's mind, hurried from picture to picture until Edwina's voice ceased and the only sound in the house was Rosie's humming of a hymn in the kitchen,...

Slowly Carol's feelings returned; her thoughts stirred. And later she was to think that her first thought was: Edwina must care for Alan as I care for Norman. Deep down beneath five years of luxury and travel, she cares. She wants to fight for him, to save him because she feels as guilty as he....

And then she thought of Alan, his kindness, his generosity, his strange moods, his distress the night she had mentioned that perhaps he was Mr. Hartley's heir, his ambition, his recent wish for a large wedding and a large house....

Edwina broke the painful silence.

"Try to understand and forgive him, Carol," she said, "and stand by. Alan needs you now. Even though what he has done is almost unforgivable...."

"Did you think I wouldn't stand by him? I'm trying to think what is best to do now. My father will know. I may do the wrong thing, make it worse for him..."

"What will your father say?"

"Very little, but he'll see both sides of it—as I do. Poor Alan, Poor Mr. Hartley. Your sympathies swaw from one to the other. But I understand so many things I didn't understand before. I don't suppose I ever really knew Alan. I thought I did. Only his mother knew him, and you."

"And I almost decided to go to New York tonight with Norman. He isn't coming back. Do you know why, Carol?"

"Why...."

"Because of you. He's terribly in love with you."

Because of her! But her mind would not hold it now. She could not listen to Edwina tell her that Norman loved her—not now! Yet the thought rushed through and all other thoughts paused for it.... "He loves me. How stupid I was not to recognize it. All this time, each time we've seen each other so much...."

"I'd rather not hear about that now, Edwina," Carol said, slowly.

"You'll probably never hear about it."

"It's just as well."

When Carol's father came, she went quickly to meet him and kissed him and together they came into the living room.

"Edwina Burke?" Dr. Tallant asked pleasantly.

Edwina smiled. "I see that my reputation has preceded me."

"The reputation of a generous young woman."

Carol said gently, "Don't go, Father." To Edwina she said, "I'll tell him. You've done your part. And don't go, please...."

Dr. Tallant put his arm around Carol. "You don't have to tell me, dear. I know. That's where I've been. I came home to tell you."

Carol asked, "But how did you know?"

Her father spoke quietly. "Mr. Hartley is ill. His servant called for me this afternoon. I've been there once or twice before, you know. When I got there today, I found Mr. Fenton with him and when Mr. Fenton discovered I was the father of the girl Alan is going to marry, he told me. He thought it best. Mr. Hartley is very ill indeed, Carol, and it will be far worse for Alan if he dies...."

Edwina asked, "Why?"

"Because, while he lives, there is a slim chance they will patch up their differences. It is a slim chance, but if Alan could pay back what he has taken, perhaps the case would not come to court. If the old man dies, well.... a crime is still a crime and the law will take its course."

Carol asked, "Do you hate Alan? Do you...."

"This is no time for hate or personal feelings, my dear. On one side there's a pathetic old gentleman who may be dying, and on the other an ambitious and greedy and ungrateful boy. But Alan is not a criminal by nature and his friends can't desert him. I'm not a judge, Carol. I'm a physician and I've got to get back to my patient."

"[illegible] ou want me to go with you? Can't I help?"

"Under the circumstances—no. I'd rather you didn't. It's a matter now of waiting. I've done all I can. He may go any minute but if he gets through this, he may live for years." To Edwina he said, "Won't you stay and have dinner with Carol?"

"Certainly—if Carol would like me to stay."

Carol said, "Of course, Edwina." Alan's former wife and his fiancee.... What an odd combination to comfort each other, to wait together while a train took Norman away forever....

In the hall her father smiled at her, kissed her and said, "Don't worry. We've been through other things. We'll see this through."

"You're wonderful."

"You were wonderful to me when I needed you. I'll telephone you if there is any change."

When he left, she went quickly upstairs and called Alan's office. The phone kept ringing... Then she called his apartment and after a long time his voice, tired in spite of the forced strength he put into it, came back to her.

"Who is it?"

"This is Carol, Alan." This is a girl pulled three ways—to you, to an old man and to Norman..." Mr. Hartley is very ill. I wanted you to know. Father has gone back to him. I know, Alan. I—Edwina is with me..."

"She told you..."

"Yes. But as a friend, your friend and mine. Please believe that."

After a short silence he said in a dull voice, "I suppose this..."

She would not let him say it. "Won't you come here now, Alan? Don't stay there alone. Come to dinner and...."

"Thanks, but I couldn't eat anything and I'd rather be alone. I don't deserve your loyalty, Carol, but I—I want it very much. Good-bye."

"I don't deserve your loyalty but I want it very much..." That bound her, she thought, replacing the telephone on the hook and catching a glimpse of her strained face in the wall mirror.

When she returned to the living room, Edwina looked up and smiled and that smile bound her to Edwina, too, she thought. It was as if they were very old, very dear friends giving strength and consolation one to the other. And it was an unspoken thing, this love between two girls whose lives were unhappily tangled with Alan's.... And yet at this moment she felt closer to Edwina than she felt to any one else.

"I called Alan and asked him to come. He wouldn't."

"No. He doesn't want to see any one. He's fighting out his battle alone. I feel I should not pity him, but I do."

"I'll tell Rosie you're going to be here for dinner."

BACKACHE
The Plague of Outdoor Men

The outdoor man, whether he be farmer, truck driver, or railway operator, is often subject to backache. This may be the result of exposure to cold and dampness or the result of strain from the jolting and bumping of the vehicle he rides.

To many people, women as well as men, it would be great to be free of backache—one of the most common and annoying of ailments. And here is how you may be relieved of backache and other symptoms of poisons in the blood.

The treatment suggested is Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills. By reason of their stimulating action on both the liver and kidneys, you have two chances to one of getting relief from your backache by using Dr. Chase's Pills. The torpid liver is aroused to action, the kidneys are stimulated and consequently these organs help to purify the blood of the poisonous impurities which bring pains and aches and tired feelings.

Keep regular and keep well by using Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills. 35cts. a box.

BASEBALL #27 . . . PITCHING BODY ACTION

Formerly a star athlete, now Canada's top coaching expert, "Ace" says: "Part of every athlete's success is due to right training, part to right eating, part to knowing 'inside' tricks. Here's a way to improve your pitching."

LIFT LEG
Place weight on back foot. Lift forward foot well off ground. Bend your knee and move your front leg across to far side of your back leg as shown here.

LEAN BACK
As arm goes back, bend knee of rear leg, tilt upper body backward. Lift forward leg high and to far side of rear leg—almost straighten it.

FOLLOW THROUGH
As you pitch, take long step forward, shifting full weight to front foot. Pull upper body forward and down hard as arm and shoulder come through.

Canada's richest race. Goldlure, a chestnut colt, brought him a second King's Plate in 1937. He won the trophy again in 1941 with Budpath, in 1944 with Accara and in 1945 with Uttermost.

The Agincourt stable made turf history in the 1944 running of the King's Plate as its three-horse entry captured three of the four first places. Ompalo finished second to Accara and Sayonara ran fourth.

HOUSE APPROVES

Mr. Lacombe said he opposed the agreement because it would be unfair to the taxpayer.

Mr. Pouliot, citing figures from the trade department and Whitaker's almanac, contended it was "incorrect and untrue" to claim the United Kingdom was Canada's best customer. His totals indicated Canadian trade from 1939 to 1945 was higher with the United States than with the United Kingdom.

Mr. Ilsley said Mr. Pouliot had not taken "normal" years but has used "war" years to support his argument. In the pre-war period, Canadian exports to Britain averaged higher than those to the United States.

Ontario Industrial Activity May Be At Standstill Soon

Howe Warns Prospects For Fuel Worst in Years

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario industrial plants are operating on a 10-day basis and Great Lakes shipping will be at a complete standstill in two weeks, unless the coal crisis is solved.

Only concrete developments yesterday in the emergency arising from the long tie-up of United States soft coal mines by a strike were further reports of curtailed operations being inevitable in the next few days. It became evident that unless the United States strike is settled the end of this month will see critical effects on the Canadian economy.

Reconstruction Minister Howe told parliament at Ottawa yesterday that while many large industries have enough stockpiles for two or three months, industries dependent on deliveries from wholesalers are already threatened. Soft coal is available from Canadian mines in Nova Scotia and the western provinces on an emergency basis. Railways have two months supply in stockpiles.

But Mr. Howe summed up the situation this way: "In summer, unless production is resumed in the early future, the Canadian position will be very serious and many industries will have to restrict the scale of their operations. Canadian coal production will be used to the greatest possible extent to alleviate difficulties as they arise."

And for householders he had this warning: "The prospects for domestic fuel next winter are more alarming than at any time during the last several years."

The government would bend every effort to obtain fuel for citizens next winter, he promised.

These were other developments:

Windsor, Ont. — Production at plants of the Ford Motor Company may be seriously hampered within about 10 days.

Port Stanley, Ont. — Big coal docks will be empty in two weeks.

St. Thomas — Locomotive and car repair shops ordered closed Saturday night, affecting 350 men. Eight or more passenger and express trains of the New York Central Railway operating through this area are being discontinued this weekend.

Toronto — E. R. Lockyer, secretary of the Toronto Coal Exchange, estimated 1,600 coal drivers and handlers in Toronto would be made idle if the strike continued indefinitely.

Kingston — Total of 17 lake freighters laid up; Kingston Aluminum Plant plans to convert one of its main boilers to enable use of oil instead of coal for heating.

LOSES $400 IN PURSE RESCUING 3 BOYS

Chicago, May 9 —(AP)—Frank Brown's heroism in rescuing three small boys from Lake Michigan apparently cost him $400. Brown, who saw the boys clinging to an overturned home-made boat as he passed the scene in his 30-foot cabin cruiser, took them to the coast guard station. He lost his purse containing $400 during the rescue.

COMMUNISTS GETTING SUPPLIES

Honolulu, May 9 —(AP)—Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault says "it is evident" Communists in China are getting supplies from Russia. The former commander of the Flying Tigers, en route from China to Washington after a secret mission to the Orient, said "Chinese Reds are not getting their stuff from Heaven."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 9 — (CP)—Synopsis: A trough of low pressure extending northward from the west end of Lake Ontario to the James Bay region, is moving eastward through Ontario this morning accompanied by intermittent rain in southern portion and snow in northern portion. Further west in Saskatchewan and Alberta a very extensive body of cold air is pushing south-southeastward bringing with it a brief return of winter weather in the southern prairies. This body of cold air will enter Ontario during Friday causing below normal temperatures, showery weather, and strong northerly winds.

Liner Queen Mary To Make Several Summer Voyages

Halifax, May 9. (CP) — The giant liner Queen Mary prepared to sail for New York today as disembarkation of over 900 dependents of Canadian servicemen here neared completion.

Scheduled to leave here early this afternoon, the giant Queen lay at her berth as wives and children came ashore to make their first contact with Canadian soil.

The liner arrived yesterday on her first visit to Halifax harbor since September, 1944, when she brought former Prime Minister Winston Churchill to Canada for the last Quebec conference.

She carried over 2,400 passengers including 1,300 wives and children of U.S. Servicemen destined for New York, Canadian dependents, and top priority civilian passengers.

The liner will begin shortly a series of summer voyages, devoted entirely to the movement to Canada of Canadian dependents at an average of two trips per month.

SAYS EMMANUEL MAY ABDICATE

Rome, May 9 —(Reuters)—Pietro Nenni, Italian vice-premier, today told a press conference that the abdication of King Victor Emmanuel might take place shortly.

"This would be an internal affair of the Savoy dynasty which could not take effect until after the referendum on the monarchy on June 2," he added.

Nenni made his statement after he had conferred with Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi.

MAY RESTORE ESKIMO BOY'S SIGHT

Winnipeg, May, 9—(CP)—The strange wonders of civilization are around him but seven-year-old Mikpeegak, an Eskimo boy, from the Arctic, cannot see them. He is blind. Mikpeegak, came to Winnipeg Tuesday and today is in hospital where modern medical science will attempt to restore his sight if possible. He will be attended by Winnipeg eye specialists.

BERMUDA FROWNS ON BRIEF SWIM SUITS

Hamilton, Bermuda, May 9 — (CP) — The return of tourists, including American girls in short shorts, has brought re-enforcement of Bermuda's 'scanty-panty' prohibition. The police regulation forbids wearing bathing suits on public roads. It was unneeded during the war because Bermuda had no tourists but now dowagers are complaining about girl visitors in too-small costumes.

DOENITZ CLAIMS AIR POWER TOO STRONG FOR SUBS

Plane-Directing Radar Next to Atom Bomb Most Decisive Weapon Of War

Nuernberg, May 9 — (AP) — Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz testified today that air power had rendered the submarine almost obsolete as a weapon of attack and declared that in his opinion plane-directing radar "next to the atom bomb, was the most decisive weapon of this war."

He cited to the international military tribunal the tremendous dangers faced by his U-boats from air attack as justification for his order, already introduced by the prosecution, for bidding submarines to attempt any rescue of survivors of torpedoed ships.

"One moment the U-boat commander's situation would appear clear, the next moment hopeless," the former German navy chief said. "Rescue work interrupts a submarine's state of alertness and therefore a U-boat attempting it is helpless in the face of air attack."

Radar-directed planes compelled the Germans to develop the "Schnorkel tube," a breather device which enabled U-boats to charge their batteries under water and "travel from Germany to Japan without surfacing at all," Doenitz said.

Navy Refused Bidding

Earlier the Admiral told the tribunal that Adolf Hitler proposed in 1942 that U-boats kill survivors of torpedoed ships at the scene but that the German navy refused.

The suggestion was made at a high command conference in May 1942, Doenitz testified, when the Fuehrer complained that a large percentage of Allied ship crews was being rescued to fight again.

"He asked whether some action might be taken but I rejected that unequivocally and said the only possibility was to develop a quicker detonator for quicker sinking of ships," the former German naval chief asserted.

He said the U-boats had instructions to rescue survivors when it was not dangerous to the undersea craft, and added:

"I am of the opinion that I lost ships through rescue work — of course, I can't prove that but every sailor thinks rescue is the noblest and most honorable thing he can do. They consider the medal of rescue the highest decoration one can have."

Refuse Jap Prince Entry to University

Tokyo, May 9 (AP)—Democracy in Japan is getting rugged; Tokyo University has refused to admit a Royal Prince who failed his entrance exams. He is Prince Morihiro Higashi-Kuni, son-in-law of Emperior Hirohito. The 30-year-old army captain married Hirohito's first daughter, Teru, in 1943.

Goering's Graft Over $1,000,000 Yearly From German Business

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Berlin, May 9 — (AP)—Hermann Goering took more than $1,000,000 a year in graft from German business to satisfy his champagne and caviar tastes in the era of Nazi power.

His record of golden loot was jotted down in 10-cent notebooks with black paper covers.

Of those victimized by the Reichsmarshal, not all paid unwillingly. A cigaret manufacturer in Hamburg got double value for his bribe. Goering collected nearly 6,000,000 marks from him during six years, but quashed a tax collection suit for 12,000,000 marks—$4,800,000.

Since the former No. 2 Nazi has been on trial as a war criminal in Nuernberg, United States Treasury Department officials have intensified their search for Goering's hidden funds abroad.

Last year one of the highest ranking officers in the German army told Allied interrogators that Goering once extracted 14,000,000 Dutch guilders in virtual blackmail, from The Netherlands, gave the Nazi military commander there 1,000,000 guilders and sent the rest to a trusted emissary in Switzerland.

Germany's aircraft and steel industries were tapped regularly for "transfers" by the heir-apparent to Hitler. Goering, as plenipotentiary for the four-year plan, was economic boss of the country. Among those shaken down for regular mysterious deposits to his bank account were Junkers, the Herman Goering-Works, and Borsig-Rheinmetall.

Aviation and steel magnates in the lush years from the conquest of Poland to the invasion of the Soviet Union gave Goering sums totalling $740,000 annually.

United States of Europe Proposal Made by Churchill Speaking to Dutch Parliament

Amsterdam, May 9. (CP) — Winston Churchill today called for formation of a United States of Europe in an address to The Netherlands' Parliament.

Britain's wartime prime minister said he saw "no reason why under the guardianship of a world organization there should not arise the United States of Europe, both of the east and of the west, which will unify this continent in a manner never known since the Roman Empire."

For Prosperity, Justice and Peace

"It will give you prosperity, justice and peace," he told his applauding audience.

"These special alliances between nations, far from weakening the structure of the United Nations, should make the United Nations indivisible and invincible," he declared.

Britain's 20-year treaty of friendship with the Soviet Union "will also be a guarantee for peace".

Mr. Churchill said "we welcome the proposed treaty of friendship with France" and expressed the hope that "the western democracies of Europe may draw together in close association".

He called for affirmation "of the sanctity of smaller states."

"The duty of large powers in the modern world is to see that these rights are protected," he said. "It is the purpose of the United Nations organization to make sure that the force of right will be protected by the right of force."

"We hope that the western democracies of Europe may draw together in ever closer amity. We trust that in due course the natural unity and alliance between Britain and France may find reaffirmation in a new treaty. We welcome every step towards strength and freedom taken by the French people."

Mr. Churchill urged that the people of the world devise "those measures of world security which will prevent disaster."

Reality of Democracy

The reality of any political democracy could be measured on the basis of its provision for free constitutional decisions and free election; freedom of opinion, free opposition and free criticism of the government of the day.

"Is there the right of free expression of opinion, free support, free opposition; free advocacy and free criticism of the government of today?" Mr. Churchill asked.

Where nationalism means the lust of pride and power and domination by force it was an evil, he continued. Where it means love of country and readiness to die for it, and the "gradual building up across the centuries of a social entity dignified by nationhood," it was the first of virtues.

There are thinkers today, Mr. Churchill concluded, who confuse the two concepts and who condemn nationalism in an effort to reduce the world to a uniform pattern for material satisfaction alone.

"They pervert the noble sentiments of patriotism to the hideous, aggressive expansion of old world imperialism, and to the obliteration by force of all the varieties and special cultures — which, however logically planned, would be dreary and barren."

PREMIER GARSON GIVES STATEMENT ON CONFERENCE

Says Federal Govt. Cannot Afford to Allow D. - P. Parley to Fail

Winnipeg, May 9. (CP)—Premier Stuart Garson, of Manitoba, said in a 1,500-word statement released today after a two-day session of the Manitoba Cabinet that Canada could not afford o allow the failure of the Dominion-Provincial conference to remain a closed matter.

There were few indications that the country, faced with a critical period, "can survive another dose of the multiple taxation, fiscal injustice, deadlock and impotence" of the 1930's.

It was of the highest importance that the Canadian government during the present critical period "should be as potent and as efficient as possible," the statement said. Yet with the collapse of the conference, "it is crystal-clear that Canadian government taken as a whole, that is Dominion government and Provincial government combined in one national system of government, has been left in a state of deadlock and impotence."

Agreements Work Well

The wartime tax suspensions agreements between the federal and provincial governments had worked well. Each province was better off under the agreements than it was before them. But the agreements expired shortly—in the case of the Maritimes next October and for the others next Spring. Failure of the conference meant a return to the Dominion-Provincial financial set-up of the 1930's with all its "abuses".

"Obviously the first thing Canada must do before the wartime tax suspension agreements run out is to find for a majority of the provinces. . .a modus vivendi or working arrangement which will enable them to survive, pending a settlement being reached between the two central provinces and the Dominion," he said.

Manitoba's Position

Manitoba had taken a position of "unconditional willingness" to conclude an agreement with the Dominion's modified proposals because "we were apprehensive that what did happen would happen. We feared that in a negotiation between 10 sovereign governments the adoption by each of a stiff bargaining attitude in the short-term interests of its own treasury rather than in the interests of either its own people or the Canadian people, would result in no agreement whatever being reached."

Manitoba did not accept the failure as a final disposition of the matter. "We propose to continue by every means within our power to press for a settlement which will give the people of Canada a better deal in fiscal justice and social services. . ."

THREE BROKERS COMMITTED ON VARIOUS CHARGES

Testimony Given at Preliminary Hearing Habitant Gold Mine "Salted"

Toronto, May 9. (CP)—Testimony that stock market values of Habitant gold mines skyrocketed after an assay was made of high-grade ore shipped from Toronto to Rouyn, Que., and "salted" in the mine, was given in court here yesterday as three Toronto brokers were committed for trial on various charges.

Two of the brokers, Kenneth L. Morgan and Edwin M. Dempsey, of the firm of Morgan and Dempsey, were committed for trial on a charge of theft of $25,000 in money from Habitant Gold Mines, Limited.

The two and Wallace A. Dempsey were committed on charges involving "circulation and publication of statements to fraudulently induce the public to buy shares". Morgan and E. M. Dempsey were committed on charges of publicising or circulating statements designed to defraud the shareholders of Habitant. Morgan also was committed on a charge of corruptly dealing or offering to a public officer Norman M. Cooper of the Ontario Securities Commission, 1,000 shares with intent to interfere with the due administration of justice or to protect from detection or punishment a person having committed or intending to commit a crime.

Taken From Another Mine Claim

C. R. McKenzie, office manager of the firm, swore the ore he said was sent to Rouyn from the Morgan Company had been taken from the Kega mine in the Berens river area and kept some time in Toronto office before being forwarded north.

He said a wire signed by Wallace Dempsey at Rouyn, dated Jan. 4, gave "glowing assay values" on the ore. Copies of the wire and the assay certificate which followed, were spread "through the street" and caused a rush of buying orders, he testified.

McKenzie swore he first learned of the plan to "salt" the mine when he walked into the office last December. He said Morgan and E. M. Dempsey were talking by telephone to another party addressed as "Wally".

Told None of My Business

"They were saying the market was pretty quiet just now. The conversation was that there were certain ores in the office to be forwarded to Wally Dempsey up at Rouyn. . .

GOVT. DID NOT VIOLATE RIGHTS SAYS MINISTER

Justice Minister Takes Exception to Remarks Of Opposition On Spy Probe Conduct

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 9 — (CP)—Objection to charges that the government violated the rights and privileges of individuals in its conduct of the espionage probe was voiced in the Commons yesterday by Justic Minister St. Laurent.

The minister raised the question in discussing an amendment proposed by John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) which would include a bill of rights in the Canadian citizenship bill. He said the proposed amendment would give no additional guarantee to the protection of the rights and privileges of individuals.

Mr. St. Laurent said he could not agree that habeas corpus had been suspended in the spy investigation, although the circumstances were such that a writ would be ruled out if taken to court.

Debate on Mr. Diefenbaker's amendment was adjourned by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, who indicated he plans to introduce an amendment to the citizenship bill, possibly to the preamble, which would serve as an "expression of the rights of a Canadian citizenship."

Claims Grave Defect

A "grave defect" in Mr. Diefenbaker's amendment, said Mr. Coldwell, was that his bill of rights would be contained only on the certificate of citizenship to be issued to new Canadians and thus would not apply to the native-born Canadian.

The House resumed the citizenship debate after hearing from Reconstruction Minister Howe a statement that prospects for a fuel shortage in Canada next winter were "more alarming" than at any time in recent years.

Attributing the shortage to the strike of soft coal miners in the United States, Mr. Howe said the government would "bend every effort" to obtain fuel for the Canadian householder. Domestic coal production, especially in the west, was being stepped up.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House the government hoped and expected there would be an exchange of high commissioners between India and Canada "in due course."

Not Asked for Advice.

Mr. King also said Canada had neither given or been asked for advice on the British decision to withdraw her military forces from Egypt.

The House gave first reading to minor bills dealing with feed grains, boundaries of national parks and mining in the Yukon.

The Senate gave first reading to the bill for ratification of the $1,250,000,000 loan to Britain, approved Tuesday by the Commons, and voted 43-30 against giving second reading to a private bill to sanction the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine as a butter substitute.

The Upper Chamber adjourned until Tuesday its debate on sec-

Scientists Preview Industrial Uses Possible From Radioactive Rays

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, May 9 — (AP)—A preview of immediate practical uses in industry for the radioactive rays available from atomic ovens is given in the bulletin of the atomic scientists of Chicago.

Any chemical useful in industry can be made radioactive in these ovens. Hydrogen is an example. Radioactive hydrogen already has supplied valuable information about the cracking processes that produce high-grade gasoline.

There is a patent for use of radioactive phosphorus in refining steel. What has been done with phosphorus can be done with other chemical elements.

Petroleum engineers can use radioactive materials as tracers to outline the extent of oil pools. These ray-emitting chemicals are pumped down a well, where they may distribute themselves through a pool. The rays they emit will trace the outlines of the pool.

Similar ray-emitters follow the flow of gas through a complicated system of pipes and reactors. A small amount of radioactive gas is added to the gas being studied. Wherever this radioactive stuff goes, it can be traced either by the sound it makes or by the readings it gives on a gauge. The rays are never noisy of themselves, but the small electrical currents they cause can be amplified and converted into sound.

Liquids can be traced in the same manner. Solids when difficult to trace can be followed by a similar system.

Four Children Burned to Death At Saint John, N.B.

Parents, Two Sons Receive Burns in Attempted Rescue

Saint John, N.B., May 9 (CP)—Four of the 11 children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Elward were burned to death early today when their two-storey wooden house on Park Street extension was destroyed by fire.

The victims were: Marie Lois, 13; Bernice Frances, 13; Joan Catherine, 10; and James Urban, 10 months.

The father and mother and two sons received burns in attempts to save those who were lost. The eldest boy, Raymond, 23, required hospital treatment after his pajamas were burned off his body and he was forced to jump naked from a second-storey window. Elward was severely burned about his head, Mrs. Elward's hair was scorched, and a five-year-old son, Manley, suffered burns on his arm.

The fire, believed to have started by a spark from the stove, was thought to have been burning inside the walls of the kitchen for some time before dense smoke aroused Elward, who was sleeping in a front downstairs bedroom with his wife, two sons, David and Manley, and the baby, James.

Ran For Water

Having aroused the others in the room, Elward ran to the kitchen for water to fight the flames which had broken out first in the living room but which later appeared in several other parts of the house at the same time. His wife, meanwhile, had awakened Donald, Kenneth, Maurice and Peter, who were sleeping in a bedroom off the kitchen. The four boys escaped through a window.

Raymond, in an upstairs bedroom, was aroused and immediately made an attempt to get into the girls' room, but was driven back by fumes and intense heat in that portion of the building. Finally, after his pajamas had caught fire, he jumped from a second-storey window to safety.

Went to Neighbor

Elward hurried to the home of a neighbor, H. H. Guilfoil, for aid and the latter brought a ladder to the Elward house. Guilfoil climbed to the girls' window and managed to pry it open a few inches, but was forced to slide down again when he was overcome by smoke. He then went up the ladder and was about to climb in through a window when an explosion of cases inside the building knocked him off his perch and he fell to the ground.

Edward then went to summon the fire department. Firemen said the house was a mass of flames when they arrived.

Only portions of two walls, the ruins of the floor of the ground storey and the foundation remained. The charred bodies of the four young victims were discovered in the debris.

Firemen said they did not know what caused the blaze.

SECRETARY HELPS SINATRA

Detroit, May 9—(AP)—Thanks to War Secretary Patterson Frank Sinatra is safe and sound today for a week's personal appearance here.

Frankie's plane arrived half-hour ahead of scheduled police escort. Fans swarmed across the field, 150 strong, threatening to overpower their idol.

A police squad escorting Mr. Patterson to his plane from a Detroit speaking engagement went to Frankie's rescue and with the aid of a flying wedge of bluecoats, he made it to a taxicab.

Court Being Asked To Set Aside Death Sentence

New Orleans, May 9 —(AP)—The Louisiana Supreme Court took over the play today in the strange drama of Willie Francis, probably the only man ever to walk away from the electric chair after the switch had been thrown.

Justices were scheduled to confer on a petition asking them to set aside the sentence of the 17-year-old Negro who escaped death last Friday when the portable electric chair failed to function.

Francis, confessed killer of a druggist in St. Martinsville, La., meanwhile looked forward to at least a few more weeks of life, thanks to the Supreme Court. Yesterday he received a reprieve "not to exceed 30 days" upon the request of Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill, who said the court needed time to study the case.

Before the reprieve, Francis was scheduled for a second trip to the chair today.

The petition was filed by A. P. Turead and Joseph A. Thornton, representing the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. They contended Francis had not received a full and impartial trial.

Bertrand de Blanc, St. Martinville lawyer, also had said he would appeal to the Supreme Court a habeas corpus writ denied by District Judge James D. Simon at St. Martinville.

Mr. De Blanc asserted Francis had been "electrocuted" as directed by the Governor's death warrant, and could not be legally sent to the chair again.

PROMPT ALARM SAVES SERVICE STATION

Prompt action on the part of Mr. George Forhan, local theatre manager, in turning in the alarm, prevented a blaze from causing what might have been serious damage to the upper Front Street Sunoco gasoline service station building on Wednesday afternoon.

According to firemen it is believed a spark from a burning rubbish pile near a steel fence at the rear of the property fell near the building and ignited the wood. The blaze was fortunately seen by Mr. Forhan who promptly turned in the alarm. Firemen used the booster tank on the blaze and extinguished it before damage resulted.

County Police Court

Uncompleted traffic cases almost completely dominated the local county police court Thursday morning when eleven of 22 traffic cases were enlarged, six of them for personal service. Court was held before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, with Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan prosecuting.

Three charges against Allan Mitchell, Moira Street, including one of careless driving, reckless driving, and of being drunk in charge of an auto, were enlarged for three weeks at the request of the Crown to permit a witness now in hospital to attend court. The charges against Mr. Mitchell arose following an accident near the O.S.D. several days ago when a Trenton man, Alfred Woods, suffered fatal injuries.

Two Indians residing on the Mohawk reservation appeared in court, one being charged with being in possession of intoxicating liquors, and the other charged with having an intoxicant. Fines of $50 and costs and $25 and costs were levied by the Magistrate.

A local youth, Glenn Young, age 17, pleaded guilty to having illegal fish and was assessed $10 and $2.50 costs, while Clarence Lewis, also of this city, paid his fine out of court. The charges arose following their apprehension on Front Street several days ago when they were found carrying one pickerel, a bass and a sucker, together with their spears. Charges were laid by Game and Fisheries Inspector Fred MacDonald of Point Anne.

U. S. Takes Drastic Steps

Washington, (AP)—The industrial stagnation settling swiftly over the United States because of the soft coal strike called by the United Mine Workers (A.F.L.) prompted drastic new steps today to conserve fuel, including a dim-out of the thickly-populated east and midwest.

President Truman scheduled a morning press conference, and while some officials said he would take that occasion to provide a new and grimmer report on effects of the shutdown, a White House assistant said the chief executive was planning nothing of a more dramatic nature.

Mr. Truman last Saturday called the strike a "national disaster". Up to then the effect had been felt mainly by industry. Now, in its 39th day, it is hitting the man on the street and the housewife in her kitchen.

The civilian production administration urged electric power utilities in coal-burning areas east of the Mississippi and in Iowa, Missouri and Minnesota to ration electricity in progressive stages, starting with a brownout and thence, to a blackout of all but essential services.

As a beginning, it suggested electric street advertisements and movie marquees be darkened as in wartime.

Another order prepared for issuance, probably today, would authorize the rationing of manufactured gas—a possible blow, to the householder who cooks with that fuel.

Beef Continues To Be Scarce

Beef-hungry housewives raided city butcher shops this morning but juicy steaks, tenderloins and even the tasty pot roast were conspicuous by their absence.

And furthermore, butchers held out little hope that beef appetites would be satisfied this week.

"Nothing but veal, madam," was the general response, "and of course prepared meats and fish."

Disappointed women turned away in more or less disgust at the situation, but generally they compromised with veal cutlets, liver, if they could get it, and a choice of canned foods.

One butcher shop which had a supply of pork chops, liver and bacon did a land office business during the early hours.

"There is some beef in the country, apparently", one butcher told the Ontario Intelligencer this morning. "Yesterday we were offered beef cattle, but there was a catch to it. The prices demanded were so exorbitant we could not touch the meat. There is such a thing as the law, you know," the butcher smiled.

One irate customer roared his disgust at the prevailing meat situation. He made no bones (no pun intended) about what he thought of governments, packers, and other, what he termed, contributing factors to the beef shortage.

"I've eaten so much veal in the last few days that I'm beginning to look like a bull-calf. Now the wife has put me on a fish diet, and next week I won't have the nerve to look a can of sardines in the face."

The balance of 12 charges filed against Grove, are in connection with fires which took place within the last five months.

Batch of Young Pupils In Newark on Rampage

Newark, N.J., May 9 —(AP)— A batch of elementary school children ran wild yesterday on their way home from a school track meet.

Police summed up their escapades as follows:

Contents of a bakery truck strewn on the pavement; ash cans upset on the streets; street peddlers and small shops pilfered of merchandise; plate glass windows smashed; cakes, candy and peanuts grabbed from a confectionery store; buses jammed with youngsters who refused to pay fares and papers and stones thrown from bus windows.

FOUR WHITE RATS STOLEN

Hamilton, May 9 —(CP)— "Of mice and men," is probably as good a description as any of the local police blotter for last night. Thefts reported to police ranged from a recently purchased ambulance to four white rats, stolen from a shed. The ambulance was quickly recovered.

Flagship of Atom Test Expedition Leaves on First Leg of Trip to Bikini

By ELTON C. FAY

Aboard U.S.S. Mt. McKinley, May 9. (AP)—This flag ship set out yesterday from San Francisco to fathom some of the mysteries of the atomic bomb and its influence on tomorrow's navy.

First port of call for the Mt. McKinley, amphibious command ship of the atom bomb test expedition, was Pearl Harbor, where nearly all 74 target ships were riding at anchor, awaiting inspection before they proceed to the "bomb's bulls' eye" at Bikini.

Thirty-three ships awaited sailing dates in west coast ports. At Pearl Harbor, Bikini or en route were 177 others.

The final, full dress rehearsal is scheduled for about June 25, when each of the 42,000 men involved will play his part—in the bomber, in instrument planes, in ships.

Task force officials say the two prime purposes of the experiment are to "measure the bomb as a bomb," (its damage and nuclear efficiency) and to determine its effect on ships. The experiment also will include tests against the equipment used by land armies— tanks, ordnance, supplies.

Many in position to know do not believe that this series of tests, in themselves, will decide whether navies are obsolete. What they do expect is evidence to show how warship design should be changed, what types of ship can best cope with the blast of a nuclear fission bomb, how fleets should be deployed, both tactically and strategically and what changes should be made in the location and construction of the big fleet bases.

Deliberate care is being taken that not all ships be destroyed. The target is being arrayed so that the damage will be graded, from maximum destruction at the centre to a minimum at the perimeters.

The atomizing effect on small metal material will be closely studied. At the Alamogordo test last July it was noted that telephone wire disappeared. Such reaction would be serious to radio aerials and radar equipment.

Freight Embargo in U.S. May Affect Some Local Manufacturing Plants

There is a strong possibility that manufacturing companies in the city, which are dependent on the United States for raw materials may close in the near future, following the embargo on freight shipments to Canada from the U.S.A. which, it is stated, goes into effect tonight.

The Mead-Johnson Company, which imports quantities of raw material from south of the border may be the first of the plants affected.

"We are no worse off, insofar as the coal shortage is concerned, than any other plant in the city," an official stated today, "but the embargo on freight shipments may be a contributing factor to a temporary closing of the plant."

Soft coal supplies in the city, one dealer stated this morning, are sufficient to fill contracts, but that is all. There is no surplus of the fuel.

"We are extremely lucky that the present situation cropped up in the Spring. Had it occurred during zero weather, the matter might have reached serious proportions," he said.

The majority of manufacturing plants here depend on electricity for power with soft coal being utilized for heating purposes.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

First Belleville Boy Scout Troop Presents Concert

The 1st Belleville Boy Scout Troop were the sponsors of a very successful musical concert held Tuesday evening in St. Thomas' Parish Hall. Many of Belleville's talented performers took part and the numbers ranged from the hilarious to the serious. The Scouts appeared as a chorus for a variety of selections, including "Chickory Chick," "Old Black Joe," and "Abide With Me." Chairman for the evening was Mr. Bill Navin, a familiar figure at such functions. He presented a number of piano solos including "Small Fry," and "I Cried for You," as well as enlivening the program considerably with his jokes and patter, highlighted by a take-off on Danny Kaye.

Miss Ethel Smith added greatly to the beauty of the program with her rendition of a number of popular songs. Don Beavis, a very talented but seldom heard pianist, played several numbers, including his own "Beavis' Blues."

Dancing selections were presented by Miss Madeline Walden and her pupils, Pat Gerow and Marilyn McFee.

A three-act play entitled "Boost for B.P." was given by members of the Scout Troop, consisting of Ted Goodier, Keith Latchford, Bill Spencer, Bruce Paige, Gerald Staring and Bob Ward.

Several saxophone duets, presented by Jack Muirhead and Bob Young, accompanied on the piano by Bill Navin, were greatly enjoyed. David Smith added to the variety of the program with a banjo rendition of "Danny Boy," and also accompanied the Scouts in some of their songs.

A great deal of credit is due Scout Master H. Nicholls and Bob Arthurs, who directed the evening's performance. Mr. Arthurs also appeared in several parts of the program.

Thanks are also due to Mrs. Ryan, who accompanied the Scouts in their various numbers and who so ably coached them in their singing; to Bob Keayes, who so ably handled the spotlight, and to all who took part in the program and otherwise assisted by giving of their time or loaning their equipment to make the evening such a success.

St. Julien Chapt. Receives Thanks For Eight Radios

The regent and members of St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. have received letters of appreciation from war veterans, who are patients in the Veterans Hospital, Kingston, thanking them for the gift of eight radios as well as large supplies of comforts.

Regent Mrs. Emily Neate said today that the proceeds derived from their recent tag day, amounting to $430.26 will be devoted to the veterans and the crippled children of Europe. The chapter expects to send to the veterans 4 additional radios in the immediate future. She also expressed the grateful appreciation of the chapter to all those who assisted in the work of the tag day, and of the generous response of the general public to the appeal for funds.

The tag day last Saturday which commemorated the Queen Alexandria Rose Day, was the 27th consecutive function of its kind for members of the chapter. They have been contributing to various humanitarian causes for nearly three decades through proceeds raised on Rose Day.

Kiwanis Centre Will Be Centre For All Activities

If the Kiwanis Club members agree with the suggestions of the committee composed of Jack McVeigh, Jack White, Archie Harris, Norman Edwards and Lawrence Kells proposed to a dinner luncheon at Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday, the Centre will be the pivot point of an active welfare work among the underprivileged children of this city. The members were given a questionnaire to answer and when returned to the secretary the above committee will complete their work. It is believed that Kiwanis work will flourish under the new setup and that the community will be the better for the program to be inaugurated. It was a most enthusiastic meeting.

The luncheon was prepared by Harry Allan and putting it mildly the luncheon was delicious. Being a meatless day, Mr. Allan prepared a chicken pot pie with mashed potatoes, corn for vegetable and all the trimmings plus deep raisin pie and coffee. The thanks of the club was expressed by Jack McVeigh. Mr. Vanner stated that the ladies auxiliary had made 51 dresses for the C.A.S. and would be presented shortly. Cliff Baragar asked that the members assist in the cancer drive and Bill Navin entertained with two solos, that literally brought down the house.

New Building Outlined

The President in opening the business session turned the meeting over to Jack McVeigh who stated that over the years except for the social evening held each quarter that the building has not been fully utilized by the members. Under the scheme that is proposed the members will come together more often and will appreciate the privilege it is to be a Kiwanian and the challenge that we face as Canadians. "We must move forward to have our club continue to flourish and hold its commanding position in the service club work in this city and district" said Mr. McVeigh. "The committee has prepared a list of recommendations for the consideration of the club and each member will review certain phases of the intended plan.

First Floor

Archie Harris covered the first floor of the building stating that upon entrance there would be a large cloakroom, eight by twelve and an office of the same size. There would be a board room 8 by fourteen and a reading and reception room twenty-two by 12. The V.O.N. quarters would be twenty-four by twelve with a room at the rear for the workroom of the ladies auxiliary of the club. The main room thirty-five by twenty-eight feet will be a games room and where the leading magazines and periodicals will be available. Jack White explained as to the use that the second floor would be put to, stating that luncheons of various types could be held. It was suggested that a permanent kitchen would be installed with an electric refrigerator and an electric stove. It was also suggested that a permanent caterer be obtained and a portion of the money derived from banquets would be used for upkeep.

Work of V.O.N.

Norman Edwards reviewed the work of the V.O.N. and stated that the club was bound to increase with the work of this organization. He stated that the three local nurses made on an average 500 calls a month and it was proposed to hold all the clinics at the centre. Lawrence Kells covered the basement of the building and suggested it could be used to continue the training of the boys and girls started at Roblin Lake during the summer holidays. Hobbies could be taught and probably some would make the activities their lifetime work. It was a most successful meeting and the Kiwanis Centre will most likely grow into one of the liveliest centres for good in this community.

IN MEMORIAM

CONLEY — In loving memory of a dear wife, Alice Conley, who passed away May 9, 1944.

Two years have passed and gone
Since one I loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers I place upon her grave
May wither and decay
But the love for her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by her Husband, Lois and Billy.

PRINGLE — In loving memory of our father and grandfather, Horatio Nelson Pringle, who passed away on May 9th., 1945.

His weary hours and days of pain,
His troubled nights are past,
And in our aching hearts we know
He has found sweet rest at last.

—Sadly missed by Muriel, Ron, Caryl, Luane and Patti.

PRINGLE — In fond memory of our father and grandfather, Horatio Nelson Pringle, who passed away May 9th., 1945.

Those whom we love go out of sight
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind.
Beautiful memories he left behind.

—Ever remembered by Reg, Ruth and Raymond.

CONLEY — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Mrs. Alice Conley, who passed away May 9th., 1944.

She is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of her are always near.
Days of sadness still come over us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.

—Fondly remembered by Mother, Father, sister Betty and brother Austin Dow.

NO WAY BUT BY GLASS BREAKING

Seattle, May 9 (AP)—Officials of the Boeing Aircraft Co. felt akin to the man who painted himself in the corner when they looked over their new skylights and found there was no way to wash them. Later the company solved the problem. One of every 24 panes will be knocked out, enabling maintenance workers to reach through the holes and wash the other sides of the panes. After that, they'll merely have to replace the 900 broken sections.

Hunger-Striking Sean McCaughey Said in Danger

By ALLAN MONTGOMERY
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Dublin, May 8 (CP Cable) — Sean McCaughey, 32-year-old former adjutant-general of the outlawed Irish Republican Army now on a hunger strike in Maryborough prison near Cork today was in imminent danger of death—but he is reported to have no intention of giving up his 19-day-old strike.

The feeling here is that unless something unexpected happens during the next few days McCaughey, serving a life imprisonment sentence for kidnap and torture, will die. The sentence arose out of I.R.A. treatment of Stephen Hayes, a member of the organization suspected of being a government spy. McCaughey demands that he be treated as a political prisoner.

The prisoner was visited yesterday by three sisters and a brother from Northern Ireland and they reported he is extremely weak and barely able to speak. He has been on a hunger strike since April 19 and a thirst since April 24.

A fellow hunger-striker across the border in Northern Ireland, David Fleming of Killarney, Eire, has completed 48 days on a hunger strike but his condition is reported not as critical as that of McCaughey. Medical men say a thirst strike is more serious in its effects than a hunger strike.

Each of the men is aware of the other's action and both say they will continue until their request for treatment as political prisoners is granted.

Both were prominent in the I.R.A. McCaughey was a Belfast school teacher and a prominent footballer in his native Glens of Antrim. Fleming was a farmer near the beautiful Killarney Lakes.

The government of Eire and Northern Ireland have been bombarded with requests for release of the two men. Lively scenes are expected in the Dail today when questions are to be asked by members of the Irish Legislature about the prospects for release of McCaughey.

Toll of Accidents

Every reader knows that Monday's newspapers contain the story of weekend toll of life. The Woodstock Sentinel-Review refers to "one dismal headline" in newspapers on Mondays telling the story of tragedies, which are mostly accidents.

The toll of fatal accidents and accidents in which injuries are sustained but no lives lost is lamentable for the loss they bring and for the pain and suffering that victims may be forced to undergo.

Repetition of the fact of such accidents which are more numerous at weekends in the holiday season should serve to give a warning to everyone to take heed and avoid danger whether one is at home or on the highways or at work or on holiday bent. The necessity is for unrelenting carefulness wherever one may be.

The time of year is not far off when many thousands of persons will be taking to the waters for swimming and bathing. Many holiday or weekend water fatalities occur during the summer season. There should be the greatest care exercised in choosing where to swim or bathe, making sure that there are no currents that may sweep the bathers away from shore and no jutting rocks under the surface of the water or deepholes which may prove a disastrous experience for the person bathing. It has been advised that no one should go bathing unless there is someone near who might be able to give assistance if anything untoward should happen, such as a bather getting beyond depth and finding it difficult to get back to shore. For that reason even swimmers should not extend their swimming very far beyond their depth unless someone with a boat is at hand.

The water has an unusual charm and always will have for people. It has especial appeal for children and there may be an accident if that inclination of the child is not restrained by the watchfulness of its elders.

It is well that everyone should be able to swim and protect himself or herself in the water in case of falling in or of some other accident. In learning to swim one should receive instruction from a swimmer who will wisely advise and keep a close watch on his or her charge while the period of instruction is in progress.

Late spring and summer form the loveliest period of the year because of the appeal of the great outdoors which beckons to road and highway, to lake and river, to haunts in the hills, in fact, to the life of freedom without the restraints of too much dress and attire. It can be made the season that will bring rich dividends in health and strength and may add many interests to the mind of everyone. Yet this very appeal of the season may bring certain risks, to avoid which it is necessary always to keep careful regard not to get into danger wherever one may be.

A tragedy at such a time when there should be undiluted pleasure is lamentable, yet a glance over the newspapers day by day shows danger lurking for the unsuspecting or for those inclined to take a chance or who are a little careless.

Grandma Wins

"Grandmothers galore will bless the name of Dr. C. H. Aldrich of Rochester, Minn., for his advice that babies, if they are not more than three months old, cannot be spoiled by being rocked," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. It notes that mighty few grandmothers of course have ever paid any attention to no-fondling rules. "What's a baby for?" has been their answer to modern science. But they have had to take a lot of scolding from modern young mothers. The Plain Dealer thinks that Dr. Aldrich has added ten years to Grandma's life, "that is, if she can find a rocking chair."

Hot or Cold?

On the same day, two noted scientists present us with two seemingly divergent forecasts as to the world's future temperature.

One warns us that the earth's core is growing hotter and hotter — a process which will eventually transform our terrestial home into a ball of fire, while the other assures us that we are entering on a fifty-year cold cycle, to be featured by progressively longer and colder winters.

While it is hard to harmonize these theories, they carry a comforting suggestion of the law of compensation when considered in conjunction.

If the world's internal heat is stepped up, we won't feel those colder winters. In fact humanity is more likely to find itself afflicted with a case of "hotfoot" than of chilblains.

Gold Discovery, But No Rush

Discovery of a new fabulously rich gold mine in the former Orange Free State of South Africa probably will not start a world-wide stampede. This is a different sort of world from that of 1849, when Sutter's nuggets drew men from all nations to San Francisco to hunt gold, and later young ladies to hunt '49er husbands, says Chicago News.

Now, if someone would discover a beefsteak mine assaying 5.21 pounds of porterhouse to the ton — well, that would make 'em come a jumping.

Newspaper Facts

"To a greater extent than any other medium of communication, newspapers have reported the day-by-day progress of industry, commerce and finance . . . newspapers have reconditioned the minds of our people for all significant information on business and finance," states Emil Schraum of the New York Stock Exchange.

JUST FOLKS

STOCKING LINE

My mother thought it shocking to say
"stocking" right out loud,
And she never went to buy them where she thought there'd be a crowd.
She stood blushing at the counter where such things were being sold,
And 'twas always in a whisper that her stocking needs she told.

In my time of knickerbockers mother purchased them for me.
They were black and ribbed and rugged and were gartered at the knee.
But my mother held the notion, mid-
Victorian, I declare,
Men should never know that stockings
were a part of ladies' wear.

Undisturbed, she ordered stockings for her children. For herself,
She pointed very shyly to the boxes on the shelf.
And I can't imagine mother, any morn
at half-past nine,
On a busy downtown sidewalk in a nylon stocking line.
